Says Argyle House is Full of Dubs and Incompetent Officers

Lieut.-Col. A. C. Pratt Gives One Reason for Riots at Rhyl Camp —Premier Borden is Regarded as a Joke in England.

(Special to The Examiner.)

HALIFAX, N.S., March 19. — Incompetence and unpreparedness on the part of the Canadian military authorities was the chief reason for the recent riots at Rhyl Camp, according to Lt.-Col. Arthur C. Pratt, formerly officer commanding the 133rd Battalion, C.E.F., and member of the Ontario Legislature for Norfolk county, who returned on the Celtic, which docked at Halifax last night.

Joy Rides For Officers.

"Officers were sent on joy rides to England and France to prepare some scheme for demobilization, but to judge by results, when the armistice was signed, Canada was not prepared to bring back her troops," said Col. Pratt. "Britain has repatriated 2,000,000 of her men and the United States about a similar number. Australia had, up to March 1, taken back 82,000 of her men over 12,000 miles of ocean, while Canada during the same period only brought back 58,000 men who had an ocean passage of less than 3,000 miles."

"Argyle House."

"Argyle House says that Ottawa gave instructions that no ships carrying more than 2,000 men were to come to Canada. As a result the Olympic and the Aquitania were taken off the Canadian service. No wonder the men at Rhyl Camp were sore. Men with more than three or four years' service to their credit and who had been wounded in action had to wait and see the third division, among whom were many men drafted under the Military Service Act, sent home before them.

Full of Dubs.

"Argyle House is full of incompetents and dubs who have winged their way through this war and who were praying to God that the war would last another year so that they could hang to their jobs. I don't know how it is, but General Turner seems to have a faculty for gathering "dubs" and incompetents around him."

Regarded as a Joke.

"Sir Robert Borden is in England, but let me tell you that over there he is regarded as a joke. It is different with Premier Hughes of Australia. He is regarded everywhere as a factor to be reckoned with. "I am going to find out where the trouble lies. The soldier has no means of remedying his grievances except by methods as adopted at Rhyl Camp.

"I spoke to 102 officers on board the Celtic and everyone of them said he did not blame the men one bit.

"If somebody had not interfered the British Admiralty would have provided all the ships necessary to bring back Canadian troops, and it would not have been necessary to use cargo boats."

Col. Pratt may possibly bring the matter before the Ontario Legislature during the present session.

"The Whole Truth."

"The whole truth of the matter" is that the Rhyl riot is directly chargeable to the grossest incompetency at Ottawa and Aryle House declared Col. Pratt. The tragedy of the Canadian Tommies is that they have been badgered around and have suffered countless hardships through the stupidity and inactivity of men with fewer brains than they have. I don't blame the rioters at Rhyl. There were 102 officers on board the Celtic and during the voyage I talked with the overwhelming majority of them, but I did not find a single one who censured the men for their outbreak."

Sir George Perley.

Why don't they repatriate Sir George Perley remarked the Colonel. Proceeding he added.

"Borden is a joke in England and sitting on a bench outside the peace conference—a mere page for the big men. Both he and Sir Edward Kemp are intensely seized with a vain desire for personal honours.

"And Sir George Perley—say, if the Canadian people were to learn the truth about the tragedy of the 14,000 Canadian boys in the Royal Air Force, Sir George Perley will be crucified if he ever comes back to Canada. When hostilities ceased, many of the gallant lads followed the urgings of the heads of the Air Force and accepted their discharges, together with their pay and small gratuities, thinking that thereby they might hasten their return to Canada. Their money soon was spent and I will say without the slightest doubt, that this very day there were scores of Flying Corps officers in London who had no idea where they would sleep. It will be best for Canada if she never learns the whole truth about the tragedy of the Royal Air Force boys.

And Sir George Perley is the man who is responsible for their present situation, for he is the man who should have taken the steps to repatriate them."

THE ERNIE MARKS COMPANY

The never-failing popularity of the Ernie Marks Company was once more demonstrated at the Grand Opera House last night when the company opened a two days engagement. The offering was "The Final Settlement", a vehicle that enabled the capable company to demonstrate their histrionic ability to the satisfaction of a crowded house. Miss Kitty Marks had the leading feminine role and her work was as successful as ever, while Ernie Marks scored as usual. The other roles were in good hands. Between the acts a series of enjoyable specialities was introduced. The Marks Company will be seen at the Grand tonight and a capacity attendance may be expected. The Y. M.C.A. Minstrels hold the boards at the Grand to-morrow and Friday nights and on Saturday the musical comedy "Pretty Baby" will be presented at matinee and evening performance.

Return of Aliens to Europe Indicated by Their Enquiries

Seeking Information Regarding Tickets and Sailing Accommodation—Quite a Number Intend Making Trip to Old Country This Summer.

LOWEST FARE IS $76

Many inquiries about overseas sailings, fares and accommodation are reaching the C.P.R. uptown office at present, indicating an emigration this spring and summer that may reach large numbers. Many aliens are eager to return home. Quite a number of Italians have turned their thoughts to the Appennines, a few Russians in this district seem to think they may help in bringing order out of the chaos that is devastating their native land. The majority of the seekers after information have their minds fixed on the British Isles. Already there has been a large number of Old Countrymen return home, but it is only a fraction of those who apparently intend to make the voyage this year.

Most of the inquiries are concerned with the details of steerage accommodation, but there are others who desire the better service of first and second, the cheapest fare from Peterborough to Liverpool is $76, and this price is $30 in excess of the pre-war fare.

DOWNEYVILLE CORRESPONDENCE

Farewell Presentation and An Address.

DOWNEYVILLE, March 19.— The farewell presentation and address to Mr. and Mrs. Martin Devine took place on Monday last. They are moving to Lindsay.

Sgt. Daniel O'Brien, who went overseas with the first contingent, is home for a few weeks' visit, after which he will return to Toronto to receive his discharge.

Pte. Joseph Houlihan of the American expeditionary forces, is visiting his home here.

Ptes. William and Lawrence Carroll have landed safely in the United States, both having gone overseas with the American expeditionary forces.

Mr. William Murray and Miss Geraldine Murray spent Sunday as the guests of Mr. and Mrs. Robert White of Fenelon.

Mr. Herbert Maloney of Enniskmore, was a week end visitor to Mr. and Mrs. James Guiry.

Mr. and Mrs. Percy Lucas are visiting in Peterborough.

Misses Lottie Galvin and Katie A. Perdue were in Peterborough to attend the Irish play "Shaun Rhue."

Miss Lila Lucas is visiting relatives in Peterborough.

A very large crowd attended the farm stock sale of Mr. Sam Sanderson on Monday, even though a very nasty day. Everything sold for good prices.

GERMAN GOVERNMENT WAS SUSTAINED

Soldiers' and Workmen's Councils Are Favourable to Scheidemann Regime—Communism is Disliked in Conservative Sections of Country.

(Special to The Examiner.)

BASLE, March 19.—Elections to the Soldiers' Councils in Magdeburg, Thuringen and Ruhr districts have resulted favorably for the present government, according to the Frankfort Gazette. The Soldiers' and Workmen's Council for Minden and Bielfeld districts the newspaper also reports, have declared against the system of Councils as a factor in the permanent political system and have issued a warning against Communism, for which, it declares, the workers are not ripe.

WHAT IT COST THE YANKS TO WIN WAR

An Orillian lately returned from New York found people there wearing buttons declaring "We did it," and full of the idea that the war was won by the United States soldiers. It is a pity room cannot be found for the further fact that the Yanks won the war at a cost of 53,000 men killed in action, whereas the English, who did next to nothing, came out of the conflict with a list of killed running up to over 800,000.

Rioting in Cairo.

Canadian Press.)

LONDON, March 18.—In the recent rioting at Cairo, Egypt, believed to be due to Nationalist agitation, six persons were killed and thirty-one others wounded. At Tanta-on-the-Nile, seventy-five miles above Alexandria, where rioting also occurred, casualties were eleven killed and fifty-one wounded. The message, which was filed on March 13, stated that order had been restored and that troops were able to cope with the situation.

In The Spring-Time.

Any fool knows enough to carry an umbrella when it rains, but the wise man is he who carries one when it is only cloudy. Any man will send for a doctor when he gets bedfast, but the wiser one is he who adopts proper measures before his ills become serious. During a hard winter or the following spring one feels sundown, tired out, weak and nervous. Probably you have suffered from a cold or influenza which has left you thin, weak and pale. This is the time to put your system in order. It is time for house-cleaning.

A good, old-fashioned alterative and temperance tonic is one made of wild roots and barks without the use of alcohol, and called Dr. Pierce's Golden Medical Discovery, in tablet or liquid form. This is nature's tonic, which restores the tone of the stomach, activity of the liver and steadiness to the nerves, strengthening the whole system.

CHESTER, DUTTS, RASK.—"I have used the 'Golden Medical Discovery' for a number of years and cheerfully recommend it as a blood purifier. I know it has no equal. I think my boy would not be alive to-day had it not been for the 'Discovery.' I also keep it on hand for coughs as it differs in form from other medicines, instead of upsetting the stomach, it strengthens it. It is good for the stomach."—Mrs. Peter Wick.

THIS SPRING A NEW, DELIGHTFUL PEACEFULNESS ENCOURAGES A REJUVENATION OF WINTER-WEARY HOMES

When Spring comes to the ice-bound countries of the far, frigid North, and the thawing of the frozen water-ways permits the coming again of the traders to the ports and villages, the primeval Eskimo takes bright beads and gaudy blankets in exchange for his rich furs and useful oils. Thereby he satisfies his COLOR-HUNGER, which is as natural with him and every other human being, as the hunger for air or food or water or loving kindness. And it's in the Spring, when the sunbeams are brightest and the skies are bluest and the eyes are keenest to see the drab oppressive sameness of long unvaried sights, that we long to freshen up our surroundings by some change of furniture or appointments, that is we long to satisfy our ARTISTIC and COLOR HUNGER. Because of the foretbought of the Cressman Store along this line, you will find complete and comprehensive stocks of FURNITURE, RUGS and CARPETS, DRAPERIES and WALL PAPER now awaiting your inspection on the third and fourth floors.

Rev. J. T. Potter Addresses Young People of St. Andrew's Church

"Rejuvenation" Was the Subject of the Speaker's Address—An Interesting Programme.

"Rejuvenation" formed the subject of the address of Rev. J. G. Potter, who spoke last night at St Andrew's Presbyterian Church. It was one of the most unique and enthusiastic meetings held in St. Andrew's Church for some time. Over three hundred people were guests of the Young Women's Mission Band and partook of a sumptuous repast in the Sunday School room.

Mr. Potter, who is a former pastor of this city is now a minister in a prominent Montreal church.

"Wet" Goods.

Announcing his topic the speaker stated, that he wanted it understood that because he came from Montreal his subject was in no way connected with "wet" goods. After a few pleasantries the speaker passed on to the pith of his subject "The Rejuvenation of the World for Christ." To-day a great deal is heard about reconstruction and repatriation but this country is growing and still will continue to grow but we need a rejuvenating spirit; we need to be inspired and get into line. Mr. Potter spoke of the great importance of the rejuvenation of moral and spiritual light. After all we need to harmonize but we must keep our soul responsive to the same Creator as Sanford Bennett, who spoke of rejuvenation in a different light. He would make a man young at 70 years who was old at 45.

Spirit of Sacrifice.

Speaking of those young men of St. Andrew's church, who had given their lives for the cause of liberty at the front: Tom Gibson, J. Gibson, S. Laing, G. Read, J. G. Miller, V. Mcharry, H. Nicholls, N. Clark and A. W. Tamblin, he asked if their spirit of sacrifice which led them to the battlefield was going to be forgotten. We must ever keep this spirit before us. The telephone, wireless and aeroplanes were all brought into being for the blessing of mankind and spiritual force must not be left unresponsive.

We must visualize those things that are going to make us much in the sphere which God has placed us. Michael Angelo saw an angel in a rude piece of granite and the solid marble block responded to the chisel and hammer. What he saw in a vision he brought out so when our great Captain of Salvation who said "Lift up your Eyes...." asks us to see the great purpose of life and not the selfish life we must respond. Our great Empire saw Europe's emancipation and responded with her best blood. God wants us to lay our lives on the altar of service. What we need is the gift of sufficient power. God who has called you into being will bless you and give you success in the future.

"So I am with you alway even unto the end of the world."

Christian Church

Referring to the Christian Church Mr. Potter said that the Y.M.C.A., the Red Cross, Salvation Army and all the other organizations which did such magnificient work at the front freely admitted that they could never take the place of the Christian Church.

The Spirit of St. Patrick's Day was there. The Sunday School was draped in green and the Irish songs of Miss Helen McLaren contributed to the "greenness" of the occasion. Mr. Potter referred to the Emerald Isle and St. Patrick's Day. Lord Roberts and Lord Kitchener claimed the Emerald Isle as their home and the spirit of St. Patrick was always with us. He prayed that those influences which were trying to tear Ireland away from Great Britain should not be allowed to prevail. The war showed that right was the true might.

New Sunday School.

Although every speaker referred to the great need of a new Sunday School for St. Andrew's and Mr. J. McKone, Superintendent of the Sunday School especially stated that some thing must be done for the young men or the church could not keep in touch with them.

Mr. W. S. Campbell was an efficient chairman while the capable vice chairman was Mr. E. J. Fowler.

A MAN HUNT IN DOURO TOWNSHIP

NASSAU, March 18. — A man hunt in Douro Township early on Sunday morning by a posse of military and civic police from Peterboro, came to a rather ironic conclusion. Arriving in front of a farm house, where they hoped to find a deserter, the party after some debate, decided to drive up the lane to the yard, but before they had gone half way the car stuck fast in the snow and slush. They had no other recourse but to appeal to the farmer for help, and after being aroused he brought a team of horses, but found to his surprise that the car he was to rescue was in his own lane.

Explanations were made as gracefully as possible, it is said, and while the farmer was hauling the stranded "jitney" back on to solid ground the military police proceeded with their search but failed to locate the man that they were after. They remained for a time on the premises and finally departed as unceremoniously as they had come.

Lloyd George Asked to Remain

(United Press.)

PARIS, March 18. — Premier Lloyd George at yesterday's meeting of the supreme War Council, was handed a letter signed by President Wilson, Premier Clemenceau and Premier Orlando asking that he postpone his visit to London for a fortnight, it was learned today. Lloyd George replied that he must consult his colleagues in London before changing his plans.

Tax Rate Finally Fixed at 31 Mills, Assessment Is Higher

The City's Budget for 1919 is a copious statement of the details of expenditure in all the municipal departments presenting the total revenue required to be raised, the assessment upon the basis of which the required sum will be secured, and from these financial facts the striking of the rate was simply a problem in arithmetic. The bulk of the work since the first of the year has been carried out in the Treasurer's Department after the Committees of the Council had fixed their appropriations.

This year's rate, as previously announced, is 31 mills, and the appended statement shows how this total is allotted to the various spending departments. The statistics of assessment increases will be of interest to those ratepayers who take an interest in the city's financial affairs other than the mere paying of their taxes.

THE growing of sugar beets has become an important feature of farm life in this country—just as it has been for many years in Europe and for several years past in the United States.

Every year, thousands of tons of these home-grown sugar beets are contracted for by us and used in our three modern refineries for the making of

DOMINION CRYSTAL SUGAR

The leading grocers of Canada sell this truly Canadian product and the most particular women in the land use it daily on their tables and in their kitchens for baking and preserving.

In thousands of homes, its merits became known during 1918, when the supplies of imported raw cane sugar were so depleted that, but for our product of the sugar beet, Canada would indeed have had a sugar famine. Then it was that Canadian housewives learned to appreciate what a fine thing it is to have a sugar that is "Canadian from the ground up." Then it was that they turned gratefully to Dominion Crystal Sugar and found it to be all that we have claimed—a sugar of exceptionally fine granulation that gives unfailing satisfaction.

We want more women to become acquainted with this pure and sparkling sugar.

Not all Dominion Crystal Sugar is made from beets—we do import raw cane sugar—and we refine it in the same three refineries that produce our "beet" sugar. But our pride is in the product we make from Canadian sugar beets. There is none better.

The interesting story of the sugar beet and how we extract this finest and purest of sugar from it, is told in our beautiful book, "Sugar—from Beet to Bowl." A copy of this book is yours for the asking—all Canadian women should read it. Your name and address on a post card is sufficient—the book will be sent you by next mail.

The 20-pound Bag—A Handy Package

MOST grocers have Dominion Crystal Sugar in the 20-pound bag as well as in barrels.

Most grocers take pride in selling this superior and truly Canadian product. Ask your grocer for it.

Dominion Crystal Granulated, for preserving and baking, is put up in 300-pound barrels, also 20-pound bags.

Murray Street Training Club

Address by Miss Marjory Trotter of Toronto.

The gathering of young ladies on Friday evening last at the Murray street Baptist Church, was an unqualified success. Miss Marjorie Trotter of Toronto, a specialist in work among young ladies addressed about seventy between the ages of fifteen and twenty-two. Arrangements had been made that they should have supper together at 6:30 o'clock. The organized classes of Mrs. W. D. Scott, Mrs. Stenton, Mrs. James Wood, Miss Hardell made up the above number.

Miss Trotter spoke for about forty minutes outlining the responsibilities and possibilities of young girls at this age. The result of the gathering was an organization of a branch of the Canadian Girls in Training Club with the following officers:

President, Miss Olive Yelland.
Vice- President, Elizabeth Webber.
Sec-Treasurer, Miss Robena Montgomery.

BRIDGE WASHED OUT IN JACKSON PARK BY MONDAY'S FLOOD

The bridge across the creek near the pavilion in Jackson Park was swept away by last Monday night's freshet. The stone piers on either side remain, and stumps of the broken timbers that supported the floor show that they had decayed to such an extent that they could have offered but little resistance to the force of the flood and the weight of ice that was thrown against the bridge. The floor was only a few feet above the summer level of the water, and mostly every spring it was subjected to the battering of the swollen creek carrying great blocks of ice. This bridge was a convenient crossing from one side of the park to the other, leading to the railway and beyond that to the lagoon.

There were evidences along the low road of the jam that had piled up above the bridge. Chunks of ice, boulders, and driftwood were scattered along the bank and strewn over the road, and down stream trees that have grown too near the water, bore fresh abrasions where the bark had been torn off by the floating ice. One stout sapling was scraped along its exposed side from the roots to the top as if some heavy object had lumbered over it.

The creek rushed through the park yesterday like a mill race. It plunged heavily over the dam and hurled the ice against the riprap along the railway with an eroding effect that is gradually wearing weak spots in that wall. Further west it had spread out in numerous channels it chooses in its Spring frolic, and south of Smith street as far as the Bonner Worth factory it was cutting a wide swath through the fields, throwing the ice in all directions and particularly piling it up at the bends.

Peace Conference Approves of Plan

An International Air Code Has Been Established—Some of the Proposals—International Pilots.

(Canadian Press.)

PARIS, March 18.—In a report today to the Commission appointed to consider plans for an International air code, it was announced that the British proposals have been, in the main, accepted. An International Council will be formed as a section of the League of Nations to handle all matters relative to aerial navigation. It has been decided that each nation is entitled to sovereignty over the air above, subject to the granting of permission for the passage of foreign aviators. There is to be no discrimination against any nation by another, air pilots will be licensed on an International basis and there will be International rules governing right of way for airplanes and airships.

"PRETTY BABY"

That syncopated Jimmie Hodges' new "Pretty Baby" show which made its New York debut last fall will dispense its glories at the Grand Opera House Saturday, matinee and evening.

By sheer force of speed, levity and generally happy-go-lucky atmosphere this big syncopated musical treat, provides the sort of entertainment which every musical loving community likes. Built like a miniature "Ziegfeld Follies," without any palpable imitation thereof, "Pretty Baby" just rags and tickey trots from one frivolity to another. Always made enjoyable by musical numbers that have melody and merit, and by a cast of principals that could push a far less deserving piece to success. The luminaries are supported by thirty-five people.

Jimmie Hodges' whose songs are being sung from one end of the country to the other is responsible for the show in its entirety.

The cordiality with which "Pretty Baby" and its interpreters are greeted is proof positive of its merits. The artists and their high standing of the musical and comedy stage is unmistakable evidence that entertainment and company are the best in the world of make-believe. The chorus, with this attraction are not Broadway beauties, but each and every one is a dainty daughter of the south draped in costumes designed by the master of modes and rebus. No wonder "Pretty Baby" pleases the eye and ear.

Tax Rate Finally Fixed at 31 Mills, Assessment Is Higher

The City's Budget for 1919 is a copious statement of the details of expenditure in all the municipal departments presenting the total revenue required to be raised, the assessment upon the basis of which the required sum will be secured, and from these financial facts the striking of the rate was simply a problem in arithmetic. The bulk of the work since the first of the year has been carried out in the Treasurer's Department after the Committees of the Council had fixed their appropriations.

This year's rate, as previously announced, is 31 mills, and the appended statement shows how this total is allotted to the various spending departments. The statistics of assessment increases will be of interest to those ratepayers who take an interest in the city's financial affairs other than the mere paying of their taxes.

THE growing of sugar beets has become an important feature of farm life in this country—just as it has been for many years in Europe and for several years past in the United States.

Every year, thousands of tons of these home-grown sugar beets are contracted for by us and used in our three modern refineries for the making of

DOMINION CRYSTAL SUGAR

The leading grocers of Canada sell this truly Canadian product and the most particular women in the land use it daily on their tables and in their kitchens for baking and preserving.

In thousands of homes, its merits became known during 1918, when the supplies of imported raw cane sugar were so depleted that, but for our product of the sugar beet, Canada would indeed have had a sugar famine. Then it was that Canadian housewives learned to appreciate what a fine thing it is to have a sugar that is "Canadian from the ground up." Then it was that they turned gratefully to Dominion Crystal Sugar and found it to be all that we have claimed—a sugar of exceptionally fine granulation that gives unfailing satisfaction.

We want more women to become acquainted with this pure and sparkling sugar.

Not all Dominion Crystal Sugar is made from beets—we do import raw cane sugar—and we refine it in the same three refineries that produce our "beet" sugar. But our pride is in the product we make from Canadian sugar beets. There is none better.

The interesting story of the sugar beet and how we extract this finest and purest of sugar from it, is told in our beautiful book, "Sugar—from Beet to Bowl." A copy of this book is yours for the asking—all Canadian women should read it. Your name and address on a post card is sufficient—the book will be sent you by next mail.

Murray Street Training Club

Address by Miss Marjory Trotter of Toronto.

The gathering of young ladies on Friday evening last at the Murray street Baptist Church, was an unqualified success. Miss Marjorie Trotter of Toronto, a specialist in work among young ladies addressed about seventy between the ages of fifteen and twenty-two. Arrangements had been made that they should have supper together at 6:30 o'clock. The organized classes of Mrs. W. D. Scott, Mrs. Stenton, Mrs. James Wood, Miss Hardell made up the above number.

Miss Trotter spoke for about forty minutes outlining the responsibilities and possibilities of young girls at this age. The result of the gathering was an organization of a branch of the Canadian Girls in Training Club with the following officers:

President, Miss Olive Yelland.
Vice- President, Elizabeth Webber.
Sec-Treasurer, Miss Robena Montgomery.

The bridge across the creek near the pavilion in Jackson Park was swept away by last Monday night's freshet. The stone piers on either side remain, and fragments of the broken timbers that supported the floor show that they had decayed to such an extent that they could have offered but little resistance to the force of the flood and the weight of ice that was thrown against the bridge. The floor was only a few feet above the summer level of the water and mostly every spring it was subjected to the battering of the swollen creek carrying great blocks of ice. This bridge was a convenient crossing from one side of the park to the other, leading to the railway and beyond that to the lagoon.

There were evidences along the low road of the jam that had piled up above the bridge. Chunks of ice, boulders, and driftwood were scattered along the bank and strewn over the road, and down stream trees that have grown too near the water, bore fresh abrasions where the bark had been torn off by the floating ice. One stout sapling was scraped along its exposed side from the roots to the top as if some heavy object had lumbered over it.

The creek rushed through the park yesterday like a mill race. It plunged heavily over the dam and hurled the ice against the riprap along the railway with an eroding effect that is gradually wearing weak spots in that wall. Further west it had spread out in numerous channels it chooses in its spring frolic, and south of Smith street as far as the Bonner Worth factory it was cutting a wide swath through the field throwing the ice in all directions and particularly piling it up at the bends.

Peace Conference Approves of Plan

An International Air Code Has Been Established—Some of the Proposals—International Pilots.

(Canadian Press.)

PARIS, March 18.—In a report today to the Commission appointed to consider plans for an International air code, it was announced that the British proposals have been, in the main, accepted. An International Council will be formed as a section of the League of Nations to handle all matters relative to aerial navigation. It has been decided that each nation is entitled to sovereignty over the air above, subject to the granting of permission for the passage of foreign aviators. There is to be no discrimination against any nation by another. Air pilots will be licensed on an International basis and there will be International rules governing right of way for airplanes and airships.

"PRETTY BABY"

That syncopated Jimmie Hodges' new "Pretty Baby" show which made its New York debut last fall will dispense its glories at the Grand Opera House Saturday, matinee and evening.

By sheer force of speed, levity and generally happy-go-lucky atmosphere this big syncopated musical treat, provides the sort of entertainment which every musical loving community likes. Built like a miniature "Ziegfeld Follies," without any palpable imitation thereof, "Pretty Baby" just rags and turkey trots from one frivolity to another. Always made enjoyable by musical numbers that have melody and merit and by a cast of principals that could push a far less deserving piece to success. The luminaries are supported by thirty-five people.

Jimmie Hodges whose songs are being sung from coast to coast of this country to the other is responsible for the show in its entirety.

The cordiality with which "Pretty Baby" and its [illegible] was greeted is proof positive of its merits. The artists and their high standing on the musical and comedy stages is undisputable evidence that entertainment and company are the best in the world of make-believe. The chorus, with this attraction are not Broadway beauties, but each and every one is a dainty daughter of the south draped in costumes designed by the master of modes and styles. No wonder "Pretty Baby" pleases the eye and ear.

HIGH ROLLERS WON FROM DE LAVAL

Last night in the Business Men ten pin league at the Water Street Alleys, High Rollers took two games from the De Laval winning the first game by one pin, and had to roll the 900 mark to win the second. De Laval came back strong in the last game and rolled 920 defeating the High Rollers by 66 pins. For De Laval Ruiter put up a record single score of 259 which is the record in the Business Mens' League. Ruiter, Carter, Fitzgerald, Byers, all passed the 500 mark. For the High Rollers, Solomon hit the Maple for 621. Hayes, Mitzes rolling passed the 500 mark. Both teams rolling over the 2600 mark.

HIGH-SALARIED STARS HAVE NOT YET SIGNED

NEW YORK, March 17.—Ty Cobb and Tris Speaker, shining lights of baseball, are two of the players who have yet to sign contracts for the 1919 season. Ty is generally supposed to have drawn $20,000 for some years past, and Speaker has been rated at $16,000 in the annual salary list of the Cleveland Club. It is not expected that either will sign a contract until after his arrival at the training camp.

Cobb's home is in Augusta and the Tigers will train at Columbus, Ga., so Ty will have only a short distance to go when he is ready to talk things over. Speaker will come up from his home in Hubbard City, Texas to the Indians 'training camp at New Orleans, and Owner Jim Dunn insists that he will sign.

JAIL SENTENCE AWAITS JOHNSON

CHICAGO, March 18.—United States District Attorney Clyne states that Jack Johnson can return to the United States, but if he does he'll go to jail. "There is a sentence hanging over his head and he can't evade it," said Mr. Clyne. "Government officials will arrest Johnson the minute he lands."

Mr. Clyne declared that representations never had been made to him by Jack Curley seeking immunity for Johnson. He said that a man, whose name he could not recall, had visited him about a year ago.

WARSAW CORRESPONDENCE

WARSAW, March 19.—Mr. and Mrs. John Selkirk, Peterboro, were in the village Tuesday.

Mr. Melville Miller, Apsley, is visiting relatives here.

Mr. A. D. Payne was in the village Monday.

Pte. Louis Drain son of Mr. and Mrs. Jas. Drain, North Dummer, returned from overseas last week.

Pte. Garret McMurray, has returned from overseas. Rather than tell on another man's carelessness and have him court martialed, Pte. McMurray endured a bad head wound without hospital treatment.

Messrs. Allan Taylor and Ernest Batten started for the West Wednesday morning.

On Wednesday last, Mr. and Mrs. Wm. Clysdale and son, who have been visiting friends and relatives in this vicinity started on their return journey to her home in Wilkie, Sask.

Last Wednesday Mr. and Mrs. Albert Helps, and son Theodore, and Mr. and Mrs. Wesley Bullock started for their new home in Wilkie, Sask. Mr. Bullock took a carload of goods and stock, including five horses.

Dummer Council met on Saturday.

The rain Sunday and Monday made the roads in such a condition that some of our people who had planned to go to the St. Patrick's Tea, Lakefield, could not go.

There was a meeting of the patrons of the Warren Cheese Factory on Monday afternoon.

Boy's Club

It is hoped that the Boy's Club, which is to meet in Mr. Calder's Hall Wednesday evenings, will be well and promptly attended. The mentors are: Rev. Percy Robert, Rev. Mr. Clare, Mr. David Miller and Mr. Fred Crowe. This Club will take up the fourfold, religious, educational, service and health, program, as outlined for the "Trail Rangers".

Box Social.

The Box Social held by Miss Dewar's Bible Class last Tuesday was quite a success. Mr. Wallace Anderson auctioned the boxes and none brought less than $1.00. The profits were about $55.00. A very enjoyable evening was spent in games, contests and music. Besides paying their own expenses, this Class has given a good deal of money to the Methodist Missionary Society, to the Patriotic and Red Cross Societies and also helped in supplies for boxes to our boys overseas, whenever the Women's Institute sent them. Once they gave a large cake of chocolate for each of the fifty-five boxes.

Largely Attended.

The Women's Institute last Thursday was largely attended. Reports were received from some School Sections, signifying their intention of taking part in the School Fair. It was decided to write to Mr. F. C. McCrae, District Representative at Norwood and ask him to send each School Section in the Township complete information regarding the fair.

Among the Missing

Mrs. Jas. Mor... was unable to come so her paper on "The Harm of Fault Finding," was missed. Miss Marjorie Trotter, Toronto, who is intensely interested in Young Girls gave a very helpful talk. She compared life to a beautiful tree, one branch reaching out to help others, one to gain knowledge and another up to God. The body must be cared for, though some people's lives were like a dog running after its tail, everything they did was for themselves and they got no further in real life.

St. Patrick's Dance.

Notwithstanding the unpleasant evening the St. Patrick's dance given by the Patriotic League was quite a success. The music by the Warsaw Orchestra was good. The luncheon was dainty and the dancing thoroughly enjoyed. Complimentary tickets were given returned soldiers. About 30 couples were present.

Though few were present except from the village the St. Patrick's social given by Warsaw Methodist Young People's League was a very pleasant affair.

The waggon tongue has never said a word, but it gets there ahead of the rest of the outfit. It might be well for some people to make a note of this.

Ashes and Rubbish Thrown into Downie St. Creek in the Summer

Citizens Who Are Said to Have Made This Careless Practice Suffer From Overflows in Spring—How Ashburnham Fared.

CULVERTS TOO SMALL

"I fthe people who live near the Downie street creek would help to keep it clear of refuse in order that the spring freshets would have a clear channel, the flooding that occurs in that district would be entirely avoided," said City Engineer Parsons in referring to the damage that was caused in the district north of McDonnel street and east of Donegal.

It has been reported to the city officials that in the summer months, when the creek is simply a dry trench the citizens living near by throw tins cans, ashes and other refuse into it, and as a result it has been gradually filling in. The creek cuts through private property and it should be the duty of those residents who are affected by the resulting floods to prevent the channel from becoming a last resting place for refuse that should be collected by the city's garbage system.

The spring floods should be a lesson to the dwellers in the north end, for it is invariably the Downie street creek that causes all the damage and inconvenience in an extensive area north of the G. Wilcox Green foundry.

THE RINK WELL WATERED.

The vacant lot at the north-west corner of Hunter and Mark Streets was a muddy lake yesterday, beneath which the Mark Street Rink was partially submerged. A number of the houses in that vicinity had cellars more or less full of water that were perfectly dry last night.

East of Rogers Street a depression that crossed gardens and back lots stretched out like a bay with attendant Venetian touches, suggesting the need of punts or other forms of gondolas to maintain communication with the straggling sheds and stables at the rear.

T. ANTHONY'S EXPERIENCE.

Thos. Anthony, at 472 Rogers St., awoke in morning to find his stable isolated in the pond that had developed during the night. By a precarious extension of ladders and planks laid along a fence, pile of wood, and from that base to the door of the hay loft, Mr. Anthony forced his way into the upper storey of his barn, and climbed down to the stable, where his horse was patiently waiting, knee deep in water, for release. After harnessing the animal, Mr. Anthony returned on its back to the higher level of his yard.

Next door, at 474 Rogers Street, G. S. McCartney's henhouse was stranded in the flood, and at noon his hens were doubtless still roosting on the higher perches. He had been unable to carry them cereal breakfast to them. Two years ago, Mr. McCartney lost his entire flock. Yesterday noon he learned that several hens and a rooster was drowned.

Looking across the back lots to the corner of Douro and Concession Streets, the prospect presented a bedraggled array of barns and henhouses, between which the main stream of the flood passed as between islands.

WAGGON FOR A FERRY.

The water overflowed the culvert and roadway at Euclid Avenue early in the day cutting off the workers who lived to the east of it. Mr. Jas. Healey turned his waggon into a ferry, and transported the little groups of men and girls who were held up by at least three feet of water on the road. It spilled into several cellars nearby, and further south washed through the properties with the same general effect as in the Rogers Street block.

CULVERTS TOO SMALL.

Inadequate culverts are the cause of the floods that visit Ashburnham practically every spring. These outlets must have been built in the summer months, when the bed of the creek was dry, and seemed to be merely a depository for tin cans and other rubbish. The culvert under Hunter Street is too small, and at Rogers and Mark Streets the provision for carrying off freshets is even worse.

FIREMEN CALLED OUT.

The utility of the two-platoon system was demonstrated Monday when the off shift of the fire brigade was called by the Fire Chief Grange to help in the work of rescue and opening the drains when the creek which runs across McDonnel street overflowed.

At nine o'clock the eight men of the off-shift armed with shovels, picks and crowbars, and with hip-length rubber boots and rubber coats started at the corner of McDonnel and Reid streets to open up the surface drains and carry families out of their flood houses. Three of the firemen carried out $200 worth of groceries from Mrs. Burns' store, Reid and McDonnel streets.

A fireman was sent to the corner of William and King streets where the water had risen considerably. Water traps in several houses were opened thus allowing the cellars to be emptied.

At 2.30 a.m. the Fire Chief was called to the residence of Mr. Jas. Bourke, Dublin street, where the water was running in through his basement windows like Niagara Falls. Nothing could be done and the flow continued until the surface of the water in the basement was even with that outside. Until nearly 12 o'clock, people, sometimes whole families, were carried out of their houses by the firemen, while the water surged around their legs past their knees.

JARRED BRIDGE.

The small footbridge, which crosses the railroad track and creek on Stewart street, acted as a bulwark to the ice and it was in danger of being carried away. Street Commissioner Harry Evans arrived on the scene, and with the assistance of Edward Tighe, better known as "General Tighe," the ice was dynamited away, and the water allowed to continue down stream uninterrupted.

Until 1.30 in the morning the off-shift of the fire brigade were busy and prompt at the usual time went on duty yesterday morning at the hall.

SIDEWALKS ARE DAMS.

Cement sidewalks become dams with tiny sluices under the road that are ample enough for summer showers, but are altogether too small for spring floods. With larger culverts it is likely that there would be none of the recurring troubles that result from the breaking up of winter and the March rains. The sidewalks on these cross streets set up a system of reservoirs similar to the Trent Canal's storage and control system, but of course on a smaller scale. The residents protest that they should not be subjected to these annual washouts. On Rogers Street the culvert, and an obviously inadequate one at that, disappears under the road and bubbles up at the rear of the two houses at 449 and 451 on the opposite side, between which it runs.

These houses escape because of the retaining wall of the sidewalk on the east side, but the situation is an intolerable one. Citizens complained yesterday that their supplies of coal, potatoes, preserved fruits and vegetables, and other household necessaries were unapproachable because of the depth of water in their cellars.

"My cellar was high and dry Monday," said one man on Euclid Ave., "but yesterday I was looking for a pump to drain it. There is a nice job shovelling out the mud too."

Sheds and back kitchens were well drenched.

At Hunter, Mark, Rogers and Euclid Streets the culverts are incapacious to carry away the flow of water that came down from the hills and back country Monday. Along the river above Douro Street the flume that was built along the extension of McFarland Avenue was gushing a full stream of brownish water and was satisfactorily draining that neighbourhood. But this long culvert, like the others, was not built on sufficiently generous dimensions.

South Hunter Street, the creek pours away on its best behaviour, crossing beneath Burnham Street and emptying into the river below the old brewery.

Trying to conduct a large business without capital is like trying to sharpen a lead-pencil with a pair of scissors.

Voice of The People

To the Editor of the Examiner:—

It is to be hoped that when our city fathers read the item in Monday evening's Examiner, regarding the vicious attack by dogs on a boy of nine years old they will need no further pursuasion with regards to doing away with this public nuisance, and as for the destruction of lawns and flowerbeds. Well! perhaps some of the lovers of dogs see more in one of their pet poodles, or perhaps some hungry hound, than they would in a well kept lawn or a neatly arranged flower bed. But apart from lawns and flowerbeds, is it not enough to disgust any reasonable thinking person to read in the evening paper of the terrible sight which that mother beheld when she saw her child being torn to pieces by two of the pests (pets) we hear so much about. Now I would suggest that we have Jimmy speed up in the running down of dogs with an increase in salary.

OFFICIALS OF QUAKER OATS COMPANY MET BRIDGE COMMITTEE

In a conference with the city's special bridge committee this afternoon representatives of the Quaker Oats Company requested that, instead of the ramp which the plans for the Hunter street bridge had shown providing for an approach to the west into the company's yards, a platform for [illegible] by sixty feet be built from the bridge at its floor level into the warehouse. The Quaker Oats company's officials were T. A. Potter of Chicago, George Edwards and G. A. Macdonald of Peterboro. Mr. C. F. Reefer of the Leonard Construction Co. was also present. In dispensing with the ramp the company would undoubtedly secure an inlet on the ground level from Simcoe street. The request will be considered by the Committee and Engineer Barber.

Not What It Seemed.

"No one ever loved you half as well as I do," he said to her.

She made no answer.

"How did you ever come to love me?" he pleaded. Still the girl refused to speak, although she smiled encouragingly at this.

"Your name is written on my heart. The world is dark without you. I've built a bungalow for you and me. Let us fly to an isle in the tropic sea. The kiss you gave me set my heart on fire."

The girl was not offended. She scowled a little, but not at him. She seemed in deep thought. Suddenly she looked into his pleading orbs. "No," she said. "Nothing like that."

"My Coola-loola girl. When—"

The girl shook her head and left the counter.

Bandit Troubles in Mexico Are Said to Be On the Decrease

MEXICO CITY, March 19.—The state of Morelos, just south of this city, is completely under the control of government troops after being overrun for ten years by bandits commanded by Emiliano Zapata.

A campaign conducted by General Pablo Gonzales, commander of the government forces, has been successful, Zapata and a few hundred followers having been driven into the almost impassable mountains near Puenta de Ixtla, on the boundary between Mexico and Guerrero. His capture with that of General Genevevo De La O and Manuel Palofax, his chief lieutenants, is expected daily.

An opportunity to confirm the government's announcement that Morelos has been pacified has been afforded the correspondent of the Associated Press, who has just completed a seven day journey by railroad, mule and afoot through a large part of the state, including virtually all of Zapata's former strongholds. There is regular train service over the National Railroad of Mexico between this city and Cuernavacat ne capital of Morelos, and colonists and artisans are being taken there free of charge by the Government.

Prized Paintings Cut into Trousers

Cuernavaca, which has been held by government troops for several months is rapidly approaching a normal condition, although the Zapatistas stripped the place of virtually every stick of timber and unroofed nearly all the houses and public buildings. So scarce was material for clothing while Zapata held the town that his men looted the cathedral and the people who remained there tell of seeing the rebel soldiers wearing trousers which made out of what were once valuable paintings.

General Gustavo Elisonde, a former Rough Rider, who is in command at Cuernavaca, reports the discovery of a cave in the mountains where Zapata, who seldom entered cities, had his headquarters. The cave is said to be ten miles in length and was used as a warehouse for supplies and ammunition. An average of thirty Zapatistas are surrendering to General Elisondo daily.

Great Estates Divided

A trip was made from Cuernavaca to Cuautla, the principal commercial centre of the state, and on the way a number of Zapata's former strongholds were visited. Government forces are stationed at all strategic points, one of which is Tetilla Pass, where on May 7, 1918, a government regiment of four hundred men was ambushed and massacred.

The country between Cuernavaca and Cuautle is dotted with looted sugar refineries, representing investments totalling millions of dollars. They are surrounded by sugar plantations which were allowed to run to waste by the rebels. Every stick of timber and every pound of saleable metal was torn from the refineries by Zapata's men.

The district near Cuautla, where General Gonzales has his headquarters, shows results of the government's programme of dividing up the great estates among the people with the co-operation of the proprietors. Many former rebels are working in the fields, while the town of Cuautle is being rapidly rehabilitated.

The government is determined to eliminate the old system under which the whole State of Morelos was formerly divided into twenty-eight estates owned by fourteen families.

3,000 Slaughtered at One Bridge

Schools are being opened but their capacity is entirely inadequate to accommodate the hundreds of children seeking admission. One may see evidence of the conditions which have prevailed there in the curiosity of the children, some of whom are fifteen and sixteen years old, in the first civilian they have ever seen. They are especially interested in his clothes. In the past they have encountered only the cotton clad Zapatistas or uniformed government soldiers.

Except for the extreme southwest section, where Zapata has taken refuge, the whole state is quiet and there has been no skirmish reported in weeks. The interoceanic Railway is operating trains between Cuautla and this city without armed escorts but strategic points are well guarded, especially the bridge at Nepantla, where it is estimated three thousand civilian railway passengers were slaughtered by Zapatistas during the ten years of rebellion.

Walter Norton is Going to France to Seek Missing Sons

Walter Norton, of New Zealand, War Correspondent, Has Led Adventurous Life.

HALIFAX, March 20.—

Walter Norton, famous war correspondent, the first white man born in New Zealand and the successor of Charles Dickens as reporter in the British House of Commons for the Pall Mall Gazette, arrived in this city from New York on his way to France to seek his two sons, "missing in action" in the British casualty lists.

The two sons are Major Samuel Norton, forty years old, and Lieutenant Harold G. Norton, thirty-six. Both were of the First New Zealand contingent and their father has not heard from them in seven months. It is his hope to find them alive among the prisoners released by Germany, or, if not, to locate their graves.

Mr. Norton has led a most adventurous life, having reported seventeen British wars, mainly for Sir George Newnes, owner of Tid-Bits, and for Sir Isaac Pearson, who founded Pearson's Magazine. He was sent to England from New Zealand at the age of eight for his education and was there a pupil of Sir Isaac Pitman, the shorthand master, under whom he developed stenographic speed, fitting himself for parliamentary reporting.

In Parliament Mr. Norton reported the speeches of Gladstone and Bright. He is a close friend of Lloyd George, with whom he went to school in the Welsh village of Clomnelly. It is upon Mr. Lloyd George's advice that he is making this personal search for his sons.

Wealthy from Cement Deposits

Among the British Campaigns in which Mr. Norton followed the British troops as a war correspondent, were the Franco-Prussian war, the Boer War, the Russo-Japanese War, where he worked with Richard Harding Davis; six campaigns with Lord Kitchener in India, and other campaigns with the same commander in Egypt. Eighty-two years old now, he has retired from active reportorial work, not only because of his age, but because he has suddenly acquired considerable wealth from cement used for concrete ships and discovered upon his property in New Zealand.

"I never expected to be a millionaire," said Mr. Norton apologetically yesterday at the Hotel McAlpin where he is stopping, "but they told me when I left home that I am now worth more than a million dollars. It all came from the discovery of the very kind of cement the British government wished for building concrete ships. When they told me they wanted the cement I offered it to the Government, but they insisted upon paying men at the rate of about a sovereign a load. The cement is carried by overhead conveyers from my property and dumped into ships at the coast nearby."

The prevailing market price for this cement, appraisers told Mr. Norton, was far above what the Government was paying him, but at the nominal payment he is receiving he said yesterday he did not know how in the world he was going to spend all the money he finds coming into his pocket at his time of life.

Living Costs Low in New Zealand

"Living conditions in New Zealand are very cheap," said the correspondent. "A man with family can live there on $10 a week. Eggs are from three to four cents, American money, a dozen; the finest cuts of meat are but eight cents a pound; a chicken and two eggs may be bought for four cents. There are no food speculators, and I believe low prices are chiefly tributable to their absence."

"Another luxury which I am glad we have not," continued Mr. Norton, "is the politician. We only elect a man to office because he is a real man and frequently because she is a real woman."

Mr. Norton, with his other varied accomplishments, has always been interested in educational work, and for some years has been a leader in New Zealand's educational system and yet accurate shorthand system, which he exhibited yesterday. After making a very brief exposition of this system in Chicago, U.S.A., a few days ago, he said one of the twelve hundred pupils he was addressing handed him a note in his own system, which the pupil had mastered, while he was talking, reading "Please come again."

"On this my sixth trip through America, and the first in twenty years, I find a feeling toward Great Britain I could never find before. There were times when people would throw at me 'We licked you once,' but that was not a real licking, and if there were another King George upon the throne we New Zealanders would help you do something about it."

Mr. Norton will leave this week for England and France, unless he hears from his sons in the meantime, in which case he will wait their arrival at this port and take them back to New Zealand with him.

This Frees Your Skin From Hair or Fuzz

(Toilet Tips.)

The method here suggested for the removal of superfluous hair is quick and certain and unless the growth is extremely stubborn, a single application does the work. Make a stiff paste with some powdered delatone and water; apply this to the hairy surface and after about 2 minutes rub off, wash the skin and the hairs are gone. To avoid disappointment, be sure your druggist sells you delatone.

FIRST DIVISION UNITS NOW AT BRAMSHOTT

Five Battalions With Hospital Units Are in England.

Weak, Nervous Children Quickly Gain Strength Under Following Plan

Nervousness, just like weakness, is a family predisposition. We inherit tendencies to disease just as we inherit physical resemblances. The strain of study, social duties, work at home — these all tend to make nervous troubles among children. No wonder that St. Vitus Dance, Epilepsy, and constant headaches have become alarmingly common. Pale, nervous, listless young people are met everywhere.

It is nothing short of criminal for parents to neglect signs of weakness in their children. By ignoring the slightest symptom of nervous or mental strain, you may condemn your child to life-long invalidism. If any member of your family complains of headaches, fear of going into dark places, give them that wonderful tonic, "Ferrozone." Strength of body and mind, hardy nerves, ability to study with comfort, all the attributes of health quickly follow the use of Ferrozone. It establishes strength, color, endurance, vim—does this by filling the whole system with nourishment and tissue-forming materials.

It's because we know the enormous good that Ferrozone will do, because we are sure every child and even grown folks, will be permanently benefited, that we urge you to give it a trial. All dealers sell Ferrozone in 50c. boxes, six for $2.50, or direct by mail from The Catarrhozone Co., Kingston, Ont.

CATTLE MARKET

Union Stock Yards—Receipts were 67 cars, with 967 cattle, 294 calves, 1,553 hogs, and 65 sheep and lambs.

With a comparatively light run, in probably the keenest market this season, cattle prices were again a good 25c. higher than Monday.

Heavy bulls were an exception, a few of these being hard to cash in. Outside of these it was a strong active market all round, more than one buyer asserting that he wanted butcher cattle, but could not get them.

Sailoring Is Different.

Sailoring on the briny deep is entirely different than doing the same stunt on land. This was admitted by a landlubber from Pittsburgh, who has just returned from his first voyage with a brand new seasick story. "The first day I was out," said the amateur navigator, "the old tub rolled like a barrel, and before I knew it I was in the throes of mal de mer. The bunch jeered me and told me my job was driving a trolley car instead of sailoring. I had to seek my bunk. I had only been in it a few minutes when the ship's surgeon visited me and callously asked: 'What's the matter?' 'Oooh, I'm so sick,' I told him, and I rolled over in agony. 'Come, get up,' he said unfeelingly. 'The ship has been torpedoed and we're sinking.' I fell out of my bunk and scrambled to the deck. The bunch again derided me. 'Say, have you ever been seasick?'"

OPEN NOSTRILS! END A COLD OR CATARRH

How To Get Relief When Head and Nose are Stuffed Up.

Count fifty. Your cold in head or catarrh disappears. Your clogged nostrils will open, the air passages of your head will clear and you can breathe freely. No more snuffling, hawking, mucous discharge, dryness or headache; no struggling for breath at night.

Get a small bottle of Ely's Cream Balm from your druggist and apply a little of this fragrant antiseptic cream in your nostrils. It penetrates through every air passage of your head, soothing and healing the swollen or inflamed mucous membrane, giving you instant relief. Head colds and catarrh yield like magic. Don't stay stuffed up and miserable. Relief is sure.

Brian Rents the Office Ruth Selects

CHAPTER CXLVIII

About eleven o'clock Ruth and Brian called on the agent who had so kindly allowed Ruth to hold the option for so long a time on the office she selected. She felt almost afraid to ask him if it were still vacant, but when he assured her that it was, and added:

"I was perfectly sure you would want it, Mrs. Hackett, so have not tried to let it," she thanked him profusely.

Brian was delighted with it. The location just suited him, and the room was bright and sunny with a small waiting room leading into it. It was all the space he should need until he became famous, he remarked jokingly.

"Which I hope may be very soon, Lieutenant," the agent politely replied.

"It is going to be soon," Ruth added with decision.

Ruth insisted that they at once get the office cleaned and furnished. In this she was not quite as unselfish as it might appear. She would have something to occupy her mind for a day or two—the first spent out of business in years. To tell the truth, Ruth rather dreaded these first days, altho she in no way allowed regrets to fill her mind. She couldn't! Brian was too boyishly happy.

If, in his exuberance, he said things which hurt a little—if he didn't seem to realize that she had given up anything really dear for him—she tried not to notice, and did not explain.

Brian's absence, his danger, his wounds, and lastly the recognition given him by his country, had made all her own desires and plans seem very unworthy to Ruth as compared to making her soldier-husband happy and contented with his home. This she realized that he never had been. And she also sensed that it was partly because he did not feel that it was HIS home; but he thought of it as HER home, the home she provided.

The agent had recommended a cleaning woman who was working in the building, so Ruth left Brian talking to him while she found her and made arrangements for the thorough cleaning of the office. Then she and Brian measured the floor and windows. New shades and a nice rug were the first requisites. They went at once to a department store, and selected them. Then they took a taxi and drove to the warehouse where Brian had stored his small law library. They ordered the books delivered, but Ruth decided the old bookcase wouldn't do. It was an old walnut one Brian had picked up for a song when he first left college and opened his office.

"You must have the sort of bookcase which can be added to as you buy more books," Ruth said decidedly. "You are going to need more books right away. You haven't near as many as auntie's lawyer down home had."

"Considering that Mrs. Clayborne's lawyer was an old man, and had been practising many years, I scarcely think that is very strange," Brian returned with a laugh. But his eyes were a little moist, his manner very tender because of Ruth's thought for him.

That night after dinner they talked of what they had done during the day, of all they hoped it might mean to Brian to have an office in such a locality and in the same building with men of affairs. Ruth astonished Brian with her grasp of both essentials and what he had deemed non-essentials, but which he saw were really things necessary to build himself up in his profession—after she had explained.

Ruth was really very practical where business matters were concerned. The responsibility which had been necessarily hers because of the war taking so much of her employer's time and attention, so throwing on her shoulders the onus of the business, had developed her greatly along the practical lines of affairs. Not only had she become an artistic and valuable member of Mandel's force because of this, but also because she had, thru this late experience, become almost the business manager of the firm as well.

Brian was truly astonished at her acumen, but he said nothing of this to her. He was too well pleased with the way matters were going; too happy that she was going to, at last, be contented to remain at home.

"Will it put you out if I bring Major Williams home to dinner tomorrow night?" Brian asked as they started for bed. Ruth was delighted. More because it proved that perhaps she WAS doing what would be for the best happiness of both in the end, than because she really cared about meeting Major Williams.

To-morrow—Ruth Plans A Surprise For Brian.

MOTHER! DON'T TAKE CHANCES IF CHILD'S TONGUE IS COATED

A laxative today saves a sick child to-morrow. Children simply will not take the time from play to empty their bowels, which become clogged up with waste, liver gets sluggish, stomach sour.

Look at the tongue, Mother! If coated, or your child is listless, cross, feverish, breath bad, restless, doesn't eat heartily, full of cold or has sore throat or any other children's ailment, give A teaspoonful of "California Syrup of Figs," then don't worry, because it is perfectly harmless, and in a few hours all this constipation poison, sour bile and fermenting waste will gently move out of the bowels, and you have a well, playful child again. A thorough "inside cleansing" is oftimes all that is necessary. It should be the first treatment given in any sickness.

Beware of counterfeit fig syrups. Ask your druggist for a bottle of "California Syrup of Figs," which has full directions for babies, children of all ages and for grown-ups, plainly printed on the bottle. Look carefully and see that it is made by the "California Fig Syrup Company."

CAME OVER TO ITS FRIENDS

Eagle in France Quickly Naturalized When Made Prisoner, and Went Into Battle Against Huns.

This story is told by Stars and Stripes, the American army paper printed in France:

On Bastille day a group of French and Yanks were celebrating in a little town not far behind the lines. The Yanks were doing their part by pitching small coins into a tin can when a big eagle swooped down from the north and alighted on the ridgepole of a barn. He was so black and rapacious and altogether militaristic in appearance that he looked as though he might have flown squarely out of the Prussian coat of arms.

"Fritz, la!" shouted a French soldier, and the game stopped.

Somebody got a net, and somebody else got up on the roof. The net was too short and the eagle just looked at it, yawned and went to sleep. A young French soldier who started a second offensive was foiled when the eagle awoke and flew lazily to a neighboring roof. Another tried. This time the eagle flopped off and alighted on the American billet.

He seemed to think he was safe there, or perhaps he didn't mind, for the next attempt to snare him succeeded.

That night the battle began. A rain of shell fell on the town as Yank and French went up into the line. And Fritz-la went in, too. He had become naturalized overnight.

Tommy's Prayer.

Tommy had been out playing till he was very tired, and did not feel inclined to say his prayers, but his mother insisted. So Tommy began: "Now I lay me down to sleep, I pray the Lord my soul to keep—" "If," prompted his mother. Tommy (sleepily)—"If he hollers let him go. Eeny meeny, miny, mow."

EXPLORER'S WORK IN AFRICA

Frenchman Sheds Light on Vast Region Hitherto Comparatively Unknown—Needs Railway.

Commandant Tilho, the well-known French explorer of the Sudan, has recently published a report on the results of five years' work during 1912-17 in the hitherto unknown region lying along the frontier between the French Sahara and the Anglo-Egyptian Sudan. Tilho was entrusted with the task of pacifying and organizing this region under the French government; and his surveys embrace a stretch of previously unexplored country extending more than 1,100 miles from the center of Tibesti southeast to the vicinity of El Fasher, in Darfur. His cartographic work fills up a large blank in the map of Africa. He urges the need of a railway through this region, for the benefit not only of the world at large, but also of the natives, who are subject to periodical famines. It is stated that from one-half to three-fourths of the inhabitants of northern Wadai died of famine in 1914. One especially interesting result of his investigations is the disproof of the hypothesis, supported by his earlier explorations, that there is a connection between Lake Chad and the Nile river system. Tilho explored the volcanic Emi-Kussi, 11,200 feet in altitude, with an immense crater over seven miles in diameter and 180 feet deep.—Scientific American.

Keep the Bowels Regular and You Won't Be Sick

If the bowels do not move regularly they will sooner or later become constipated, and constipation is productive of more ill-health than almost any other trouble.

The sole cause of constipation is an inactive liver, and unless the liver is kept active, you may be sure that headaches, pills, heartburn, biliousness, jaundice, floating specks before the eyes, and many other troubles will follow the wrong action of this, one of the most important organs of the body.

Milburn's Laxa-Liver Pills will regulate the bowels so that you will have a free and easy motion every day, and one pill a night for thirty days will cure the worst cases of constipation.

They do this by acting directly on the liver and making the bile pass through the bowels instead of allowing it to go into the blood, thus causing many stomach and bowel troubles.

Mrs. Jos. Labbec, Louise Bridge, Calgary, Alta., writes: "I have been troubled with constipation for the last two years. I have tried numerous treatments, but have never been relieved by anything until I used Milburn's Laxa-Liver Pills which are helping me wonderfully."

We do not claim that Milburn's Laxa-Liver Pills are a "cure-all," but we do claim that there is nothing better for a sluggish liver.

RECLAIM MANY SUNKEN SHIPS

Hundreds of Vessels in British Waters Have Been Salvaged—Possibility of Raising the Lusitania.

Most welcome is the announcement from London that since January, 1915, 407 ships sunk by the Germans in British waters have been salvaged; 147 of them, by improved methods, in five months of the present year.

Britain's coast, like our own, is edged by a broad belt of shallow water. For 200 miles off the channel's length no spot reaches a depth of 100 fathoms; much of it is quite shallow, which accounts for the chop that makes so many who cross it briefly unhappy.

From our own Norfolk one gets well out of sight of land before reaching water too deep for salvage operations. Depth increases more rapidly off the Irish coast, but even the Lusitania lies near the 50-fathom line, below the shatter of the storm, yet near enough the surface so that many practical wreckers have said that it would be possible, though exceedingly difficult, to bring her forth to nautical resurrection.

That some things can be done as well as others our engineers showed when they raised the U-boats' biggest victim along our coast, the Herbert Pratt, and brought her safe to shore. What the "improved methods" used off England may be we shall probably not know until after the war. That they are checking the murderous submarines of their prey in so many cases is good news.

A Wise Child.

Pointing to the picture of a tiger in a book on animals, the fond father asked little three-year-old what its name was. She answered promptly, "Kitty." To the same question about the lion came the answer, "Doggy." Elated with the seemingly quick perception of his daughter, father turned to the picture of a chimpanzee and said, "Baby, what is this?" "Papa."

PEACE RIVER LANDS.

Future Development In the "New Northwest."

At a time when two of the greatest needs of the world are raw material and an increased grain supply, there is something peculiarly satisfactory in the news that the great bridge which will carry the railway across the Peace River, in Northern Alberta, is completed. Millions of acres of hard wheat country are thus made available for immediate colonization. The task of constructing the bridge and the railway connecting this far-northern point with Edmonton, and so with the rest of Canada, has not been an easy one. Many difficulties have had to be overcome, but they have all been overcome, and now the old Peace River crossing is spanned by a bridge opening the way for the Canadian railways to push on into the vast fertile stretches north of that river.

That the Peace River lands have a great future cannot be doubted. The territory, which extends approximately from latitude 54 to 59 degrees north, and from longitude 112 to 125 degrees east, is peculiarly well adapted for settlement. It is a country with a climate in every way excellent, and remarkably moderate, considering the latitude. The winters are at times tempered by the Chinook winds from the Pacific; the seeding time is much the same as it is farther south, and practically the entire district of some 3,500,000 acres is suitable for raising grains, grasses, and vegetables. It is, moreover, in places, thickly wooded with valuable timber, whilst both metallic and non-metallic mineral deposits are known to exist in great quantities. In addition to all this there is every evidence of a large coal supply, whilst springs of natural gas and tar rising to the surface indicate the presence of a considerable supply of these valuable commodities in the river valley.

All these resources are only awaiting development, and that the work will be carried on with the utmost energy is practically assured by the action of the Federal authorities, who have indicated that all vacant agricultural lands in the Peace River district, within fifteen miles of existing or projected railways, must be held for soldier settlement. Liberal loans are to be provided, and every help and encouragement is to be afforded by the authorities to the returning soldiers settling there.

The new colonists will find an outlet for their energies in many directions, for, according to the agricultural experts, the Peace River section must not only devote itself to the growing of hard wheat on a large scale, but in order to secure the best possible returns from the land, the settlers must resort to mixed farming. Thus the territory promises to become not only a great grain district, but also a great cattle district. Altogether the outlook is encouraging, and represents a welcome development, not only from a Canadian but from a world point of view. During the long period of the war, each year, as it passed, was more remarkable than its predecessor for the whole-heartedness with which the people of the allied nations threw themselves into the work of achieving the great task which had been laid upon them. To this end each nation contributed what it could best contribute, each its special products and ability, and to the utmost it was able. There is no reason why there should be any break in this great effort. The war is won, but the stupendous task of reconstruction lies before the nations, and every nation must once again bear its share. Canada, with her vast natural resources and almost limitless lands, has a special duty to herself and to humanity, and those who know Canada, and are mindful of what she has done in the past, have no doubt that she will rise to the occasion, once again, and do her duty and more than her duty in the days of peace, as she did in the days of war.—Christian Science Monitor.

THIN PEOPLE SHOULD TAKE PHOSPHATE

Nothing Like Plain Bitro-Phosphate to Put on Firm, Healthy Flesh and to Increase Strength, Vigour and Nerve Force.

Judging from the countless preparations and treatments which are continually being advertised for the purpose of making thin people fleshy, developing arms, neck and bust, and replacing ugly hollows and angles by the soft curved lines of health and beauty, there are evidently thousands of men and women who keenly feel their excessive thinness.

Thinness and weakness are usually due to starved nerves. Our bodies need more phosphate than is contained in modern foods. Physicians claim there is nothing that will supply this deficiency as well as the organic phosphate known among druggists as bitro-phosphate, which is inexpensive and sold by McDermid & Jury in Peterboro and most all druggists under a guarantee of entire satisfaction or your money back. By feeding the nerves directly and by supplying the body cells with the necessary phosphorio food elements, bitro-phosphate quickly produces a welcome transformation in the appearance. The increase in weight frequently being astonishing.

This increase in weight also carries with it a general improvement in the health. Nervousness, sleeplessness and lack of energy, which usually always accompany excessive thinness, soon disappear, dull eyes become bright, and pale cheeks glow with the bloom of perfect health.

CAUTION:—Although bitro-phosphate is unsurpassed for relieving nervousness, sleeplessness and general weakness, it should not, owing to its remarkable flesh-growing properties, be used by anyone who does not desire to put on flesh.

The Best Laundry

Knowledge Unto Himself.

A group of business men met on a street corner in a certain city and were discussing the progress that has been made by the allied forces on the western front. During the conversation a fellow-citizen, who is fond of expressing his opinion but whose field of information is so limited that he doesn't appreciate how small it is, joined the crowd and listened to the various expressions.

Unable to hold his silence, he declared:

"There ain't no doubt but that our boys has thrown new life into the alleys, but in my opinion the Huns can't fight like the Germans did."

And then before anyone could get in a word he added:

"And then we've done lots better work since our merchant marines has got into the 'scrap line of action.'"

OUR DAILY SHORT STORY

Hypnotizing the Judge

By GRACE WEATHERBY

(Copyright, 1913, by McClure Newspaper Syndicate.)

"I'll bet you a War Savings stamp that I'll make that old crank of a judge pay for the curtains!" The excited voice of Merrie Crayton rose above the buzz in the wide hall of the Crayton home. Merrie, the only and well-beloved daughter of Colonel Crayton, was a beautiful girl of twenty summers, whose cheery manner and loving disposition endeared her in the hearts of the people of the little town of Deanville, and since babyhood her dignified given name of Margaret had been discarded for the more suitable one of Merrie. On this warm summer day a large party of young people were gathered in the hall of Merrie's home to discuss ways and means of providing a pair of curtains for the stage of the town hall. A little play was to be given soon for the benefit of the Red Cross, and a pair of curtains were absolutely necessary. How to get the money for them was the question which was troubling the minds of the young folks. Judge Graham was a very penurious man, who according to the small boys of the town, had "barrels and barrels of money hidden under the apple trees." Merrie's suggestion was to ask him to pay for the curtains. This suggestion was greeted with a laugh, and said to be highly impossible. Nothing was impossible, according to Merrie's rule in life, and so she determined to visit the judge and try her luck.

Stanley Morton, a splendid young man in the service, who had just returned from France, took up her bet. "I'll go you, Merrie!" he cried, "but I don't believe you can do it." "Just you wait and see then," was the retort as Merrie caught up her wide garden hat and sped down the street to the judge's home.

In answer to her vigorous pull on the old-fashioned knocker the judge's one and only servant, Maria Jane Hammond, and very neat in her attire, opened the door.

In a short time the judge appeared. He was very much surprised to see who his caller was. During his life he had had little to do with the ladies and wished for less. Merrie rose and held out her hand. "Judge Graham," she said sweetly, "I have come on a very important mission. I am a representative of the committee which is directing the play to be given in the town hall next week, and I have come to see you to furnish the money to buy a pair of curtains for the stage!"

"Young lady, I am very sorry I cannot comply with your request. I have no money to spend for foolish nonsense!" Merrie smiled, absolutely undisturbed. "It does sound foolish, doesn't it?" she said, "but really, it is not, because it is for the benefit of the Red Cross. You know we simply cannot change the scenes without a curtain, that would be too much!" She smiled so bewitchingly that the judge was forced to wipe his brow with his handkerchief. "Well—er—I—I can't be bothered with it, so there! and he stormed out of the library, leaving Merrie alone.

She sat very still in her chair and then half rose. "No, I won't be beaten in this way," she declared, and again resumed her seat. The judge came in for his glasses, which he had left on the table. He was utterly astonished to find his fair visitor still there. "Why—!" he stopped, helplessly. "I'm after the money for the curtain, you know, judge!" The poor man was baffled. He argued with her for a while, and then she, Judge Alexander R. Graham, silently and submissively took out his fat wallet and extracted from it three $20 bills. "Is that enough?" he asked. "Yes, I believe so," Merrie answered, and stuffed the money into her bag. As she was escorted to the door, she turned to the judge. "Your barn is lots worse than your bite, judge," and she departed, leaving the man looking after her. At home the young people eagerly awaited her return. She waved the bills aloft triumphantly. She told them all about it, and peals of laughter greeted her story. "Merrie Crayton, you are the limit," was the general verdict. Stanley was made to pay his bet, and he did it gracefully. He drew Merrie aside and whispered: "Dear child, you have a strange talent for extracting both money and hearts out of the men you meet!"

On the night of the play the town hall was crowded. Judge Graham, who was never known to attend any social affair, occupied a front seat. The new red curtains hung gracefully and were the cause of many comments from the audience. The play was a complete success, and the Red Cross was richer by several hundred dollars than before. On the way home Stanley asked Merrie the question, old yet ever new, and received a very satisfactory answer. The first to spy the ring on her left hand was old Judge Graham, now a frequent visitor at the Crayton home. To her he confided: "Merrie, my dear child, if I were younger, I think I'd marry you myself." "Oh, no, you wouldn't," Merrie laughed. "It would be too disastrous for your pocketbook." The judge's pocketbook was not so fat now, because more than once Merrie had made raids on it, and found the judge more easily managed than the first time she had hypnotized him.

WILHELM'S BIRTHDAY.

All-Highest Finds Himself Without Any Friends.

The sixtieth birthday of Wilhelm von Hohenzollern, sometimes German Kaiser, King of Prussia, Margrave of Brandenburg, etc., etc., also All Highest War Lord, would-be Attila and "friend and patron of Gott," was marked by the calm and dignified manner in which the overwhelming majority of the world's inhabitants, evidently without any previous agreement, refused to take cognizance of the event. In view of his boundless vanity probably no amount of scorn and abuse could have caused more anguish to the celebrated friend of Karl Rosner and the owner of 573 military and naval uniforms than the extremely scanty notice with which everybody passed his anniversary.

Even in Germany the majority of the newspapers did not so much as mention the Kaiser's birthday. Only the ultra-conservatives availed themselves of the opportunity to stage a monarchist demonstration and to shed a few tears for the glory that was Wilhelm II.

"He is spending his sixtieth birthday in a foreign country. He is an exile. Some there will be, however, who will think of him to-day with loyalty and veneration as in former days, especially when they consider the sad situation occupied by Germany at the present time."

The Berlin "Lokalanzeiger," the newspaper which had published Rosner's account of the Kaiser's war days, remained loyal to its traditions by publishing the following elegy:

"Lonely and broken, the Kaiser, an involuntary exile, steps over the threshold into old age. Behind Wilhelm lies a rich life ending in the dreadful four years of war, during which his tortured soul fell from proud poise to bitter disappointment when each victorious joy was drowned in a flood of calumny.

"Before him lies a dark and joyless future. Over his head the hatred of the whole world suspends a Damocles sword of judgment.

"The only consolation we can give him is to tell him that millions of German hearts feel deeply that this awful accusation made against him only veils the guilt of his accusers and to justify his punishment—although the people are equally guilty—and to tell him that this judgment cannot stand before the tribunal of world history."

Besides this outpouring the ex-Kaiser received a large quantity of flowers from his admirers in Germany and Holland, or, as a correspondent puts it, naively, "from schoolgirls and former supporters."

The Reichsbote bewailed the fact that of all the Conservative parties only the German National People's party (the old conservatives and pan-Germans) had the courage to suggest in its election program the restoration of a monarchial form of government, and that even this solitary suggestion, extremely modest in its form, was suppressed in nearly all the conservative papers. To which the Vorwarts retorted that this person was popular" the monarchial idea has become.

The New York Tribune, noting the movement in Berlin to bring the Kaiser back to power, recalls the case of an inventor in New York who pestered Mayor Gaynor for permission to leap off a skyscraper with his contraption. "Dear Mr. Commissioner," wrote his honor, "this gentleman wants to jump off the highest building in the city. For God's sake [illegible]

A Simple Way To Remove Dandruff

There is one sure way this has never failed to remove dandruff at once, and that is to dissolve it, then you destroy it entirely. To do this, just get about four ounces of plain, common liquid arvon from any drug store; this is all you will need. Apply it at night when retiring; use enough to moisten the scalp and rub it in gently with the finger tips.

By morning most if not all of your dandruff will be gone and three or four more applications will completely dissolve and entirely destroy every single sign and trace of it, no matter how much dandruff you may have.

You will find all itching and digging of the scalp will stop instantly, and your hair will be fluffy, lustrous, glossy, silky and soft, and look and feel a hundred times better.

THE MARSHALL ISLANDS.

Islanders Are Great Seamen and Navigators.

In "Some Recollections" Admiral Sir Cyprian Bridge writes of the Pacific Islands among which he made extensive cruises in the early eighties and late nineties. The "Marshall Islanders," he writes, "are great seamen and navigators, and build, not canoes, but real ships. These are regularly built of pieces of wood, which, for want of nails and bolts, are sewn together with sennit, plaited of cocoanut fibre. A canoe has a sloping platform rigged out on each beam. The platform is several feet square, and usually has on it a regularly constructed house, of miniature dimensions, it is true, and low in the roof, but big enough to let a couple of men, if not more, lie down inside it.

"The Marshall Islanders make long voyages, and even understand the art of preserving provisions for sea stock. The fruit of the pandanus looks like a coarse pineapple. It is pulled to pieces. These are placed on a mat in the sun until they exude juice. They are then rolled much as a cook rolls dough for piecrust, until there appears what looks like a piece of blanket soaked in treacle. It has a rather sweet and not unpleasant taste. The 'blanket' is made into a roll, is 'parceled,' or covered with a dry leaf, and is then regularly 'served' over with cocoanut fibre sennit. The rolled pandanus fruit, thus treated, will keep for months, and in its wrappings is impervious to salt water.

"The Marshall Islanders even make charts. Four narrow strips of woods tied together make a roughly [illegible] are stretched across the frame at irregular intervals and roughly at right angles to each other. On the intersection of these lines shells or small pieces of coral are tied to represent islands. I think that the relative bearings are approximately correct. Sir John Thurston, the distinguished Governor of Fiji, a great part of whose life had been spent in the South Seas, told me that most islanders could point correctly in the direction of the islands far distant from their own.

"In several islands one came across material evidence of bygone civilisation, which was so completely historic that it lay far beyond the oldest traditions current among the natives of the present day. The langis of Tongatabu were of comparatively recent date, and their construction was included in the range of credible tradition; but the great dromlech or trilithon a few miles from Nukualofa must be much older.

"Some remains are so colossal in size, and covers such extensive areas, that they could only have been constructed by a very numerous population. On many islands there is a tradition that in former times they were much more densely populated than they are now."

Bristles of the Pig.

Pigs are raised everywhere in China, and pigs' bristles have become an important article of export, amounting to 4,000 tons a year, valued at about $6,000,000. Bristles that are long, thick, stiff, bright, wiry, and clean command the best prices. The yield of each hog is tied in a bundle, placed in water for a few days, then scraped off, combed to remove impurities, sun-dried, steamed, and then sorted into bundles 1½ inches in diameter, with bristles of uniform length. Most of the work of cleaning and tying the bristles is done by women, who receive about five or six cents a day. Buyers are very particular about the bristles being well cleaned, of uniform length and color, and the bundles solid. This is apparent when it is considered that prices vary from twenty taels to 300 taels per picul (133 1-3 pounds), depending on the assortments. The collecting season is from November to April, as bristles are soft and useless for the trade during the hot months. This accounts for the fact that the main producing and shipping centres are north of the Yangtse. For export the bristles are packed in boxes containing one picul to a box. The ports from which they are shipped are, in the order of their importance, Tientsin, Chunglang, and Hankow. Manchuria and Shantung are increasing in importance in this trade. China offers an excellent field for the manufacture of brushes. It is surprising that greater developments in this direction have not taken place.

Elevation of Mountains.

The elevation of mountains is usually determined by the barometer, by noting the boiling point of water as it is carried upward, or by the use of surveying instruments and computations in trigonometry. The last is the scientific method.

The French were the first people to preserve fruits and vegetables. This was in 1810.

HER FIVE CHILDREN

Had Whooping Cough At the Same Time

Whooping cough is one of the most dangerous diseases of children, especially to those under five years of age. It first starts with a fever and cough, sneezing, watering of the eyes and an irritation of the throat. Later the coughing increases, the child becomes livid in the face, the eyes appear as if they would burst from their sockets and suffocations seems imminent till relief is brought by the "whoop."

On the first sign of whooping cough we would advise the use of Dr. Wood's Norway Pine Syrup. This famous remedy will clear the bronchial tubes of the collected mucous and phlegm, and in this way ease the racking cough and in a short time make it disappear entirely.

Mrs. Walter McGaughey, North Battleford, Sask., writes: "I have five children, the eldest thirteen and the baby two years old. They all had the whooping cough at the same time. I tried two or three cough remedies, but none gave the same satisfaction as Dr. Wood's Norway Pine Syrup. A home where there are young children should never be without it. I will highly recommend it to those who want a quick cure."

There are many imitations of Dr. Wood's Norway Pine Syrup, so be sure you get the genuine by insisting that the package is put up in a yellow wrapper; three pine trees the trade mark; price 25c. and 50c. and manufactured by The T. Milburn Co., Limited, Toronto, Ont.

PUT STOMACH IN FINE CONDITION

Says Indigestion Results from an Excess of Hydrochloric Acid.

Undigested food delayed in the stomach decays, or rather, ferments the same as food left in the open air, says a noted authority. He also tells us that Indigestion is caused by hyper-acidity, meaning, there is an excess of hydrochloric acid in the stomach which prevents complete digestion and starts food fermentation. Then everything one eats sours in the stomach much like garbage sours in a can, forming acids, gases and gases which inflate the stomach like a toy balloon. Then you feel a heavy, lumpy misery in the chest, we belch up gas, we eructate sour food or have heartburn, flatulence, water-brash or nausea.

He says to try undigested digestive aids and intestinal tract from any pharmacy four ounces of Jad Salts, take a tablespoonful in a glass of water before breakfast and drink slowly while effervescing, for a few days to neutralize the acid in the stomach. While taking the first glass it is important to massage the stomach, start the liver, kidneys, and thus promote a flow of pure digestive juices.

Jad Salts is inexpensive and is made from the acid of grapes and lemon juice, combined with lithia and sodium phosphate. This harmless salts is used by thousands of people for stomach trouble with excellent results.

WHAT IS WIND?

Some of the Theories of Modern Scientists.

After many thousands of years of study the ancients finally decided that the wind was an irresponsible demon residing in a cave, who divided his time between sleeping and displays of uncontrollable violence. In the last hundred years, however, modern scientific observation and scientific instruments have carried knowledge of the wind a trifle further ahead. "The London Morning Post" says:

"The first ray of hope was announced in the year 1801, when Col. Capper, of the East India Service, put forward the theory that storms were really great wind systems having a gyratory movement. The idea seemed too good to be true, and the subject dropped. In the year 1821 an American naval architect, Redfield, noted how the trees which had been blown down during the passage of a storm formed a regular curve in the direction in which they lay, and he became convinced that the storm was of a rotary character. Fearing if he announced his belief that his only reward would be ridicule, he bided his time until another storm supplied him with confirmatory evidence, and in Silliman's Journal for April, 1821, he published a paper demonstrating the whirling and progressive character of storms. Keen discussion arose out of the discovery, some holding that the wind blew along a straight course, others that it made a true circle.

"The controversy was maintained through many years, but in 1848 Piddington proposed to describe a storm wind as a cyclone. From a Greek word signifying incurving, like the coil of a snake, so curves would mean neither a straight line nor a perfect circle. For years after this investigators concentrated their energies on stormfields, not suspecting that there was anything worthy of attention beyond the limits of the gale. In the Northern Hemisphere not a single instance had been met with of storm wind revolving other than against clock hands, a fact which was of enormous benefit, especially to seamen.

"About 1860 the late Sir Francis Galton extended the investigation to all winds, whether gales or not, and to everybody's surprise it was discovered that beyond the stormfields there were extensive regions over which the quieter winds revolved in a direction with clock hands. On the face of it this was a flat contradiction of the cyclonic view, but the mystery was soon solved when it was seen that the cyclone formed an area in which the barometer readings were lower, often very much lower, than those in the reversed wind system lying outside. Sir Francis Galton, finding that the barometer, the wind, the weather and other elements were the opposite of those in a cyclone, adopted for the new system the name anticyclone.

"When the whole question was submitted to examination it was evident that there were numbers of both cyclones and anticyclones moving hither and thither over the earth's surface every day, and that the one type cannot exist without the other. The anticyclone, being a region of the heaviest atmosphere, we may regard as the reservoir which supplies the cyclone, where the air is at its lightest, and the energy of the cyclone depends upon the steepness of the pressure gradient between the high and low areas.

"Though the wind circulates in one direction in the cyclone and in the opposite direction in the anticyclone the law which regulates the relation of the wind to the pressure is the same in both cases. The knowledge of this law has served to save fleets of ships and their crews. It is very simple: Face the wind and the lowest barometer is away to the right and the highest to the left. This is true in all circumstances in the Northern Hemisphere, the conditions being reversed beyond the Equator."

Handling Wool Co-operatively

(1) Grading Wool in Alberta.

(2) Sheep on an Irrigated Farm in Alberta.

EIGHT years ago, after thoroughly investigating the sheep industry in Canada, the sheep commissioners regretfully stated: "From shearing to marketing no country in the world handles its wool in a worse manner than Canada. As far as the wool of mutton breeds and cross breeds go, we do not know of any country where it is handled in such an unsatisfactory way and delivered in such bad condition."

Having reached this conclusion, the commission intimated that the way was open to find a remedy for the trouble. It was soon after this that the Canadian Department of Agriculture was organized, and by 1914 the work of applying the remedy had begun. This consisted of the organization of wool growers' associations throughout Canada, the direction of their efforts in producing good wool, and in classifying it. During 1914, the first year of the work, 206,129 pounds were graded for societies organized in Quebec, Ontario, Manitoba and Alberta. The following year, through 19 organizations distributed over Canada, 420,000 pounds were classified and offered for co-operative sale. The season of 1916 saw 1,712,696 pounds, while in 1917 this was increased to 2,097,409 pounds.

It was early in 1917, because of peculiar war conditions, that Martin Burrell, then Minister of Agriculture, recognizing the importance of centralizing the sale of wool, and the advantages that must accrue from having one centre of operation, sanctioned the rental of suitable premises in Toronto, for the storage of the wool of the various associations where clips would be graded by the wool experts of the live stock branch, and shipped out when purchased. This led to the further step of 1918 in the organization of the Co-Operative Wool Growers' Limited as the central agency for the disposal of wool shipped in and collected from all parts of Canada.

Whereas, when the central warehouse was first established, it was estimated that as much as 2,000,000 pounds of wool might be received during 1919, no less than 2,500,000 pounds of wool had been sold up to the end of August, 1918, due to the associations in the various provinces pulling together. After that amount had been sold a considerable quantity of wool remained in storage, but it was anticipated that all would be disposed of at favorable prices, which was later proved true.

Thus co-operation in a few years actual service proved the revolutionizing factor in the wool industry in Canada. Breeder and farmers were quick to learn the oft-repeated lesson that to get the best prices the best must be produced. Formerly the wool was sold in bulk for what it would bring. To-day, under the team-work plan, the wool is sorted and inspected, grade values becoming apparent, and sheepraisers are learning more and more to recognize the importance of care in selection, industry in keeping, and the exercise of intelligence in shearing, packing and shipping.

In Manitoba there has been a decided increase in the number of sheepowners who market their wool through the co-operative system. In 1915, 69,000 pounds reached the warehouse; in 1916, 154,000 pounds; 1917, 170,000 pounds, and in 1918, 363,000 pounds were received. In 1917 there were 465 sheepowners who participated in the work, while in 1918 this number increased to 917. The grading system has had a market effect on the quality of the wool, and graders as well as grades uphold the belief that the education work in this connection is doing an incalculable amount of good and increasing the revenue derived by the sheepowner from the sale of his wool. In former years, when wool was sold at a flat rate, the importance of keeping the wool in a clean condition and avoiding tying with binder twine, as well as mixing the black and tan with the white and rags, locks and pieces, seedy and dead, with higher grade wool, was not appreciated, and resulted in a serious loss in revenue to farmers and a serious wastage of a product much in demand.

It cannot be gainsaid that wool sold under the co-operative system has on the average brought a much higher price than could have been obtained by farmers selling to local buyers. This fact is evident to the sheep-raiser, as evidenced by the increasing number of Manitoba patrons.

How the fire of co-operation is spreading over Saskatchewan is best evidenced by a few figures, showing the development of the industry since 1914, as follows:

1914	179	69,404	17¾
1915	318	150,328	25
1916	487	179,890	32½
1917	623	233,445	65
1918	916	894,068	76

It will be noted that the 1918 business was 80 per cent over the 1917 wool shipments. The Southern Saskatchewan Wool Gowers' Association handled eight and one-half carloads, besides the amount mentioned, the province being too large for one organization to handle at present. In Alberta, likewise too large a territory for one agency to handle, there are three organizations mentioned in the 1918 report, each revealing a large expansion in territory and volume of business. Those associations are the Provincial Sheep Breeders' Association, the Alberta Live Stock Associations, and the Pincher Creek Wool Growers' Association. These three agencies did by far the greatest business of any provincial system in Canada in 1918, when they collected, graded and shipped 1,230,000 pounds of wool of various grades.—Earl W. Gage, (Breeder's Gazette).

PERILS OF AIR RAIDS.

Germans Became Unnerved by the Many Dangers.

Some interesting revelations as to the experiences of German airmen in their raids on England are given in the London Mail. It says that the story of these Gotha raids is the story of the 3rd German Bombing Squadron of about 30 machines, which were stationed in flights at St. Denis Westrem, Gontrode, and Mariakerke, in Belgium.

An insight into the character of the Gotha crews—the best pilots refused the work—is gained from the fact that when orders came through for an attack on England two hours before the start runners were sent post-haste to search the brothels and drinking shops of Ghent to warn the personnel. It was common enough for several of the pilots to find at the moment of starting a "defeat" sufficient to send them back to their beer. They seldom adjusted the machines themselves, although one pilot says he fitted no fewer than five new engines before he found one to work properly.

Of the machines which started one-fourth never reached the English coast, and of those that crossed one-half turned back before reaching London.

London was always given as the objective, but the officer-observer could choose his own course and height—about 10,000 to 17,000 feet, which was always the best the machine could make. He communicated his orders to the pilot by means of a crude press-button electrical device.

With Ostend and the Belgian coast behind them, the crew were about half-way across the North Sea when, 35 miles away, in the still moonlight, they could see the dim, white line of the Kentish cliffs. It was unmistakable, they said, this difference between sea and land even at night, and they had little difficulty in picking up the North Foreland, their favorite landfall when heading for the Thames.

It was then that the cold dread of their adventure came upon them and the rot set in. The stout hearts pushed on; the less inured at the first sound of gunfire released their bombs prematurely and made for home. Until German headquarters refused to accept the report they stated the bombs "fell among hostile shipping."

The awful racket of the barrage of the outer London defences unnerved many of the best. The huge machines rocked and lurched in the air storms raised by the bursting shells, and once clear the pilots had only a moment to brace themselves to face the greater danger of the sight-fighting scouts.

Many a Gotha crew fought desperately and well, but others completely lost their heads. The back of the fuselage of one machine was riddled by its own gunner. Seeing flames spurting from the tail, the crew of another machine threw themselves overboard, while the scout slowly circled around the blazing mass as it fell to earth. Yet another machine dived from 16,000 feet to 3,000 feet when engaged by a scout whose machine-gun jammed when in a position to deal the death-blow from beneath the Gotha's tail. This Hun, in his effort to escape, dropped 119 bombs in a space of 200 yards.

But even if there was still another terror to be faced before the city was reached. As all London knows, there was suspended from balloons thousands of feet above a vast system of nets which would have cut the most powerful machine in two. The Huns never knew quite where these nets were and after every trip the danger was magnified.

Once in one of the later raids, when the giant (Riesen) Gothas were used, the left wing tip of one machine grazed the anchor rope of a balloon, spun half round, and dropped a sheer 600 feet before the pilot could recover. Another machine was being hotly chased over London by a scout when a balloon net loomed before it. The pilots strained madly at the controls, and quarry and pursuer just cleared the topmost strand in safety.

The tales the men told on their return led to one of the most striking orders ever issued in the German Air Force. During this raid seven machines were brought down and three more crashed on landing. So great was the moral effect on the crews that the order for a further raid was countermanded.

For Literary Clubs.

"This passage," said the publisher, "seems ambiguous to me. What do you mean by it?" "I don't know," replied the great author. "I left it there for the commentator and literary clubs to work over when I'm dead."

His Bravery.

"I forgot myself and spoke angrily to my wife," remarked Mr Meekton. "Did she resent it?" "For a moment. But Henrietta is a fair-minded woman. After she thought it over she shook hands with me and congratulated me on my bravery."

Scolding the Children

Nervous mothers, worried from morning to night by the care of children and the duties of the household; nervous children, perhaps worn out by overstudy, unable to sit still or stand still, or keep their minds concentrated on anything, both need Dr. Williams' Pink Pills to build up the blood and strengthen the nerves.

Try a short treatment with these strengthening, tonic pills and watch the colour return to pale cheeks and lips; see how the worn tired nerves recover their poise, and how much less irritating the children become, and how much less scolding they need. Dr. Williams' Pink Pills are a blessing to nervous people everywhere, men as well as women, boys as well as girls, because they build up the blood and strengthen the nerves. They lighten the cares of life because they give you new strength to bear them.

In the case of nervous children the trouble should be corrected at once, as it is but a short step to St. Vitus dance. Give them Dr. Williams' Pink Pills to build up the blood, and when your boy or girl they will become plump-cheeked and rugged.

Dr. Williams' Pink Pills should be kept in every home, as a precaution against the many troubles due to watery blood and weak nerves. You can get the pills through any dealer in medicine, or by mail at 50 cents a box or 6 for $2.50 from The Dr. Williams' Medicine Co., Brockville Ont.

Poisonous Eggs.

From time to time, at least in France, reports of poisoning attributed to ducks' eggs gain credence. Discussing a recent report to this effect, Carles of Bordeaux (Journal de Medicin et de Chirurgie (Pratiques) says that it is now 40 years since Guyon announced the discovery in apparently sound eggs of bacteria, yeasts, molds and dust particles. Further investigations revealed the occasional presence of minute stones, grains, insects, worms, fragments of plants and unlike objects like the foot of a beetle.

All of the early studies were, so far as known, made on the eggs of the common fowl, but the method of life of the duck exposes it still more to such contamination. It is given to feeding and playing in polluted water.

In theory, poisonous organisms could remain inert until the egg incubated, and under such circumstances eggs are not supposed to be eaten. Moreover, cooking should be sufficient to destroy all germ life. The inference is that insufficient application of heat must be responsible for poisoning. The eggs need not be raw but the cooking may be of such nature that the germ-bearing portion of the egg is not sterilized.

A NEW EXPLANATION.

Blames Influenza Epidemic on a Parasite.

A rather surprising hypothesis concerning the "flu" is advanced by Dr. G. A. Friedman in the Medical Record. The bedbug is accused of causing the disease as the only bug who could do the trick.

Insect transmission in influenza may seem startling and absurd, as we are accustomed to regard influenza as primarily and essentially affecting the respiratory tract. However, during the present epidemic there was obtained sufficient evidence that the disease may also attack primarily the gastro-intestinal tract. Cases were also noted by the majority of physicians in which vomiting, diarrhoea, severe abdominal pain, or a combination of the three, was present without the slightest affection of the respiratory tract.

After the analogy of typhus, in which the infection occurs through the medium of the body louse, we must look for an insect carrier of influenza.

The transmission of influenza by an insect must be in accord with the chief features of the epidemiology of the disease: (1) The insect must be able to exist in all seasons of the year; (2) it must be able to gain access to rich homes as well as to dwellings of the poor.

There is no need to dwell upon the fact that bedbugs are almost always present in the dwellings of the poorer classes, and it must be also admitted that bedbugs in good homes are frequently beyond the control of the best housekeeper. They may be brought in with the laundry or in clothes of servants. Herrick states that he has often seen them hiding away in the crevices of clothes' baskets.

It is believed by some people that the iron bedstead, which has so rapidly replaced the wooden ones, has done away with the bedbugs. This is a mistake. Bugs will shelter themselves in the metallic crevices of the iron bedstead almost as comfortably as in the wooden chinks of its predecessors.

In towns and cities where houses are built closely together the bedbugs will migrate from one house to another along the walls and pipes. This is especially liable to happen where one house has been vacant for some time and the parasites have been deprived of food.

Hagler, who worked with the American Red Cross expedition in Serbia in 1915, points out that while typhus disappeared with the extermination of lice, relapsing fever continued to develop in the Belgrade hospital until the latter was fumigated for bedbugs.

Thus there is reason to believe that the carrier in the influenza plague was the bedbug.

Take a day off occasionally, and your years will accumulate more slowly.

The patient usually has more confidence in his physician than the latter has in himself.

New Playgrounds Will Be Opened in the City By Playgrounds Association

Meeting Held Last Evening—Will Appeal to the Public for More Funds.

OFFICERS ELECTED

At a meeting of the Playgrounds Association held last evening in the Public Library, the officers elected for the ensuing year were:

President—Mr. A. G. Roberts.

1st Vice-Pres.—Mrs. Arthur Stevenson.

2nd Vice-Pres.—Mrs. J. H. Renwick.

Secretary—Mr. George Henderson.

Treasurer—Mr. E. J. H. Vanstone.

Finance committee — Mr. J. W. Worth, chairman, Mr. J. J. Turner, Mr. G. O. Cameron, Mr. Vanstone, the President, Secretary and Treasurer.

Equipment committee—Mrs. A. Mowat, chairman.

Supervision committee—Mrs. W. R. Morris, chairman.

New Playgrounds.

In accordance with the desire of the Board of Education, the Association decided last evening to start new playgrounds at the Queen Mary school for the use of the children at the west end of the city.

Appeal to Public.

As the $760 appropriation from the Board of Education is to cover equipment on the school ground only, the Association decided last evening they would have to appeal to the public for voluntary subscription of about $[illegible] to cover the salaries of the supervisors at the playgrounds. Last year, owing to the war, male supervisors could not be secured, but during the coming summer the Association is looking forward to having that drawback remedied and to a year of great success with the extended facilities. The School Board's grant will be used to buy loose equipment for the Central school and to repair and add equipment to the King Edward school.

Go To Council.

A committee of Mr. A. G. Roberts, Mrs. Morris, Mr. Worth and Mr. Henderson was appointed to go to the Council at the next meeting and ask the Council to seriously consider the installing of bathing beaches in the south end of the city. The Playgrounds Association does not wish to take over the responsibility of the bathing beaches as they consider it should be a municipal enterprise, but they are willing to co-operate with the Council or any committee of the Council in the installation of bathing facilities.

Ask Endorsation.

A motion was passed to ask the Board of Trade to get each of the sections to endorse the necessity of bathing beaches in the city. Mr. Turner, President of the Board of Trade, assured the Association that this would not be difficult as all sections are heartily in favour of the proposition.

A big scheme for providing recreation grounds and a bathing beach at Chip Island, in the Otonabee river, was discussed. At present the island is used extensively by the small boys for swimming and the Association thought that if the Quaker Oats Company were asked they would probably allow the use of the land from the Hunter street bridge to the island, which could be connected to the land by a rustic bridge, and the two neighbouring islands also connected in the same manner. The central island could be used for a bathing place and picnic ground, the smaller ones for parks. Mr. Worth pointed out that if such a city as Calgary had the opportunity of providing such a form of recreation, the Council would not hesitate to expend $100,000, while the proposed scheme could be carried out in this city for one third of that sum.

CAN'T GET HOME PAPERS

Siberian Force Soldiers Deprived of Canadian Publications.

The following is an extract from a letter dated Feb. 4th, that has just been received written from Vladivostok by one of the members of the Siberian Expeditionary Force:

"Some fool in authority has stopped all newspapers from Canada coming here. Naturally we wonder all kinds of things. It is really quite a hardship on us, and rather inconsistent with our vaunted freedom of speech. Now you do your bit to bring this before the public at home? We are all very indignant to put it mildly."

Covenant Will Be Completed Saturday

By Fred S. Ferguson.
(United Press.)

PARIS, March 20.—The League of Nations covenant as it will be incorporated in the preliminary peace treaty will be practically completed Saturday, according to general belief to-day.

On that day the committee which drew up the constitution will hold its first meeting since the initial draft was finished. President Wilson will preside at the session, which will be called at ten o'clock.

Coal Mining Situation

British Miners May Co-operate With American Miners.

(United Press.)

LONDON, March 20. — With the report of the Special Parliamentary Committee on coal mining situation due to-day, British miners were discussing the possibility of joint action with the American miners to force acceptance of all their demands, in case the report is unsatisfactory.

British miners were taking this attitude as a result of a despatch describing the American miners' programme, outlined by Frank Hays, the president of the United Mine Workers of America, which coincided with the British demands. The British are seeking a six hour day, increase in wages, and the nationalization of the mines.

THE DEMANDS.

"It is a bit of interesting information and pretty good news," said Robert Smile, head of the British miners to the United Press, in discussing Hays' statement. "Their demands are the same as ours. It will considerably strengthen us if American miners would make up their minds to present these demands. It would equalize competition, wiping out the strongest point of the employers which is that granting our demands means the success of American competition in coal and steel."

The Exchange Telegraph Company said to-day that it is understood the coal commission has agreed on most points but there is a serious conflict regarding the nationalization of the mine[illegible]

Ready to Receive Wounded Canadians

Hospital Ship Araguaya Has Encountered Bad Weather—A Force of Army Nurses on Board.

TIME OF ARRIVAL

(Special to The Examiner.)

PORTLAND, Me., March 19.— Although no word has been received from the hospital ship Araguaya since she sailed for this port from Liverpool on March 11, it is believed that she will arrive here on Saturday with 812 wounded Canadian soldiers and 17 commissioned officers on board.

Strong westerly gales have been encountered by every ship arriving here during the past ten days, so it is regarded as probable that the Araguaya has met the same sort of weather and that during the height of the gales she has been forced to run at reduced speed.

Twenty-five cars, including tourist sleepers and hospital coaches, with a force of army nurses, arrived here today over the Grand Trunk to carry the wounded Canadians to their homes.

Major General Frothingham, Director General of the Canadian Medical Service, who arrived in Portland over the night to await the arrival of the hospital ship Araguaya, bearing 800 Canadian wounded to this port, stated that henceforward all the Canadian wounded would come through Portland, and that probably before the hospital ships had ceased their voyages fully 20,000 would be landed here.

General Frothingham added that the troops were pouring into the Canadian ports so fast that it was impossible to take care of special ships there and said that moreover the shorter haul to this port was distinctly appreciated to the extent that Portland alone would be used in the future. He expressed his enthusiastic appreciation for what Portlanders have done to assist the Canadian Medical Service.

The tedium of leisure and unemployment has made many of the ratepayers peevish in these pleasant days of spring, and wherever they foregather they seldom fail to vent their discontent upon the City Council. In the "Hall of Wisdom" a Hunter street resort of some of the leading citizens, several of the City Fathers who mingle there with the regular members, have been on the carpet, and called upon for explanations of the recent distribution of largess before the budget was securely locked up. Down at the curling rink, the familiar groups have been rather censorious of late in their discussions of local affairs, from the new bridge to the impending tax rate. Something of the same mood developed for a time at the Trades and Labour Council last night, but with a slight variation of the general theme.

The criticism is not always to the point, neither is it invariably constructive as the ratepayers dilate upon how they would conduct the city's affairs, or at least how the city's business should be carried on, and Engineer Barr might secure a few pointers on how not to build the bridge, if he chanced in upon some of these casual assemblies. There is no desire to disparage the opinions, whether well considered or not of the citizens who provide the city's revenue, but if the council courts public favor it should attack the budget with a broad axe and chop it down to about twenty-one mills. Three months of what promises to be a lean year for many of the ratepayers, are all but passed, and the prospect, in spite of flowing assurances is not conducive to cordial encouragement of expenditure that must bear upon the rank and file. There is of course the hope that some of the money will pass through the hands of the workers who expect to benefit by the construction operations, but the spirits of the unborn tax bills hover impalpably and uncomfortably in the civic air.

New Bicycle Shop Opens Saturday

Construct Two Monster Airships

(Canadian Press.)

LONDON, March 20.—Following successful trials of new British dirigibles for rigidity of construction, the Government, according to the Mail, has approved the building of two enormous airships. Each will be eight hundred feet in length and will have a capacity of three million cubic feet. They will be driven by six engines of one hundred and eighty horse power and will have a lifting power of 80 tons.

LABOUR COUNCIL OBJECTS TO METHOD OF MILITARY POLICE

CREATES BAD IMPRESSION

The practice of the Dominion Police of bringing deserters from adjoining counties to Peterboro for trial was the subject of a strong protest to the Attorney-General by the Trades and Labour Council last night. Mr. H. M. Matthews, of the Typographical Union, introduced the motion, which was seconded by Mr. Wm. Stevens, stating that the policy of the Military Police tended to create the impression that these delinquents were men of this city or county. Peterboro had made a splendid record by its enlistments during the war, it was pointed out, and there should be no toleration of a practice which would certainly create the impression that this county had numerous deserters. The effect of the methods of the Military Police left this implication especially throughout the country where the recruiting facts were not generally known, and the resolution proposes that the Attorney-General of either Ontario or of the Dominion should intervene at once and put an end to the practice of making the Peterboro court a central tribunal for the entire district.

Pleaded Guilty to Theft Charge

Found a Way to Beat the High Cost of Living.

William Skeaff, said to be a veteran of the first Canadian contingent, who went overseas with the 10th Battalion, pleaded guilty to two charges of theft in police court this morning. He elected summary trial on both charges, but was remanded for seven days until more information can be obtained about the young man's character.

High Cost of Living.

Skeaff's home is in Toronto, but he has been working in the city for some time, employed by a well-known painter. On March 10 he stole keys from the pocket of Mr. John Watson of this city, and going to his room, unlocked a trunk, taking away with him $22 in cash.

Martin J. Quigley, of this city, was relieved of $16 by Skeaff, who filched the money from his pocket. Skeaff, when apprehended, promptly admitted the thefts and excused himself with the oft-repeated phrase, "The High Cost of Living."

"The Little Pet Dog" Of Woodrow Wilson

"The Peace Terms Must Come First," Says the London Globe —"Not Boss of House."

OPPOSED TO LEAGUE

(United Press.)

LONDON, March 20.— The Globe, which is consistently anti-Wilson, and opposed to the League of Nations, attacks President Wilson on the charge of delaying the peace work. It refers to his "imperialistic mind" and says it is sure America will not feel flattered by the spectacle of Great Britain and France awaiting his convenience while he recovers the confidence of Americans.

"Wilson will have to recognise that he is not boss of the house," said the Globe. "The peace terms must come first before we begin to discuss the points of Wilson's little pet dog."

HON. W. G. HANNA DIED TO-DAY

Former Provincial Secretary Was a Big Figure in Public Life.

(Special to The Examiner.)

TORONTO, March 20.—Hon. W. J. Hanna, head of the Canadian end of the Standard Oil Companies, former Food Controller for Canada, and one time Provincial Secretary of Ontario, died to-day in Florida.

"The Province of Ontario has lost a very valuable citizen in the death of Hon. Mr. Hanna," C. M. Bowman, chief Liberal whip said in the Ontario House.

"During the term of office of Provincial Secretary, he brought about a very business-like system in regard to the institutions under the control of his department. Since assuming the Presidency of the Imperial Oil Co. he showed clearly his breadth of vision by the profit-sharing system which he put into effect.

"He thus recognised the obligation which rests on every employer at the present time."

News of the death of Hon. W. J. Hanna, ex-Provincial Secretary, cast a pall of gloom over Queen's Park today. Members on both sides of the House alike received the tidings with regret and were outspoken in their tributes to the character and ability of the deceased.

Premier Hearst declined to make any comment until the opening of the House this afternoon, when official recognition will probably be taken by the government of the passing of the former Cabinet Minister.

Col. Donald Sharpe, Conservative member for Welland, expressed regret at the death of Mr. Hanna, and stated that while overseas he had met Mr. Hanna's sister-in-law, Miss McAdam, who is a member of the Alberta Legislature and who was serving as a Red Cross nurse.

"He was the strongest man in the Whitney Cabinet in point of ability and strength of character," Allan Studholme, Labour member for East Hamilton, told the Examiner. "He and I fought frequently on the floor of the House, but personally we were the best of friends. He was working toward a spirit of co-operation between employer and employees in the Imperial Oil Company, and his death will be a serious loss to the province."

Toronto Daily Changes Hands

Toronto News Will Appear as the Toronto Times After Wednesday Next.

(Special to The Examiner.)

TORONTO, March 20.—The undertaking, assets and liabilities of the Toronto Daily News have been acquired by a group of Canadians. The new proprietors have decided to produce an entirely new journal in keeping with the requirements of a progressive period.

The new daily will be called "The Toronto Times," and will make its appearance on Thursday, March 27. It will be published under the direction of Mr. O. W. McDiarmid as general manager and Mr. F. D. L. Smith as editor-in-chief.

The Toronto Daily News will make its last publication on Wednesday, March 26th. The name of the new company will be "The Toronto Times, Limited."

WILL VISIT LOUVAIN.

BRUSSELS, March 20. — President Wilson and King Albert will visit Louvain, the first Belgian city destroyed by the Germans, on the occasion of the President's trip to this country, it was announced to-day.

Handful of Men Left Out of 5th C.M.R., Draft From 93rd Battalion

Ordered Cessation Of Hostilities

(United Press.)

PARIS, March 20.—The Supreme War Council has again ordered the Poles and Ukrainians to cease fighting immediately, it was announced to-day.

This action, taken at yesterday's session, was expected to avert further bloodshed in the region of Lemberg and Przmysl, both of which cities were recently partially occupied by the Ukrainians.

Confiscated Wet Goods

Seizure Was Made by License Inspector Stewart—Owner Wanted.

"The Saunders Co., the Saunders Co., the Saunders Co.," bellowed Chief of Police Thompson this morning at police court. But no one answered the summons. The Saunders Co. was not present to answer to the charge of having liquor in a place other than a private residence and License Inspector Joseph Stewart had to be content with asking Magistrate Dumble to confiscate the liquor. He obtained the order and the wet goods will be sent to the Attorney-General's Department in Toronto.

Five Cases.

Five cases of Gooderham & Worts rye whiskey containing 60 bottles, were taken off the 6.18 a.m. C.P.R. Montreal train on the morning of March 17th. Mr. Stewart noticed the cases on the Dominion Express truck and promptly took charge of it. The consignment was addressed to the Saunders Company, Peterboro, and Mr. Stewart sent a postcard to the company but received no reply.

"Do you know that company?" asked the Magistrate.

"No, I can't find any such company here," replied the License Inspector, "and the Dominion Express Company don't know any such company. They don't know where to deliver it."

The First Time.

"This is the first time that liquor ever went a-begging in this town," replied the magistrate.

The express charges amount to $2.50 and the magistrate said that he thought that they could get lots of people to pay that for sixty bottles of rye.

Mr. J. Seels, of the Dominion Express Co., corroborated Mr. Stewart's evidence and the magistrate promptly confiscated "Saunders Company's" wet goods.

MR. T. F. MATTHEWS IS NOMINEE FOR VACANCY ON HYDRO COMMISSION

Mr. T. F. Matthews, of Peterborough, was one of the eight prominent public men of Ontario whose names will be submitted to the Government by the Ontario Municipal Electric Association with the request that one of them be chosen for the vacancy on the Provincial Hydro-Electric Commission caused by the death of W. [illegible] Naught. The other selected candidates are J. W. [illegible] and J. T. Hannigan, of Guelph, Major Church, Toronto, Gordon Wilson, M.P.P., Dundas, W. S. Sanderson, St. Thomas, P. B. Yates, St. Catharines, and Willoughby Ellis, Hamilton.

Mr. Matthews was also elected vice-president of the Association at yesterday's meeting held in the Toronto City Hall.

Bread Was Seized This Morning

Inspector Reid Made a Haul of Seventy-eight Loaves.

Seventy-eight loaves of bread were taken from the premises of a local baker this morning by Bread Inspector Sergt. Reid. Every loaf was two or three ounces under weight, and as a result the Children's Shelter will be the beneficiary of the 78 loaves. Only sixteen loaves of bread were left the baker by the inspector. The bread is now piled five deep at the police station, resembling the breastworks in the front line trenches.

Several Reached Peterboro This Morning—Remainder Will Be in By To-night.

REAL VETERANS

Out of the draft of 1[illegible] men which left the 93rd Battalion in the early autumn of 1916 to join the 5th Canadian Mounted Rifles at the front, only a little over a dozen were left to return to Canada with that unit. The 5th C.M.R.'s reached Montreal on Tuesday night. And this morning on the early C.P.R. train the Peterboro members of the battalion arrived home. A few of the 93rd members are in hospital in England and quite a number were previously invalided home—the remainder are sleeping under the white crosses and the poppies of Flanders—.

Among those who got in this morning were Corp. Harold Marsh, Pte. E. Walton, Pte. W. [illegible] Gadoum, Pte. R. Sheridan, Pte. D. P. Ryan, and Pte. Clare. They accompanied their unit back from Belgium having taken part in the terrific fighting that preceeded the signing of the armistice. Previous to the taking of Mons the 5th C.M.R. were in the thick of the action that sent the Huns scurrying back towards their own border and opened the way for the capture of Mons. The majority of the boys who returned this morning are wearing casualty braids, in fact some of them have been wounded two or three times but they were back with their battalion in time to be "in the dearth".

They report a good trip over on the Carmania and a glorious reception from Halifax right through to Montreal. The 5th C.M.R.'s were demobilized at that city yesterday and the men who returned to-day have received their discharge.

PETERBOROUGH MEMBER OF PRINCESS PATS

Pte. Bruce Telford of the Princess Patricia's Canadian Light Infantry, arrived in this city this morning on the 6.18 C.P.R. train. After Pte. Telford went overseas he was drafted into the famous Canadian battalion. He saw much service at the front and went through the battles which led up to the capitulation of the German army. He went through every affray without a scratch except for a slight flesh wound on one hand caused by flying shrapnel.

Pte. Telford was in the guard of honour at the marriage of Princess Patricia, Colonel-in-Chief of his regiment, now Lady Patricia Ramsay. The regiment, about 600 strong, under command of Colonel Hamilton Gault, the Montreal millionaire, who raised the regiment, left Bramshott Camp in England on the Carmania and after a rough voyage, landed in Halifax Monday morning. In Ottawa the veterans were made much of and after lites and banquets, were allowed to proceed to their homes.

Theatre Programmes and Missing Label

Mr. H. S. Dahn, manager of the Grand Opera House, learned this morning that the Trades and Labour Council had passed a resolution last night criticizing the absence of the union label on the theatre's programmes. He stated that he had nothing to do with the programmes which were supplied by the Brothers' Bread Company for the privilege of inserting their advertisements.

Inspired Message From Government

(Canadian Press.)

OTTAWA, March 2[illegible] — At the conclusion of the presentation of the Union Government's views on the tariff question, Sir Thomas White, the Finance Minister, said there had been no suggestion of solemn among the many speeches and arrangements would be made for conferences, in which conflicting interests could present their views. He stated emphatically that while some changes might be made that would be satisfactory to producers and not detrimental to the nations' interests,

THE HOUSING BILL.

Had the amendment introduced by the Liberal Opposition in the Legislature been incorporated into the Ontario Housing Bill, one of the greatest drawbacks to the Government plan, would have been eliminated. As the scheme stands at present the returned soldier who wants to take advantage of the measure must either own a building site or else must must be able to pay down in cash at least ten per cent of the value of the house he proposes to build. This must be done before he can avail himself of the clause which authorizes an advance of the cost of his house, and, as was pointed out by Major Tolmie and other Liberal speakers in the Legislature, the majority of the married soldiers of the rank and file have not been able to save enough out of their war pay to be able to meet the outlay they are called upon to assume in connection with the housing scheme. To make it possible for the ex-service men to benefit by the government plan the opposition proposed that returned soldiers who wish to build houses, be given a grant of $200. The government refused to adopt this plan, the Provincial Treasurer declaring that the primary responsibility in regard to the soldiers belonged to the Dominion Government. However, Mr. McGarry intimated that the matter of gratuities for Ontario soldiers might possibly be considered by the Legislature later in the session.

The Legislature was unanimous in its support of the Housing Bill by the passing of which $10,000,000 was immediately available for building houses in the province. There will be regret among the Veterans, however, that the government did not see fit to adopt the Opposition suggestion. It would have made securing a home much easier matter than it is at present.

THE RESERVISTS.

Canadians generally will endorse the communications that have been received by the Parliamentary Pensions committee in regard to the question of families of reservists of the British and allied armies residing in Canada, and will expect the Government to deal generously and fairly with these men who have returned disabled and with the dependents of the men who will not come back. The majority of reservists who were residents of Canada answered the call promptly at the beginning of the war and were soon at the front with their old units. A few who ignored the first summons and thus became deserters, afterwards took advantage of the King's amnesty and joined the Canadian Expeditionary Force. Thus by a strange twist of affairs the men who adopted this later course are entitled to the Canadian pensions and war gratuity when they come back or their widows and children have received the Canadian pension, while the other reservists who went on the first call are discharged on the Imperial basis, receiving only the British pension and gratuity, while the families of those who fell in the conflict are in receipt of only the British allowance for widows and dependents. The same condition of affairs applies to the reservists of allied countries. The pensions are not adequate to meet the higher cost of living in this country and it is felt that as these men and their families are Canadian citizens residing here permanently, it would be a proper and fitting thing for the Dominion government to supplement their pension allowance and bring it up to the Canadian standard. The Patriotic Fund, Daughters of the Empire and other bodies have urged this course on the government and all fair-minded Canadians will recognize the justice of their request.

CONTINUING THE CAMPAIGN.

As might have been expected, the Playgrounds Association has not been found anxious to undertake the responsibility that the City Council is endeavouring to thrust upon it in connection with bathing beaches. Quite rightly, the members of the Playgrounds Association take the position that the establishment of bathing facilities is a civic duty. Their own organization in undertaking the providing of supervised playgrounds is doing a splendid work in Peterborough and they believe that it is scarcely fair on the part of the City Council to endeavour to wash their hands of the bathing place problem by handing a $400 sop to the Playgrounds Association with a blanket command to go ahead and provide what is required.

The Association has decided to carry on the campaign for better accommodation. A deputation has been appointed to wait upon the Council to urge that a bathing place be provided for the south end of the city. The assistance of the Board of Trade will be enlisted in this effort and it would be well for the Association to secure the co-operation of other organizations such as the Trades and Labour Council and the Great War Veterans Association, the members of which are naturally much interested in the project and who would undoubtedly be glad to assist in impressing upon the Council the fact that better bathing accommodation is something that is demanded by citizens generally.

Numerous residents of Peterborough have spoken appreciatively of the Examiner's stand in connection with this important question, but while kind words are always appreciated we feel that more efficient results would be obtained if these citizens and the hundreds of others who are interested in the matter, would talk to the aldermen about it. We know that the people want to see proper bathing facilities provided, because the petitions circulated some time ago were enthusiastically signed. If those who at that time signified their approval of the project would make it a point of telling the aldermen of their acquaintance that they consider the Council should take adequate action in the matter, or of dropping them a postcard to the same effect, the results would be worth the effort.

The Playgrounds Association is to be congratulated upon its decision to continue the campaign until definite results are achieved. It will have the support of a very large section of Peterborough's population.

GETTING RIGHT WITH THE WORKERS.

In Hamilton recently a small and informal gathering of local industrial leaders and representatives of organized labor, was held, which promises to spread a significant influence throughout Canada in establishing more intelligent relations between capital and labor and offsetting the Bolshevikii tendencies which are so menacingly at work in this period of unrest and readjustment. The manufacturers and the labor leaders took dinner together, and then in a practical way started in to discuss the industrial situation as between employer and employee. It was after midnight when the gathering broke up. The executives put their cards on the table frankly and the representatives of the workers were told in a straightforward way of what had been done and had been done in their interests. The results were most gratifying.

Largely as the outcome of this meeting, an organization is now being worked out by the Canadian Manufacturers' Association to bring about better relations between workers and their employers throughout Canada. A committee is being appointed from each of the eight branches of the Association to meet with representatives of the labor element for a free and frank discussion of industrial problems. These committees will work with a central comittee for all Canada, thus completing a national organization. Further than this, the manufacturers are individually urged to take up in a direct way their problems with their own employees.

If this idea of intimate relations between the manufacturers and their employers can be carried out in a broad way much will be accomplished to solve the greatest problem which industry has to face today. Tariffs and readjusting prices are in themselves questions which are difficult of solution, but they are tangible in character as compared with that unknown quantity which may be termed "social unrest."

The Financial Post has frequently pointed out that the great difficulty of the manufacturers has been their unpopularity, because they are misunderstood. With only a few exceptions they represent the greatest factor in the nation's prosperity, but the farmers have seen them only as monopolists getting rich behind a tariff protection, while labor has looked upon them as non-producers, reaping the benefits of the labour of others. If the manufacturers will meet the workers and the farmers not only half way, but more than half way, we believe that much can be done to remove the false impressions which now prevail.—Financial Post.

EDITORIAL NOTES.

It will cost $100,000,000 to take the prohibition referendum in Quebec. The winning side will, however, agree that the result will warrant the expenditure.

It should be noted that Col. Pratt, who is making serious charges against the administration of Canadian military affairs in England, is a Conservative member of the Ontario Legislature.

Lunch Room at the Bonner-Worth

Accommodation Provided for Employees of the Plant.

In order that their employees who come to work from any distance, might have their dinner under more sanitary and agreeable circumstances, the Bonner-Worth Company have installed an exceedingly attractive lunch room at the works. It was noticed by the management that about sixty of the three hundred girls employed at the factory who brought their dinner ate it under uncomfortable circumstances about the factory and provision was immediately made against this by installing the lunch room with splendid enamel table tops and comfortable chairs. The janitor was placed in charge of the lunch counter and free of charge supplies all the tea and coffee required and sells pies, chocolate and other dainties at the same price the down town shops ask. In no time the lunch room attained such popularity that the management has found it necessary to increase the accommodation to at least 100. Everything is done on the same lines as at a down town restaurant even to the costume of the man in charge, who wears a white coat and hat while fulfilling his duties at the counter.

ANOTHER ORPHAN RAILWAY

By B. F. GADSBY.

The Finance Minister's statement last week simply goes to show that you can't leave a railway on the clothes line over night without getting it swiped. There is reason to believe that the G.T.P. left itself out on the line on purpose and now cheerfully accepts the consequences.

Cynics call attention to the difference in treatment accorded by Union Government to the C.N.R. which had friends on both sides of politics and the G.T.P. which was supposed to be as Liberal a railway as the C.P.R. was a Conservative one. The C. N. R. was handled with some tenderness. We forclosed, as you will remember, for the four hundred million dollars the people of Canada had put into it but we did not forget to pay another ten million dollars over to the unnamed and undiscovered shareholders who still had a lingering interest in the common stock. These shareholders no doubt were the same persons whose interests were conserved on former occasions when C.N.R. was lent large sums of the public money to save it from bankruptcy.

The G.T.P. enjoys no such soft caresses. It is seized rudely from the doorstep where the poor foundling lies wailing, and bundled into the hands of a receiver who will give it only a step-mother's love. The receiver is the Minister of Railways who is so well versed in his job that the Finance Minister considers it necessary to make the public statement of the transaction himself. Thus is the G.T.P. chivied about right from the start and we may safely wager that it will get the lion's share of the spankings when public ownership is to be chastised.

Timid people may ask why we didn't let the C.P.R. take these cripples over especially as we have had to increase the freight rates fifteen per cent. to keep them on their feet—thus making the C.P.R. fifteen per cent. richer than it really needs to be. But the time for asking such questions has gone by. We are now fully embarked on the experiment of public ownership and we begin to experiment with three losers—the C.N.R. the G.T.P. and the National Transcontinental — and one winner, but very recently the Intercolonial on our hands. We would probably come out all right if we could nationalize all the railways, the profitable ones included, but as long as the C.P.R. and the G.T.R. stick out we are likely to get the short end of it.

We can't afford to pay two billion dollars for the C.P.R. and the G.T.R. has no desire to sell so long as it is making money. This means that these two great private railway systems will continue to prevent freight rates on the Government railways from becoming too altruistic for comfort and to that extent will defeat the purpose of public ownership which is service rather than dividends. No doubt we shall have large annual deficits to meet for some years to come and as soon as our Victory bonds are paid up the Government will be giving us a chance to stake the rest of our cash on the national railways.

The Grand Trunk Pacific enjoyed just enough ill health to make its parent, the Grand Trunk, willing to get rid of it. The Grand Trunk Pacific was designed to connect with the Eastern Grand Trunk system by means of the National Transcontinental thus forming a third trunk line from ocean to ocean. It was conceived by the late Charles M. Hays who sought thus to tap the prairie trade for the Grand Trunk and to offset the encroachments of the C. P. R. in Ontario where the Grand Trunk had long enjoyed a monopoly. As Mr. Hays presented the scheme to Parliament—a line from North Bay terminus of the G. T. R., into the West and so on to the Pacific coast—it looked like a good bargain for the Grand Trunk which would have diverted its share of the Western traffic to its United States terminal at Portland, Maine. To give the Grand Trunk what it did not want—a line to the seaboard through Canadian territory—and to make the proposition acceptable to the Grand Trunk the Government built the National Transcontinental from Moncton, New Brunswick, right through to Winnipeg instead of stopping at North Bay This paralleled the Intercolonial, Canadian Pacific and the Grand Trunk for many miles in the East while from Quebec westward it ran through a desert that will afford no traffic for years to come.

Having built this railway at a cost of $160,000,000 the Government leased it for fifty years at three per cent. on the cost to the G.T.R. which repudiated its bargain and threw the railway back on the Government's hands at the first opportunity. And now we have the Grand Trunk Pacific also paid for by the people, back our apron strings.

Of course the Grand Trunk Pacific without its profitable Grand Trunk connections in Ontario and Quebec is a tail without a dog but that is the best the Grand Trunk is willing to do.

As a matter of fact the G.T.R. had a sort of moral claim on our mercy. It is largely owned in England. It also makes the plea that it has only had $28,000,000 of the public money, which is true in a manner of speaking although the dozen smaller railways of which it is the bloated survivor all got their $6400 a mile and their land grant in the good old pork barrel days. Still as the G.T.R. hasn't cost us any money since and as we are a sentimental people with a lingering belief in the faith of contracts, even when they are outworn, we are inclined to listen to its despairing wail when it says "Leave us alone."

The National Transcontinental, in spite of its sad plight as a disused, rotting railway, is not a horrible example of public ownership. It is rather an example of extending the old methods of party patronage—the pork barrel system—into the field of railway work. The railway was a hideous extravagance grafted, under the guise of patriotism, on a business scheme that was sound enough in its inception, by politicians who found their profit in squandering the public money. It and the Grand Trunk Pacific are simply the most recent signs and tokens of the tyranny long exercised by private railway interests over political parties supine or worse.

The Intercolonial which has been a Government railway ever since it was built in 1867—having been started under provincial ownership and continued under federal auspices as one of the terms of Confederation demanded by the Maritime Provinces—has long been cited as a warning against public ownership. As a matter of fact it is a warning against the kind of politics which loads a railway up with party hacks and then lets it fend for itself. Now that the railway has been taken out of party politics and run as a railway should be it showed last year a surplus of $2,363,000. As the pet goat of the private railway interests, working through Parliament, the Intercolonial has been loaded with every handicap that could make an argument against public ownership. In the first place it was a military railway and as such it took the longest way round—they call it the tanbark route in New Brunswick — in order to be wholly in British territory. It was not allowed by the Imperial authorities to take economical short cuts, as the C.P.R. does, through the United States. For years it stopped at Riviere du Loup on the St. Lawrence and did not get a look in at the great Western Canada trade until Mr. Blair came along at the end of the nineteenth century and pushed it into Montreal.

However, Canada must do the best she can with three losers and one bad hope. The immediate gain we may expect to derive from our experiment in public ownership in the lessening influence of private railway interests in federal politics. We hope to get rid of the railway ring—or at all events to make it less of a wedding ring and more of an engagement ring which can be given back when love grows cold.

Preparing For Overseas Flight

STEAMER WILL MAKE DAILY TESTS ACROSS THE ATLANTIC.

(United Press.)

LONDON, March 20. — The British Air Ministry announces that the Steamer Scotcalm will start across the Atlantic to make daily air tests with kites the results of which will be made available to all aviators attempting a trans-Atlantic flight, regardless of nationality.

Official announcement also was made that a government flying boat has been shipped to Newfoundland, from where it will start across the Atlantic.

One Out of Every Ninth Marriage Results in Divorce

(Special to Examiner.)

WASHINGTON, March 20. — Approximately one out of every nine marriages in the United States is terminated by divorce according to figures compiled by the Bureau of Census and made public to-day. In 31 per cent. of the cases in 1916, divorce was granted to the husband, while the husband's rate in 1906 was 67 per cent.

Desertion is shown by the figures to have been the cause for about 38 per cent. of the divorces. Among the other leading causes were cruelty, infidelity and failure to provide.

Millbrook Swept By the Floods

Grocers Had a Busy Time Getting Stock Out of Their Cellars.

MILLBROOK, March 19.—On Monday night a flood caused by the heavy rains, which increased the volume of water in the creek to such an extent that it broke a dam a few miles up, swept the principal streets of Millbrook. In some of the yards the water was four feet deep. The grocers were kept busy getting their goods out of their cellars. Very little damage was done. This is the first flood that has occurred here for some years.

Durham Boys Win.

The final competition between the stock judging team from Lanark Co., the winners at the Ottawa Winter Fair, and the Durham team, took place at Guelph on March 11, 1919. Two classes each of beef cattle, dairy cattle, heavy horses, sheep and swine, were judged.

Prof. Wade Toole and Prof. J. P. Sackville were the judges. The number of points made in each class for the two counties were as follows:—

This makes Durham County a winner by 235 points.

This competition was arranged by the Union Stock Yards, who paid all the expenses of the two teams. On Thursday the two teams and their trainers were shown through the stock yards and Swift's Abattoir, after which a luncheon was served at the Walker House and Mr. Fletcher presented the beautiful silver trophy to the winning team.

A Good District.

These three junior farmers and their instructor, Mr. G. H. Williams, spent considerable time visiting the best herds and flocks of live stock, not only in Durham County, but also in Ontario County, Northumberland, Peterboro and Victoria Counties. When such honors are won by three junior farmers, Durham County can surely claim to be one of the best live stock districts in the Province.

Millbrook Curlers Win.

Two rinks of Peterboro curlers played an exhibition game with rinks of Millbrook curlers on Friday afternoon. Peterboro brought eight skips with them and were afterwards Millbrook's scalp, but they were disappointed, as the following will show:

Peterboro		Millbrook

RICHARD HALL & SON LIMITED

Sir Adam Beck Explains the Swedish Contract to Labour Men

Only One Generator is Being Manufactured — Canadian Tenders Were Too High—Labour Council Now Affiliated With American Federation.

NUMBER OF PROTESTS

A reply from Sir Adam Beck, explaining the Hydro Commission's purchase of an electric generator from the Swedish General Electric Company was read at last night's meeting of the Trades and Labour Council. It stated that the only equipment that is under order from the Swedish manufacturers is a generator for the power house at Healey Falls Notwithstanding the import duty of 35 per cent., together with high freight rates the foreign firm's price was 60 per cent. less than the lowest tender received from the Westinghouse and Canadian General Electric Companies. The order was placed twelve months ago under war conditions, Sir Adam Beck wrote, and he added that the Commission buys its equipment in Canada even at higher prices than those quoted by foreign manufacturers, providing the home price is reasonable. He stated further that a representative of the Commission and also one from the municipalities are at present in Europe investigating hydro-electric and radial railway equipments and improvements, but they have not been sent abroad on a purchasing trip.

The Labour Council had withheld comment upon the reported importation of electrical goods that could be manufactured in Canada until they had obtained verification from the Hydro-Electric Commission, and while accepting Sir Adam Beck's exposition of the transaction they passed a resolution protesting against the purchasing outside of Canada equipment that can be procured at home.

On Horticultural Society.

President Bolwell was appointed representative of the Council on the Horticultural Society in response to an invitation from E. B. Bromwell, secretary of the Horticulturists.

Delegates From I. L. P.

A Company Unfair.

A communication from the International Moulders announced that Beatty Brothers of London and Fergus had cut their employees' wages shortly after the armistice and had refused to meet representatives from the men and also from the Ministerial Alliance. The Council was asked to place the company on the unfair list.

Cigarmakers' Struggle.

The Cigarmakers' Union of Montreal, are in the eleventh month of their strike for recognition. The Council met their appeal for assistance by voting them five dollars as an expression of sympathy. It was stated that some of the Locals have also made contributions to augment the support from the International Cigarmakers' Union.

Want Resources For the People.

The attention of the Council was called to a recent press report that the Marquis of Queensbury had recently announced in Edmonton that British capital, which he represented, was interested in the oil and coal fields in Western Canada. It is estimated that there are 14,000,000 tons of coal in that region, and 250,000 acres of prospective oil fields. The Council passed a resolution protesting to the governments of Saskatchewan, Alberta and British Columbia, and also to the Federal government, against granting a charter to any private company to exploit this natural wealth. These resources should be preserved for the people, developed and operated by the Government, it was contended, and after all costs had been paid that the revenue be used to pay Canada's war bill.

A Note For New Manager.

The secretary was instructed to write the new manager of the Grand Opera House requesting him to place his printing with union shops.

Re Political Prisoners.

Aquiescing in a suggestion from the Trades and Labour Council of Winnipeg, a resolution was passed to be forwarded to Ottawa urging that the Orders-in-Council under which the incarceration of political prisoners continues be abrogated and Mr. Burnham will be be asked to use his influence to that end.

Increases For Officers.

Putting its precepts into practice within its own circle, the Council increased the salary of Secretary Stevens to $25 a year and of Treasurer Quinn from $8 to $12 a year.

Joined the American Federation.

Organizer J. Hewlett addressed the Council, touching upon the work of the American Federation of Labour, its accomplishments and progress, and also extolling President Gompers. On a motion by Alderman Gainey, seconded by H. M. Matthews, the Council decided to affiliate with the Federation and apply at once for a charter. The Council's annual fee is $10 and a charge of $5 is made for the charter.

A letter voicing the complaint of 10,000 Finnish workers in Canada appealed for support in a movement to secure relief from the freedom of speech, assembly and also of the press as imposed upon foreign born residents under the War Time Election Act. In a lengthy account of the hardships endured by the Finns as a result of this inhibitory legislation they applied to Canadian workers as a whole for sympathy and help.

The Council passed a resolution protesting against the restrictions and are requesting Mr. J. H. Burnham to use his good offices in support of this appeal.

DEATH OF TWO ENDS A LONG FLIGHT.

HOUSTON Texas, March 20. — Lieuts. Robert Morsbach and O. D. Davidson of the Ellington Field Aviation personnel, were killed on Sunday night near Richmond. Their airplane crashed to the ground as they were nearing the end of a flight from Kelly Field, San Antonio. Lieutenant Morsbach, who was piloting the airplane, was from Durand, Wis., and Lieutenant Davidson was from Omaha, Neb.

Exhibit at the Public Library

Those who have visited the exhibition in the studio in the Public Library building, express themselves as charmed with the exquisite etchings.

There are ninety on view, and the following pictures may perhaps be mentioned as having attracted special attention:

"The Doorway," Toronto University, by Owen Staples, Toronto.

BURIAL OF REV. J. E. HUNTER.

TORONTO, March 20.—The funeral of Rev. J. E. Hunter took place yesterday. Rev. H. T. Crossley, associate of the deceased for many years, did not preach the funeral sermon in Trinity Methodist church. "It would be like asking me to conduct the funeral service of my own brother," he said.

At 1.45 a private service was held at the residence on Palmerston boulevard. Rev. Dr. J. Tovell conducted the service, which was for the family. He was assisted by Rev. E. E. Scott.

Big Jump in Price of Bacon and Lard

Market is Very Unsettled, Say Dealers—Some Quotations To day.

As a result of the big foreign demand for Canadian meat and produce, bacon and lard jumped in price on an average of two cents a pound, on the various grades this week.

According to the buyer for a large Toronto firm the market is very unsettled, and prices are continually fluctuating. "There are plenty of hogs for home consumption, but not only the American buyers but those from the continent are depleting the market as they prefer to secure Canadian live stock, and the producer is selling to the highest bidder. The price of beef is soaring. Although the retailer has not raised the price as yet, we look for some change within the next few weeks unless the market changes."

"Bacon which sold at 45 and 50 cents a pound last week is to-day retailing at 47 and 50 cents. The price of live weight hogs remained as low as 16½ cents for some time. It later soared to 17½ cents, and now it has taken a jump to 19½ cents a pound, so we have had to raise our retail prices. As lard is one of the products it has taken a similar jump in price. Twenty-pound pails of lard which we have been retailing in the past as low as 27 cents a pound has soared to 33 cents, while the standard lard, which sold at 30 cents, is now selling at 32 cents a pound.

"Owing to the big demand for pork and beef at Buffalo and other large markets, which are buying up practically all our heavy cattle, the demand for spring lamb has increased and the price advanced 2 cents this week. Americans are paying tremendous prices for all our heavy cattle with the result that the live stock market at West Toronto only had 2,000 head of cattle for sale at the beginning of the week as compared with 4,000 in former weeks."

Assistant's Salary Should be Larger Labour Men Agree

Declare That Council Should Have Been More Generous to Mr. Ringer, Although He Was Willing to Begin at $750 a Year.

HAD MONEY FOR OTHERS

A delegate at the Trades and Labour Council's meeting last night, referring to the newspaper report of Monday night's meeting of the Committee of the Whole declared that Ald. Gainey's motion to increase the assistant assessor's salary from $750 to $900 should have been seconded and passed. Ald. Morrison explained that the position had been created and the salary fixed before Mr. Arthur Ringer, who is a returned soldier, accepted it. He was engaged by Mr. Henry, the city's assessor, and would receive a yearly increase of $50 until the maximum of $900 is reached.

The Labour men agreed that the Council should have made the salary at least $900 and expressed the hope that before the committee's report is accepted, that the City Fathers would reconsider the facts that Mr. Ringer served his country overseas and was entitled to more generous consideration than $750 a year, despite the previous fixing of salary. Delegates pointed out that the Council had found money for the Fire Chief's trip, $1,000 extra to the Exhibition Board, $150 increase to the Treasurer, and so on, but they refused to make the proposed increase in the salary of the assistant assessor.

Ald. Gainey remarked that he had opposed the grant of an additional $1,000 to the Exhibition Board for the reason that members of the directorate had told him that they were satisfied with the original $1,000. He felt that these extra thousand should have been alloted for bathing places instead of granting only $500. At least the $1,000 should have been divided between the Fair Board and the Playgrounds Association for the extension of their plans for public bathing places.

LIEUT. W. WORTH ON WAY HOME

Lieut. W. G. Worth arrived in Halifax on the Celtic on Tuesday evening, and after reporting in Kingston, probably this evening, is expected in the city on Friday or Saturday. Lieut. Worth enlisted with the 93rd Battalion in Peterborough and was transferred to the 58th Battalion. After receiving a severe wound at Vimy Ridge he was sent to an hospital in England. Immediately after recovering from his wounds he was appointed to the Wool Commission for Canada, residing at the High Commissioner's office in London. As he had the wool fully organized, and the wool control is gradually easing up, he found it possible to resign his position and leave it in other hands. His resignation was hastened by the fact of his father, Mr. Dyson Worth's, serious illness, from which he is happily now recovering.

"Your committee has recommended to the Company the inauguration of medical examination of all employees entering the service of the Company after a certain date. This should appeal to all as it is not only a benefit to the individual and to the company, but to the applicant, as in some cases it will doubtless be the means of drawing attention to ailments which, if treated in time, can be cured and will also ensure that no one is given work for which they are physically unfit."

A Narrow Escape For Howard Leahy

On Monday afternoon what might have proved to be a serious accident happened when a horse owned by Mr. Joseph Sheehan, of Indian River, attempted to cross the river. The ice not being strong enough the horse broke through and was unable to plunge its way across the river.

Mr. Howard Leahy, who was near by, saw the animal in the river, secured some ropes, and by this means brought the animal ashore.

Mr. Leahy, however, had a very narrow escape from drowning as the ice gave way, and he sank twice but was rescued by his brother.

Charles Dernberg, Accused of $7,000 Theft, is Also Wanted by Federal Authorities.

NEW YORK, March 20.—Accused of being a pickpocket, Charles Dernberg, who is said to live with his wife and three children in West Seventy-second street, near Broadway was held in $20,000 bail in the Jefferson Market Court when the alleged complainant, Morris Bleeder, failed to appear. The police say Mr. Bleeder complained of losing $7,000. Heavy bail was ordered when immigration authorities said they intended to arrest Dernberg.

To the surprise of court attendants Dernberg offered two ten thousand dollar Liberty bonds as bail, and they were accepted. Dernberg was told to be in court to-morrow, when the complainant is expected to be present. With agents of the Immigration Inspection Bureau following him, Dernberg left the court room. He was not rearrested, but federal agents declared they will take Dernberg into custody to-morrow, when the case in Jefferson Market Court is ended.

Raoul Prahel, a federal agent, said he was prepared to arrest Dernberg if he had been freed in court. A man named Dernberg, according to Detective Elliott, of the West Thirtieth street station, who arrested him, has been sought for some time by the federal authorities on request of the British government. The man was deported from the United States several years ago and returned here within a year of his arrival in England. That, according to the police here, is a crime under English penal statutes.

Detective Elliott said that at the time of Dernberg's arrest he had little money in his possession. Shortly after, Detective Elliott said, a man appeared and gave the prisoner the Liberty bonds.

VICTORIA, March 20.—Sales of liquor at Government stores on doctors prescriptions jumped from $6,000 a year ago to $50,000 in February this year in Vancouver and from $1,500 to $12,000 in Victoria, so prohibition commissioner Sorby told the public accounts committee of the legislature.

When a man is making money people expect him to pay for what he gets.

Metal and Machinery Markets

There is a belief in certain sections of the steel and iron trade, and it seems to be fairly well founded, too, that the talk about price reductions coming is being carried on at too great length. It can have only one effect, that of holding back purchasing. There are firms to-day who would order one hundred tons of plate, for instance. They have the work to guarantee it. Instead of making it in one purchase, however, the policy is to let the mills have only twenty or so tons at a time, in the hope that at least a large portion of the order will get the benefit of whatever reductions may be made. It is also worth noting that as low as 2:85 per pound has been quoted at an American point for a fairly large sized order of plate. April 1 seems to be the date at which all agree something is liable to come out in regard to a new schedule of prices.

Scrap Metal Market.

The scrap metal market continues dead. Dealers apparently have not the heart to come out and batter down the price lists to any lower level, although they could apparently do it. This market, it is expected, will improve when iron and steel come to levels where buying will commence. The two markets are closely allied as the scrap is needed as soon as the foundries begin taking on any very large tonnages of pig for actual use. As soon as price matters are settled there should be a lot of business moving in Canada, for stocks are low and demands will be heavy.

Tool Dealers.

Many of the machine tool dealers are now getting stock that have been off the market for some time, owing to the factories that made them being engaged on munitions. Some of the builders also find that they have in their shops the "roughings" of very heavy machines that were used primarily on certain operations in gun work. Very large gap lathes, for instance, are being offered direct from the mills at a considerable reduction on the usual price, and as one of these machines is apt to mean $8,000 undertaking, a discount of ten or fifteen per cent. runs into some real money.

The bulk of the business that has been passing machinery since the first of the year has been in rebuilt material. Some of the men in the business are showing considerable ingenuity in remarking with shop machines In one place by a very simple contrivance a cutting-off machine, purely a war shop proposition, has been remade into a turret lathe.

Although there is nothing positive to go by, the rumor persists that higher prices will be asked for drills, taps, reamers, etc.—Canadian Machinery and Manufacturing News.

Bell Company Will Examine the Employees

Added Feature to the Pension and Sick Benefit Plan of Bell Telephone Company.

The influenza epidemic of October and November served to emphasize, in a very striking fashion, the benefit to employees of big concerns of an enlightened scheme of sick benefits and pensions.

The Committee in charge of the Pension and Sick Benefit Plan, inaugurated in 1917 by the Bell Telephone Company has just issued its report for 1918.

"The influenza epidemic," says the report, "greatly increased the number of sickness cases practically between October 1st and November 30th. The total number of cases during these two months was 1023, seventy-nine per cent. of which was Influenza, while during the first nine months of the year the total number of cases was only 917."

Government Will Meet Fate of All After-the-War Governments

A Drear Wind Has Blown Through the House Since Yesterday—The Estimates.

(Special to Examiner.)

OTTAWA, March 20. — Even to its supporters the government does not seem to look as good as it did this time yesterday. Something has happened. A drear wind has blown through the House, the spectre of financial difficulties, and onerous down-crushing taxation.

The estimates, although in detail they do not differ materially from the preliminaries, are terrifying when they appear actually in cold print. Four hundred and thirty seven million dollars for next year, not counting supplementary estimates or war votes, an increase of one hundred and thirty eight million over last year.

WHITE IS CHEERFUL.

Sir Thomas White was cheerful as one who ignored a chasm, and smiled as one who wished to cheer in the midst of depression. Whatever the members may have thought at the moment, when they really looked at the figures, and saw them staring out from the page, they shivered. Not only did they realize the difficulty themselves, but mental telepathy even in anticipation, brought them the views of their constituents, and the recognition, coming as sharply as a jerk on the reins, that finance from this moment was to be an issue and problem of the first importance.

MEMBERS NOT READY.

The members are not yet quite ready to analyze their specific relations. They admit that the biggest items of increase come directly from the war in the form of public debt, pensions, soldiers' land settlement, and soldiers' civil re-establishment, and they have no desire to skimp the fighting men's returns. Yet, whatever be the source of the problem, they feel instinctively that the Canadian government, the Canadian parliament and the Canadian people are now definitely faced with those money worries which have been forecasted but which at a distance always looked as if they might fade away.

MEETING IN CAUCUS.

The government members are today meeting in caucus on the tariff. Is there any connection between this meeting and the bringing down of the estimates yesterday? Some observers point out what seems to be an obvious coincidence. When the delegates come to-day from the west for drastic tariff changes, the answer is ready on the lips of both the government and the protectionists: "But look at the estimates—how can we do anything in the face of those figures?"

The Canadian Manufacturers' Association to-day are undoubtedly saying, "We told you so," and they did tell us so, and predicted the vast expenditures necessary for next year. But will the west hit back quietly and admit, "You are right; we'll have to wait?"

Not, if the westerners, with whom your correspondent spoke this morning are any sample of their comrades. Listen to what one of them a government supporter and a prominent man said.

"Will the financial position defeat tariff reform?"

"No. For from what I feel this morning the government is finished. It will meet the fate of all after-the-war governments, and will go out. The west will have to make new alliances, not based on war sentiment but on economic needs.

And this man thinks that the economic needs demand a lowering of the tariff.

"Do you think the west may cooperate with the parliamentary opposition," asked the reporter.

"Well," he replied, "the opposition is not as poor as some people think and the liberal platform approximates the council of agriculture much more near than do the views of many ministers in the government. The House opposition is not bad but the real alliance of the west will be those forces of revolt at present outside parliament altogether. The democratic interests everywhere are seething, whether they be soldiers, or farmers, or working men. They are against the government and this financial crisis will unite them."

Although these emphatic views were not shared in their entirety by other men seen by reporter, yet it is quite clear that the west's restlessness is increasing rather than decreasing Mr. Crerar, who has always been the least political member of the cabinet is openly dissatisfied and a break is well within the bounds of possibility.

BARTENDER KILLS MAN IN QUARREL

NEW YORK, March 20. — While Flatbush avenue, Brooklyn, was thronged with theatregoers, a man was shot and killed in a saloon next door to the Casino Theatre, at No. 100 Flatbush avenue.

Men and women on the street heard the shot and saw men rush from the saloon, crying, "Police! Police!" Policeman William Dougherty, of the traffic administration, on duty nearby, rushed into the place where he says he found the bartender, Angelo Clementi, thirty-four years old, of No. 1327 Gates avenue, Brooklyn, with a revolver in his hand. William Rooney, thirty-eight years old, of Pearl street, Brooklyn, an iron worker, was dead on the floor.

Clementi was arrested and taken to the Bergen street station. He says Rooney quarrelled with him, picked up a bottle and started toward him as he stood behind the bar. Clementi, believing his life in danger, grabbed a revolver and shot Rooney fell dead.

Clementi will be arraigned in the Flatbush court on a homicide charge.

French Troops Have Extended Their Bridgehead

New Move Made to Frustrate Spartacan Outbreaks.

(Canadian Press.)

GENEVA, March 20.—French troops have occupied Mannheim and Karlsruhe, on the west bank of the Rhine, on account of Spartacan outbreaks there, the Vossische Zeitung says. The newspaper adds that the French also occupied Rheinau, five miles south of Mannheim, and Whinhafen. A Berlin despatch received Monday said that reports had been received there that the British and French had advanced their outposts from the limits of their bridgeheads at Cologne and Mayence, respectively. The French were reported to have entered Frankfort. Mannheim is south of the Mayence bridgehead area, but is directly on the east bank of the Rhine, where it is joined by the Neckar. Karlsruhe is about five miles east of the Rhine. There have been no reports of disorders in Mannheim and Karlsruhe recently.

WORKING UP NEW GENERAL STRIKE

(United Press.)

BERNE, March 20.—Spartacans are beginning an agitation for a new general strike March 20th, declaring that "this time victory is certain," a despatch reported to-day.

Neutral Countries In Session To-day

All Neutrals Will Be Represented at the Conference.

(Canadian Press.)

PARIS, March 20.— Neutral countries of Europe, Asia and South America will be given an opportunity to-day to express views and propose amendments to the League of Nations plan. Holland and Switzerland and others have sent delegates, while more distant countries will be represented by their Ministers residing in Paris. The session will continue to-morrow if necessary to complete all neutral proposals and prepare them for submission to the Commission on the League of Nations.

HAVE NO EFFECT.

(United Press.)

WASHINGTON, March 20.— England's threatened railroad and mine strike should have no effect on American coal prices, officials here thought to-day, because coal and coke are still on the War Trade Board's "conservation list."

H. KLINE, 430 GEORGE STREET

Voice of The People

To the Editor of The Examiner:

Sir—Talk about dogs! If our City Fathers could have taken a look at some of the garbage cans, which had been left in proper condition for the garbage collectors, but in the meantime had been turned inside out on the street by hungry mongrels of the canine tribe, and which presented an unpleasant sight to passersby, it might not take them long to decide as to the doing away with this evil.

VISITOR.

Editor of The Examiner:

Sir,—The painters have a grievance. Will you kindly allow me a small space in your influential journal to air this grievance?

It has been the custom hitherto for the master painters to make their men carry to the jobs the necessary plank-ing and scaffolding, or for papering, their pasteboards, step ladders, etc., required in the work. Those who have a bicycle are relieved of some of the burden, but the others have to get the stuff to the job the best way they can and some of the articles have to be carried from one job to another. The men consider this a great hardship and have given notice to the masters that they desire the masters to place on the jobs the necessary appliances, and unless by the first of April this is acceded to there is going to be trouble in the painting trade. The men say they are not beasts of burden and they cannot keep clean and respectable carrying soiled planks around town, and that such labour unfits them from doing their best work, to say nothing of the injustice to the public who are charged up with the time occupied by the men in assembling their appliances before they can start work.

An agreement has been drawn up embodying the remedying of this grievance, and submitted to the masters. Some are willing to sign it. I am the recording secretary of the Painters' Union and was working for a firm of decorators in this city, and as secretary presented the agreement to the boss to read, but he threw it across the shop and refused to look at it, consigning it (with an epithet) to a warmer climate. A shop-mate, who is president of the Union, was leaving the shop, carrying a two-by-twelve plank twelve feet long, to go to work, and I pointed out the unfairness of shouldering such a burden, and the boss resented this and fired me on the spot. Are the public willing that Labour should be treated in this way? I don't ask for sympathy or any help so far as my own particular case is concerned. But will the public stand by and countenance by its patronage and support any citizen who, as master or employer, treats his help in this way.

Yours, etc.,

GEO. H. HARPER.

WAKE UP PETERBORO!

Dear Editor:—

I see in tonight's issue of the "Examiner," a list of our boys returning to Peterboro, and if you can allow me a little space in the above paper, I would like to voice my own feelings and the feelings of others in regards to their reception. It has been very evident for some time past that the promises made on the 11th of November last have been forgotten by those in authority. The "Heroes" have been returning in twos and threes, some have been welcomed and some have not. It's all right to blame it on the delay in transportation from Halifax and other points and detention at Kingston, which made the time of arrival here so uncertain, but what I want to point out is this: Why wasn't Peterboro suitably decorated the same as other cities to let the boys see that they were welcome back to our midst once again. Just a week or two ago I saw with my own eyes two soldiers walking up George Street straight from the C.P.R. station, and one of them had his full equipment strapped on his back and his "Tin Lizzie" on his head, and I saw them look round the busy part of the city, but there wasn't a "Welcome Home" sign nor a flag to catch their eye. Isn't it galling to think that we can't recognize these gallant fellows' return after their splendid service in France and elsewhere. I hope Mayor Duncan sees how Toronto receives her "Protectors," when he is there. It might refresh his memory and bring to his mind that he promised on the 11th of November to celebrate the boys' homecoming. I know it was impossible to do it on every occasion. But if he doesn't start now, when does he expect to fulfil that promise? The first of the units arrived in Toronto on Wednesday. Among them being the names of the Peterboro men and also some of our city's own battalion, namely the 93rd. The majority of them who reached France were killed or wounded. The 93rd can't come to Peterboro as a unit to get a proper reception, but they are likely to be the largest lot which will arrive here from now on. So get a move on somebody and give the boys a reception worthy of the occasion. I remain,

LOOKER-ON.

To the Editor of the Examiner:

"The general management, regulation and control of the library, and any reading room and museum established in connection therewith, shall be vested in a board, which shall be composed of the Mayor of the city or town, or the Reeve of the village or township, and three other persons to be appointed by the council, three by the public school board, or the Board of Education and two by the Separate School board, if any."

"A member of a board shall not enter into any contract, agreement, engagement or promise, either in his own name or in the name of another, and either alone or jointly with another in which he has any pecuniary interest, profit or promised or expected benefit with the board of which he is a member, or have any pecuniary claim upon or receive compensation from the board for any work, engagement, employment or duty on behalf of the board, and every such contract, agreement, engagement or promise shall be null and void, and a member violating the provisions of this section shall also facto vacate his seat."

Can anyone tell me how it is that Mayor Duncan, who is, according to the above Section, a member of the Library Board, which have a contract to paint the Library, and if he has such a contract how is it that he does not vacate the seat on the Board?

Yours truly,

Walter Sindon.

BELGIAN RELIEF FUND

Ontario Branch, 104 King Street West, Toronto

CLOSING MARCH 31st

The work hitherto performed by Relief Organizations will be undertaken by the Belgian Government after March 31st.

Contributions of money and clothing will be received at 95 King Street West, Toronto, until that date.

Fund for Belgian Orphans of the War

Will, however, remain open, but contributions for this Fund must be sent to N. Goor, Consul-General for Belgium, Ottawa, Ontario.

"THE DEVASTATION OF BELGIUM does not solve the problem of the future of the war orphans.

"Some idea can now be formed of the number for whom we shall have to provide. It can be stated that the orphans whose parents were deported and who died in Germany number more than those whose fathers have fallen on the battlefield."

Regina Take Bad Beating

University of Toronto Schools Rout Westerners in Farcial Game.

TORONTO, March 20.—No more farcical exhibition has been staged at the Arena this season than last night's junior fixture between U. T. S. and Regina Patricias. The latter were made to look foolish by the Blue Shirts and were defeated by 14 to 3. The teams are billed to meet in the final contest for the Canadian championship on Saturday night under Western rules, and U.T.S. will experience little difficulty in repeating their victory.

The local colleagues were always best and scored almost at will. Their systematic play was a treat to watch, and it is safe to say that in this respect they have no superiors in hockey. Frank Carroll has drilled the Blue Shirts into one of the smoothest working aggregations ever seen here, and is to be congratulated. There is not a selfish player on the outfit and everyone gives everything he has for the benefit of his team. They are worthy champions and a credit to the game.

BOWLING NEWS

In the first match on the "Y" alleys, McLeod, who substituted for Sisson, won two out of three games from Dobbin:

Patricias May Default Game

WOODSTOCK WILL BE GIVEN AN OPPORTUNITY TO PLAY U. T. S. AGAIN.

(Special to Examiner.)

TORONTO, March 20. — Secretary W. A. Hewitt, of the Ontario Hockey Association intimated this morning that Woodstock, runners up for the O.H.A. Junior Championship, may be substituted for the Patricias of Regina, for the game on Saturday night against U.T.S., who gave the Patricias such a beating last night. The Patricias may be asked to-day to default their second game and give Woodstock an opportunity for a good exhibition game with the U.T.S.

The decision will probably be reached this afternoon.

GUN CLUB MEETING.

The Gun Club will meet at the Empress on Friday evening at 7.30 p.m. All members or those wishing to become members are requested to attend the meeting.

Outbreak of Social Events in Omemee

Welcome to Nursing Sister Hayes —Omemee Soldiers Entertained.

VILLAGE HAPPENINGS

OMEMEE, March 19.— After a winter of quietness owing to so much illness, Omemee, like a great many other places, has broken into a whirl of social events, viz., afternoon teas, cards and dancing parties and many entertainments. Some of the doings of the past week are here recorded:

Nursing Sister Returns.

Picture a packed hall, brilliantly illuminated and gay to the last degree with flags and bunting. On the stage, with such a background, Friday evening, sat Nursing Sister Hayes, who has been service in Egypt, in the uniform of the Imperial Nursing Sisters. On each side of Nurse Hayes, a group of khaki-clad returned men, sixteen in all, whom the people of Emily and Omemee had turned out to welcome home again.

As "our heroes" filed on to the stage, pent up feelings of the multitude burst forth in three rousing cheers and a tiger led by the chairman, Dr. Wood, of Lindsay.

Illuminated Address.

Immediately following, Reeve Parsons, on behalf of Omemee and Emily, read the illuminated address, which with a handsome signet ring, was presented to each by Reeve Wilson. Following the presentation the large gathering joined lustily in singing "For They Are Jolly Good Fellows," after which Nursing Sister Hayes was the first to respond, followed by Corp. Wm. O'Neil and several others. The response for the men in general was made by Rev. Mr. James.

Just then the dainty little daughter of Dr. and Mrs. Earle came forward and presented Nurse Hayes with a beautiful bouquet, on behalf of the ladies of the Women's Institute.

The Programme.

The following programme was then rendered:

Vocal duet, "Home Again"—Mr. and Mrs. Southworth.
Chairman's address—Dr. Wood.
Solo—Mr. Treneer, Peterborough.
Address—Rev. Mr. Lewis.
Piano selection—Miss Pearl Rehill, Peterborough.
Vocal duet—Mrs. Perdue and Miss Harrington, Downeyville.
Recitation, "The Coward"— Mrs. Lewis.
Piano duet—The Misses Race.
Address—Father Galvin.
Piano selection—Mr. Treneer.
Song, "Khaki Heroes Welcome Home"—Miss Lila Parsons.
Address—Rev. Mr. MacInnes.
Song—Miss Reta Johnson.
Piano selection— Mrs. Wm. Herlihey.
God Save the King.

Omemee Soldiers.

Names of the boys entertained on Friday night:

Omemee—Sergt. Harold Cunningham, Pte. John McGhie, Gun. Hunter Lewis, Pte. Peter Birchell.

Emily—Sergt. Dan O'Brien, Corp. Wm. O'Neil, (Pte. Victor Callaghan, Pte. Thos. Cassidy, Pte. Albert Kinmore), returned prisoners of war, Pte. Leo Flynn, Pte. Peter Perdue, Pte. James Kennedy, Pte. Reggie Louch, Pte. Jack Louch, Pte. Will Balfour, Pte. Lowery Brooks.

Pte. Houlihan of the American forces, who is visiting at his home near Downeyville, was also invited to the platform.

Afternoon Tea.

Mrs. L. A. Mahood entertained a number of ladies to an afternoon tea last week.

Mrs. F. N. Earle was the hostess of an afternoon tea on Thursday of last week.

The U. F. A., with their wives or invited guests, held a very interesting and profitable meeting on Thursday evening last. Mr. David Weir acted as chairman and a choice programme of solos, recitations, speeches, etc., was given. Mrs. Webster of Oakwood, was the speaker of the evening and was listened to with rapt attention by the large audience present. Refreshments were served at the close and a social hour spent.

17th March Concert.

The members of the Epworth League of the Methodist church held their annual 17th of March entertainment in the basement on Monday evening. There was a large attendance, notwithstanding the disagreeable weather. A choice programme of Irish selections was given, after which an impromptu selection was given by each of seven Irish families, which was very amusing. Dainty refreshments were served at the close.

Funeral Thursday.

The funeral of the late, Mrs. Jas. Cunningham, which was held on Thursday afternoon last, was largely attended. The deceased had been in failing health for many months and since September last had been confined to her room. Her husband predeceased her about ten years. Left to mourn the loss of a fond and loving mother, are two hero sons, Sergt. Harold, who returned from overseas about Christmas, and Pte. Hillier, who is daily expected home; also three sisters, Mrs. Borland, Mrs. Martin, Peterboro and Mrs. Darling, Port Hope; and two brothers, Messrs. Robert Robey, of Buffalo, and Chas. of Toronto. The service was conducted by Rev. Mr. Lewis. The floral tributes were numerous and very beautiful, among them being a wreath from the sisters, a spray from the Ladies' Aid of the Methodist Church, spray from the Women's Institute, spray from Miss Irene Clement, a wreath from the employees of the tannery. To the sorrowing sons and relatives is extended the sincere sympathy of the whole community.

Miss Mary Davidson.

The funeral of another of Omemee's old and highly respected residents, in the person of Miss Mary Davidson took place on Tuesday afternoon from her late residence.

The deceased had been in failing health for some time and death was not unexpected.

A private service was held at the home, after which a public service was held in The Anglican Church, where a large crowd had assembled. Rev. Mr. James conducted the service. She leaves to mourn her loss a host of sorrowing relatives and friends.

Among those from a distance who attended the funeral were Mr. and Mrs. R. Hungerford, of Lindsay, Mrs. Mark, of Lindsay, Miss Eva Davidson, of Toronto, Mr. T. Davidson, of Millbrook, Mrs. Hutchinson and Mrs. J. Brown, of Lindsay, and several others. The floral tributes were many and beautiful. Interment took place at Emily cemetery, the pall bearers being W. Curry, R. Ford, H. Lamb, R. Cornwall, W. G. Stevenson and R. Grandy.

Rev. Mr. Rowand's Tribute to Visitor

Card of Thanks From St. Andrew's Young Ladies' Mission Band.

The Young Ladies' Mission Band desire to thank all those who so kindly contributed to the success of the Banquet at St. Andrew's on Monday evening, and especially to Rev. Mr. Potter for his very interesting address.

Rev. Mr. Rowand, the present pastor of St. Andrew's, who introduced Rev. Mr. Potter, referred to Mr. Potter's work in Peterboro and his ability to organize the young people and other organizations of the Church so effectively, and looked forward to a return to St. Andrew's of many activities curtailed by the war.

Mr. Rowand, who has taken a deep interest in the affairs of the Church is much appreciated by the Congregation and his pleasing reference to Mr. Potter's previous work and that of the several organizations, were excellent tributes as to what St. Andrew's has accomplished in the past and an indication of what may be expected in the future.

Will Constitute An Obstacle

The Pet Purpose of the Japanese Delegates.

By Robert J. Bender.
(United Press.)

WASHINGTON, March 20.—Prohibition of racial discrimination as an amendment of the League of Nations covenant brought by Japan, stands out as the leading obstacle in the path of immediate agreement on the League draft for the peace treaty.

Officials here fear that in amending the covenant to meet the objections of opposition senators, President Wilson is running the danger of having to give ground to other powers who have been waiting for an opportunity to amend the original draft.

The pet purpose of the Jap delegates was to inject into the document a clause, that will prevent any discrimination against Japanese—a point involving long drawn differences of opinion between the United States and Japan—and which already has aroused western senators.

OBITUARY

MISS GEORGINA STEWART

This morning the death occurred suddenly after an illness of several weeks of Miss Georgina Stewart, the eldest daughter of the late George and Margaret Stewart, of Otonabee Township at the home of her brother-in-law, Mr. James Fitzgerald, 61 Argyle street.

The late Miss Stewart will be deeply mourned by a large circle of friends and relatives. She is survived by two sisters, Mrs. W. Carruth of Renfrew, Ont., and Mrs. Fred Collins of Otonabee Township, also four brothers, Newton; Charles, Walter and Frank all residing in the northwest.

The funeral will take place privately from Argyle street at 2:30 p.m.; service at 2 o'clock to Little Lake Cemetery on Friday, March 21st.

ANASTASIA McGARRITY

Mrs. Michael Geary of Ennismore, received a telegram yesterday bearing the sad news of the death of her sister, Anastasia McGarrity at Edmonton, following an operation for goitre.

The deceased has many friends in this city as she resided here for some time before going west.

Although she didn't enjoy good health for some time, she had a cheerful disposition which won for her many friends, who will regret to hear of her death.

Besides her mother she leaves three sisters, Mrs. Donoghue of this city, Mrs. Geary of Ennismore, and Mrs. Fitzgerald of Wisconsin, four brothers, Gus, Joseph, Frank and Jack all residing in Edmonton. The remains will be brought to the city for burial. Funeral announcement later.

CARD OF THANKS.

CHARGE LAID UNDER THE TRUANCY ACT.

Under the Truancy Act, a local man was charged in police court this morning with not sending two of his children to school. Mr. Finch Millar, the truant officer, stated that one child had not been to school for four months and the other for a month. The father stated that both children were delicate and that the doctor refused to give a medical certificate to that effect until the father was hauled into court. The magistrate ordered the father to send the children to school. Education was free, he said, and no children should be deprived of it.

Mr. Miller will ask the teacher for a weekly report of the children's attendance.

The Member For East Peterboro Would Abolish Statute Labour

Mr. Thompson Declares the Temperance Act Not as Bad as Painted.

TORONTO, March 21.—The budget debate will likely be concluded at to-day's session of the Legislature. There are still four or five more members to take part in it, among them being Hartley Dewart, member for Southeast Toronto, and he will probably introduce an amendment which the Opposition has been several days preparing. Now that the truce is over the Opposition has returned to the former custom of introducing amendments, and as in the case of the winding up of the speech from the throne, the division bells will ring again before adjournment.

At the opening of the session yesterday afternoon Mr. S. Lucacharme resumed the debate and urged an investigation into the cost of pork. He asked that the Government inform the House on the estimated cost of the provincial highway and referred to the O.T.A. as a thorn in the side of many people.

Not So Bad as Painted.

J. Thompson, East Peterborough, denied that conditions throughout the province under the O.T.A. were as bad as they are painted. Referring to the speech made in the House by Col. Machin, he said: "I think he struck a blow against temperance by statements he made in the House." Dealing with the housing question the speaker said the Government was doing right in taking the lead in house construction and encouraging others to build and also to generally keep the wheels of industry moving. He thought a campaign advisable in an effort to do away with statute labour on the roads. A commission to investigate the exodus from the rural communities to larger centres would meet with a very cool reception. The farmers would say that they knew how to run their own business. There were more transfers of farms in Ontario now than ever before in the history of the province. That was due to the high prices now being paid for farm property. The agriculturists hoped to buy again at a low figure. The speaker trusted that they would be fooled.

CIVIL WAR VETERAN WOULD AID FRIENDS

Says Tanlac Did Him So Much Good He Wants to Give Every Old Soldier a Bottle.

"I wish I could buy every old soldier a bottle of Tanlac, for from the way it has fixed me up I believe it would add years to their lives," said Frank B. Kendrick, a Civil War veteran living at 4800 Charlotte Avenue, Nashville, Tenn.

"Some time back," he continued, "I had rheumatism so bad, and went down so fast, that it looked like I was on the verge of general breakdown and had about despaired of ever walking again. I was fast losing what little flesh and strength I had left and could hardly sleep and suffered constantly with headaches.

"After taking Tanlac a short while I began to improve. I kept it up and I have gained thirteen pounds and feel better and younger than I have in years. Tanlac just fixed me with new life and energy and put me on my feet again. I have a fine appetite and can walk anywhere I want to go and hardly feel it at all."

Tanlac is sold in Peterborough by W. B. Wilkie Drug Co., Limited. In Havelock by A. C. Denike. In Lakefield by Tanner Drug Co., Ltd. In Fowler's Corners by W. A. Hunter. In Gelert by A. J. Scott. In Westwood by G. Pringle & Son.

Sir George Perley to Resign Office

OTTAWA, March 21.—Sir George H. Perley, according to a report in circulation here, will in the near future resign his present office and return to Canada to give his attention to his own private business affairs. Sir George went to England in June, 1914, when he was still a member of the Borden Government, and as Acting High Commissioner filled the position which had been left vacant by the death of Lord Strathcona. Sir George acted as Minister of the Overseas Military Forces from October, 1916, until October, 1917, when he was appointed High Commissioner. He has thus served Canada in London during the whole period of the war.

THE WIFE

BY JANE PHELPS

Ruth Plans a Surprise for Brian

CHAPTER CXLIX

The next morning Brian was obliged to go down town to attend to some matters having to do with his discharge from the army. So Ruth went as far as the new office with him.

"The rug and shades will be there early, and I want to see to the hanging of the shades," she had made her excuse when he told her she was foolish to go out so early, "now that you don't have to," he had added.

But she had insisted. Then they agreed to meet at a little restaurant near the new office for luncheon.

"You'll want to see how the rug looks," Ruth explained when she planned to meet him.

"All right, boss! I'll be there," had been Brian's happy answer, as he kissed her and then they both kissed the baby who was so like his father.

What a busy morning Ruth had. She saw the women had cleaned very thoroughly. The windows had been washed and the bright morning sun shone thru them, making long, golden fingers on the new rug, lighting up its somber shades (which Ruth considered appropriate for the office).

After seeing that the shades were all right as to color and that the man knew his business, she left him hanging them and made a visit to the bank where she kept her savings. She drew out quite a large sum, then made her way to a store dealing in office furniture. She bought a solid, substantial desk, half dozen leather chairs, a long table, for which she ordered a glass top, and several sections of the book cases she had in mind. The clerk tried to sell her a couch to match the chairs. She was strongly tempted to buy it until she remembered Brian's inclination to take things easy.

"He'll work better if he has no place to lop down," she said to herself as she declined to buy it.

The little waiting room must also be made attractive. So she purchased comfortable chairs and a rug for that as well as a small table She would see that some magazines were always kept upon it for waiting clients to read. Ruth had wonderful faith that those clients would soon be forthcoming. Brian Hackett was not the unknown struggling barrister he had been before the war. He was known as that "brave Lieutenant Hackett" whom his country had thought worthy of their highest praise. And, business woman that she was, she would turn all this to account in his after-the-war struggle for business success.

She instigued the clerk to send the things at once on a special waggon. She herself hurried back to the office so that she would be there when they came. The clerk did not disappoint her. He had in some psychological way caught a little of Ruth's enthusiasm and almost at the minute he had promised, the furniture appeared.

Ruth never had spent a happier morning. She dusted and arranged the books. They looked very well indeed in their bravely new cases. In fact the books themselves looked almost new. Brian's practice had not required that he use them often, and he had been too indolent to study—as Ruth had urged —not feeling the need.

She arranged and re-arranged the furniture until she had it placed to the best advantage. Then she cleaned up in the little washroom opening out of the waiting room, and went to meet Brian.

"You look as if you had been up to mischief," he remarked after they had ordered their luncheon. "Your eyes shine like stars."

"What mischief would an old married woman like me be apt to get into?"

"I'll wager there's something. I never saw you look prettier, or more as if you had some wonderful secret, No one has died and left us a million or two, have they?"

"No dear. You are going to make all the millions we have, yourself I expect you will make them too."

"Don't expect too much or you will be horribly disappointed. If I can keep you and the kid in that apartment and give us all enough to eat and wear, it is all I ask. Sometimes I am afraid I shall not be able even to do that much."

"Oh ye of little faith," Ruth quoted. "Don't dare question my husband's ability, Brian Hackett! He's going to be one of the rising young lawyers of the city. That's how they express it, isn't it?"

So, laughing and chatting, as happy young people do, they finished their luncheon.

"Whither away now?" Brian asked as they reached the street.

"Let's go to the office and see if the shades are hung."

Nothing loath to again view the place where he was so soon to spend his days, Brian acquiesced, and they walked to the office.

Cases ended in death! So a recent Canadian investigation showed. These were not cases of infectious diseases—of consumption—of typhoid! They were cases where a person had sustained some slight injury—a cut, a burn, a wire-prick—and where the wound, being thought not serious enough for careful treatment, had been neglected. Blood-poisoning and death resulted.

When you or your children sustain any injury, ensure against infection by applying Zam-Buk. This balm soothes the pain, stops bleeding, and by destroying all germs prevents blood-poisoning, etc. Hence no time need be lost from work or pleasure by those who use Zam-Buk. All dealers, 50c. box.

The Fierce Spartacides

THE Spartacides, who figure so largely in the troublous affairs of Germany, owe their name to the Spartacus who lived in Rome before the birth of Christ, we learn from A. F. Giles, writing in a recent issue of the New Europe:

"The choice of the name Spartacus—a veritable nom de guerre—by the chiefs of the extreme revolutionary faction, announces to Germany and to the world, with a kind of self-conscious and pedantic truculence, the spirit and the aim of the movement these men are directing. A short tale from Roman history suffices to point the modern moral—a tale of much significance and of evil omen.

"In 73 B.C. the Roman Republic had passed more than half way through that century of sedition and civil war which was to issue in the dictatorship of Caesar, and finally in the veiled despotism of Augustus. At that date the oligarchical Government—recently restored by the arms of Sulla—was demonstrating its own incompetence and corruption. Italy was seething with discontent, harassed by recurrent panics of famine, and full of broken men of all sorts. A series of tedious, costly and ill-managed foreign wars—in Spain and in Asia Minor—had drawn away most of the trained soldiers from Italy, and the only troops available against disorder were levies of raw recruits. There was practically no organized police.

"In a school of gladiators at Capua, owned by a certain Lentulus, there was a Thracian slave named Spartacus—a man, according to Plutarch, 'not only powerful and courageous, but of understanding and mildness (i.e., civilised manners) beyond his condition.' With about seventy companions he escaped and took to the slopes of Vesuvius. The first troops sent from Rome to take them failed ignominiously, and presently other gladiators, cowboys from the stock-runs and slaves of all sorts, were flocking to join them. Before long Spartacus was at the head of 70,000 men, many of them trained fighters and all of them desperate. Being runaways, their lives were forfeit, and they could neither expect nor give quarter. Turbulent and undisciplined as they must have been—and, by the way, it seems that the most disorderly of them, and therefore the first to be destroyed, were a body of German slaves—Spartacus showed notable military skill in handling his forces as well as a kind of rough justice in the matter of plunder, which kept them loyal. One army after another was sent from Rome to crush them, and disgracefully defeated. Spartacus himself apparently wished to get his way to freedom beyond the Alps, but success emboldened them to remain in the rich fields of South Italy. For two years the lands of the conquering republic lay in terror of a barbarian slave.

"At last, in 71 B.C., the Government found a general fit to lead Roman troops against such an enemy. Crassus the pretor, after 'decimating' a few regiments for cowardice, hemmed the slaves into the Calabrian peninsula, and finally, when they made a dash through his lines toward Brindisi, brought them to battle and cut them to pieces. Spartacus fought in the hottest of the fight, and it was noted that of over 12,000 dead slaves only two were wounded in the back. Italy was saved from destruction. But miles of ravaged countryside remained to tell the tale, and for generations the name of Spartacus was remembered with terror.

"The modern analogy, to which the name of the 'Spartacus group' calls attention, is so obvious that it scarcely needs to be stated. Desperate men, sick of being exploited and butchered in their masters' interests, turn upon them and upon society, in the mere lust of revenge and destruction. But the spirit of Spartacus is one with which civilization can hold no parley, though it may comprehend and pity. For it is a spirit which can do nothing but destroy.

DANDRUFF MAKES HAIR FALL OUT

A small bottle of "Danderine" keeps hair thick, strong, beautiful.

Within ten minutes after an application of Danderine you can not find a single trace of dandruff or falling hair and your scalp will not itch, but what will please you most will be after a few weeks' use, when you see new hair growing and downy at first—yes, but real new hair—growing all over the scalp.

A little Danderine immediately doubles the beauty of your hair. Not a trace of how dull, faded, brittle and scraggy it is, just moisten a cloth with Danderine and carefully draw it through your hair, taking one small strand at a time. The effect is amazing—your hair will be light, fluffy and wavy, and have an appearance of abundance; an incomparable lustre, softness and luxuriance.

Get a small bottle of Knowlton's Danderine for a few cents at any drug store or toilet counter, and prove that your hair is as pretty and soft as any that has been neglected or injured by careless treatment—that's all—you surely can have beautiful hair and lots of it if you will just try a little Danderine.

Mothers' Advice

The responsibility for a daughter's future largely rests with the mother. The right influence and the information which is of vital interest to the daughter imparted at the proper time has not only saved the life but insured the success of many a beautiful girl. When a girl's thoughts become sluggish with headaches, dizziness, or a disposition to sleep, pains in back or lower limbs and a desire for solitude, her mother should come to her aid and remember that Lydia E. Pinkham's Vegetable Compound made from native roots and herbs, will at this time prepare the system for the coming change and start this trying period in a young girl's life without pain or irregularities. Thousands of women residing in every part of the United States bear willing testimony to the wonderful virtues of this medicine, and what it has done for their daughters.

Brooklyn, N.Y.—"I cannot praise Lydia E. Pinkham's Vegetable Compound enough for what it has done for my daughter. She was 15 years of age, very sickly and pale and she had to stay home from school most of the time. She suffered agonies from backache and dizziness and was without appetite. For 3 months she was under the doctor's care and got no better, always complaining about her back and dizziness so I did not know what to do. I read in the papers about your wonderful medicine so I made up my mind to try it. She has taken five bottles of Lydia E. Pinkham's Vegetable Compound and doesn't complain any more with her back and side aching. She has gained in weight and feels much better. I recommend Lydia E. Pinkham's Vegetable Compound to all mothers and daughters."—Mrs. M. FIGORA, 406 Marcy Avenue, Brooklyn, N.Y.

WARRED ON PRISONERS

FRENCHMAN TELLS ABOUT GERMAN CRUELTY.

Another Story of the Terrible Atrocities That Were Practiced In the Camps of the Hun—French Soldiers Who Tried to Escape Lynched or Trampled on by Cruel Teuton Populace.

GERMAN appeals for food are looked upon with sinister distrust by men who have survived the horrors of the German prison camps. Hoping to counteract an incipient belief in German need, and to stem any possible rising tide of sympathy among his countrymen, Charles Tardieu, in Figaro, gives a first-hand account of the German spirit as he found it during his experience as a prisoner. He declares:

"It is difficult to imagine tortures that one has not endured. Men who for months have hurled their anguish against the triple barbed wire defences around the Boche's camp; men who day after day have rubbed elbows with Kultur, these are the men who realize the real meaning of the word humiliation, who have learned patience. When these men, given back to their mother country, read in French papers the sinister appeal of stomachs in distress from Austrian men of letters, the attempts of Prussian houses to renew friendly relations with our firms, the wily efforts of the hypocritical government of Ebert and Scheidemann to deceive French opinion as to the actual condition of German resources, shrug when they read that in certain parts of France there is a tendency toward generosity and credulity, they are overcome with sadness."

According to this writer the German spirit is composed wholly of hypocrisy, brutality, servility and insane conceit. He commments upon the ease with which he finds it possible to detest the Boches, and asserts that if the grievances of prisoners returning from Germany could be compiled the result would be an extraordinary psychological document.

"The attitude of German officers," he says, "is marked by the tranquil cynicism of a people sure of victory and already established in the enemy's country. 'Your attack was well planned,' a German captain said to me one day, with a supercilious air 'but it could not have succeeded and you will never succeed'."

When he was captured M. Tardieu's wallet and card case, his camera and everything else that seemed good booty were taken from him. The account proceeds:

"After a week of famine in a cell at the citadel of Laon, we were huddled into a fourth-class compartment, in which for three days and three nights we rolled toward the Dutch frontier. During these three days we had only one meal, consisting of a soup made of dirty water and black looking tapioca."

When the camp was finally reached the prisoners hoped to satisfy their hunger. Luxurious menus had been announced by those in command. But instead there were only more muddy soup, carrots that in France would have been fed to the pigs, a disgusting goulash and hunks of green bread in the last stages of decay.

The officers lost no opportunity to lose or steal their prisoners' baggage. The writer notes an instance:

"One day at inspection it was announced that our helmets were spoils of war and that we must give them up. Ten minutes later our helmets were smashed by our own men and the German lieutenant-colonel was having an attack of apoplexy.

"The next morning we read in the Cologne and Frankfort papers about a sale of French helmets taken at the front. The prices announced were exorbitant. The proceeds of the sale were to be devoted to the cigar fund for German soldiers in the trenches.

"We were told that as a punishment our packages would not be given to us. Only perishable articles were distributed and these we were obliged to pool. We were not permitted to receive food, medicine, tobacco or toilet objects. During this time the kitchen served us rations of sardines, tomatoes, beans, lentils, herrings, liver, all swimming in an unspeakable sauce.

"One may imagine that the attempts to escape were many. The men who were recaptured were at once thrown into cells, and the reports on their cases were purposely so long delayed that they were forced to endure bread and water for months, like criminals. Several escaped prisoners were lynched and trampled on by the populace.

"Punishments were showered upon us on the slightest pretext. We were deprived of our daily outing because we had howled and hooted in derision at a crowd of young people who passed our camp singing 'Deutschland, Deutschland uber Alles.' For many months we were deprived of light at night, of access to the courtyard without any other excuse than the famous 'reprisals.' From the beginning to the end the German Government made war on prisoners and with prisoners."

Sometimes Happens.

"Your mother looks much younger than she must be."

"Yes. That's the reason she kept me in kid's clothes till I was much older than I ought to have been."—Cleveland Leader.

Must Do So to Keep Market From Being Flooded, Says One Dealer.

CHICAGO, March 20. — All American manufacturers who rushed production on products that were not only essential to war, but useful in peace times, are confronted with one of the most critical situations the industrial world has been forced to face according to the statement of Chicago business men. The manufacturers declare they will be able to absorb the product if given time, but they admit that business has slumped and most of the manufacturers are running on a hand to mouth basis.

Manufacturers of army automobiles and trucks are the hardest hit, according to the reports received at Chicago. The quartermaster storage spaces in Chicago alone now holds more than 6,000 army trucks of from five to ten tons capacity. The government officials admit that they don't know what to do with the trucks, unless the manufacturers take back the large number of machines at cost prices. Automobile men in the city declared that everything will be done to keep the market steady, and to prevent the "bottom" being kicked out of the automobile market by the disposal of the machines. One dealer in motor cars said today:

"The automobile manufacturers have a clause in their contracts with the government that prohibits competition with their own products by allowing the government to throw the cars on the market. Every pleasure car and every truck will be bought back by the manufacturers."

Sinn Fein Chairman, His Identity Stated

J. K. FORAN, HOUSE OF COMMONS STAFF, PRESIDED AT MEETING.

OTTAWA, March 20. — J. K. Foran, of the House of Commons staff, was admitted by the Speaker to be the man who presided at the "Sinn Fein" meeting in Montreal on Feb. 9th. He has been on the staff since 1902, and his salary is $2800 per annum.

"As soon as I saw the newspaper accounts of the meetings," said the Speaker, "I expressed my strong disapproval of any officer in the employment of the House taking an active part in any meeting which could be considered as a political character, and directed that Mr. Foran should be at once ordered to resume his official duties. The matter will be considered at the first meeting of the Board of Internal Economy of the House."

A letter from Mr. Foran explaining the part that he took at the meeting, was also tabled.

Parliament is Likely to Sit Until Midsummer

OTTAWA, March 20.—With the debate on the address finally disposed of Parliament will now turn its attention to the general business of the session. Estimates for the fiscal year which commences April 1, will be tabled immediately Sir Thomas White, and the civil government votes covering cost of administering the Government service will be put through as quickly as possible.

The expectation is that railway matters will engage the attention of the House at a very early date and the Government's explanation of its policy in regard to the Grand Trunk Pacific and the Grand Trunk Railway may be heard before the close of the present week.

With the floor cleared for general action there is naturally some speculation as to the time it will take Parliament to dispose of business. The majority of members think that prorogation cannot be expected before July.

ALBANY, N.Y., March 20.—At the request of the Army and Navy and Civilian Board of Boxing Control, Senator Jas. J. Walker, of New York, introduced in the Legislature to-day, a bill designed to provide for the legalizing of boxing bouts. This is the third boxing bill that has been presented to the 1919 session.

Under the provisions of the measure there would be a State Athletic Commissioner and two deputies to supervise boxing. Twelve rounds would be permitted, with decisions rendered by a referee and two judges. Five-ounce gloves would be used. Each contestant would be subjected to an examination by a physician before entering the ring, the contestants would be over seventeen years old, and no boy under sixteen years would be admitted as a spectator.

The unique feature of the bill is in the provisions that all boxers, promoters, managers, timekeepers, judges, referees, trainers and handlers would be licensed by the Army and Navy and Civilian Board of Boxing Control [illegible] State. The licenses would be forfeited in the event of any offence being committed. The purpose of the licensing feature is to obtain as complete control over boxing as is exercised by the Jockey Club over racing.

The Senate Judicial Committee today reported out the Gibbs bill to legalize boxing.

U. S. TO LEASE CARIBBEAN ISLANDS FOR $40,000,000

PANAMA, March 21. — The Cartagena correspondent of the Panama Star and Herald, assedts that the United States is arranging for a ninety-nine year lease from Colombia of the island of San Adreas and New Providence, off the north coast of Colombia, near Colon.

The payment, it is asserted, will be forty million dollars. The island contains small cocoanut plantations, and but little agriculture is carried on. They are considered to have military value, as they are immediately off the Caribbean entrance to the Panama Canal.

Help Him to Help Himself

We owe the returned soldier every effort we can make towards securing steady employment for him.

Do not try to throw the burden entirely on employers. They have a grave responsibility, but only [illegible] every man, woman and child gives willing help can Canada ensure a fair day's pay for a good day's work for all her men.

How can YOU help? By investing in War-Savings Stamps.

How will THAT help? Canada must secure foreign purchasers for the products of her forests, farms, and factories. Many nations are anxious to buy our goods, but can only do so if Canada grants credit to them.

Lend your money to Canada so that Canada may re-lend to those who must buy on credit. The money is being raised by the sale of War-Savings Stamps, so that when you invest in a War-Savings Stamp you provide a day's pay for some returned soldier.

War-Savings Certificate with 10 W.S.S. affixed will be redeemed by the Dominion of Canada on January 1st, 1924, for $50.00, for at that date the W.S.S. are worth $5.00 each.

War-Savings Stamps cost $4.02 in March; $4.03 in April; $4.04 in May, and they may be purchased at any place displaying the Beaver-Triangle sign.

PRINCESS MARY GOES ABROAD

Makes Her First Trip Out of England.

THE SIGHTS OF FRANCE

Her Royal Highness Visited Hospitals and Marvelled at Work Done by Girls, Returning Home With a Greater Appreciation of Work Done by British Women In the Great War.

PRINCESS MARY is growing up—if she hasn't already "growed." She has just completed her first independent, self-conducted and unattended foreign tour. Now, they say, she is happily busy in telling her friends all about ten of the most interesting and exciting days of her life.

Her own private sitting room at the palace is a large, comfortable room, where she has brought together many of her girlhood treasures, collections of Copenhagen china, some charming pictures and drawings, photographs, and many other possessions of such interest and sympathetic value as every girl loves to gather in her own room.

Here to-day her latest treasure, souvenirs, have the place of honor. On a table in the centre of her room round a bouquet of pink chrysanthemums the princess has arranged the trophies she brought from France and the gifts made to her by the other girls she visited. She wears on her right wrist a little gold identity disc given her by V.A.D.'s in France and inscribed "Her Royal Highness Princess Mary, V.A.D." And of this she is proud indeed.

Inheriting from her mother a most extraordinary memory for details Princess Mary has every detail of her tour well in her memory. She has kept all her programs and the "official" itinerary and, having made her own notes on these, in neat pencil, there seems no item she is not sure of, and she goes over the whole tour again and again with the greatest enjoyment.

PRINCESS MARY.

The princess, attended by Lady Ampthill and Major R. Seymour, started on Wednesday, November 20, and arrived at Boulogne in time for tea at a Q.M.A.A.C. camp at Outrehove. With the desire to be punctual the princess was afraid she would be late owing to foggy Channel and was much relieved to get to the camp in good time.

The first night in France was spent in Boulogne; an early start was made next morning for Abbeville. Here the princess saw her first V.A.D. motor convoy, which, with the several she saw afterwards, impressed her very much. She thinks the work done by these girls is far beyond praise. They are out in all weathers and under all conditions. Often they are called up not once, but twice during the night, and, with no garagers, have to attend to their motors and go off to convoy wounded. She was greatly interested in the Q.M.A.A.C. camp at Abbeville, as it was here that the girls' old camp was bombed.

The new camp has been built further up the hill, and seeing the girls march to it was "just like watching soldiers march." Luncheon this day was at the Princess Victoria Club for Nurses and V.A.D.'s, followed by a long motor drive to Rouen and a visit to the Red Cross Hotel for the relatives of the wounded.

The old French battery used for this hotel, with its quaint rooms and outside staircase, interested the princess very much, as it is quite unlike anything she had ever seen in England.

Having slept at the Hotel de la Poste, Princess Mary determined to see a French city fairly early in the morning and spent shopping and sightseeing in Rouen, seeing St. Ouen and St. Maclou and the cathedral. There were many other things she wanted to do, but had to leave until a second visit on the 25th. All day long she visited camps for general service V.A.D. motor convoy and Q.M.A.A.C., where she thought the little sitting-rooms very comfortable and was much interested, not to say awed, by the work done by girls at the signal depot and telephone exchange. Then a visit to the Anglo-Belgian Hospital, largely staffed by V.A.D.'s under two trained nurses.

Trouville came the next day, the 23rd, with a visit to the Canadian Convalescent Home for Officers, followed by a luncheon at the V.A.D. club, notable for many things. After seeing more convalescent hospitals and camps and meeting Gen. Birchall, D.G.M.S., Gen. Hickson, Base Commandant D.D.M.S., and Dame Maud McCarthy, the princess went to the V.A.D. motor convoy for the night.

It was at Le Treport that Princess Mary took a ten minutes' ride in a whippet tank. A great experience. She was much interested here, too, in the Army Economy Depot, where men are taught about economy of all sorts. Then back to Boulogne to see the rest station at Camp No. 7, to see girls making survey maps—about 50,000 are being done of Germany alone—and some interesting visits to military hospitals with Dame Maud McCarthy, and a long time spent at the Red Cross Hospital No. 8.

A guard of honor of V.A.D.'s and W.A.A.C.'s saw the princess off on the boat home. She seemed as fresh when she left France as when she started on the tour, but this is the secret of splendid healthy youth.

A MOTHER'S STRENGTH

Mother, whose hands rock the cradle, often needs more than ordinary food to help maintain the blood-quality and strength and to assure adequate nourishment to the child. It is as unwise for the mother, as it is dangerous to the child, to place dependence upon alcoholic stimulation, for strength is not found in alcohol.

SCOTT'S EMULSION

of purest cod liver oil, absolutely free from harmful drugs, is mother's true friend, for it performs a two-fold duty. Scott's is tonic-nourishment, particularly fitted for the trying period of motherhood.

COREANS LACK WEAPONS FOR SERIOUS REBELLION

PEKING, March 4—Advices reaching this city from Corea indicate that the younger generation there has been stirred by Paris despatches dwelling upon the prominence given at Paris to the principle of self-determination of peoples. Japanese papers received here charge mission school students with participating in disturbances throughout Corea.

Reports are being circulated by the Coreans that the death of one-time Emperor Yi Heui, was due to suicide which was committed as a protest against the projected marriage of the heir of the Corean throne to a Japanese Princess. The impression prevails that lack of arms will prevent a serious insurrectionary movement.

Don't Spoil Your Hair By Washing It

When you wash your hair, be careful what you use. Don't use prepared shampoos or anything else that contains too much alkali, for this is very injurious, as it dries the scalp and makes the hair brittle.

The best thing to use is just plain mulsified cocoanut oil, for this is pure and entirely greaseless. It's very cheap, and beats anything else all to pieces. You can get this at any drug store, and a few ounces will last the whole family for months.

Simply moisten the hair with water and rub it in, about a teaspoonful is all that is required. It makes an abundance of rich, creamy lather, cleanses thoroughly, and rinses out easily. The hair dries quickly and evenly, and is soft, fluffy, wavy and easy to handle. Besides, it loosens and takes out every particle of dust, dirt and dandruff.

1. Verse 1-3. Joshua was old in body, but what signs of weakness in mind is there in the address?

2. Granting a healthy body, why would you say, or not, that the mind continues to grow in strength right up to death?

3. Where were the Israelites, and what was their condition, when we read of Joshua?

4. Verses 4-6. To what extent is the prosperity of a man, or a nation, due to keeping God's laws, and to undefeatable courage?

5. Verses 9-13. Why is it that a clean, right living nation is more than a match for an unrighteous nation, and, in the long run, bound to conquer?

6. What progress had Israel made up to this time in its conquest of the promised land?

7. What has been the chief cause of the decadence of ancient nations?

8. Verses 14-16. When a good old man, who has spent his life in good work, comes to face the setting sun what is his intellectual and spiritual attitude to the future life?

9. What personal, or reading acquaintance have you of any true Christian who has not always said that God has done all things well for him? (This is one of the questions which may be answered in writing by the members of the club.)

10. Chap. 24:1-13. What is the substance of this address of Joshua, at this meeting of the leading men of Israel?

11. Who were the ancestors of these Israelites, and where did they live?

12. What was the purpose of this historical review by Joshua?

13. Verses 14-15. Why did Joshua exhort them to serve God faithfully?

14. Verses 14-15. Is it practical or possible, or not; and why, for a man in this age of rush, and with all the temptations to which we are exposed, to serve God in a way to be pleasing to him?

15. Verses 19-22. Why is it right, or wrong, for God to command the impossible and then blame us for not doing it?

16. Verses 23-24. What are the things to-day which stand in the way of faithfully serving God?

17. Verses 21-24. Why is the often repeated exclamation right or wrong, "I want to be more faithful?"

18. Verses 25-28. What are the advantages of unfaithful people repenting, and renewing their covenant with God?

19. When a man makes a life covenant to serve God, should he, or not, and why, write it in a book?

Monster Crude Oil Pipe.

Rear-Admiral Sir Hugh Tothill, Fourth Sea Lord, recently opened the oil-fuel pipe line which the British Petroleum Executive, in co-operation with the Admiralty, have laid along the line of the Forth and Clyde Canal to supply oil fuel to the naval base at Rosyth. The line is 35 miles in length, and is stated to be the longest pipe line in Europe. Sixteen tanks, each of 8,000 tons capacity, have been erected near the pumping station at Old Kilpatrick, and there are two intermediate pumping stations before the oil is discharged into reservoirs at Grangemouth.

A Solution.

"Dear, oh dear! What will all those boys, who are so used to fighting, do now that we have peace?" asked the habitually worried woman. "Oh, I suppose they will come home and marry." "Aren't you thankful!"

Bolshevik Troops Forced to Retire

(Canadian Press.)

COPENHAGEN, March 20.—Bolshevik troops under pressure of Polish forces have been compelled to retire and evacuate Pinsk, one hundred miles east of Brest-Litovsk, according to a despatch from Warsaw.

At the Quilting Bee

What good times they had at the simple old-fashioned parties. The ladies gathered early to help their hostess sew; the gentlemen came later, and there was a little dancing and some delicious home-made refreshments which the gentlemen gallantly served with old-time courtliness. Ginger Punch was a great favorite at old-time parties. It is a cooling, delightful drink, just as refreshing after dancing as it was in the days when Grandmother made it. "Grandmother's Recipes", our new cook book, tells you just how to make Ginger Punch with ginger root, cracked ice and

Lantic
Old Fashioned Brown Sugar

There are many other good things in this book suitable for simple entertaining; little plain cakes for the afternoon tea party; a delicious caramel ice cream which takes no cream at all; even a few candies for the children (since children must have candy for their health's sake), and Grandmother's candies are both wholesome and economical.

Lantic Old-Fashioned Brown Sugar is made in three kinds known by your grocer as Lantic Light, Brilliant and Dark Yellow, but the Brilliant is more generally recommended for the dishes in the cook book.

If you do not regularly use brown sugar in home cooking, buy some to-day and try it. It costs a little less than granulated, it sweetens as well as flavors, and gives to many simple dishes a delightful flavor that makes them more acceptable than richer foods. Lantic Old-fashioned Brown Sugar is made by the makers of Lantic "FINE" granulated, the sugar with the red ball trademark. We send the cook book "Grandmother's Recipes", for a 2c. stamp to pay for return postage, or for a brown sugar recipe which you have tested and found to be good.

Heavy Fighting With Bolsheviki

(Canadian Press.)

LONDON, March 21.— Virtually all of the Ukraine is now in the hands of the Bolsheviki, according to advices reaching London today. In heavy fighting at Nikolaiev, north-east of Odessa, the Bolsheviki lost between five thousand and eight thousand men.

The Bolsheviki apparently are engaged in a strong effort to subdue Russian opposition in the Ukraine and to drive Allied forces from that region before spring. The Ukraine is the granary of Russia and Odessa before the war was the greatest grain shipping port in Russia. If the Bolsheviki can control the great agricultural region of Ukraine they might be able to relieve the serious food shortages in Moscow and the north. Aided by Ukrainian Bolsheviki forces the troops of Moscow government in the last three weeks have occupied Kiev and Zhitomir, in the centre of the Ukraine, and driven the peasant government of General Petlura from Kiev to Winnitza and thence to Proskuro, in Podolia, forty miles east of the border of Galicia. A Russian wireless message received in London Wednesday reported that non-Bolshevik forces, after being repulsed by Bolsheviki, were retiring on Odessa. In the centre of a front between Odessa and Riga, the Bolsheviki apparently have been giving ground.

NO—BUT SHE HAD

Boston Transcript:—"Did the postman leave any letters, Mary?"

"Nothing but a postcard, ma'am."

"Who is it from, Mary?"

"And do you think I'd read it, ma'am?" asked the girl, with an injured air.

"Perhaps not. But any one who send me a message on a post-card is either stupid or impertinent."

"You'll excuse me, ma'am," returned the girl loftily: "but that's a nice way to be talkin' about your own mother."

HOW'S YOUR BLOOD?

Pimples and Eruptions Mean Bad Blood

People who have impure or impoverished blood should be careful to take only a temperance remedy made of wild roots and barks such as Dr. Pierce's Golden Medical Discovery is and has been for nearly 50 years. Ingredients printed on wrapper.

The first day you start to take this reliable medicine, impure germs and accumulation begin to separate in the blood and are then expelled through the eliminative organs.

In place of the impurities, the arteries and veins gradually get fresh vitalized blood and the action of this good blood on the skin means that pimples, boils, carbuncles, eczema, rash, acne and all skin blemishes will disappear. Then you must remember that when the blood is right, the liver, stomach, bowels and kidneys become healthy, active and vigorous and you will have no more trouble with indigestion, backache, headache.

Get Dr. Pierce's Golden Medical Discovery today at any medicine dealers, in tablet or liquid form, or send 50c for trial package to Dr. Pierce's "Invalids" Hotel, Buffalo, N. Y.

Wroxeter, Ont.—"For over three years I suffered with stomach and liver trouble. I would faint up, gas would form on my stomach and cause me to be terribly distressed at times. I also broke out with ring worms. I doctored and took medicine but did not get any relief until a lady advised me to try Doctor Pierce's Golden Medical Discovery, which I did, and, also, the 'Pleasant Pellets,' and I am glad to say that these medicines so completely cured me that I have never had any return of these ailments."—Mrs. Florence Hodges, 4 Albert Street.

Tired, Overworked Mothers What You Need is Vinol

War conditions have made the demand upon a mother's time and energy unlimited. In their zeal to do all in their power for their loved ones, they continually overwork and are soon in a nervous, run-down condition. Vinol, the non-secret cod liver and iron tonic, will build you up and make you strong.

HERE IS PROOF

Whitman, Mass.

"I suffered from a nervous, run-down condition and lack of strength so it was hard for me to get around and do my work. After other medicines had failed to help me Vinol restored my health and strength and I heartily recommend it to anyone suffering from a nervous, run-down condition."—Mrs. R. M. Little.

Cleveland, Ohio.

"I keep house for my husband and myself and got into a weak, run-down condition, no strength, languid and no ambition. After doctoring for awhile and getting no better I tried Vinol and to my surprise it built me up and strengthened my whole system. It is certainly a good tonic."—Mrs. Wm. D. Dawson.

GRAIN MARKET

Yesterday the corn market opened weak, the options losing two to three points at the low for the day, but on some short covering at the decline the market sharply rallied, though the March option was still a cent behind at the close. May closed quite strong at 5.8c. over Wednesday's close, and July and September 1-4d. above. Oats came up on a sharp rally, influenced largely by the strength of barley. Cash quotations on all the coarse grains are higher.

Manitoba wheat—In store, Fort William; No. 1 northern, $2.24 1-2; No. 2 northern, $2.20 1-2; No. 3 northern, $2.17; No. 4 wheat, $2.11 1-2.

Manitoba barley, in store, Fort William, No. 3, C.W., $1.60; No. 4 C.W., 94 1-2c.; rejected, 89c.; feed, 88c.

Ontario wheat—No 1 winter $2.14 to $2.22; No. 2 winter, $2.11 to $2.19; No. 3 winter, $2.07 to $2.15; No. 1 spring, $2.09 to $2.17; No. 2 spring, $2.08 to $2.14; No. 3 spring, $2.02 to $2.10 f.o.b. shipping points, according to freight.

Ontario oats—No. 2, white, 65c. to 67c.; No. 3, 63c. to 65c., according to freight outside.

Barley—Malting, 92c. to 97c.

Peas—No. 2, $1.80, nominal, according to freight outside.

Buckwheat—No. 2, 85c. nominal.

Rye—No. 2, $1.39 to $1.42, nominal.

Manitoba flour, government standard, $10.75 to $11.00 Toronto.

Ontario Flour—Government standard, $9.55 to $9.75, Toronto-Montreal, $9.55 to $9.75, new bags.

Mill feed—Car lots, delivered, Montreal, shorts, $42.25; bran, $40.25; feed flour, not quoted; middlings, not quoted; good feed flour, per bag, $3.25 to $3.50.

Hay—Baled, track, Toronto, car lots, No. 1, $20 to $21; No. 2, mixed, $18 to $19 per ton; straw, car lots, $10.

CATTLE MARKET

Union Stock Yards—Receipts were 39 cars, with 448 cattle, 65 calves, 1,382 hogs, and 69 sheep and lambs.

The cattle market yesterday closed strong at the average advance for the week of 75c. for good to choice butcher seattle and steers and heifers of export quality. The tendency of the market is to ease down a little for anything medium and off quality. There is too large a proportion of the medium and poor warmed-up stuff being shipped in. For everything well up to the mark of good finished butcher, the present demand is decidedly ahead of the supply.

Lambs and sheep are firm.

Calves easier and lower.

Hogs are decidedly strong and 25c. higher, passing well over the $20 mark at $20.10 to $20.20 on the basis of fed and watered.

Choice heavy steers	$14.50 to $16.00
do butcher	12.00	14.00
do medium	11.00	11.50

Jury Disagrees Second Time As to the Guilt of Betty Inch

Six to Six Deadlock Cannot Be Broken and Men Are Dismissed —Will Ask Bail To-day.

NEW YORK, March 21.—For the second time within two months a jury in the Supreme Court failed to agree on a verdict in the case of Betty Inch, who since last Wednesday was on trial for attempting to extort $15 from Eugene P. Herrman, president of the Herrman Motor Truck Company. At the end of ten hours the jury were divided evenly on the question of the defendant's guilt. Betty was remanded to the Tombs Prison and at eleven o'clock this morning her counsel will apply for permission to obtain her release on bail.

Justice Davis did not appear in court, and William L. Penney, chief clerk, discharged the jury upon consent of Betty and Eugene F. McGee, who, with William G. Fallon, defended her. Alfred J. Talley, Chief Assistant District Attorney, when asked by Mr. Penney if he consented to the discharge of the jury replied that he had no choice. Justice Davis before leaving for his home, at six o'clock, authorized Mr. Penney to dismiss the jury upon agreement of defendant's counsel.

Henry M. Mayper, foreman, told reporters outside the court room that from the beginning the jury were six to six for conviction. During deliberation of the jury Betty remained in the room of the Sheriff in charge of Miss Belle Norton, who was appointed a Deputy Sheriff especially for the case. Sheriff David H. Knott was one of those who chatted with Betty while the jury argued.

Will Demand New Trial.

Accompanied by Miss Norton, Mrs. Inch entered the courtroom and stood outside the rail as Mr. Penney polled the jury. Mr. Mayper said the jury was unable to reach a verdict and felt that longer deliberation would not aid them in a determination of the case. It was then that Mr. Penney discharged the jury.

Mr. McGee said that a new trial for Mrs. Inch will be demanded. She insisted on another trial, he said. It was several minutes before Mr. McGee was able to induce her to consent to discharge of the jury. She pouted as she heard the announcement of Mr. Mayper, yet she smiled as the jury filed past her to the corridor. Few spectators were in court when the result was made known. A pretty young woman and several men were the only ones except court attendants, counsel in the case and reporters present.

Mr. McGee in the corridor asked Mr. Mayper if his brother, Alexander A. Mayper, was an Assistant District Attorney under Mr. Jerome. Mr. Mayper said he was. Mr. McGee declined to explain what prompted the question. Mr. Tolley would not comment on the likelihood of a new trial.

For more than an hour yesterday Justice Davis charged the jury. He devoted forty-five minutes in rehearsal of the testimony of witnesses of the prosecution. When there was no verdict by six o'clock Justice Davis announced that a recess would be taken for two hours, stating that if any agreement was not reached by nine o'clock he would discharge the jury.

Charge to Jury.

"A witness was called by the defence in this case who said she was May Hayes," Justice Davis said. "She stated that she had seen Eugene P. Herrman, the complaining witness, since last April. Mr. Herrman said he did not know her. If one testified falsely on that point you are entitled to disregard her testimony. It is immaterial if Mr. Herrman committed a crime in any relation he might have had with May Hayes, because under the law no person is allowed to threaten another person with exposure of a crime as a means to collect money.

"Mr. and Mrs. Herrman each testified that the voice which called them to the telephone at the Herrman home was the voice of the defendant in this case. The preliminary question for you to consider is if they told the truth. If you have seen to know anything outside the evidence it is your sworn duty to disregard it.

"You have heard all the evidence in this case. There is no evidence which has not been brought to your attention. This is not a private prosecution brought by Mr. Herrman. This is a criminal action brought by the people."

OUR DAILY SHORT STORY

BeYRIL

The Twins

By RALPH HAMILTON

(Copyright, 1918, Western Newspaper Union.)

Richard Ball was the happiest man in the world. Always chubby, rotund beaming with health and vitality, his laugh was the cheeriest; but now there had come a new element into his life, a double element, in fact, which made him proud, autocratic, almost unbearable in his effervescent, irrepressible joy. This had happened: One evening there was a ring at the door-bell. Richard had a man servant and a housekeeper. The former, with bulging eyes and bated breath, came plunging into the cozy, peaceful library, holding a basket.

"Babies—two babies!" he gasped and in his tremulous timidity let the basket fall with a mild thump.

"You brute!" shrieked portly, motherly Mrs. Doane, as two piping voices gave forth a mutual protest against such rough treatment. Then her arms delved down amid the fluffiness of blanket and counterpane to evolve two little cherubs—eyes wide open, faces plump and shining.

"Shall I notify the police?" questioned the man servant, but Richard was hopping about in a state of the most frantic excitement, arms swinging, face radiant, overwhelmed with so many vivid emotions that he did not take time to analyze any of them. "Police!" he shouted, "what for? They're mine, aren't they? Sent here, left here, given to me. Mrs. Doane, admirable woman that you are, we adopt those little mites. Get busy and give them a royal welcome."

It was days before the exultation over the incident subsided. Mrs. Doane insisted that some poor mother, unable to care for her precious ones, had simply selected the kindest-hearted man she could hear of to become their protector. They seemed sublimely content to crow, and chirp, and coo, and eat, and sleep and smile contentedly. At the office Richard strutted about with a new air of importance and dignity. He came home an hour earlier every afternoon. He began to look younger, act younger, feel younger, and acquired a vocabulary of baby language that would rival that of the fondest mother.

He named the two little girls Mary and Sarah, after his dead mother and a sister. He lavished upon them all that luxury could suggest. Many a widow and spinster began to evince prodigious interest in the little ones of his adoption, but Richard was absorbed in them solely, and the maneuvering tactics of these husband-hunters went for naught. Richard accredited himself the most favored being in the universe. He counted his environment ideal. He planned ahead for those "daughters" twenty years. He even made a will in their favor.

One evening, at dusk, as Richard ran up the steps of his home, he paused, to observe a feminine form peering in at one of the front windows. The intruder was veiled.

"Marsh," he said, "there is a suspiciously acting woman I have seen twice near the house. Child-stealer? abductor? who knows! Get out quietly, follow her and let me know what you learn."

Richard acted like a wild man when Marsh handed in his report two hours later. He had followed the woman to a respectable boarding house. She was forewoman in a big department store. He had a glimpse into her room. Over her mantel was a photograph of two little babies.

"Yours—ours," sententiously advised Marsh.

"The mother!" gasped Richard—it's come! My dream of life is to be cruelly annihilated." And two evenings later Mrs. Doane informed him that a lady wished to see him. His heart sank as he entered the parlor. One glance at a fair, girlish face told him that he confronted the mother of Mary and Sarah.

"Oh, sir!" pleaded Mrs. Edna Deane, a widow, "in a dark moment I abandoned my dear little ones. Now, once more on my feet, my heart yearns for them."

Up and down the room raged Richard. He was like a being distracted. Had he not rescued the children from homelessness? Had he not given them love, care, devotion, when all the world had forgotten them? He would enrich the mother, he would place his charges beyond the remotest risk of any future need, only do not rob him of that which was dearer to him than life!

And softly, full-hearted Edna Deane wept, as much out of sympathy for this strange, grand man as with warm, motherly longing.

"You see, sir," she sobbed, "I could live near you. Every day, if you choose, they shall pass a part of the time at your home; but, oh! I must have my little ones. You see that, do you not?"

"An idea!" he cried, as he noted the fair, earnest face, "a grand idea! Can't we—can't we own them together? I am older than you, but—"

He needed to say little more. No woman could resist the deep, tenderness that blossomed in that noble soul for the little ones, a sure presage that he would make a model husband.

Don't Torture Your Child!

TO MOTHERS! See your little one's terror at the very thought of a dose of castor oil, mineral oil, calomel or pills. Ugh!

Cascarets "work" better, safer, surer on the tender little liver, stomach and bowels, besides Cascarets taste like candy. Even bilious, constipated, sick kiddies coax for this harmless candy cathartic.

Each 10 cent box of Cascarets, the pleasant candy cathartic, contains directions and dosage for children aged one year old and upwards. When the little one's tongue turns white, breath feverish, stomach sour, there is nothing better to "work" the nasty bile, souring food and constipation poison from the child's system. Give Cascarets, then never worry.

Canadian Candy is wholesome

It produces real energy

ALL through the war the highest medical and food authorities were insistent in their recommendations to give the soldiers candy.

In Military Hospitals and Convalescent Homes candy was allowed to seriously wounded patients whose condition called for constant nourishment in a light, nutritious, easily-digested form.

As the war progressed, the demand for candy grew to enormous proportions. Soldiers and sailors alike found by experience that candy produced real energy, while stimulants gave only deceptive temporary strength.

This war experience is supported by scientific opinion, and some misconceptions are set right in the following extract from the Canadian Lancet:—

"Candy and Chocolate are nutritious, stimulating foods. There is not the least scientific foundation for the opinion that eating candy is injurious to the teeth. The tooth of sugar is much more likely to injure the teeth through impaired nutrition than even its excessive use is likely to do by any digestive troubles which might result from overuse.

"In like manner there is little foundation for the common opinion that the consumption of candy causes digestive troubles."

Candy brings sunshine into the lives of children. Children are fond of candy because their bodies require fuel which candy best produces. Not only eat it yourself but encourage your children to eat candy in rational quantities. It is good for them.

Admiral Saved Engineer.

A striking feature of the naval side of the war is the number of retired British admirals who have returned to the navy, bringing with them full vigor and the quick determination of the service.

On June 10 of the present year, when an explosion took place on a motor launch, Admiral James Startin, who held the rank of admiral, retired, immediately proceeded Longside and, learning that the engineer was below in the fiercely burning engine room, climbed down the hatch without the slightest hesitation, and unaided, recovered the engineer's body. For this brave deed King George has approved the award of the Albert medal to Admiral Startin.

Aviators in Italy.

"Sometimes at night after dinner, a little music is indulged in as a relaxation. Of course the Italians shine there. Many a pilot or chauffeur in overalls is humming selections from grand opera. Some of the American boys also are good musicians. One especially was a splendid pianist, and would rattle away for an hour at a time selections from Schubert or Mendelssohn's "Melody in F," to what seemed almost a sacrilege, that is, play it in ragtime for a change."

Campaigning Against Blindness.

Because of the campaign against preventible blindness it is predicted that fifty years from now very few blind persons will be seen on the streets.

Uncle Fogy's Philosophy.

An optimist will sell himself a gold brick, while a pessimist will not accept one free from a stranger.

Most families can afford to be without the wonderful household necessities that no family can afford to be without.

We are all, in a way, free agents. When we cannot be happy, we have our choice of at least fifty-seven varieties of ways of being unhappy.—Judge.

ACIDS IN STOMACH CAUSE INDIGESTION

Medical authorities state that nearly nine-tenths of the cases of stomach trouble, indigestion, sourness, burning, gas, bloating, nausea, etc., are due to an excess of hydrochloric acid in the stomach and not as some believe to a lack of digestive juices. The delicate stomach lining is irritated, digestion is delayed and food sours, causing the disagreeable symptoms which every stomach sufferer knows so well.

Artificial digestents are not needed in such cases and may do real harm. Try laying aside all digestive aids and instead get from any druggist a few ounces of Bisurated Magnesia and take a teaspoonful in a quarter glass of water right after eating. This sweetens the stomach, prevents the formation of excess acids and there is no sourness, gas or pain. Bisurated Magnesia (in powder or tablet form—never use soda or milk) is harmless to the stomach, inexpensive to take and is the most efficient form of magnesia for stomach purposes. It is used by thousands of people who enjoy their meals with no more fear of indigestion.

All Fat People Should Know This

The world owes a debt of gratitude to the author of the now famous Marmola Prescription, and is still more indebted for the production of this harmless, effective obesity remedy to tablet form. Marmola Prescription Tablets can now be obtained at all drug stores, or by writing direct to Marmola Co., 864 Woodward Ave., Detroit, Mich., and their reasonable price (75 cents for a large case) leaves no excuse for dieting or violent exercise for the reduction of the overfat body to normal proportions.

Not a Bite of Breakfast Until You Drink Water

Says a glass of hot water and phosphate prevents illness and keeps us fit.

Just as coal, when it burns, leaves behind a certain amount of incombustible material in the form of ashes, so the food and drink taken day after day leaves in the alimentary canal a certain amount of indigestible material, which if not completely eliminated from the system each day, becomes food for the millions of bile-making germs which infest the bowels. From this mass of left-over waste, toxins and ptomaine-like poisons are formed and sucked into the blood.

Men and women who don't feel healthy and right must begin to take inside baths. Before eating breakfast each morning drink a glass of real hot water with a teaspoonful of limestone phosphate in it to wash out of the thirty feet of bowels the previous day's accumulation of poisons and toxins and to keep the entire alimentary canal clean, pure and fresh.

Those who are subject to sick headache, colds, biliousness, constipation, others who wake up with bad taste, foul breath, backache, rheumatic stiffness, or have a sour, gassy stomach after meals, are urged to get a pound of limestone phosphate at the drug store, and begin practicing internal sanitation. It will cost very little, but is sufficient to make anyone an enthusiast on the subject.

Remember that inside cleanliness is more important than outside cleanliness, because the skin pores do not absorb impurities into the blood, causing ill health, while the bowel pores do. Just as soap and hot water, assisted by sweating and exercise thru the pores, gets all the stomach, liver, kidneys and bowels.

Specialist Gives Simple Recipe That Works Fine.

Thousands of people suffer from baldness and falling hair who having tried nearly every advertised hair tonic and hair-grower without results, have resigned themselves to baldness and its attendant discomforts. Yet their case is not hopeless; the following simple home prescription has made hair grow after years of baldness, and also is unequalled for restoring gray hair to its original colour, stopping hair from falling out, and destroying the dandruff germ. It will not make the hair greasy, and can be put up by any druggist: Bay Rum, 6 ounces; Lavoris de Compound 2 ounces, Menthol Crystals, one half drachm. If you wish it perfumed add 1 drachm of your favourite perfume. This preparation is highly recommended by physicians and specialists and is absolutely harmless, as it contains none of the poisonous wood alcohol so frequently found in hair tonics. Ladies using this preparation should be careful not to get it on the face or where hair is not desired.

Great Britain is Willing to Divide Hun Battleships But Will Sink Own Portion

Use of Any of the Surrendered Fleet as Fighting Craft is Impractical Unless Shells are Re-manufactured for German Guns.

LACK CARGO SPACE

(United Press.)

LONDON, March 21.—The storm of indignation from the Italian and French press at the suggestion of the British Admiralty that interned German warships should be sunk is not disturbing the British.

If the Italians and French will not agree to this proposal, Great Britain is willing to divide the ships, but will sink its own portion, the United Press learned authoritatively to-day. Utilization of the ships has been thoroughly considered by the British. According to an official of the Admiralty this was the conclusion.

"Use of any of the surrendered fleet as fighting craft is impractical, unless special shells are manufactured for German guns. It does not tend toward efficiency to employ two entirely different types of ammunition.

Cost Prohibitive.

"The cost would be prohibitive. The construction of German warship is entirely different from that of Allied craft, and special means would have to be provided for their maintenance, equipment and repair. Their use as merchant vessels is impractical owing to lack of cargo space.

"We are not worrying about objection to the proposal that the German warships be sunk," the United Press was informed. "Most of those making objections are ignorant of ships. If the French or Italians really want a portion of the German fleet they can have it as far as we are concerned, but I don't see how it will do them any good. The British intend to sink their portion if the ships are divided, after parts, such as pumps, copper and brass fixtures and engines are removed. Then, practically stripped of the bare armour, they will be towed—probably to some part of the Atlantic off Ireland— and sunk by opening their seacocks.

Cheapened Purchase.

"The question of scrapping the ships and using their armour to make farm implements or anything else is impractical. It would mean placing each ship in dry dock at a rental of at least $2,500 a day, and the payment of high wages to skilled workmen. It would be cheaper to buy the raw steel and melt it. With the melting of armour plates would be difficult as it would necessitate separation of chemicals used for hardening from the steel.

"Whoever hopes to get any of these ships will have a white elephant on their hands."

German Austria Joins Hun Republic

Germans Are Somewhat Dubious of Allies' Answer.

(Special to The Examiner.)

COPENHAGEN, March 21. — The German National Assembly has voted in favour of incorporating German Austria in Germany it was announced in a Weimar despatch to-day. The latest reports from Vienna stated the bill for the union of the two countries had passed its third reading.

The reported action of the National Assembly has created a serious situation, as despatches from Paris agree the Allies are unanimously opposed to the proposed union. Some advices have indicated that the Germans will even be asked to refute the union when they sign the preliminary peace treaty.

PEACE TREATY NEARLY READY

(United Press.)

LONDON, March 21.—The Paris correspondent of a news agency to-day quoted Colonel House as follows: "The Peace Treaty, including the League of Nations clauses, will be ready March 29. The Germans should be in Versailles within three weeks."

THE ALLAN PARK RECITAL TO BE GIVEN ON MONDAY

Excellent Programme has Been Provided for the Occasion—A Few of the Numbers.

The programme to be presented at the above recital by Capt. and Mrs. Maurice Park and Mr. John Allan in St. Paul's Church on Monday evening is an excellent one. It will include, by request, the repetition of Bishop's classic, "Lo! mee Discourse," and Moore's tender ballad "The last rose of Summer" by Mrs. Park, who will also sing that wonderfully dramatic song by Mary Turner Salter, "The cry of Rachel." This solo depicts in a most realistic way the intense sorrow of a broken hearted mother bereft of her child, its pathetic passages combined with its passionate outbursts make it as a powerful composition. Capt. Park will sing as one of his numbers that fine tenor solo, from Hiawatha's wedding feast "Onaway, Awake," acknowledged by the leading singers of the day to be one of the most beautiful tenor solos ever written. Other of his numbers include Schneider's "When the dew is falling," and Geehl's "All the roses in June," and he will also sing duetts along with Mrs. Park. Mr. Allan will contribute two organ numbers Haydn's "Military Symphony," and a dainty offering of Strelerski's "Tristesse," and will also be accompanist for all the numbers. The Recital will start promptly at 8:15. Admission by collection, taken up during the intermission.

Allies Lose Prestige In Russian Siberia

Russian Press Points to Failure to Restore Order and Good Government.

(W. E. Playfair, Canadian Press Correspondent.)

VLADIVOSTOCK, March 21.— The Russian press comment on the League of Nations is satirical, pointing to the results of the Allied occupation of Siberia as an object lesson. The Allies, it is pointed out had decided to restore order and good government to Russia and send detachments of troops with no good results owing to the impossibility of an agreement over methods to be followed. The real result is the loss of Allied prestige in Russia. A grave instance is the transportation problem, as yet unsolved owing to the difficulties of Allied agreements, and in the meantime the railway situation has grown worse weekly. The situation in the country is generally worse than last autumn and the Bolsheviki sentiment apparently is growing in Siberia.

Marshal Foch Asks For Rhine as Frontier

Rhine Must be French Frontier Says Allied General Claims—Has Entire Faith in His Soldiers.

(Special to The Examiner.)

PARIS, March 21.— "The Rhine is our only good line of defence. I do not demand annexation, but if we do not secure that military frontier we will have fought in vain," is the statement made by Marshal Foch, quoted in an interview printed in the "Matin" to-day. In discussing the last days of the war the Marshal says: "It was wonderful the soldiers who gave us the victory. My only merit was to have had faith and never to have despaired. We signed the armistice in spite of the certainty of crushing the German armies, to avoid killing one more man and because it gave us everything necessary for complete victory."

"THE TRIPLE ALLIANCE"

Great Britain is Facing the Greatest Crisis in its History—A Decision To-night.

FACE STARVATION

(By Arthur E. Mann.)

LONDON, March 21. — Great Britain is facing the greatest labor crisis in all its history. It will culminate to-night when the "triple alliance," miners, railwaymen and transport workers, meet to decide whether a general strike shall be called to-morrow.

While the government has offered some concessions to the railwaymen and miners, the labor leaders declare it must yield to every demand of the "triple alliance" to avert an industrial catastrophe.

Both sides refuse to make an official statement but a leader of the railwaymen made the following declaration to the United Press:

"We are prepared for the worst. If we strike we will win. If we win the government will fall and will be replaced by a labor ministry. The government realizes the seriousness of a general strike. It will mean that thousands of people in the great industrial districts will face starvation, as the government would be unable to supply enough through trains to insure the distribution of sufficient food. Many laborites believe Premier Lloyd George is fully aware of the danger of the situation and personally is inclined to sympathise with the workers, but they doubt that he has the support of the whole government. Meanwhile committees of the miners, railwaymen and transport workers to-day were preparing reports to be submitted to a joint conference of their leaders called for six p.m.

GOVERNMENT PROPOSED.

An eleventh hour proposal made by the government to the railwaymen last night includes a forty-eight hour week and overtime pay at the rate of time and a quarter for Sundays, time and a half for night work, and a £1 bonus for night. The present wage scale would continue for the balance of the year.

Government pointed out that even these concessions — which are far short of the workers' demands — would necessitate a general rate increase. Nationalization of railways was not mentioned in the government's offer. "It is a new and modified offer but I am unable to predict what the verdict of the railwaymen's delegates will be," said J. H. Thomas, leader of the railway employees. "The outlook is still difficult."

The railwaymen held a brief meeting last night but adjourned until to-day without taking any action. The status is uncertain, if they should resolve to continue negotiations on the basis of the government's latest proposition owing to the fact that they are bound to cooperate with the other members of the "triple alliance," no matter what individual decision they might reach.

Three reports were submitted yesterday by a special parliamentary committee which investigated the mining situation. They were made public in the House of Commons last night by Andrew Bonar Law, spokesman of the government.

THE QUESTION OF REPARATION AND HUN BOUNDARIES

Supreme War Council Will Deal With Important Matters This Afternoon.

By William Philip Simms.
(United Press.)

PARIS, March 21.— Recommendations by neutrals were believed today to have greatly clarified the League of Nations situation, increasing the possibility of reaching a complete agreement on the revised covenant by to-morrow. The most important suggestions made at yesterday's conference with neutral representatives was that of the Swiss delegates who submitted a memorandum that is expected to eliminate objection in certain American quarters to the non-inclusion of the Munroe Doctrine. The Swiss urged continued recognition of the declaration of 1815, whereby the great Powers guarantee the neutrality and inviolability of Switzerland from foreign influence in the general interest of the politics of the whole of Europe.

"Monroe Doctrine."

This proposal is regarded in America as virtually a "Monroe Doctrine," paving the way for recognition under the League of Nations of the Doctrine which proclaims the inviolability of the Americas from foreign influence, in the general interest of the politics of the whole of the western continents. It had not been fully determined to-day whether a plenary session will be called for to-morrow to open the debate on the League constitution, but the feeling prevailed that matters had progressed to the extent where such a meeting is possible. The Supreme War Council meeting this afternoon was expected to take up further the question of reparation and German boundaries.

Peterboro Bread Co. Makes Statement Re Theatre Programmes

Explanation Clearly Shows That the Company Was Unaware of Non-Union Printing Shop—Had Made No Change.

In connection with the items appearing in the daily press of the city relating to the printing of the Opera House programmes by a non-union printing establishment, the following statement of the facts is handed out by the manufacturers of Mother's Bread on the subject:

The Peterboro Bread Company was canvassed by the Manager of the Grand Opera House to supply the daily programmes for the theatre in exchange for the privilege of the programme carrying the advertisement of the Bread Company. The deal was closed, and as the manager of the Bread Company was to be out of the city the matter of getting the printing done was left in the hands of the Opera House manager, who handed it over to the printer who has been supplying the programmes to the Opera House for the past two years, and neither the Opera House Manager nor the manager of the Peterboro Bread Company were aware as to whether the office was a union office or not, being new comers to the city.

In addition to this the Peterboro Bread Company has required considerable printing since coming to Peterboro and every bit of it has been done in the city, and at a union office. They buy everything they require right in the city — flour, sugar, salt, shortening, and everything necessary to the manufacture of their products. The union label and Peterboro dealers have always been the first consideration of the manufacturers of Mother's Bread.

The programmes for the week were printed at the one time; consequently those for Friday and Saturday have been delivered, but commencing Monday they will be furnished by a union office.

WATCHING GERMANY

Paderewski Says Germany Has Not Yet Acknowledged Defeat on the Eastern Front.

WORLD DOMINATION

(United Press Despatch)

WARSAW, March 21.—Germany will dominate the east, economically and politically and thus prepare herself for another assault on the world's peace, unless strengthened to resist this penetration, Premier Paderewski declared in an interview today. He said that Germany has not yet acknowledged defeat on the eastern front. "The importance to the peace of Europe of a strong, united Poland cannot be exaggerated," said Paderewiski. Germany made war not for honor or ideals but for markets and raw materials. The war has not yet been won. Germany is ready to acknowledge herself beaten on the west, but not on the east.

Reorganizing Russia.

"The same men who organized the present war count on reorganizing Russia in their own interests. If they do, they will have an endless supply of labor and raw materials. Besides wheat, they will have splendid cotton from Turkestan, oil, tremendous lumber supplies and coal and iron deposits from Russia, to say nothing of gold, platinum and other precious metals. With these Germany would inevitably stamp her dominion on the whole world. "Think of the effect on the splendid body of America's highly paid labor if Germany trained and directed the cheap labor of Russia and China. No one could compete with such cheap production. What stands in Germany's way? Not France or England. They are too far away. Germany is at the gates of Russia and once let her combine with Bolsheviki and reorganize Russia—and she will have leisure to do in peace time—and she will dominate the world. A strong Poland alone can block this plan.

Protect Civilization.

"From time immemorial it has been the task of Poland to protect civilization from hordes of Asia. If these hordes could be organized into an industrial machine they would crush democratic civilization. This Germany would do by breaking western peoples' standard of living. For the task we need a free nation to cope with German influences. We must have Danzig, for without it our commerce is always at mercy of Germany. From Danzig to Posen the majority of population is Polish. The country is a veritable garden, Upper Hesse and Silesia are even more Polish than Posen. They will constitute centres of our greatest iron industry. It is a pity Czecho-Slovaks have attempted to deprive us of Teschen region, which is inhabitated by a great majority of Poles. In eastern Galicia there is a majority of Ruthenians. The distinction between them and the Poles is not racial, but solely a matter of religion and language. Patriotism is deeply rooted in Polish people and will cement our nation in a strong barrier against Bolshevism on one hand and Pan-Germanism on the other. If we receive from Peace Conference those districts which will give us real independence, nationality, industrially and commercially."

Refuse to Operate Surrendered Ships

German Sailors Will Not Take Ships to Allies—Agreement Reached Between German and Allied Food Commission.

(Special to The Examiner.)

BERLIN, March 21.— The German steamers "Burgermeister," "Von Melle" and "Burgermeister Schroeder," which were scheduled to sail on March 18, in accordance with the agreement reached at Brussels between the German and Inter-Allied Food Commissions, have been prevented from leaving Hamburg owing to the resolution passed by the seamen there, refusing to operate ships demanded by Entente nations.

FRANK JENNE Says:

"Not since the curse of public ownership and operation of railways has been wished on the country have we had such a delightful counter in Peterborough," said one of the bright and chatty customers who call regularly every season at the Semi-ready store.

"He was quite right. Public and municipal operation is a fizzle in Canada, a most expensive wheeze," said Frank L. Jenne. "Freight rates and taxes have advanced to such an extent that I know we will have to double our sales of Semi-ready suits this season if we would maintain the same label price in the pocket.

"Now they talk of increasing express rates on our quick made-to-measure service—just because, under public ownership and operation expenses have doubled and service has been halved. Still Canada can blunder along despite the handicaps of wasteful government and freak legislation."

Race Between Peace, Plunder and Poverty

The Next Few Weeks are Expected to Decide the Result—Condition of Unrest Sweeps Over Central Europe.

GOVERNMENTS DUE TO FALL

By Fred S. Ferguson.
(United Press.)

PARIS, March 21.— The race between peace, plunder and poverty is now on. With the advent of spring the question of whether peace stability and reconstruction are to prevail during the coming months or whether Central Europe at least, will be convulsed in a sanguinary struggle, will soon be answered.

Bolshevikist troops are known to be concentrated on the Roumanian frontier. Others are facing the Poles, and by infiltration striking at the roots of that newly formed government. The Roumanians say they have definite information that the Bolsheviki intends to strike as soon the weather becomes favourable. The Poles are now involved in constant isolated struggles and it is believed to be only a matter if time until the full storm breaks over Roumania and Poland. Owing to the shortage of raw materials and consequent lack of employment, it is said to be a question whether the present Czecho-Slovak government survives.

Sooner or later reports from various sources indicate the Ebert government in Germany is likely to fall. Whether it is before or after peace is signed probably is merely a matter of chance. The present government is not willing to make a clean breast of Germany's responsibility for war and accept the treaty as presented. It is predicted the Radicals will overthrow it. On the other hand if the government signs a drastic treaty without protest there may be the same result.

Economic experts and leaders declare a chance for the people to get back to work and overcome habits of [illegible] will see the best solution for the present unrest. The situation has set every peace committee here working on practically a day and night schedule. When the Allies insist that Germans allow Polish troops who have fought in France to return to Poland through Danzig it means they are insisting not only upon aiding Poland, but upon saving Germany from the effects of the Bolshevist boomerang launched by the German militarists.

It is a close race. The next few weeks are expected to tell the result.

Germans May Refuse to Sign

All Safeguards Will Be Taken by the Allied Nations.

By Lowell Mellett.
(United Press.)

PARIS, March 21.—British officials are considering the possibility that Germany may refuse to accept the terms of the preliminary treaty, it was learned from authoritative sources to-day. They believe there is a real danger that the enemy will throw up their hands and say, "Do what you like."

"What peace delegates are planning to do in such a contingency could not be ascertained. It was understood, however, that "all safeguards will be taken."

Presentation to Miss Violet Gere

Recipient Leaves To-day for St. Catharines.

The girls of the Junior Fourth class of the Queen Mary School met at the home of Miss Norma Ingram 304 Pearl avenue to bid farewell to their school mate, Miss Violet Gere of John street, who is leaving to-day for St. Catharines, where she will reside in the future. She was presented with a tray and four pieces of Ivory The following address was read by Miss Gweneth Hall, after which a pleasant evening was spent in music and games.

The Address.

Peterboro, March 20th., 1919

Dear Violet,—We girls, thought that the close and happy relationship existing between us as pupils of Queen Mary School should still continue.

It is with feelings of sorrow that we learn you are about to break the band that has bound us together. Since childhood you have entered heartily into all our joys and we feel that in parting with you we are losing a very dear friend indeed.

The friendship between us, we hope will prove an inspiration to strive after better things in the days that are to come, and in order that we may occupy a small space in your affection and esteem we ask you to accept this small token of friendship, so that when you are in your new school among new friends you may still cherish the memory of your school mates in Peterborough, and remember the many happy days spent together in Queen Mary School.

In conclusion let us express the hope that your course through life may be full of joy and at life's close may it set as the morning star, which goeth not down behind the darkened west, but melts away in the brightness of Heaven.

Wishing you the best of good luck in your new home and among your new friends.

Raid by the Sinn Feiners

Soldiers Overpowered and Eighty Rifles Seized.

(Canadian Press.)

DUBLIN, March 21.— The biggest raid by Sinn Feiners to secure arms which has as yet been recorded took place yesterday morning at an airdrome near Fairy Santry, six miles from here, when Sinn Feiners, numbering nearly forty, overpowered the soldiers on guard and seized eighty service rifles. There were only three sentinels on duty and eight soldiers were resting in a guard hut. They were bound and gagged and were tied to beams in the hut. The military motor cars at the airdrome were disabled to prevent pursuit and the raiders made their escape.

Arthur Field of Old 2nd Battalion Home From Germany

Was Captured on April 24th, 1915, and Suffered a Long Imprisonment—Enlisted From This City.

One of the few survivors of the Peterboro detachment of the 1st Canadian contingent is in the city to-day in the person of Sergeant Arthur F. Field. While in the city he will be the guest of Mr. F. D. Kerr. Sergt. Field left Peterboro in 1914 with Major J. W. Bennett and his company and on the twenty-fourth of April nineteen hundred and fifteen during the second battle of Ypres, he was taken prisoner by the Germans. Sergt. Field was in the charge in which Major Bennett lost his life and for two days following lay on the battlefield wounded until he was picked up by the enemy. His experience from the time he entered the German prison Camp, until he was exchanged on April 30th, 1918, was a trying one. Sergt. Field found the Prussians were no exception when it came to a question of cruelty and harsh treatment. The Saxons and Rhinelanders were equally bad and very little distinction could be made between any of them. Only fear of the prospect of gain will impress the average German. They are materialists and will do anything to achieve their purpose even at the sacrifice of life, Sergt. Field like many other non-commissioned officers refused to work when ordered to by the Germans knowing that it was contrary to international law. After suffering much hardship as a result of this refusal he was finally made to work at the point of the bayonet until the neutral harbour [illegible] intervened some months later. He was then interned in a prison camp with over five hundred other men and compelled to endure all kinds of hardship in their restricted camp area. The camp was not big enough to enable the men to walk around and keep in good health. To counteract this several organizations were formed such a debating society, a theatrical company and many others in which Sergt. Field took prominent part. This went on for several months until finally [illegible] was exchanged.

"Peterborough Presents Possibilities Unsurpassed."

FRIDAY, MARCH 21ST, 1919.

CANADA'S BIG PROGRAMME.

The tabling of the estimates in the House of Commons gives the people of Canada an opportunity to realize the huge task that lies before this country. The estimated expenditure for the coming year reaches the unprecedented total of $437,617,071.25. The figure for the present year was $290,868,230.31, which means that an increased revenue of practically 150 millions has to be found to pay the increased interest and sinking fund of $68,737,041.80 over this year on the public debt, $13,906,071.58 additional for pensions, an extra $20,100,000 for soldiers' land settlement, $92,783,420 for repatriation work, an additional amount of $23,201,367.47 to be spent on capital railway expenditure and $20,855,000 additional for capital expenditure in the marine department of public works.

Of the greatest interest to Peterborough people in the estimates are the grant of $1,000,000 for construction and betterments to the Trent Canal and $40,000 towards the construction of the Hunter street bridge.

The bringing down of the Budget will be awaited with more than usual interest. The programme of expenditures is so large that the people of Canada will show more curiosity than is customary in the manner in which this heavy expenditure is to be met.

WHERE ARE THE DECORATIONS?

The letter of "Looker-on" which appeared in last evening's Examiner, and which referred to the question of a reception for Peterboro's returned soldiers, contained a suggestion that the city authorities, and the citizens along the business streets of Peterboro, might do well to adopt. The writer points out that the city should be decorated during the next two or three months, so that the boys as they come back will realize that their fellow citizens appreciate what they have gone through and are grateful for what they have done. The Examiner is very glad to endorse this suggestion. It is manifestly impossible to tender anything like an adequate reception to the boys as they come home. The information as to the arrival of the troops is so inadequate that little time is given for preparing a proper welcome and in many cases the soldiers reach the city unheralded by any advance notices. In the case of those who had to go through the discharge depot at Kingston, it is possible to get some advance information, but concerning the men who are returning with their own units, and who are discharged at the demobilization centre of the battalion to which they belong, it is almost impossible to secure any definite information. Some of them take the first train for home; others may wait a day or two to visit friends, or stop over at some other point on the way home, so that it is difficult for the local authorities to make any plans for a reception. Mayor Duncan has been most faithful in his duty in regard to receiving the men as they come back and has invariably been at the station when he knew that any soldiers were to arrive. He has not found it possible to meet them all, for, try as they may, the city officials are not always able to secure the necessary notice in time to act.

There is all the more reason then for the adoption of "Looker-on's" plan of decorating the city. George street and Charlotte street should be gay with flags and bunting for the next couple of months, and there cannot be too many "Welcome Home" signs in sight. The city might arrange to have special welcome signs erected at each of the stations and illuminated, so that no matter what hour of the day or night a returned soldier steps off the train the first thing that would greet his eye would be an intimation that the people of Peterboro were glad to see him and proud of what he had done in the fight for democracy.

In Toronto, Montreal and other cities such signs were erected some time ago and while the local "Welcome" notices need not be on such a pretentious scale as those in the bigger centres, yet they should be sufficient to indicate to the man from over there that his sufferings and achievements on behalf of the Empire, have not been forgotten.

The city's part should be to supply these signs while the citizens along the principal streets should consider it a pleasant duty to decorate their premises. Let the boys see that they have come home to a city that realizes that her citizen soldiers played a fine and honorable part in the Great War.

A SUDDEN CHANGE.

The days of the Union government would seem to be numbered. The menace of disruption over the tariff question threatens to fall at any time upon the heads of the administration, the huge expenditures laid down in the estimates has almost stunned the government members and as a last straw our local contemporary, which has supported the government through thick and thin and has resented any criticism made by other journals, no matter how well intentioned or just it might have been, comes out with a broadside against the administration of military affairs overseas, based on Col. Pratt's strongly worded charges and Col. Price's indictment of Argyle House.

Says the Review:

It is to be hoped that a rigorous investigation into the cause of the riots, in which five were killed and many injured, will be proceeded with, and the results made public. Canadians were not sent overseas to fall victims to incompetent officials bunglers at a time when their relatives were rejoicing in their escape from the perils of active operations at the front and looking for their safe return from a quiet, peaceful British camp. There are enough hearts saddened in Canada to-day by the loss of loved ones who have laid down their lives on the field of battle, without the death roll being augmented by uncalled-for conditions resulting from rank incompetency on the part of men in authority.

The charges made by a man like Col. Pratt, gallant soldier and member of Parliament, just home from the land in which the Rhyl tragedy occurred, cannot go unheeded. Canada expected every one of her soldiers to do their duty abroad, and these citizen soldiers expect Canada to do its duty by them. So let us see to it that any cause for complaint of unendurable conditions existing by reason of incompetency on the part of military authorities is promptly removed."

A few days ago the Review was inclined to grow sarcastic because the Examiner remarked that an investigation in Sir Sam Hughes' charges against Sir Arthur Currie should be held in order that the name of the commander-in-chief of the Canadian forces might be cleared. The Examiner was always asking for investigations our contemporary jeered. And here we have the Hunter street organ talking about "incompetent official bunglers," "rank incompetency," and vigorously calling upon the authorities for an inquiry into the Rhyl camp riots. This change in policy is welcome if somewhat bewildering in its suddenness.

Canadian Troops On "Minneoplida"

One Thousand Ontario Soldiers Aboard—Canadians Arrive In England From France.

(Special to The Examiner.)

LONDON, March 21.—The Seventh, Fifth, Thirteenth and Fifteenth Battalions have arrived in England on their way home to Canada. The transport 'Minneoplida' saided from Liverpool Wednesday with twenty-five hundred troops aboard, mostly from Kinmel Camp. (More than one thousand are for Ontario.

Heart Palpitated

Could Count Every Beat

When the heart begins to palpitate, it will beat fast for several seconds, then slow, then start to flutter, and a feeling of utter depression will come over your whole system, accompanied by weak, fainting and dizzy spells.

When the heart gets into this condition, you become weak, worn and miserable, and are unable to attend to either social, business or household duties.

Milburn's Heart and Nerve Pills will give prompt and permanent relief to all sufferers from any heart weakness or nerve derangements.

Mrs. Walter Groives, Copley, Ont., writes:—"I had been run down, and doctors told me I was anaemic, but did not help me with their medicines. I could not sleep nights, my heart palpitated so, and I could count every beat.

I used to have such dizzy spells I would have to go to bed. I was not able to do any work for eight months. A cousin of mine had taken Milburn's Heart and Nerve Pills and told me what they had done for her. I took eight boxes of them, and now I am able to help every day with the work. I am so thankful to tell others what they have done for me, so that they may try this great and wonderful remedy. I hope this may prove good to some one who is suffering the way I did."

Milburn's Heart and Nerve Pills are 50c. a box at all dealers, or mailed direct on receipt of price by The T. Milburn Co., Limited, Toronto, Ont.

Italians Demand Fiume As Soon As Peace Settles

(Special to The Examiner.)

PARIS, March 21.—The Italian delegation to the Peace Conference has unanimously decided to withdraw from the conference unless Fiume is assigned to Italy contemporaneously with the conclusion of peace.

The decision of the Italian delegates as reported from Paris, apparently brings to a head the bitter controversy between Italy and the new Jugo-Slav state over the disposition of land along the Adriatic, formerly belonging to the Austro-Hungarian Empire, which both nationalities now claim. Italy's claims originally included virtually the entire Dalmatian coast with Triest and Fiume, which latter city is second principal seaport on the eastern side of the Adriatic.

There have been several incidents at Fiume and other points in the territory claimed by both Italy and Jugo-Slava since the signing of the armistice and the feud at one time grew so bitter that Italy established a blockade and cut off the food relief imports for the interior. This matter was adjusted by the Supreme Council in Paris, however.

The decision was reached at a meeting to-day of the full delegation presided over by Premier Orlando. It was immediately communicated to the powers. Colonel House of the American mission promised Premier Orlando to present within a few days the project concerning the Italian Jugo-Slav frontiers, which he hopes will satisfactorily settle the dispute.

Memorial Tablets To Be Unveiled in St. Paul's Church

Service Will Be of a Unique and Beautiful Character.

The service at St. Paul's on Sunday morning will be of a unique and beautiful character when the two memorial tablets, gifted by St Paul's Choir to the congregation, will be unveiled, the one to the fallen by Mrs. McIntosh, and the one to those returning by Dr. T. N. Greer Mr. H. R. H. Kenner will make the presentation, on behalf of the choir, to the congregation. Capt. Maurice Park will sing "Be Thou faithful unto death," after the unveiling of the tablet to the fallen, when the "Last Post" will be sounded Mrs. Maurice Park will sing "Home Sweet Home" after the tablet to the returned is unveiled. There will be a very beautiful "Commemoration of the Fallen," led by the pastor, Rev. Robert Pogue, and responded to by the choir and congregation. Two Anthems "Watchman! What of the night?" and "The Crusader's Return" will be sung by the choir. The memorial sermon by the Rev. Robert Pogue will be based on the text "They loved not their lives unto the Death."

The War Veterans are attending the service in a body, and a card of greeting and thanks is being presented by the choir to each member of the G.W.V.A. on entering the church. The whole service will be a beautiful one with a joyful and triumphant note sounding throughout.

Thirty one, of the one hundred and sixty one connected with St. Paul's Church who enlisted, made the supreme sacrifice.

75c RIBBED HOSE 3 FOR $1.00.

FINE RIBBED HOSE 33c.

$1 CASHMERE HOSE 59c.
For women and they are worth every cent of a dollar. They are a Pen Angle fine $1 cashmere with a good black dye. Practically half price for tomorrow.

A NEW COAT STYLE $24.75.
Pretty coats of taupe Delhi, trimmed with French blue. Have gatherings from waistline and are trimmed with self blue buttons. Belt all the way round.

$1 SILK HOSE.
We ourselves were quite surprised to see these come in the other day, nine months behind time. They are black, white, grey and nigger brown. Made with lisle top and double sole.

BROPHEY UMBRELLAS $1.40.
They have the usual Brophey paragon frame... Every one is guaranteed. Big choice of handles. Tops are mercerized union cloth.

MEN'S SOX—SNAP 50c.

MEN'S CASH UNDERWEAR $1.25.
Of soft merino. The shirts are long sleeved and the drawers full length. Light shade. Very pliable and nice to wear.

CHILDS' DRESSES $1.50.
Of different colors in gingham for children to 14 years. The very smartest little dresses we have yet seen and unusually low priced. Pinks, blues, green, browns and rose are the colors.

SPRING CORSETS $1.35.
Made of a superior quality coutil, have extra clasp, double boning front, either low or medium bust styles and there is also a model for those who require a little stronger corset than usual. All are worth $2.00 and nicely trimmed.

CHAMOISETTE GLOVES 85c.
The stylish glove for spring. Colors of chamois, new brown, fawn, taupe and of course black and white. Various kinds of contrasting backs. All are $1.25 regularly.

Letter From Mr. J. H. Burnham

House of Commons,
Ottawa, March 20, 1919.

To the Editor of The Examiner:—

You may consider that a letter from me occasionally during the Session may be of interest to the people of West Peterboro irrespective of party, touching upon the concerns of the country and of the riding during the work of the Session:

1. The East and West are struggling over the tariff. The Middle West, that is, including the three Provinces, is desirous of having the privilege of importing as nearly free from duty as possible. This means a practical negation of the national policy of reasonable protection and means, not only the importation of products and goods, but it means that foreign labor, with as low prices and lower ways of living need not leave its own country to reap the full benefit of Canadian market and thus drive out our native labor or reduce it to a low level of pay and living.

Protective System.

2. The East, particularly Ontario and Quebec, is joined by British Columbia in defence of the protective system which, reasonably applied, means, as time has shown, the development of the home market and the safe-guarding of our standard of living. It realizes that the principle of free trade means the importation of Chinese and other labor. Of course, free trade will give the consumer the benefit of cheap labor and the products of cheap labor, but it will not give home labor any benefit nor will it tend to establish the home market which consumes more than three-quarters of all that we make and produce in Canada.

3. It is possible that the struggle now going on may split the Unionist party which was brought together for war purposes. As truly said by Mr. Fielding the other night, parties are unavoidable. It is impossible to have opinions without having parties, and the group system is ten times worse than the party system since a group can hold up a Government and practically blackmail it at any time. Let me say that the "Let it alone" policy of Adam Smith, and the early free traders which scientifically considered is correct has been succeeded by the ethical system which says that competition must not be let alone and that labor must not be allowed to drift into sweating conditions and all the horrors incident to unemployment and property.

Temperance Question.

4. Another question exercising the mind is that of prohibition. The Provinces do not desire the Dominion to interfere with them and the Dominion has no desire to interfere with them. In time of war when the whole country was at war then Federal Government was authorized to act for the whole country and take what measures it saw fit, but in peace time we fall back again into the strictly Federal system which recognizes the right of the Provinces. The American Presbyterian, of Philadelphia, which is, as everybody knows, one of the greatest religious papers in the United States, in making some observations upon the Y.M.C.A. says that the "Y," it is admitted, made a great mistake going into the canteen business in France or elsewhere, but it says more than that. It says, "There has been too much centralization and too much ruling direct from above downward; it is undemocratic and un-American, and with a free people must fail." This applies to total prohibition of the crusade against tobacco, already begun in the United States and Canada, and to all repressive measures from the inquisition onward. If the habits of the people can be corrected in this way surely their religious beliefs, which may reach much more fatal results, are capable of correction, since the end is supposed to justify the means. It is incontestable that the inquisition was right if the prohibitionists and anti-tobacco people, etc., are right. No one denies, of course, that regulation and Government control is both right and reasonable but total suppression is another matter.

5. Then there are those like myself who realize that God made alcohol and makes it and that if a prohibition law were applied against all those transpressing it the Almighty himself would be liable to fine and imprisonment. The truth is that the nearer we get to God the more we realize that our reliance is to be upon Christ, and not upon ourselves; that he alone can make us free, and that any patent arrangement in the Statute book must result in failure and indeed the more it is pressed to a rigid conclusion the more likely it is to undo whatever good it has already done in educating public opinion.

The Indemnity.

The indemnity is to be raised to $4,000; the cost of living makes this essential. The old way, by which a member could practice law or his private business and give what attention he likes to the affairs of the country, is passing and none too soon. I will give you an instance of how this may work. A lawyer, and a member of Parliament sees a chance of saving an immense sum of money to the public and a municipality. Now if the owners of the property involved had come to that Member and said we wish to employ you to look after our business, the Member would have been free to do so. The immense saving, instead of going to the public, would have gone to the private individuals, and this is characteristic of the whole business of the country. How can Members, who are allowed to practice law, etc., and receive clients, be expected to ignore those clients and the income arising from them and give their services for a small sum completely to the public. It is an exceedingly stupid idea and the rise in the indemnity is a realization on the part of the Government and the Members of this fact. It is high time that the country got a square deal, but it cannot get it by allowing its Members to sell their influence and effort previously to other bidders, or to turn it to their own advantage if they run a will supply-house.

Yours truly,
J. H. BURNHAM.

Presentation to Dummer Couple

Mr. and Mrs. Joseph Gardner prior to leaving their home in the 9th line of Dummer where they had resided for 16 years, and the neighborhood where they were born, to take up their home in Belmont on the farm lately purchased from Mr. Coleman Elliott, were waited upon by their neighbors and presented with three beautiful upholstered chairs and an address. The address expressed their appreciation of their many good qualities, the interest they had taken in the Farmer's Club and local affairs, and the good wishes of their friends for their future welfare. The address was signed by E. J. Calder and M. C. Knox on behalf of the neighborhood. Mr. Gardner made a brief but suitable reply, thanking the friends for their kindness which he and Mrs. Gardner greatly appreciated.

GOOD HEALTH

IMPOSSIBLE WITHOUT GOOD EYESIGHT

Eye strains are the direct cause of all sorts of nervous disorders. Depression, insomnia, indigestion, the "blues" and irritability are only a few of their bad effects. Distressing headaches are one of the most common symptoms.

Most people are unaware of their eye troubles. Scientists estimate that seven out of ten people really need glasses—and yet, only two out of the seven are wearing them.

We wish again to emphasize the fact that we can prove to YOUR entire satisfaction, that you either need glasses or don't. We will tell you frankly if you do not need them—and make no charge for the information.

Green Estate Needs Strip of Land in Government Reserve

Messrs. A. J. Johnston and Harry ..., the executors of the estate of ... late William Green, again ... simply occupying it on the city's ...

ed the Legal Committee of the Council last night to grant or sell to them for a nominal sum a narrow strip of the old government reserve on the north side of Charlotte street, immediately east of Water street.

Ald. Turner presided. Mr. Rush urged the committee to grant the request of the executors. The value of the estate depended largely upon the possession of this strip rather than ... ference. Until this question was determined favorably the fulfillment of the will was held up, and had already been suspended for five years.

Mr. Joseph Wearing, speaking on behalf of the Children's Aid Society, one of the beneficiaries, said that the strip of land was of no value to the city; hence the council would not be giving away a public asset. The one result that would flow from the acquisition of this piece of land by the estate would be the release of legacies to public bodies who are mentioned in the will. Mr. Wearing stated that there were bequests for the Children's Aid Society, the Protestant Home, the George Street Methodist church and the Peterboro Industrial Exhibition.

Mr. G. N. Gordon spoke for an elderly niece, whose only means is $1000 provided in the will, of the use of which she is deprived until the desired settlement is secured.

THE BOLSHEVIKS RETIRE.

Abandon Great Supplies of Munitions.

The Y.M.C.A. Minstrels Scored a Howling Success Last Evening

Initial Presentation Was Well Received and Considerable Talent Was Displayed—Will be Repeated This Evening.

LOCAL JOKES

Dramatic art fairly ran riot at the Minstrel Show of the Y.M.C.A. held last night in the Grand Opera House The spirit of Dixie was there and the eight coons with their India-rubber necks and peanut-jointed toes kept the audience in an uproar of laughter through the entire performance. Even the dusky sons of Africa felt the influence of St. Patrick's Day and all had green lapels which coupled with regular bull-terrier neck ties made a very charming and beautiful picture—for one with a varied and elastic imagination. There were no "stalls" in the show. The play was fast all through and no fault could be found with the play in any shape or form.

Local Wheezes.

The jokes which were mostly of a local character were new and told in such a way that even the most long-visaged man would be compelled to force a smile. It may not be known but it is a fact that the minstrel show have decided on a very easy way to pay for Peterboro's new Hunter St., bridge.

"Isn't there a bank on each side, currency in the middle and when it is complete the people ... come across."—Perlice.

Then some of the audience received a rude jolt and still others said to themselves, "I told you so," when a coon who had just come from South of the Mason and Dixon line stated, "that all the City Council had typewriter necks. How? Underwood."

Lovers of the good old game of golf recieved a new definition of their favourite game. It is a disease. Not a Sunday disease but a foot and mouth disease, almost terrible malady. You foot after the ball all day and mouth over the game all night. Somebody gasped when a ferocious negro with a D.S.O. medal explained why one of the local departmental stores was a young ladies' boarding house.

The First Act

The augmented orchestra under the direction of Mr. Asa Huycke was a treat although it was not necessary to inject more life into the performers on the stage.

The first act opens in semi-darkness with nothing but a large lily to be seen at the back of the stage. But everybody is soon disillusioned when the centre of the lily begins to speak and the full company which are now noticeable under a stronger light join in the chorus. At the conclusion of the opening solo and chorus, 'click' goes the lily which folds up and takes a ride into the atmosphere like the old witch on the broom on Hallowe'en while the centre of the flower in the person of Mr. Morgan Cottingham walks off the stage. "Alexander Goodwife" a real old cotton, Swanee River song was splendid and Mr. Harold Duff wearing a D.S.O. won in Mr. Robert Hick's "firing" line and a watermelon grin that wouldn't come off acted to the effect of the song with gesticulations that would do full justice to a Dutch windmill or an African Hottentot.

The Interlocutor

Mr. F. D. Lee was the Interlocutor and in introducing the different numbers he did so with the grace of an old Southern gentleman of the cotton zone, a zone which the whole performance smattered of.

"Down by the Hillside" by Mr. John Carlisle elicited much applause and the buck and wing dancing featuring Mr. Walter Fitzgerald in "Navigatin' home" one of Mr. Asa Huycke's latest "creations" was thoroughly enjoyed.

The duet and quartette by Messrs. Jock Renwick, Clifton Carruthers, John Carlisle and Donald Munro demonstrated the fact that talent of a high order was not confined to the large musical centres where John McCormack, Caruso Hollinshead and the other well known musical luminaries reside.

Mr. Vern Morphet, who perhaps is the best negro comedian in this city sang the old southern song "When the Robert E. Lee Arrives in Old Tennessee," interspersed with colloquialisms, which fairly brought down the house. Mr. Norman Foote sang "As she sang to the Light Silver Moon" and "I ain't got Weary Yet", was turned into tragedy by Mr. Morgan Cottingham.

"The Land Where the Shamrock Grows" sung by Mr. Kenneth Anderson and "Dear Old Pal of Mine", by Mr. Tom Ward, were the two best songs on the programme and both young men displayed musical talent of a high order.

Monaghan Residents Ready For Annexatiou On Certain Terms

Fixed Assessment for Ten Years Was a Proposal Made By Ald. Turner to a Deputation That Met a Special Committee Last Night —A Preliminary Conference.

"LIGHT IS IN THE WINDOW"

Fixed assessment for ten years on the basis of the township's present estimates was the main concession tentatively proposed by Ald. Turner's special committee last night to a deputation of North Monaghan residents as an inducement to annexation. The terms of potential agreement were only briefly and roughly sketched at this preliminary conference, and under a passing consideration they met with the approval of the representatives of the Council and also of the suburban communities to the south and southwest.

The Monaghan delegation was composed of Messrs. W. J. Byers, W. J. Tranter, A. W. Archibald, Alex. McArthur, T. Glover, N. C. Mills, Frank Lawless, J. Barnes, W. J. Grady, Fred Holmes and Peter McArthur. At the close of the meeting they constituted themselves a provisional committee, with Mr. Byers as chairman and Mr. Glover as secretary for the purpose of holding public meetings in the township, attended by representatives of the city, at which the advantages and conditions of annexation will be presented and discussed. By this means effects of proposed union will be thoroughly explained, and the sentiment of the ratepayers, also their mandate it is hoped, will be obtained. Following that step the Provisional committee or its successor will report back to the city's special committee, which in the meantime will return to the Council for specific sanction and instructions as to the details of the terms that will be finally held out to the township residents.

To Western Avenue.

Ald. Turner, who presided, approached the subject by indicating on several maps two choices for the western limit of the area to be annexed. One of these is a line running north and south on High street, along the crest of "Bertie Morrow's" hill on the top of Sherbrooke street. The other is further west, and is actually the extension north and south of Western avenue in the settlement known as Hurleyville. These lines reach from the Jackson Park road to points in the neighbourhood of Crawford's Grove.

The deputation preferred the more westerly line of these two, and for the present it was accepted to facilitate progress.

Question of Terms.

Mr. Glover intimated that the deputation was chiefly concerned about the conditions the city would offer.

Ald. Turner first suggested that the township's existing assessment be fixed for five years at the end of which it might be increased fifty per cent., and at the end of ten years the city's assessment would be applied. During that time 75 per cent. of the taxes, excepting those for schools and local improvements, would flow back to the new district for needed development.

"If you make that a fixed assessment for ten years," said Mr. Byers "I don't think there will be any difficulty in getting the support of the ratepayers."

Mr. Archibald said he had been working for this movement for three years, and would be glad to see it brought to a conclusion as soon as possible.

Mr. Mills also declared his support of annexation, but intimated that the city should be prepared to begin improving the new district as soon as the union was effected.

"I think five years might come as a shock to some of the residents," Mr. Gray remarked. He was inclined to the opinion that the ten year period would be more acceptable.

Mr. Barnes and others favoured the longer term.

"If the corporation will give us guarantees to carry out improvements I think most of the people would be prepared to accept the five years," said Mr. Peter McArthur.

Ald. Turner summed up the sentiment by stating that the majority of the deputation preferred a fixed assessment for ten years, and that point was regarded as settled under the provisional negotiations.

Sewage Disposal Site.

Mr. Holmes referred to the city's sewage disposal plant, and asked whether a site had been purchased or not. He was informed that there had been no purchase made yet. Continuing on this point he stated that when this plant was constructed it should be located farther west than the property that had been under consideration a few years ago. He suggested that it should be in the neighbourhood of Harper's swamp south of the C.P.R. However, this was an issue aside from the preliminaries to the annexation project, and was dismissed for the time being.

Questions of Improvements.

City Clerk Armstrong cleared the air of doubts as to the extent to which improvements could be carried out in the "pale" or no man's land, as the outlined strip may be considered under present conditions. Sewers that would be constructed on the streets at present in the township would be paid for by a frontage tax on the property except at street intersections, the cost of which was met by the city as a whole; for sidewalks property would pay sixty per cent. in a frontage tax and the remaining 40 per cent. would come out of the general rate. The installation of hydrants and all work on the roads except street pavements are paid out of the general rate. The frontage tax on sewers is spread over thirty years. The property owners must put in sewer connections, but, if they so desire, they may have the connections laid to the street line by the city when the sewers are being constructed, and pay for them, together with the frontage tax, thus spreading this cost over thirty years. This opportunity seemed to make a favourable impression upon the delegation.

Sidewalks Already Built.

Mr Byers asked what arrangements would be made for the sidewalks already built.

Mr. Armstrong replied that there would have to be an adjustment with the township of all debts created in the area to be annexed.

Other Advantages.

The Monaghan men appeared to be eager for union, or conversely they wanted to separate themselves from the rural limitations which they have at last found intolerable. They have found the supposed benefits of township taxes a delusion.

Several examples were cited, indicating that the monetary advantage was not so favourable that there was anything to be gained by remaining aloof from the city.

Ald Edgar reminded the deputation that the annex would enjoy the conditions that are provided by and for the citizens. They were at present paying a higher rate for their light, and when they came in with the city they would share the ordinary rates.

"And our water rates are higher," remarked Mr. Byers.

"So is our insurance," Mr. Archibald added.

Fire protection, water and sewer service, sidewalks, light, all the highly held modern conveniences of the city would be theirs, it was stated, as soon as these Monaghan residents entered the Peterborough fold. Or at any rate as soon as they could be possibly provided under the conditions of the ultimate agreement.

Ald. Turner hinted at street railway extensions down the Monaghan road, looping eastward with Lock street as a prepossessing eventuality that should not be overlooked by the rural ratepayers.

Conditions Are Bad.

Several of the visitors told of the expense to which they had been put by providing septic tanks when they were denied connection with the city's sewage system. Others, after the meeting, expatiated upon conditions in the populous sections of Byersville that were a menace to the community's health. In short the district immediately adjoining the city on the west and south is apparently ripe for annexation and while the campaign now on foot will scarcely meet with unanimous approval, its promoters are confident that the time and the sentiments of most of the people concerned are propitious. It is assumed of course that the City Council will assent to the terms outlined by Ald. Turner and be equally conciliatory toward any other reasonable terms that may be proposed.

Majority of Electors.

City Clerk Armstrong informed the meeting that a majority of the municipal electors in the annex must support the petition, which would be submitted to the Railway Board. These electors are the persons whose names appear on the voters' list, and includes the owners of property, whether they live in the township or not, and also the occupants.

On the northern outskirts of the city the annexation scheme embraces the district extending westerly from a point north of the Isolation Hospital to the north side of Jackson Park. This is in Smith township, and necessitates an individual effort in that district.

THE Y.M.C.A. MINSTRELS

"Chief Steward"

"And You'll all go to Heaven When You Die", another song of Mr. Asa Huycke indicating the mode of travel to the Pearly Shore, was sung by Mr. George Wesley, who as "Willie" in the little Southern playlet, made the audience eye-sore with his brown bloomers and school boy book-sack "air". Mr. Vern Morphet a chief steward of the Empress Hotel and Mr. Jack Primeau as the love-sick swain, contributed immeasurably to the success of the evening. Nobody forgot the dog.

Way down where the bandanna handkerchiefs blow and the railroad socks bloom, a coon minister, namely Mr. Jack Primeau gave a timely and masterly discourse to his coon congregation who not satisfied with other people's provender had encroached upon the life and liberty of their belated minister's worldly goods so that he had to sit up at night with a double-barrelled shot gun across his knees watching the feathered colony which usually snored on the hen roost. Even his hat and cane were not safe unless resting on the church platform,—a dreadful state of affairs which the minister at tacked in a scathing way and in unmitigated terms urged his congregation to "Try to be honest." He then asked the brudder to lock the church doors and pass the collection plates. He warned them not to donate any wooden nickels or burnt quarters because he had a most keen ear for silvery music.

A yellow ribbon struggled out of Mr. Harold Lancashire's bosom as he sang. "Round her neck she wears a yeller ribbon" and the trombone tromboned so long, that it reached all the way from the roof of the theatre to the stage—on pink baby ribbon.

"Night Was Dark."

A touch of Shakespearian tragedy was introduced which had "Hamlet" beat a mile. The night was dark, the rain was falling, the sky was rent by thunder and the lightning, sent fitful flashes across the sky, the moor was drear, the hero was alone when suddenly a female cry for help rent the air and appealed to the young man's manhood. Struggling through the rain he entered the window of a building (by this time the negro colony were murmuring prayers and all the sins of their life came back to them) and saw a female in distress with a white sheet over her head. Suddenly she asked her rescuer a question.

"What was it," asked eight terror-stricken coons all their pent-up motions coming to the surface.

"When are you going to build the Hunter street bridge", answered the hero in dulcet tones.

Y. M. C. A. Girls.

The French dance of the Y.W.C.A. girls was excellent and the trio of Y.W.C.A. girls who danced the "Rainbow Dance" an esthetic dance which reminds one of Greece or ancient Rome was heartily endorsed by everybody. Miss Littlefield, physical directress of the Y.W.C.A., prepared both numbers.

The Irish jig of Miss Regena Lewis and Miss Beryl Bates had an element of "greenness" in it which did not entirely emanate from St. Patrick's day nor from the costumes of the dancers.

Mr. Frank Clarke played the banjo in the historic old Tenessee style and upheld in grand style his confederates in the coon business, Mr. Charles Westbrook, Mr. George Wesley, Mr. Morgan Cottingham, Mr. Harold, Huff, Mr. Jack Macdonald, Mr. Jack Primeau, Mr. Vern Morphet and Mr. Harold Lancashire.

Offer Lands For Soldiers Doukhobors Agree to This

Large Meeting at Brilliant Comes to Unanimous Finding—Britain Thanked for Saving Them From Russian Despotism.

MONTREAL, March 21.—Doukhobors in Canada have maintained the reputation of thier race for meekness and self-sacrifice by one of the most magnanimous actions ever recorded. Hearing that the Great War Veterans had passed a resolution demanding that their lands be given to the soldiers because they had not fought, the Doukhobor community, while mildly protesting that war is savagery, has voluntarily offered all its lands and possessions to the soldiers. The community in its statement says:

Finding Unanimous.

The directors of the Christian Society of Universal Brotherhood considered it necessary to call a meeting at Brilliant of our society to discuss the resolution. At this meeting over two thousand of our society were present, and the women were in the majority, and it was there resolved to announce that we solemnly offer all lands which are occupied by Doukhobors in Canada to soldiers who have suffered so much from the recent war which lasted over four years. The women especially were unanimous in expressing their wishes to give up the lands to soldiers. And the men with their children, can easily support themselves in Canada without having land, as Doukhobor women even since 12-year-old girls, are able to support themselves by their own toil, irrespective whether men land or some other means of support, for all Doukhobor women are able to spin on their domestic spinning machines a yarn of every description of wool, flax fibre, etc."

They conclude by thanking the British nation for saving them from the depostism of Russia.

ADVERTISED FOR HUSBAND

Young Woman Faces Serious Charge of False Pretences.

Toronto, March 20.—Ethel Vannay is charged in general sessions of having obtained $1,60 from J. H. Russell and $765 from G. Shaw by false pretences. Ethel Vannay, who calims her name is Mrs. W. O. MacDonald, is said to have put an advertisement in a paper saying in effect, "Young widow would like to meet congenial man, object matrimony.

Russell in the witness box said he replied to the advertisement and met Mrs. Vannay outside of a theatre. He said that Mrs. Vannay said she was Mrs. W. O. MacDonald and that her husband was one of the two adopted sons of Sir Wm. MacDonald, the tobacco king of Montreal, that her husband had gone overseas with the 24th Battalion and was killed, and under a will made on Sept. 25, 1915, she was the sole beneficiary in a fortune consisting of $600,000 cash and $200,000 Bethlehem Steel Stock.

George Shaw claimed to have lent Mrs. Vannay only $765, and his engagement ring cost $150.

The following will was produced in court alleged to be that of Mrs. Vannay's husband:

"In event of my death I give the whole of my property and effects to my wife, Mrs. W. O. MacDonald, 6782 Drolet street, Montreal, 24th Battalion, V.R.C., Sept. 25th, 1915. Pte. William Douglas MacDonald."

A letter from Sir Sam Hughes telling of the death of Pte. MacDonald, was read.

Was Troubled With BOILS FOR SIX MONTHS.

From the days of Job to the present time, boils have been one of the greatest afflictions of the human race.

Very few people escape from having them at some time.

All the poulticing and lancing you may do won't cure them and stop more coming.

Boils are caused by bad blood bursting out, and the bad blood must be made pure before the boils will disappear.

Burdock Blood Bitters is the greatest blood purifier known. It cleanses the system, and purifies the blood by removing every particle of foul material from the system, and when this is done, never another boil comes and health and strength are permanently restored.

Mr. C. H. Bridges, 470 Barton St. E., Hamilton, Ont., writes:—"I was troubled with boils for about six months and tried several remedies without any relief until I tried Burdock Blood Bitters, and the effect has been wonderful. After using two bottles I was rid of them all. I feel like a new man, my appetite is better, and indeed better than I have for years. I can highly recommend B. B. B. to all who are troubled as I was."

Burdock Blood Bitters has been on the market for the past 40 years, and manufactured only by The T. Milburn Co., Limited, Toronto, Ont.

Laws, like sausages, often cease to inspire respect when we learn how they are made.

Some men reach the wrong destination by travelling the right road; they travel in the wrong direction.

Suspended Sentence For Cordova Employee

P. H. Martin, late Cordova Mines, who pleaded guilty to stealing tools from the Cordova Company, appeared for sentence before County Police Magistrate Langley at the Court-House yesterday. It appearing that restitution had been made, and that it was a first offence, the Court, with the approval of the Crown, acceded to the request of Mr. Kerr, the prisoner's counsel, that the prisoner be allowed to go on suspended sentence.

Mr. Joseph Wearing represented the Crown, and Mr. F. D. Kerr appeared for the prisoner.

Arrrival of Hospital Ship Delayed by Fog

Canadian Press:

PORTLAND, Me., March 21.—The hospital ship Araguaya, which had been expected to-day with about eight hundred wounded Canadian soldiers, has been delayed by fog, and will not reach port until to-morrow noon, according to a radio message from the steamer.

CUT THIS OUT

OLD ENGLISH RECIPE FOR CATARRH, CATARRHAL DEAFNESS AND HEAD NOISES.

If you know of some one who is troubled with Catarrh, Deafness, head noises or ordinary catarrh cut out this formula and hand it to them and you may have been the means of saving some poor sufferer, perhaps from total deafness. In England the scientists for a long time past have recognized that catarrh is a constitutional disease and necessarily requires constitutional treatment.

Sprays, inhalers and nose douches are liable to irritate the delicate air passages and force the disease into the middle ear which frequently means total deafness, or else the disease may be driven down the air passages towards the lungs, which is equally as dangerous. The following formula which is used extensively in the damp English climate is a constitutional treatment and should prove especially efficacious to sufferers here who live under more favorable climate conditions.

Secure from your druggist 1 ounce of Parmint (double strength). Take this home and add to it 1/4 pint of hot water and a little granulated sugar; stir until dissolved. Take 1 tablespoonful four times a day. This will often bring quick relief from distressing head noises. Clogged nostrils should open, breathing become easy and hearing improved as the inflammation of the eustachian tubes is reduced. Parmint used in this way acts directly upon the blood and mucous surfaces of the system and has a tonic action that helps to obtain the desired results. The tablets are easy to make, costs little and pleasant to take. Everyone who has catarrah or head noises or is hard of hearing should give this treatment a trial.

PETERBORO CEREAL COMPANY OFFICIALS STARTED NEW MILL

The Peterboro Cereal Company's new flour mill in Campbellford sprang into life yesterday when Mr. J. W. Meyers, the president and managing director, pressed the button that started the machinery on its first performance. Mr. J. B. Horn, Superintendent, also of Peterboro, was present. The officials had the pleasure of observing the plant running in perfect tune, and although actual manufacturing will wait for an improvement in the market the mill is now ready for operation at its capacity of 200 barrels a day.

The equipment is driven by electric power from four induction motors, which were installed by Ald. Morrison, the company's electrician, assisted by Mr. Ernest Symes.

Under present market conditions, the milling industry is practically at a standstill throughout the country, but it is expected that business will quickly recover. With this resumption the Campbellford plant will pick up the pace and prove its importance as a unit of the Peterboro Cereal Company's increased activities and preparations for expansion.

Special Meeting For Dairymen

A Further Step in Organizing Co-operative Dairy Company.

So much interest has been taken in the proposal to form a large central cooperative company of dairy farmers to take over and operate a large proportion of the cheese factories in the Central Ontario District, including Peterborough county, that it has been decided to hold a series of meetings next week in Peterborough, Hastings and Prince Edward counties. Patrons are to be invited from as many of the factories as possible that are likely to be interested in the proposed company. The principle speakers at these meetings will be Mr. John Kennedy, vice-president of the United Grain Growers, Ltd., of Winnipeg and Calgary, and Mr. H. B. Cowan, of Farm and Dairy, Peterborough. Mr. Kennedy is one of the pioneers of the farmers' movement in Western Canada and has become well-known as a public speaker. He addressed a banquet of Peterborough county farmers in Peterborough a year ago last summer.

The meetings in Peterborough county will be held at Selwyn on Monday night, March 24th; Westwood, Tuesday afternoon, March 25th, and Warsaw, Tuesday evening. The meetings are being called by Mr. E. N. McDonald, the county director for Peterborough of the U. F. O., and by Mr. A. D. McRae, B.S.A., the district representative at Norwood.

LEMON JUICE IS FRECKLE REMOVER

Girls! Make this lemon beauty lotion to clear and whiten your skin.

Squeeze the juice of two lemons into a bottle containing three ounces of orchard white, shake well, and you have a quarter pint of the best freckle and tan lotion and complexion beautifier, at very, very small cost.

Your grocer has the lemons and any drug store or toilet counter will supply three ounces of orchard white for a few cents. Massage this sweetly fragrant lotion into the face, neck, arms and hands each day, and see how freckles and blemishes disappear and how clear, soft and white the skin becomes. Now! It is harmless.

Commission Men Deny Monopoly of Union Stock Yards

(Special to The Examiner.)

PARLIAMENT BUILDINGS, Toronto, March 21.— Hartley Dewart's reflections on and references to the Union Stock Yards, the packers and commission men, and allegations in regard to combines, made in the Legislature last night, has created a furore in stock circles. The stock yards officials apparently have a clear mind, but strenuous efforts to get in touch with officials of the William Davies Company and the Matthews-Blackwell firm met with failure. Officers of both companies refused to be interviewed.

"There is not so much complaint in Dewart's address as regards the stock yards, so far as I can see," said Mr. F. G. Fletcher, "but his references are applied more to packers and commission men."

"Is it true that no outsider can sell his cattle and collect his money except through commission men?" asked the reporter.

"That is not correct. There is absolutely no restriction placed on any shipper. A man can bring his stock here and sell them himself. The commission men are used mostly by large shippers who do not want the trouble of handling the stock."

Some Exceptions.

"Have you any cases of farmers bringing small numbers of cattle and placing them on sale themselves?"

"Yes very often. They are at perfect liberty to make their sales without being subjected to any restrictions."

Mr. Fletcher stated that under the Live Stock Products Act the Dominion Government some time ago passed legislation designed to supervise stock yards and commission men, but the provisions had never been carried out.

"Now that the war is over, however, we are expecting that the Government will put its plans respecting this legislation into operation," he said.

Three-Fold Strike Seemingly Averted

PEACEFUL SETTLEMENT PROMISED FOR CLAIMS OF MINERS, TRANSPORT WORKERS AND RAILWAY MEN.

(Canadian Press Despatch.)

LONDON, March 21. — Representatives of the miners at a meeting last night discussed the report of the coal commission but no decision was reached. It was stated however that the Sankey report created a favorable impression as a business-like document, and the general view is that a three fold strike had been averted.

The transport workers claim a notable victory and it is believed the government is meeting both the miners and the railway men in a spirit which promises a peaceful settlement of the dispute

"The Bride Shop" Here on Thursday

There is little doubt that George Choo's lavish production of "The Bride Shop," the big musical comedy success which is slated for appearance at The Grand Opera House on Thursday, March 27 next, will prove, as it does everywhere, to be one of the best offerings local theatre-goers will have the opportunity of witnessing this season, for it comes with the unanimous endorsement of both press and public.

It is a rare bit of musical comedy in two acts, the book emanating from the pen of Fred De Gressac, whose former big successes, "The Purple Road," "The Enchantress," "Flo, Flo," etc., are still fresh in the minds of all lovers of this style of entertainment, while those well-known song writers, Darl MacBoyle and Walter L. Rosemont, are responsible for the numerous musical hits of the piece.

The plot, which is just deep enough to carry the thread of the story, is but a secondary consideration; it tells of an ambitious mother, a lovely daughter who disputes her master's right to select a husband for her with whom she is not in love, a bogus Earl, a newspaperman and a brother who sides with the sister, and a host of other characters, all of whom help to get into the picture and unravel the story.

There is an abundance of good, clean, wholesome comedy, a score or more of the catchiest of melodies, a cast of actors and actresses that know how to put over the clever lines and situations given them, a lot of beautiful scenery and some clothes—in fact—lots and lots of clothes: clothes that are the envy of all who survey them—clothes from Paris—clothes from London—clothes from New York. A conservative estimate of this truly remarkable array of woman's apparel would figure upwards of twenty thousand dollars.

Eddie Vogt heads the list of funmakers, and he is ably assisted by John Sully, Lew Naden, Geourge Gould, Edith Benjar, Nan Hopestill, Muriel Rastrick, Sally Hunt, Muriel Thomas, Frances Allison and the prettiest and most shapely chorus seen in musical comedy, to say nothing of the twelve handsome models who are seen in these wonderful creations of the modistes' art.

Grocers Won Two Games

Last night in Business Men's ten pin league at the Water Street Alleys the Grocers took two from the Packers. For the Grocers Weber was high man with 551 and high single of 237. Ross also passed the 500 mark. For Matthews-Blackwell Pratt hit the maple for 536.

OBITUARY

O'LEARY.

The three months old child of Mr. and Mrs. Michael O'Leary, Indian River, died yesterday morning.

The funeral took place this morning to St. Joseph's Cemetery, Douro.

MRS. GEO. CURTIS.

The many friends of Mrs. Oliver Steer 212 London Street, will sympathize with her in the death of her sister, Mrs. George Curtis, which took place on Tuesday, March 11th, at Melville, Sask.

ALPHONSUS SCOLLARD.

The death occurred yesterday after a long illness of Alphonsus Scollard aged 19 years, son of Mr. and Mrs. W. J. Scollard, one mile east of Lindsmore. He leaves to mourn his loss, besides his parents, several brothers and sisters.

The funeral will take place to-morrow morning from the family residence to St. Martin's church and St. Martin's cemetery, Lindsmore.

DAVID SANDERS

Yesterday the death took place in Toronto of David Sanders, aged sixty years, after an illness of several months. The deceased came from England in 1872 and for the past thirty years has resided in West Toronto where he was engaged in the furniture business. He leaves to mourn his loss a wife and two children. The latter are Vernon and Bert of Toronto. Two sisters and four brothers also survive, namely, Mrs. B. James of Toronto, Mrs. C. Searight of Norwood. The brothers are A. Sanders, 596 Gilmour street this city, Arthur of Chicago, William of Seattle and Trent who resides with his mother in Dummer township. The funeral will take place in Norwood on Sunday.

MRS. MARGARET GILMAN.

The death occurred at the family residence, 406 Mark street, last evening, at 8 o'clock, of Mrs. Margaret Gilman, 73 years of age. Her husband predeceased her several years ago. She was born in Peterborough and has lived here all her life. Two daughters and three sons survive, Miss Annie and Miss Agnes at home, Robert and Richard of East City, and John of Harwood.

The late Mrs. Gilman had been long a resident of Ashburnham and her many acts of kindness to the sick or to families in trouble made her much loved by many people in her section of the city.

The funeral will take place Sunday afternoon at 2 o'clock from the family residence to Immaculate Conception church and St. Peter's cemetery.

JUDGMENT RESERVED IN A JUNK CASE.

An interesting case was heard by His Honor Judge Swayze in a session of the County Court on Wednesday. It was an action brought by H. Apelbaum, a junk dealer, Lindsay, against A. Low & Co., of Peterboro, in connection with a shipment of two carloads of junk to the Peterboro firm. The defendant disputed payment on the ground that the weight and the quality were not satisfactory. The evidence went to show that the plaintiff had carried out his part of the agreement. Judgment was reserved.

Mr. L. V. O'Connor, assisted by Mr. J. Bradford, for the plaintiff; G. N. Gordon, for the defendant. —Lindsay Post.

Hit By G.T.R. Engine Small Boy Escaped With Broken Nose

Connor Beland, the five-year old son of Mr. David Beland, 190 Lake street, was struck by the engine of a G.T.R. freight train at the Belleville division crossing on Lake street yesterday evening at 6.45 o'clock, and luckily escaped with a broken nose and a big bruise on his forehead. The little chap was going to a store for candy, and apparently did not hear nor see the train approaching. The freight train was travelling south, and before the boy became aware of his danger the protecting top bar of pilot struck him on the head. Dr. Carmichael was called and dressed his wounds. Eyewitnesses are reported to have said that the engine's whistle was not blown.

Norma Talmadge At the Grand

Monday, Tuesday and Wednesday of Next Week.

"De Luxe Annie," Norma Talmadge's latest production for her Select Star Series, will be the feature attraction here on Monday, Tuesday and Wednesday at the Grand Opera House. It has been directed by Roland West from the scenario by Paul West, which was made from Edward Clarke's current stage success of the same name. The story first appeared as a two-part serial in the Saturday Evening Post, so that millions of homes are familiar with this thrilling tale.

Norma Talmadge has never appeared to better advantage than in this absorbing story of criminal life with a surpassingly psychological ending. As Julie Kendal, the wife of a prominent lawyer who is interested in the working of criminal minds, whom a blow on the head turns adrift on the world, a total victim of aphasia, Miss Talmadge registers a tremendous hit in a most realistic portrayal. She becomes the confederate of Jimmy Fitzpatrick and, with him, operates the de-luxe book game, a variant of the old badger game. Later, although his face seems very strangely familiar, she meets her husband, treats him as a stranger and seeks to victimize him.

In the closing reel, Dr. Niblo, the alienist who is a friend of the Kendals, operates on Julie and restores her memory so that she believes her criminal experiences only an unpleasant dream; and happiness reigns again at the domestic hearthstone.—Matinee Daily.

Day of Thanksgiving.

Mr. I. E. Podlow, Liberal member for South Renfrew, has given notice of a resolution declaring that November 11 each year should be set aside as a day of national thanksgiving, to be a perpetual memorial of the signing of the armistice, ending the great world war.

Representatives of the retail merchants of the Dominion, who waited upon Hon. A. K. MacLean, Acting Minister of Trade and Commerce, also urged that November 11 be fixed permanently as Thanksgiving Day in the Dominion.

Pte. Harold Mollon Saw Long Service

Pte. Harold Mollon, 697 Water street, who went overseas with the 93rd battalion returned to the city last evening after nearly three years active service. He was in practically every large engagement the Canadians figured in since 1915 and was slightly wounded at Vimy Ridge on April 9th 1917. After two weeks convalescence he returned to the front and was in France at the signing of the armistice. He came over on the Carmania and said that he had nothing to complain of as to the treatment on board. Pte. Mollon is a nephew of Mrs. Loader.

BEL IAN RULERS PLAN AIRPLANE VISIT TO GENERAL PERSHING

King Albert and Queen Elizabeth Will Fly to Chaumont for Three Day Round of Dinners, Receptions, Reviews, Football Game and Theatrical Performance.

CHAUMONT, March 21.—King Albert and Queen Elisabeth of Belgium, will come here to make the trip from Brussels by airplane if weather conditions permit.

The King and Queen will go direct to General Pershing's chateau, a few miles from Chaumont, and will inspect a guard of honour composed of picked troops from the American forces stationed near Chaumont. They will have dinner with General Pershing and will spend the night at the chateau.

On Thursday the King and Queen will come to Chaumont to attend a formal reception in their honour at the City Hall. The party will then go by automobile to Montigny-sur-Aube, headquarters of the First American Army Corps. They will lunch with the commander of the corps and will review the Eighty-first Division. Returning to the chateau they will receive the civilian and military members of General Pershing's staff, the French officials of Chaumont and the chiefs of the various allied missions stationed at Chaumont. In the evening they will dine with General Pershing, his personal staff, the chiefs of the allied missions and several American officers.

Friday morning the King and Queen will go by automobile to Chaumont to witness the guard mount at general headquarters. They will then go to the headquarters of the American First Army and have lunch with Lieutenant General Liggett, the commander. In the afternoon they will see a football game between American teams, after which they will return to Chaumont and dine with General Pershing and to attend a theatrical performance by American soldiers in the evening.

The King and Queen will leave Chaumont for Brussels Saturday.

CATTLE MARKET

The trend of prices in the cattle market this week has been steadily higher on the choicer grades, but inclining to weaker on the common and medium offerings. The result was a widening range between the two extremes. As the best cattle seemed to be getting firmer and higher, the poor quality stuff was in comparison weaker and lower at the end of the week than at the beginning. The demand for the best quality butcher steers and heifers of all weights, whether for the local trade or for export, was steady, but strong all through the week. The fact that the troubles among the marine and transport interests at New York is not wholly cleared up, though there as been some improvement in the situation, militated somewhat against the export demand, which would have been much more active had the coast been altogether clear. As it was there was a good export trade doing, one firm alone shipping over the border over 500 head of cattle. Prices for the best export quality were kept up to high levels, going over $16 in several transactions, while $15 to $15.50 was very frequently paid. Good to choice butcher steers and heifers for the local trade went up as high as $14 and over. Common and medium stuff hovered from $9.50 to $11, showing the wide range between the high and the low.

Fat cows did good and strong for good quality. Common stuff weak.

Choice quality bulls held firm, but coarse quality heavy bulls were not always easy to cash.

Calves are from $1 to $2 lower for the week.

The hog market has been generally unsettled, but always strong, and finally going over the top at $20, fed and watered basis.

Men, Men! Try It To-night--- Feel Fine Tomorrow

Simple Way To Get "Pep," To Be Put Right On Your Feet.

When a man has lost ambition to "dig in" and stay at things—when he complains of headache, dizziness in the right side, pains in the shoulder blade—it's purely a case of "liver."

These symptoms invariably indicate a clogged, inactive liver. The body can't get rid of its wastes, and the whole system is half paralyzed.

Dr. Hamilton's Pills stimulate the liver into activity in one night. Being a mild vegetable laxative, they produce results in a few hours. The bilious headache and constipation are cured, spirits rise, complexion clears, animation returns. Nothing in the calendar so efficient for that tired, lazy feeling as Dr. Hamilton's Pills. Very mild, don't interfere with work, invariably do lots of good. Try a 25c. box, all dealers.

The Englishwoman.

Women cannot be lawyers in England, but they can be queens, marshals, champions of England, sextons, churchwardens, constables, workhouse governors, returning officers, overseers of the poor and sheriffs of assizes. And yet the objection of the law society to a woman entering the legal profession is that she is not a "person." Certainly when English law entitles her to fulfill so many functions she cannot be called a "nobody."—Rochester Post-Express.

A Thief Proof Satchel.

Holdups in New York city have inspired an inventor to devise a thief proof satchel for bank messengers. In the satchel is a mechanism controlled by a combination lock that operates bells and a revolver loaded with blank cartridges. As long as the messenger holds the satchel in his hand the bells and revolver are inactive, but should he drop it or any one try to take it away from him the alarm would be instantaneous.

Chicago Man Buys Famous California Island

Wm. Wrigley, Jr., Heads Company Purchasing Santa Catalina.

VAST RESORT PLANNED

LOS ANGELES, CAL., March 22.—One of the biggest real estate deals ever put over in California is now an assured fact and details can be furnished by the interested parties.

Mr. William Wrigley, Jr. manufacturer of the famous "Wrigley's armint" one of the chief stockholders in the Chicago "Cubs" ball team and an officer and director in a total of fifteen enterprises in various parts of the U.S., is the head and controlling interest in a company which has taken over Santa Catalina Island. The purchase price is close to $4,000,000 and several millions more will be spent to make the island the great show place of the Pacific Coast.

Included in the transfer are practically all of the 48,000 acres of the island, the new $400,000 Ste. Catherine Hotel and its appurtenances, ten thousand head of sheep, two large steamers which ply between San Pedro and the Island, a fleet of glass bottom power boats and other property of the Santa Catalina Island Company.

This news is of interest to every past, present and prospective visitor to California; in fact, it is of particular interest to the country at large, for it presages an era of expansion and development in our home resorts in keeping with the tendency to cultivate domestic tourist travel which the war has so strongly intensified.

The officers and directors in the new Santa Catalina Island Company are some of the most enterprising business men in Los Angeles county. The general manager is Everet H. Seaver who directed the Fulton Shipyards at San Pedro during the war and who last year built successful wooden ships at astonishing speed for the government. Mr. Seavear's record as a builder of ships is equalled by his fame as an employer of labor, for in all his period of service at San Pedro there was no rumor of labor trouble.

David Blankenhorn, a well known Los Angeles business man is president of the new company. He recently received his honorable discharge from the U.S. Army where he ranked as captain.

"We intend to make Santa Catalina Island the greatest summer and winter resort in America," said Mr. Wm. Wrigley. "Development will progress as rapidly as possible and when business warrants we will put on more steamers. There is room for a half million new cottages on the island and a second new hotel is projected for early completion. It is my plan to make this gem of the Pacific a resort of such attractiveness that it will be the mecca for visitors from all parts of the country."

There are many unique features found at "Catalina" as the island is called locally. In one vast expanse are the frames of 550 tent cottages which in summer are covered with canvas, furnished completely and rented by the day or week just as hotel rooms are rented. This is the famous Island Villa. Another summer setlement is made up of hundreds of tents completely furnished for housekeeping.

The glass-bottomed power boats, already mentioned, make daily trips over the Marine Gardens—through these boats the visitor gets such sights of a great ocean world of vegetation and fish as can be had nowhere else. Here is a realm peopled with brilliantly colored inhabitants swimming through forests of feathery verdure. Huge tree-like ferns waver and bend with the motion of the water. Great stalks of kelp touch the bottom of the boat. From the strange "sea-cucumber" that clings to the ocean floor and is said to be one of the lowest forms of animal life, to the giant tuna fish and sea bass, which are the delight of the sportsmen, the range of species, size and appearance of these creatures of the deep is utterly astounding.

Above water are scores of seal, some of them weighing a ton, sunning themselves and their young on the rocks. The bald-headed eagle perches himself on a crag and haughtily surveys the scene while a flock of stormy petrels scurry away before the boats' advance. Yonder on a cliff some mountain goats enjoy the scenery and herbage. Over and above all are the bluest of skies, reflected in the depths of the deep blue sea.

Mr. Wrigley, as the world's greatest chewing gum manufacturer, has been said to be one of the largest contributors to man's lasting enjoyment among all those make for creature comfort.

His plans for the development of Santa Catalina stand for the tourists and pleasure seekers who flock to California's sun-kissed shores will entitle Mr. Wrigley in double measure to all the credit he has thus far attained as the most extensive purveyor of America's own famous confection—the stick with the flavor that lasts.

"Just as we have looked to advertising to build up our business," said Mr. Wrigley, "so shall we make known the fame of Catalina Island. The power of the press is one of the world's greatest agents of advancement. Without advertising it might take twenty years to accomplish what advertising makes possible in one."

PRESENTATION TO MR. AND MRS. MAHOOD

Last evening (Friday) a number of the friends and neighbors of Mr. and Mrs. Mahood, of Smith, gathered at their home to present them with a silver service, a token of the esteem in which they are held and of the keen regret felt in the neighborhood at their leaving to live in the city.

The following address was read, and the presentation made after which a delightful social evening was spent by all present:

Peterborough, Ont.,
March 21, 1919.

Mr. and Mrs. Mahood and Miss Mildred:

Dear Friends: To-night, a few of your old friends and neighbors have gathered here to wish you God-speed. We can not help but think of the many times that you have joined us in our social gatherings, and we recall the ready and efficient help you have so willingly rendered at such times. These occasions have left memories that time and distance will never erase.

The poet tells us—

"Weep not that the world changes,
Did it keep a stable, changeless course,
'Twere cause to weep."

But still the departure of long-tried friends always brings a feeling of regret, for we shall always have the pleasant remembrance of the times we have spent together during the years of your sojourn in Smith. May you ever keep warm the memories of the many friends you have made here.

Please accept this silver tea service as a slight token of the good wishes of your friends in the community.

That your new life may be rich with new friends and successes is the wish of

G. A. Edmison,
E. C. Harper,
Wm. Steinkrauss.

FRECKLE-FACE

Now Is The Time to Get Rid of These Ugly Spots.

Did you know how easy it is to remove those ugly spots so that no one will call you freckle-face?

Simply get an ounce of Othine, double strength, from your druggist and a few applications should show you how easy it is to rid yourself of freckles and get a beautiful complexion. The sun and winds of March have a special tendency to bring out freckles, and as a result more Othine is sold in this month. Be sure to ask for the double strength Othine as this is sold under guarantee of money back if it fails to remove the freckles.

GRAIN MARKET

The upward trend of prices in all the coarse grains continues apparently unchecked except for the variation in the options, due to speculative market operations. Corn again made further advances, while in the cash markets oats and barley are making strong advances, the strength of barley appearing to be a strong factor in bringing up oats.

A Stubborn Cough Loosens Right Up

Here is a home-made syrup which millions of people have found to be the most dependable means of breaking up stubborn coughs. It is cheap and simple, but very prompt in action. Under its healing, soothing influence, chest soreness goes, phlegm loosens, breathing becomes easier, tickling in throat stops and you get a good night's restful sleep. The usual throat and chest colds are conquered by it in 24 hours or less. Nothing better for bronchitis, hoarseness, croup, whooping cough, bronchial asthma or winter coughs.

To make this splendid cough syrup, pour 2½ ounces of Pinex (50 cents worth), into a 16-oz. bottle and fill the bottle with plain granulated sugar syrup and shake thoroughly. If you prefer, use clarified molasses, honey, or corn syrup, instead of sugar syrup. Either way, you get 16 ounces—a family supply—of much better cough syrup than you could buy ready-made for $2.50. Keeps perfectly and children love its pleasant taste.

Pinex is a special and highly concentrated compound of genuine Norway pine extract, known the world over for its prompt healing effect upon the membranes.

To avoid disappointment ask your druggist for "2½ ounces of Pinex" with full directions, and don't accept anything else. Guaranteed to give absolute satisfaction or money promptly refunded. The Pinex Co., Toronto, Ont.

THE WIFE

Ruth Tells Brian Her Wonderful News

CHAPTER CL

"So this was the mischief you were doing?" Brian caught Ruth in his arms and kissed her fondly. "You little witch! It looks like the office of that Millionaire Hackett you were talking about."

"It is his office.

After he had examined everything, Brian said:

"Don't think I do not appreciate all you have done in getting this ready for me, Ruth. But how much do we owe for it all?" with a comprehensive sweep of his arm, including even the little waiting room.

"Not a penny, Mr. Hackett. There are your receipts on file."

"But Ruth"—

"No objections allowed." Then: "You see, dear, it didn't cost me much of anything to live while auntie was with me. She wouldn't let me pay for things. And as I was earning a big salary—Mr. Mandel raised me again when he became so engaged with war work, so leaving the business almost entirely in my charge. I earned it, too, I assure you."

"Poor Mandel! how sad he must be to lose you. Honest, Ruth I feel like begging his pardon. He has been good to you always; now you are leaving him to get along as best he can because your husband wants you. I used to feel jealous of him, too. He had everything I didn't have. Money, social position—all that you craved, and that I couldn't give you. Is it any wonder I was jealous? But I know something of what he is now. And I also know you better. One couldn't be "over there" and see the things I saw, take part in that struggle for the betterment of the world, and no grow. Petty personal affairs now seem pety. Before, they appeared of paramount importance. But to get back to our muttons: You must have spent a lot of money, Ruth. It is simply a perfect appointed office. Nothing like having a wife with good taste as well as money." Here Brian blew his nose suspiciously hard and afterward his eyes also seemed to need attention. Ruth saw, but with her usual delicacy, turned her back and commenced to talk of what more was needed. The desk for the telephone in the waiting room, the extension to his private office, etc. Yet she could not help being pleased at the emotion he had shown —even if she wanted no thanks.

"Now sit down, Brian, and listen. I have some wonderful news for you."

"It's that million! I feel it in my bones."

"I am glad you feel something besides pain in those bones of yours, but you are wrong. I told you YOU were to make the million. I expect you to, and I do not bear disappointment at all nobly. But, Brian, joking aside, I was so glad to hear you speak of Mr. Mandel as you did. You never had any reason to be jealous." Ruth flushed ever so faintly. Only too well did she know how much Mandel cared for her, but it was his secret. He himself had no idea she realized what she had grown to mean to him. But this knowledge had made it both easier and harder to leave him.

"I know dear, I was a cad. But I was sore and thought everyone must love you because I did."

"Now listen, Brian. Mr. Mandel knows of this office. Knows that you are starting in to build up a practice interrupted by the war. He told me to tell you that you were retained as his attorney, wait—you don't know what that means, but I do. We paid his lawyers every year enough for us to live on. You see his importations, etc., make necessary legal advice on matters which seem simple enough, but which are not. Then to he also told me to tell you that he had several friends whose business would require a lawyer's services because of the conditions caused by the war. He would recommend you as one who would be willing to study those conditions as affected their business and set them straight again."

"Why, Ruth,—I—it's you dear! You have done all these things for me. I will make that million, dear, if I have to live to be a hundred to do it. And Ruth dear, will you forgive me for anything I ever have done to make you unhappy? I think sometimes you were unhappy without cause, but I was too hurt and proud to explain." Ruth knew he referred to Mollie King, so she said:

"I WAS jealous of Mollie, Brian, dreadfully jealous after you went overseas and I knew she was also over there. But"—

"Mollie is going to marry Major Williams, Ruth. I was silly to make you jealous of her, because Mollie never cared for me, only was sorry because I was so unappreciative a wife"—Then As she thought."

"As you let her think, you mean." Ruth was sorry the moment she spoke. That her words had gone home, was evinced by Brians blush. To make amends she added: "We will telephone Mollie to take dinner with us to-night also. If she is to marry the Major we might as well let her see that we are having our second honeymoon. What do you say."

"Let's ask her by all means."

GLASS HOUSES.

The Many Advantages That Are Claimed For Them.

"Within ten years people in this country will be building houses of glass which will excel in sanitary appointments, beauty and durability and also low cost of maintenance any type of structure of the present time. In other words, the American people within ten years will be living in glass houses. They will thenceforth be unable to throw stones."

This was the interesting declaration made recently by Roger S. Pease, one of the oldest glassmakers in the United States, a man who has taken an active part in all the improvements that have set the glass world face to face with new conditions and placed it in line for the greatest development in its long history. By glass houses Mr. Pease said he meant just what he said—foundations of concrete, which are now recognized as standard; the walls of wired glass, the ceilings and roofs of wired glass and the floors of tile, covered with a light sheeting of wood. Such a building will prove practically indestructible, can be made of any set of colors desired and requires no painting, no papering inside, will be sound proof, moisture proof and fireproof.

Mr. Pease has planned a house that will be composed of glass and is going to have it finished in some color that will make it attractive, and such colors will be permanent.

The moment this idea is started, Mr. Pease declared, the public will be quick to see the value of the material. Its cheapness and reliability are understood. Glass, he said, is the most honest and most easily understood material in the world. It is not mysterious, and people will not have to employ experts to see that the quality is right. The glass for the walls of houses need not be transparent, but dense, like slate or stone. It will, however, be hard and durable. The roofs can be of the same character of glass. It withstands heat and cold alike, and whatever patents may interfere with the cheapness of the material now are so nearly expired that it will be but a short time before these will be eliminated as a cost factor.—Pittsburg Gazette-Times.

The Malay Shark.

The Malay shark, called the "ikan yu," is the one most dreaded by the natives. During the terrible disaster of the French steamer La Seyne from its collision with the British ship Onda in the strait of Rhio last November, many of the ninety passengers lost were, as soon as they reached the waters of the strait, seized by the sharks and dragged beneath the surface to be devoured by these fierce Malayan fish, which are especially feared by the native fishers and pearl divers. Seventeen species inhabit the far eastern seas, some of them attaining a length of twenty-five feet. It is reported that a black ilu shark was captured some time ago whose liver weighed 250 pounds. The largest is the basking shark, which ranges from the Cape of Good Hope to Ceylon and often exceeds fifty feet in length.

A Cabinet Record.

Almost 300 men have served in presidential cabinets since the formation of the government, and of the whole number the record for long service is now held by James Wilson, secretary of agriculture. He achieved this distinction recently, when he passed the mark set by Albert Gallatin, who was secretary of the treasury from May 14, 1801, to Feb. 9, 1814, or twelve years, eight months and twenty-six days. The third in length of service is William Wirt, who was attorney general from 1817 to 1829, almost equaling Gallatin's record. Very few cabinet officers have served over eight years. Secretary Wilson was appointed by President McKinley March 4, 1897, and so at the beginning of 1910 he had been in the office twelve years, nine months and twenty-seven days.—Youth's Companion.

Petroleum Butter.

Petroleum has been introduced into medicine with beneficial results, and if a Paris contemporary be not misinformed the properties of petrol are limitless. It is claimed, says the London Globe, that from the residuals of crude petrol a chemist has succeeded in extracting butter. It is said that butter can be made from a base of nitrogen and carbon, but that the residuals of petroleum produce these elements in greater proportions even than milk. It is further claimed that this artificial butter is better than the natural. The color is said to be a little darker than that of dairy butter.

The Palace of Choragan.

The palace of Choragan, in Constantinople, recently destroyed by fire, was built by Sultan Abdul-Aziz and was the finest of the palaces on the Bosporus. It was constructed of marble, and the interior was remarkable for the beauty of the sculptured ornaments in marble and wood. For many years it was the home of the deposed sultan, Murad V., and was inaccessible to visitors. It was occupied by the Turkish parliament when that body was formed a little more than a year ago.

London Shop Windows.

American shop window lighting is being introduced in London. It is customary in the English capital for shopkeepers to impregnate every window with heavy iron shutters just as soon as the day's business is over. This is a relic of those ancient days when it was not safe to leave the shop unprotected, but the American plan of window displays and well lighted store fronts is being successfully introduced.

A Monumental Neglect.

In walking through the streets of London and Paris and Rome and Vienna and Berlin and New York, I have been impressed with the fact that monuments have been erected by a grateful people to soldiers and sailors, to statesmen and orators, to scientists and inventors, but I have not yet seen a monument to a missionary of the Cross.

Yet, when the record is finally written, may it not appear that he has done more than all others combined to bring about the final day of democracy and universal brotherhood?

The London Times has said, "We owe it to our missionaries that the whole region of South Africa has been opened up."

Japan's great elder statesman, Count Okuma, said, "The origin of modern civilization is to be found in the teachings of the Sage of Judea, by whom alone a necessary modern dynamic is supplied"; and he has also said that "The spirit of Jesus has made Japan what she is."

The Maharajah of Travancore, though not a Christian, has borne the following testimony: "Of one thing I am convinced—that, do with it what we will, oppose it as we may, it is the Christians' Bible that will sooner or later work out the regeneration of our land"; and the King of Siam has stated that "American missionaries have done more to advance the welfare of my people than any other foreign influence."—S. Earl Taylor in World Outlook.

INSECT TREE KILLERS.

Forest Ravages Stopped by a War Upon Bark Beetles.

By a prompt campaign against a flourishing colony of bark beetles on the Ochoco national forest, in central Oregon, the government is eliminating a danger which threatened to destroy millions of feet of timber.

Some authorities claim that the amount of timber killed each year by insects is equalled only by the annual loss from forest fires. Among the most destructive of these insect enemies are the bark beetles, one of which, the mountain pine beetle, is responsible for most of the damage in the Ochoco forest. This deadly little beetle is less than a quarter of an inch in length, but bears the ponderous scientific name of Dendroctonus monticolæ hopk, which, being interpreted, signifies killer of the mountain pine tree, discovered by Hopkins.

Its methods of operation are interesting. The mature beetle bores through the bark of the tree and excavates a gallery in the inner living bark and in the outer surface of the wood, in which it lays its eggs. When hatched each young larva, or beetle grub, channels into this growing portion of the trunk, feeding upon the inner bark. When full grown the larva, after passing through a dormant or pupal stage, becomes a beetle. This beetle then drills out through the bark in July and, emerging into the world, seeks a fresh tree and starts a new generation. With this "chain letter" method it soon infests a large area. The galleries or channels of the larvae girdle the tree and kill it, and the beetle's presence is usually discovered as it was in the Ochoco forest, by a patch of red-brown dead pine trees in the midst of a mountainside of green.

In fighting this forest scourge the method recommended by the bureau of entomology is followed. The simple removal of the bark of infested trees between October and July, while the larvae are still in the tree, is sufficient to kill them. The lumber may then be sold while it is yet sound. On the Ochoco forest, however, there was no market, and the forest officers found that the cheaper and more effective method of control was to cut the trees and burn them before the new broods of beetles could emerge. In 1912 the infestation was given a decided check by the cutting of 1,500 trees. This summer forty-two laborers in charge of a forest officer cut more than 40,000 trees. As a result of these vigorous measures the government apparently has the beetle under control.

When your liver becomes sluggish and inactive, the bowels become constipated, the tongue becomes coated, the breath bad, and the stomach all out of order.

Then come those terrible sick headaches. They take out every bit of life and ambition, bring on depression, and often end in complete mental and physical prostration.

To keep the liver active, and your bowels moving regularly, is the only way to get rid of the constipation and the distressing sick headaches. Milburn's Laxa-Liver Pills will do this for you by stimulating the sluggish liver into manufacturing sufficient bile to act properly on the bowels, thus making them active and regular.

Mrs. Winslow McKay, Jordan Branch, N.S., writes: "I have been sick for a number of years with sick headache and constipation. I tried all kinds of doctors' medicines, but none did me any good. I tried Milburn's Laxa-Liver Pills, and after using four vials I am completely cured. I would heartily recommend them to all sufferers."

Milburn's Laxa-Liver Pills are small and easy to take; and do not gripe, weaken or sicken as so many pills do. Price 25c a vial at all dealers, or mailed direct on receipt of price by The T. Milburn Co., Limited, Toronto, Ont.

EASY TO DARKEN YOUR GRAY HAIR

You Can Bring Back Colour and Lustre With Sage Tea and Sulphur.

When you darken your hair with Sage Tea and Sulphur, no one can tell, because it's done so naturally, so evenly. Preparing this mixture, though, at home is musty and troublesome. For 50 cents you can buy at any drug store the ready-to-use preparation, improved by the addition of other ingredients, called "Wyeth's Sage and Sulphur Compound." You just dampen a sponge or soft brush with it and draw this through your hair, taking one small strand at a time. By morning all gray hair disappears and, after another application or two, your hair becomes beautifully darkened, glossy and luxuriant.

Gray, faded hair, though not disgraceful, is a sign of old age, and as all desire a youthful and attractive appearance, get busy at once with Wyeth's Sage and Sulphur Compound and look years younger. This ready-to-use preparation is a delightful toilet requisite and not a medicine. It is not intended for the cure, mitigation or prevention of disease.

EPIGRAMS OF THE SHOP.

Weekly Bulletin Issued by a Cynical Manager Who Thinks He's Funny.

The office manager of a wholesale house, who has something like 300 men under his supervision, each week issues a set of business epigrams to his assistants and department heads. This is what he said last week:

"In hiring a man ask him if he ever worked for any of our competitors. If he has take him on. You can get out of him in a week all he knows about the other fellow and fire him in two weeks if he isn't any good.

"Don't let past performances weigh too heavy in judging an applicant. Look at his eyes and chin. There's more to be learned in two minutes in a man's face than in ten years of his past record.

"If you think that one of your men has outlived his usefulness with us ask him for—he can get another job. If he says 'No' and means it keep him with you. His slackness probably is your fault—not his. Stir him up.

"Don't for a minute let your men forget you know there is anything more important in the world than getting out the day's work. I knew a man once who disorganized a whole department by talking ancient history during inventime.

"Don't overlook your office boys. The man who owns this business was once one himself.

"Remember, the growth of this firm and the increase of competition demand that this week's work be just a little better than last.

"Think it over now!"—Chicago Tribune.

HELIODOR, THE NEW GEM.

Experts Say It Ranks With the Ruby and the Emerald.

A new gem, given the name of "heliodor," and found in German South Africa, has taken its place among the jewels. The German kaiser recently gave one of the stones to the kaiserin.

The discovery of the new stone was made by the governor and director of the German colonial society while he was traveling in German South Africa. In the sand near the railway between Swakopmund and Windhuk he found a large crystal, rough and unpromising in appearance. He carried it with him to Germany and had it cut and polished in a diamond cutting factory. The result was a surprising clear, pale aquamarine of great brilliancy.

The German colonial office immediately took possession of the ground upon which the crystal was found, and a great number of the crystals are now making their appearance upon the German market. Experts agree that the new gem is entitled to rank with the ruby or emerald.—Popular Mechanic Magazine.

Chicago's Funeral Motorbuses.

The high cost of dying is to be lowered in Chicago with the advent of motorbuses, each large enough to contain the coffin and the funeral party of ordinary size. The funeral bus will have a compartment to the right of the chauffeur's seat for the coffin and above it a place for flowers. Near the driver will sit the minister and the undertaker, and there will be accommodations for twenty-seven mourners. One of the principal items in the cost of funerals is transportation. The funeral bus, it is said, will reduce the cost by $30. Ten of the buses are to be in operation soon.

PRACTICAL HEALTH HINT.

Rest.

Bodily rest can only be achieved by having the muscles completely relaxed. The ordinary sitting position in a chair is not sufficient, as the lower extremities are still more or less rigid. The chair should be an easy one, with an extension or a footstool to support the lower limbs just a trifle below the level of the body. A better rest can be had, however, by lying full length on a couch or bed with the arms and legs sprawling in the manner adopted by the tramp when he takes a sleep by the wayside. This attitude assures ease, if not elegance. And it does more than relax the limbs, for it gives repose to the heart as well. When the body is in this position the heart beats more slowly than when we are standing, walking or even sitting.

Absorption Process Makes Faces Young

Success at last has come to scientists who for years have sought some method of removing the outer veil of facial skin in cases of unsightly complexions, which would be both painless and harmless. The new process is so simple, so inexpensive the wonder is no one had discovered it long ago. It has been amply demonstrated that common mercolized wax (sold by druggists in ounce packages) entirely removes, by gentle absorption, the withered, lifeless surface skin, showing the youthful roselike skin beneath. The wax is applied at night, like cold cream, and washed off in the morning. The absorption also cleanses clogged pores, increasing the skin's breathing capacity and preserving tone, color and natural beauty of the new skin.

A simple and harmless wrinkle remover, which has also proved quite successful can easily be made at home in a jiffy. All one needs to do is to dissolve an ounce of powdered saxolite in a half pint of witch hazel and bathe the face in the solution once a day for awhile. After the very first application the finer lines disappear and the deeper ones soon follow.

War Museums Proposed.

The Antiquarian and Numismatic Society of Montreal, an old organization located in the historic Chateau de Ramezay and in possession of a valuable collection of historical relics, advocates the establishment of a chain of war museums in the leading cities throughout Canada. The matter was brought up by the president of the society, Mr. W. D. Lighthall, K.C., at the annual meeting, in which connection Mr. Lighthall said: "One of our duties is to record the deeds of our men by a collection of war records, pictures and portraits, of library material and of war relics." The proposal met with unanimous approval and a committee was appointed to take the matter up with the Dominion Government.

Many Memorials Needed.

A national memorial in each county or municipality for Canada's war veterans and war victims is proposed by Sir Sam Hughes. Sir Sam says there are all sorts of half-baked schemes for local memorials now under way with rival subscription lists opened and no well thought-out plan for the whole Dominion. He each locality, erected at the expense of the whole country to mark for posterity the names of those who fought and of those who fell "for liberty."

On each marble or bronze staff as provided by the Federal Government there could be graven the names of the soldiers of that district for future generations to read and honor. Any municipality or local association could erect separate memorials if so desired, but Sir Sam thinks that his plan will eliminate haphazard schemes and subscriptions and at the same time pay the nation's lasting tribute to each member of the Canadian Expeditionary Force.

HELIODOR, THE NEW GEM.

Experts Say It Ranks With the Ruby and the Emerald.

A new gem, given the name of "heliodor," and found in German South Africa, has taken its place among the jewels. The German kaiser recently gave one of the stones to the kaiserin.

The discovery of the new stone was made by the governor and director of the German colonial society while he was traveling in German South Africa. In the sand near the railway between Swakopmund and Windhuk he found a large crystal, rough and unpromising in appearance. He carried it with him to Germany and had it cut and polished in a diamond cutting factory. The result was a surprising clear, pale aquamarine of great brilliancy.

The German colonial office immediately took possession of the ground upon which the crystal was found, and a great number of the crystals are now making their appearance upon the German market. Experts agree that the new gem is entitled to rank with the ruby or emerald.—Popular Mechanic Magazine.

Chicago's Funeral Motorbuses.

The high cost of dying is to be lowered in Chicago with the advent of motorbuses, each large enough to contain the coffin and the funeral party of ordinary size. The funeral bus will have a compartment to the right of the chauffeur's seat for the coffin and above it a place for flowers. Near the driver will sit the minister and the undertaker, and there will be accommodations for twenty-seven mourners. One of the principal items in the cost of funerals is transportation. The funeral bus, it is said, will reduce the cost by $30. Ten of the buses are to be in operation soon.

PRACTICAL HEALTH HINT.

Rest.

Bodily rest can only be achieved by having the muscles completely relaxed. The ordinary sitting position in a chair is not sufficient, as the lower extremities are still more or less rigid. The chair should be an easy one, with an extension or a footstool to support the lower limbs just a trifle below the level of the body. A better rest can be had, however, by lying full length on a couch or bed with the arms and legs sprawling in the manner adopted by the tramp when he takes a sleep by the wayside. This attitude assures ease, if not elegance. And it does more than relax the limbs, for it gives repose to the heart as well. When the body is in this position the heart beats more slowly than when we are standing, walking or even sitting.

Absorption Process Makes Faces Young

Success at last has come to scientists who for years have sought some method of removing the outer veil of facial skin in cases of unsightly complexions, which would be both painless and harmless. The new process is so simple, so inexpensive the wonder is no one had discovered it long ago. It has been amply demonstrated that common mercolized wax (sold by druggists in ounce packages) entirely removes, by gentle absorption, the withered, lifeless surface skin, showing the youthful roselike skin beneath. The wax is applied at night, like cold cream, and washed off in the morning. The absorption also cleanses clogged pores, increasing the skin's breathing capacity and preserving tone, color and natural beauty of the new skin.

A simple and harmless wrinkle remover, which has also proved quite successful can easily be made at home in a jiffy. All one needs to do is to dissolve an ounce of powdered saxolite in a half pint of witch hazel and bathe the face in the solution once a day for awhile. After the very first application the finer lines disappear and the deeper ones soon follow.

War Museums Proposed.

The Antiquarian and Numismatic Society of Montreal, an old organization located in the historic Chateau de Ramezay and in possession of a valuable collection of historical relics, advocates the establishment of a chain of war museums in the leading cities throughout Canada. The matter was brought up by the president of the society, Mr. W. D. Lighthall, K.C., at the annual meeting, in which connection Mr. Lighthall said: "One of our duties is to record the deeds of our men by a collection of war records, pictures and portraits, of library material and of war relics." The proposal met with unanimous approval and a committee was appointed to take the matter up with the Dominion Government.

AN ARMY OF SPIES.

Holland Was Infested by Thousands of Them.

There were ten thousand known German agents in Holland during the war. A Dutch police inspector explained that to expel them would simply mean that their places would be taken by other and unknown agents.

They drifted into Holland on various pretexts. Some were highly educated men, capable of moving in the best society; others were mere shadowers and touts. They took up all sorts of positions. The case of the porter at the Hotel des Indies, the Waldorf-Astoria of The Hague, who proved to be a brother of the then German Ambassador at Constantinople, is already known. But that is only one of hundreds of similar incidents.

The chief task of this army of spies was, of course, to keep in touch with Great Britain. In the early days of the war there was no more difficulty in this than if there was no war. British passports in those days were not worth the paper on which they were produced.

A young journalist who was in Holland but had no passport got one from the local consul (a Dutchman, of course) simply on the production of a letter from home. Later on it was rendered very difficult to get a British passport, but curiously enough, the previous issues of useless paper was not withdrawn until the war had been in progress for three full years. It need hardly be said that the German secret service made good use of the carelessness.

Again the spies benefited from the lack of co-operation between the different British departments. Thus in one large town the British community was unofficially warned against patronising a certain music dealer, who was a known German agent. Yet that man was one of the few Dutch music dealers who had a license for the import of British music.

Dutchmen were largely used as couriers between the German agents in Holland and the spies in Britain. Loose women and night clubs were employed as a means of ensnaring young men for this purpose.

Another aspect of the activities of these human moles was that of gathering information in Holland. The organization behind them was marvellous. Enormous prices were paid to Dutch telegraphers for copies of Entente code wires passing between the legations and Downing Street or the Quay d'Orsay. So rampant did this evil become that the Dutch authorities had to insist on each operator submitting to a search before going on duty and again afterward.

Photography was used to an extraordinary extent. Passengers boarding the boats for England were snapshotted and the photos all carefully filed. Photography was chiefly used to ensnare possible victims. On one occasion a French attache, riding in the woods near Wassenaar, encountered a lady who had been thrown from her horse. With the gallantry of his race, he went to her assistance. A few days later he was confronted with photographs of himself kneeling beside the "injured" lady. He was told that the lady was not injured at all, and would tell her own story.

With the threat of exposure as a lever, great effort was made to turn him into a traitor. Fortunately, he acted promptly and with courage, and in consequence a dangerous band was broken up. This was by no means an isolated instance.

One characteristic of Teutonic methods was the adoption of great precautions to get the odium in the event of discovery thrown on Britain. On one occasion an "English" yacht, manned by "Englishmen," was found stranded in forbidden waters near the mouth of the Scheldt. The yacht was seized and the crew arrested. On board was found a fairly complete plan of the Dutch mine field protecting the mouth of the Scheldt. The odium was thus thrown on Britain. Happily a few days later the plot was discovered and the pseudo Englishmen found to be Teutons from Hamburg.

Finally, an instance may be given of how the practice of spying has been ingrained in the German people. A Dutch family living at Haarlem had a German boy of 11 staying with them in the summer of 1917. They found that the youngster was keeping a note of all that was said in the conversation about Germany. When asked the reason of this the boy said that he had been instructed to do so by his school teacher so that anybody who spoke against the Kaiser could be found out and punished. That from a boy of eleven!

And He Was One.

He had a title. He was old. He was shattered. She was—well.

Welding Copper.

A process of welding copper with the oxyacetylene flame has been developed by a German inventor. He has found it necessary to use larger torches than for iron welding, but in general the process is similar, except that he employs a liquid welding paste and a special copper welding wire. The paste prevents the formation of oxide. The process has been used for welding copper plates up to an inch in thickness. The process is being used in the principal copper works in Germany with great success.

A Blood-Food Discovered That Entirely Overcomes Anaemic Weakness

CAREFULLY INVESTIGATED REPORTS ESTABLISH TRULY WONDERFUL RESULTS.

Heretofore it has often been a hopeless task for a thin-blooded person to gain either strength or weight. Neither food or medicine in many instances had beneficial effect.

What is practically a perfect blood food, containing such elements as Iron, has at last been produced, and when taken after meals will put new life and vigor into people that have despaired of ever being strong again.

This wonderful blood food supplies nourishment, vim, energy—sends a stream of vivifying, strength making blood to every nook and corner of the body, makes every muscle and fibre sing with new found life and health.

That knowing tiredness leaves you—Ferrozone drives it away. Sleepless nights are turned into periods of rest and you pick up fast. Day by day your appetite improves—this means more food is transformed in nutriment that will build and energize weak organs. The inclination to worry passes away because Ferrozone imparts nerve—tone and bodily strength that prevents depression.

Think it over—Ferrozone is a wonderful tonic, in fact, it is more than a tonic, because it establishes health that lasts. Thousands use it and thereby cleanse and restore the entire system to a perfect condition. You'll feel the uplifting power of Ferrozone in a week—it's bound to help you if you only give it the chance. Sold by all dealers, 50c a box or six boxes for $2.50. Be sure of the name Ferrozone. Sleeping Due to Indigestion.

Even after a meal of moderate size taken by a normal subject there is a slight tendency to drowsiness which becomes much more pronounced after a heavy meal, or in dyspeptics. When sleep under such conditions is irresistible we have narcolepsy. The patient may fall asleep so abruptly that he may endanger himself or others. It is characteristic, however, of narcolepsy of whatever kind that the attack is of brief duration. The victim never collapses for he always has time to assume a posture suitable for sleep. He may even announce that he must doze for a few minutes after which he will awake refreshed. He may be kept awake or readily awakened. Hence there should be no likelihood of mistaking narcoleptics for epileptics of any kind. The digestive troubles are of no particular type—cases have been seen of alcoholic gastritis, hyperchlorhydria, atony, etc. In these patients indigestion is only a determining cause, but relief of the stomach mischief seems to lead to complete recovery. Possibly akin to these gastric cases are others in which a subject falls into an imperative sleep after indulgence in alcohol, but who wakes in a few moments completely sober instead of passing into a stupor.

MAKES PLAYS FROM BOOKS.

Edward E. Rose Another Successful Canadian.

The production of "Cappy Ricks" in New York recently added one more to the long list of novels, stories or groups of stories which have been dramatized by Edward E. Rose. Rose although he has written also an untold number of original plays, mostly of a minor nature, is probably the readiest and most prolific dramatizer (if the word may be coined among contemporaneous playwrights. For years he was officially attached to Charles Frohman's staff in this capacity, and after a quiescent period of several seasons he is now again coming to the front in his old specialty. "Penrod," made from Booth Tarkington's stories was his: there is "Cappy Ricks," based upon Peter B. Kyne's stories; "Tish," built around Mary Roberts Rinehart's Letitia Carberry stories, has been written by Rose and May Robson, and his dramatisation of Mrs. Rinehart's "The Amazing Adventure" may yet see the footlights, despite the fact that it is a war play. As for the total number of his dramatic writings, it is literally beyond computation.

It is not generally known that Edward E. Rose is a Canadian by birth, although he has become a naturalized American citizen. He was born in Stanstead, Quebec, and spent his youth in that town and upon the farms of our most primitive province. Then when he took it into his head that he would like to become connected with the theatre, he went to the United States and arrived in Boston in the early eighties, fresh from a Canadian farm. For four years he acted for a few dollars a week (never more than twelve) in the Boston Museum Stock Company. Here he wrote a pair of plays which found production in traveling repertory companies, and also had the honor of supporting Richard Mansfield, who came to the theatre as visiting star, in the first production on any stage of "Dr. Jekyll and Mr. Hyde." Still an actor, he made his way in 1889 to New York, and while playing eight times a week in a melodrama called "Jim Jack," at the People's Theatre on the Bowery, New York, he acted four afternoons in the original production of "Little Lord Fauntleroy," which was being played at the Madison Square Theatre. In the scant ten hours between these appearances he managed to write a series of boys' stories for a juvenile publication, and a play called "The Westerner" as well. It was this play which reached the stage under the title "Jim, the Westerner," that finally introduced Rose to the stage as a dramatist. For a number of years he made a comfortable income writing melodramas in the popular vein, in which John Mittern was wont to appear in the so-called palmy days. He broke into more dignified company when he dramatised a novel by Dumas and called it "Captain Paul." Since that time Rose has worked as a dramatiser of novels, and he must hold something of a record in this line. Here are the well-known books that he has put into stage form: "The Gaddy," "David Harum," "Richard Carvel," "Janice Meredith," "Eben Holden," "Alice of Old Vincennes," "A Gentleman from Indiania," "John Henry" and "The Rosary," besides a host of other best sellers that have since been forgotten. Dramatised novels ceased to be popular for a number of seasons, but evidently Mr. Rose is finding it profitable to return to his workshop once again.

Never fool with a fool: he might fool you.

Doctor Tells How To Strengthen Eyesight 50 per cent In One Week's Time in Many Instances

A Free Prescription You Can Have Filled and Use at Home

Philadelphia, Pa. Do you wear glasses? Are you a victim of eye-strain or other eye weaknesses? If so, you will be glad to know that according to Dr. Lewis there is real hope for you. Many whose eyes were failing say they have had their eyes restored through the principle of this wonderful free prescription. One man says, after trying it: "I was almost blind; could not see to read at all. Now I can read everything without any glasses and my eyes do not water any more. At night they would pain dreadfully; now they feel fine all the time. It was like a miracle to me." A lady who used it says: "The atmosphere seemed hazy with or without glasses, but after using this prescription for fifteen days everything seems clear. I can even read fine print without glasses." It is believed that thousands who wear glasses can now discard them in a reasonable time and multitudes more will be able to strengthen their eyes so as to be spared the trouble and expense of ever getting glasses. Eye troubles of many descriptions may be wonderfully benefited by following the simple rules. Here is the prescription: Go to any active drug store and get a bottle of Bon-Opto tablets. Drop one Bon-Opto tablet in a fourth of a glass of water and allow to dissolve. With this liquid bathe the eyes two to four times daily. You should notice your eyes clear up perceptibly right from the start and inflammation will quickly disappear. If your eyes are bothering you, even a little, take steps to save them now before it is too late. Many hopelessly blind might have been saved if they had cared for their eyes in time.

Note—Those publishing Physician to whom the above refers, states that Bon-Opto is a very powerful remedy, its constituents are well known to eminent eye specialists and widely prescribed by them. The manufacturers guarantee it to relieve any case of eye trouble that can be relieved by glasses, or refund the money. It can be obtained from any good druggist and is one of the very few proprietary preparations which should be kept on hand for use in almost every family." It is sold in Peterboro in this city by McDermid & Jory, and all other good druggists.

TIRED OF CHAOS.

Middle Classes In Russia May Take Action.

Five representatives of Russian political organizations who are now in London have issued a statement in which they assert that they are of the opinion that the salvation of Russia requires, first of all, that Russia should be liberated from the Bolsheviki. They ask for the active help of the Entente Allies for Russians who are fighting Bolsheviki rule.

The delegation includes two Moderate Conservatives, one Liberal and two Moderate Socialists. They were sent to the Allied countries to inform the Governments and peoples of Russia's critical position. The members of the delegation are Vladimir Gurko; Nicholas Shebeko, formerly Russian ambassador at Vienna; Sergius Tretiakoff, formerly president of the Russian Ecumenical Council; Alexander Titoff and Constantine Krovoposkoff. The two last named are Moderate Socialists. This mission when in Paris was headed by Prof. Paul Miliukoff, leader of the Russian Constitutional Democrats and formerly Foreign Minister, but his name is not included among those who make public the appeal for help for Russia.

"The German domination in Russia and its artificial splitting into independent parts," says the Russian representatives, "is contrary to the aspirations of the masses and of all the sane elements which demand the union of the whole country in a single state whose ultimate fate must be determined by the free decision of the peoples inhabiting Russia.

"For this purpose active help is required from the Allies for all those parts of Russia which are in conflict with the Bolsheviki and who are starving to reunite and regenerate Russia.

"In the south this help must be given first to the voluntary army which is fighting against the Bolsheviki in the Northern Caucasus. Besides, to create order, it is necessary to occupy temporarily the most important towns and railway junctions in the south of Russia so as to prevent the advance of the Bolsheviki from the north and the spreading of anarchy, that has already ruined the north of Russia.

"A barrier against the Bolshevism spreading from the north will enable the voluntary army to consolidate and grow. It will be possible by conscription to convert this voluntary army into a vast army in the south of Russia and, together with Siberia and the northern territory to crush the Bolsheviki and to reunite the whole of free Russia in the coming spring.

"Therefore the Allied help is not required for the purpose of taking an offensive against the Bolsheviki but to create conditions that will enable the same elements to organise themselves, to create a government mechanism and an army. All the rest as well as the internal organisation of the country must be left to the Russians themselves.

"Quite a separate problem is the salvation of Petrograd. During the Bolshevik regime the population had diminished to 600,000. The liberation of this city at the earliest possibel date by the Allies is called for by considerations of humanity now that the Allies have access to the dying capital through the Baltic Sea. If in time of war America considered it her duty to save Europe from the yoke of Prussianism, now at the moment of the approaching peace a new task is confronting her—the salvation of the Russian democracy and of the whole of Russian civilization from the Bolshevik barbarity. If the help is not given quickly and decisively, Russia, instead of a free democratic country will be crushed in a state of unheard of dictatorship, that will make a stable and a lasting peace impossible, that will be a constant threat not only to its neighbors, but to the whole of Europe."

According to the statement, the Socialist members of the delegation are of the opinion that Soviet rule in Russia is the deadliest enemy to democracy.

WORDS OF PRAISE FOR BABY'S OWN TABLETS

No medicine receives such great praise from thankful mothers as do Baby's Own Tablets. Once a mother has used them for her little ones she will use nothing else. The Tablets are a mild but thorough laxative. They regulate the bowels and stomach; drive out constipation and indigestion, cure colds and simple fevers; promote healthful sleep and make teething easy. Concerning them Mrs. Omer LeBleu, Maddington Falls, Que., writes:—"I am well satisfied with Baby's Own Tablets and will always use them for my little ones." The Tablets are sold by medicine dealers or by mail at 25 cents a box from The Dr. Williams' Medicine Co., Brockville, Ont.

AN IMPECUNIOUS SHOPPER.

I am a woman, so of course I love a bargain well.
I love to read the daily ads. of what there is to sell.
And if I had the money I should haste to buy a lot
Of stuff I didn't need—oh, yes, I should, as like as not.

I'd buy silk stockings No. 8, a dozen in a box,
And hats with plumes a-waving off and foolish, frilly frocks;
Some pairs of dainty boots, size 3, "Marked down from six to four."
And gloves and gloves and gloves and gloves—kid, silk and suede galore!

But, oh, I cannot spare the cash, because we have to eat,
And I cannot find a market that has bargain sales of meat.
"A tender sirloin part price off," "Veal cutlets, strictly calf,"
"Roasts, warranted at cost" and "Hams marked smartly down to half."

"Bargains in meat!" Oh, much I'd like to see a truthful ad
Like that. I'd go to market then, serene and blithe and glad.
But where, and where, is such a thing? Nowhere! So I repeat
I can't have swifty clothes because my family has to eat!

YOUR SICK CHILD IS CONSTIPATED! LOOK AT TONGUE

Hurry Mother! Remove Poisons From Little Stomach, Liver, and Bowels.

Give "California Syrup of Figs" if Cross, Bilious or Feverish.

If your little one is out of sorts, half sick, isn't resting, eating and acting naturally—look, Mother! see if the tongue is coated. This is a sure sign that the little stomach, liver and bowels are clogged with waste. When cross, irritable, feverish, stomach sour, breath bad, or has stomach-ache, diarrhoea, sore throat, full of cold, give a teaspoonful of "California Syrup of Figs," and in a few hours all the constipated poison, undigested food and sour bile gently moves out of the little bowels without griping, and you have a well, playful child again.

Mothers can rest easy after giving this harmless "fruit laxative," because it never fails to clean the little one's liver and bowels and sweeten the stomach, and they dearly love its pleasant taste. Full directions for babies, children of all ages and for grown ups printed on each bottle.

Beware of counterfeit fig syrups. Ask your druggist for a bottle of "California Syrup of Figs," then see that it is made by the "California Fig Syrup Company."

VACCINATION AT THE HUB.

Fortunately the Question Was Not as Indiscreet as It Seemed.

It was at a dinner party. The bright young man found himself privileged to sit next to the young woman with beautiful arms and neck. He thought himself the most favored personage in the room. Suddenly his fair companion exhibited signs of nervousness. Two of his best jokes, saved for a special occasion, passed by unnoticed. Her face wore a look of alarm. Apprehensively the young man gazed at her, and meeting the look she said:

"I am in misery."

"In misery?" echoed the man.

"Yes," she replied. "I was vaccinated the other day, and it has taken beautifully. I could almost scream, it hurts so."

The young man looked at the beautiful arms and, seeing no mark there, said:

"Why, where were you vaccinated?"

Medical Science In War.

The following figures give some idea of the extent to which medical science is conquering fatal sickness in war.

In the South African War only one man died of wounds to every five or so who died from disease. In the Russo-Japanese War there were two deaths from wounds to one from disease.

The figures in the Australian units in this war show that 100 men die of wounds for each one who dies from one of the many illnesses developed by trench warfare and all the other enemies of the doctor.

The figures are the more remarkable when it is remembered that the deaths from wounds are now a very small proportion of the total wounded.—Tit-Bits.

A Princess Resigns.

Now and again princes of the blood royal have renounced their right of succession in order to marry the women of their choice. Such instances are not so common among princesses. This may not be so much due to the truth of the charge that is made that women, fundamentally, are less democratic than men as to the fact that princesses, being looked upon as pawns in the diplomatic game, are given less freedom of choice as a rule than their brothers. Whatever the cause of the distinction, it exists, and consequently the public will take a peculiar satisfaction in the announcement that, preliminary to her marriage to Commander Lord Alexander Ramsay, a man much inferior to her in rank, Princess Patricia of Connaught has renounced her title of princess and after her marriage will be known simply as Lady Patricia Ramsay. Princess Pat, as she is affectionately known, not only at home, where she was called "England's pet princess," but in Canada, while not exactly in the line of royal succession, is a granddaughter of Queen Victoria, and permission for her to give up her title as princess had to be especially granted by King George. This renunciation deprives her of the right to be called "your royal highness," but will make her relations with her friends more informal and agreeable.

He Was Irish.

It is customary right after morning parade for the company to fall in for police duty details, and equally customary for the majority to suddenly remember at that time something which must be done immediately. One police sergeant, one morning, looking over the line, remarked: "I see many missing faces here!"

Clover Seed in the U. S.

Clover seed production in the United States in 1918, according to the Bureau of Crop Estimates, was only 2,000,000 pounds, against 89,000,000 one year earlier and 102,000,000 two years earlier.

A Delinquent Citizen.

"Can you direct me to these offices?" inquired the man with a slip of paper in his hand.

"No. I have lived in Washington all my life. You had better ask some one who has made a study of the town since all these new buildings went up."

Had Hacking Cough Couldn't Sleep Nights

Hacking coughs are very wearing on the system. The constant coughing disturbs the rest, and keeps the lungs and bronchial tubes in an irritated and inflamed condition.

Don't neglect the hacking cough. You can get rid of it with a few doses of Dr. Wood's Norway Pine Syrup; the most prompt, pleasant tated and inflamed condition.

Miss Catherine M. McLean, Craik, Sask., writes:—"Last winter I caught a heavy cold and was laid up for some time. I had such a hacking cough I couldn't sleep at night. I didn't think I would get over it. One day a friend dropped in to see me and was surprised to see how bad my cough was. She advised me to try Dr. Wood's Norway Pine Syrup. The next day I sent for a bottle, and I soon got relief, and by the time I had taken two bottles my cough was all gone, and now I am able to do my work again. I don't think there is anything to equal it."

There are plenty of "pine" preparations on the market trying to live on the reputation of "Dr. Wood's." The genuine is put up in a yellow wrapper, three pine trees the trade mark, price 25c and 50c a bottle. Put up only by The T. Milburn Co., Limited, Toronto, Ont.

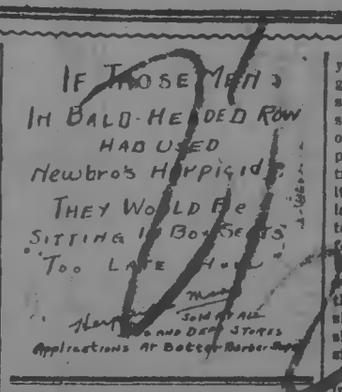
OUR DAILY SHORT STORY

LINCOLN NO. 2

The Case of Prue and the Gawk of a Bean Pole Lawyer.

By GRANT LESTER.



For a good many years people had said that Farmer Johnson's wife was head of his house and that he was a great encumbrance to her. They had a farm just outside a thriving town, and had it been left to the wife there were many promising speculations she would have entered into. She was allowed to boss things around the farm, but when it came to outside matters the husband would take no risks. When his death finally took place people looked to see Aunt Betty, as she was called, though only forty years old, carry out some of her ideas and make things hum. They were not disappointed. She went into strawberries and made money; she went into the dairy business and made money; she went into poultry and made money. It was said that there were not half a dozen men in the county who had her business sense.

Aunt Betty had a daughter nineteen years old, by name Prue. Prue did not run to business. She was simply a sweet tempered and lovable girl, who attended school in town in the winter and helped about the housework in summer. Up to the time of the father's death the mother had not "suffered aspirations" regarding Prue's future. It was implicitly understood that she would marry some young farmer and settle down to the humdrum life. But after the mother had become a business woman there were other plans for the girl. She was to be educated in music and other arts and made a lady of.

Just how Prue Johnson and Darius Livingstone first met is of no great consequence. He was twenty-two and had graduated as a lawyer and settled in the town. He was a slab sided young man, tall and angular and ungainly. There were a few people who said that he might know more than he showed, but the majority were of the opinion that he didn't know whether potatoes grew in the ground or on trees. If Prue held with the majority it was rather singular that the young lawyer should have come driving out to the farm one June day to inquire for her. She was upstairs at the time, and it was her mother who received him. At the first glance she thought him the homeliest young man she had ever seen. After the second she took him for some peddler of music, went upstairs and said to Prue:

"There's a bean pole downstairs asking for you. I never saw such a gawk. He says his name is Livingstone. He's enough to scare a setting hen off the nest. Did you ever hear of any such feller?"

"Why, ma, he's a lawyer in town, and we have met three or four times," replied Prue as her face flushed scarlet.

"A lawyer—humph! If you was to put a club in his hand he wouldn't know enough to pound sand. What's he here for?"

"Why—why, he said he might call some day. I don't see why you call him homely. I've heard lots of folks say that he reminded them of Abraham Lincoln."

The mother sniffed her contempt and turned away. Prue went down and received her caller, and, though Mrs. Johnson was rather busy around the house and yard, she saw and heard enough to satisfy her that the young man was "interested." He remained for an hour or so and then left, and while his back was yet in sight Prue was properly warned.

"I shall have to have a son-in-law some day," added the mother, "but I want one who'll look won't sour all the milk and who knows a cabbage head from an old gander. Lawyer! Lawyer! Why, the poorest lawyer we've got in town would make your young man look like a bobtailed woodchuck if they had a case in court."

Prue ran away without talking back, and things quieted down for a week. Then the mother came home from town one afternoon to blurt out:

"Do you know what I heard this afternoon? At least half a dozen people told me that you and that scarecrow young lawyer were in love."

"Oh, mamma!"

"You needn't 'Oh, mamma!' me. If you've fallen in love with any such man I'm ashamed of you. Why, that red headed, cross eyed Sue Williams wouldn't look at him."

"We are not in love," stoutly protested Prue.

"Then what are you looking so red for?"

"Because—because we are simply friends. That is, he's awfully smart when you come to talk with him. I've been reading the life of Lincoln, and it's wonderful how much alike they are."

"Wonderful bosh! Abe Lincoln was smarter in a whip as a lawyer."

"But Darius is going to be if he ever gets a case."

"Ever gets a case! I'd like to know who'd trust him with a case!"

The young man called again in about a week, ostensibly to make inquiries concerning the strawberry pest, and, while Mrs. Johnson didn't order him off the farm, she gave him what she called a chilling reception. The fact that he didn't seem at all put out aggravated her, and but for a business engagement taking up her attention she would have had much to say to Prue. Four days later she came into the house to say:

"Well, when I dreamed of black bugs one night last week I knew that trouble would come. I've got a lawsuit on hand. It seems that those three cows I bought over in Delevan last week had a chattel mortgage on them. The holder of it wants $90 from me. I must either pay or be sued. I told him to sue as soon as he pleased, and he'll probably summon me tomorrow."

"And you'll have to have a lawyer?"

"Of course. I'm going to drive into town to see Lawyer Parsons."

"But why not give Mr. Livingstone the case?"

"Prue Johnson, do you take me for an idiot?" exclaimed the mother in astonishment. "Do you think I want to lose $90 and costs, besides $10 more for a lawyer! Folks around here think I'm a pretty smart woman, and I don't want to be made a laughingstock of. That bean pole of a young man would not know enough to cross examine an old cow."

Lawyer Parsons, who was the leading member of the bar in the town, was retained, and the expected summons was served next day. A week later the suit came on. During the interval young Livingstone drove out to the Johnson farm. Miss Prue had gone to town to do some shopping, and the mother was blunt and brusque. The budding attorney almost offered his services in the coming suit, and the look he received in reply lingered with him for many hours. When Prue got home she was told that there had got to be a stop to this sort of thing, but when she burst into tears and said she could not help it, her mother was reasonable enough to reply that maybe she could not.

The girl went to town with the mother on the day of the suit. In the courtroom a shock of surprise awaited her. Darius Livingstone appeared as counsel for the complainant. Yes, he was there in all his dignity, and he didn't seem a bit frightened that it was his first case and that he was matched against one of the oldest and smartest lawyers in the county. He nodded to Prue and would have done the same to her mother had she not just then been engaged in whispering to her daughter.

"Prue Johnson, look over there! As true as you live your bean pole of a young man is going to take the case against me! That's another specimen of his cheek. You wait, however. When Parsons gets through with him there'll be only a grease spot left."

Surprise after surprise was the order of the day. The plaintiff really had a chattel mortgage on the cows. They had been driven away and sold. In buying them Mrs. Johnson had taken the seller's word. Her lawyer argued that this was customary, but "bean pole" brought in six witnesses to prove to the contrary. Mrs. Johnson was made to admit that she was a business woman and that she had never bought even a chicken without being guaranteed. A dozen errors were made in her case, and before it was concluded Mr. Parsons was made to look extremely foolish. The jury gave a verdict for the plaintiff, and Prue shed tears beneath her veil and realized that she would see no more of Lincoln No. 2. She was in despair when her mother walked up to the young attorney and held out her hand, saying:

"Sir, I am a blunt and plain spoken woman. You are lop shouldered and slabsided, you are as homely as a hedgehog in March, but you are a talker and are certain to make a good lawyer. If I ever have a son-in-law I hope he'll be one of the profession. No, don't make any excuses. You had a right to take the other side, and I hold no grudge against you. If you want to know how good cheese is made come out to the farm."

Mr. Livingstone did want to know. He had always been curious about it. He took early advantage of her offer, and at last reports he and Miss Prue had decided to go south on their wedding tour.

Freezone is the sensational discovery of a Cincinnati genius. It is wonderful.

IF BACKACHY OR KIDNEYS BOTHER

Uric acid in meat excites the kidneys, they become overworked; get sluggish, ache, and feel like lumps of lead. The urine becomes cloudy; the bladder is irritated, and you may be obliged to seek relief two or three times during the night. When the kidneys clog you must help them flush off the body's urinous waste or you'll be a real sick person shortly. At first you feel a dull misery in the kidney region, you suffer from backache, sick headache, dizziness, stomach sour, tongue coated and you feel rheumatic twinges when the weather is bad.

Eat less meat, drink lots of water; also get from any pharmacist four ounces of Jad Salts; take a tablespoonful in a glass of water before breakfast for a few days and your kidneys will then act fine. This famous salts is made from the acid of grapes and lemon juice, combined with lithia, and has been used for generations to clean clogged kidneys and stimulate them to normal activity, also to neutralize the acids in urine, so it no longer is a source of irritation, thus ending bladder weakness.

Jad Salts is inexpensive, cannot injure; makes a delightful effervescent lithia-water drink which everyone should take now and then to keep the kidneys clean and active. Druggists here say they sell lots of Jad Salts to folks who believe in overcoming kidney trouble while it is only trouble.

Drydock a Dutch Invention.

A correspondent in Holland draws our attention to the fact that the construction instant country of a floating dock of 14,000 tons, for Batchayan harbor, in the Dutch Indies, should remind us that the floating drydock is a Dutch invention, and that many floating docks of this type are built on Dutch ways and towed to their destination. Drydock towing is a specialty and many foreign built boats are towed to their destination by Dutch tugs.—Scientific American.

Remarkable Story Told

By Maria Botchkareva, Leader of Death Battalion

My name is Maria Botchkareva. You probably first heard of me when I formed the Women's Death Battalion in Russia. But, dear me, I had experiences before that. I was in the war from the beginning. It was only after the revolution that I formed the Women's Battalion to shame our men who would not fight to drive out the Germans. In the army my name was "Yashka," and that is what I called my book, which Isaac Don Levine has written for me, because I am one of those 90 per cent. illiterate peasants in Russia of whom you have heard often enough. I can hardly write my name. I am thirty years old.

My parents were utterly poor and destitute. My father was born in serfdom. When he married my mother he gave her her first pair of shoes as a wedding present. My mother's mother, my grandmother, had worked from sunrise to sundown for ten kopecks a day, or five cents in your money. I myself began to work when I was eight years old. I worked for three years in a grocery store, cooking and scrubbing from morning till night, and sleeping on a box in the passageway. I received a ruble a month and my board. When I was fifteen I had a position as a domestic servant, for which I received seven rubles a month. I was seduced by a promise of marriage by one of the officers in the household.

I then married, at fifteen, Afanasi Botchkaref, a common moujik. The day after we were married we both went down to the docks to hire ourselves as day laborers. We helped to load and unload barges. I was never afraid of hard work. After that we both obtained work in an asphalt firm. Afanasi drank and had the habit of beating me. To escape from Afanasi I jumped into the river, but was pulled out.

MARIA BOTCHKAREVA.

I went to Irkutsk, where I had a sister. On the journey a strange woman befriended me and I found myself in a house of shame. I was saved by Yasha, whom I loved. He was the son of a butcher. We had a civil marriage. We bought three cows and I started in to learn how to butcher. I was the first woman butcher in that locality, as I was later to be the first woman soldier. A "baba" (woman) a butcher! everybody said, as later they said, "A 'baba' a soldier!" Yasha and I were happy until he was sent to Siberia for helping a political prisoner. I followed him and tried to get his pardon from the Siberian governor. The chapter in my book called "Snared by a libertine governor" will tell what happened to me then. I tried to kill myself by taking poison and was ill for months. When I returned to Yasha, he began right away to make a noose to hang me. It was only when I lost consciousness that he came to his senses and released me. Yasha in Siberia had become a professional gambler.

And now [illegible] the great war. I heard a voice telling me to go to help my country just like that French girl long ago. At first they refused to accept me as a recruit. I had to get a letter from the Czar himself before they would take me. I shall never forget the first night in the general barracks with all the men. Throughout the night I had to beat them off. When I felt an arm stealing around my neck, I restored it to the owner with a crash. The next one I kicked in the side. Another one I banged in the face. After that they left me alone. It was a long time before I could make myself share the common bath with the men. But finally I had to do this, too. I was a soldier.

There is not space to tell all of my experiences while a soldier. You will see by my picture that I have four wound stripes. My most serious wound was a piece of shell that lodged at the base of the spine and left me paralysed for months. I was in the thick of some fighting, I can tell you. You can read about it in my book. Probably no other soldiers in the war suffered the horrors that we Russian soldiers suffered, owing to the betrayals of officials and officers, many of whom were Germans.

The revolution in Petrograd came in the spring of 1917. Immediately there was an ocean of talk in the rear and complete inactivity at the front. Talk has killed Russia. Both Kerensky and Rodzianko, president of the Duma, supported my plan to form a Woman's Death Battalion to shame the men who refused to fight. I shall never forget that day in the great cathedral when they gave me the banner with my name, Maria Botchkareva, written upon it. I also appeared on the platform and spoke with Kerensky and others.

But I soon had troubles with the Bolshevist agitators, who tried to prevent the organization of the battalion, and with Kerensky himself, who insisted that there should be no punishments or discipline, and that I should form committees. Committees had destroyed the Russian army, and I refused. I defied Kerensky, and he was very angry. I told him committees did nothing but talk. I believed in discipline. I sometimes slapped the girls. During one of our abortive and costly offensives, while our company was being cut to pieces, they "deliberated" in the rear for hours whether to come to our aid. When I saw one of my girls and a soldier making love, I bayoneted the girl. The man escaped.

The Bolsheviks became stronger and never ceased their attacks upon the battalion. Twenty of my girls were lynched by the maddened soldiers, who wanted everybody to lay down his arms, and did not care whether the country was given over to the Germans or not. In April, 1918, I came to America to ask your intervention to help to save Russia. You may think my story reads like a dime novel. If so, there is at least one dime novel that is true. It is I, Botchkareva, who was called Yashka in the army, who tells you this. Of all the stories of the war, perhaps mine is the strangest. I hope you will read my book, and pray for Holy Russia that she may be saved from the nightmare of terror that has overwhelmed her.

A REIGN OF TERROR.

Mexican Bandits Supposed to Have Prominent Leader.

The record of crimes attributed to the supposed organization popularly known as the "gray automobile robber band" has been augmented by the killing in the Federal Penitentiary of Francisco Oviedo. Oviedo had been a prisoner for a year and a half and was accused of being one of the sub chiefs of the robber band which has operated in Mexico for two years or more. He was slain with a dagger by a negro prisoner who was charged with nine other murders.

The killing of Oviedo places another obstacle in the path of the authorities who for two years have been trying to discover the supposed man or men "higher up" who direct the operations of the robber band which uses a gray automobile in making their raids.

Six men, including Oviedo, were held in the penitentiary accused of being members of the band. Several weeks ago one of them, Rafael Melcadante, is said to have offered to confess. Shortly afterward he died from an unknown cause in his cell. Two weeks later Oviedo offered to tell what he knew and two days afterward he was killed. Four others who remained in prison have not offered any statements to the authorities.

The gray automobile, late in 1916 and early in 1917, figured in numerous daring and productive raids. Posing as agents of the district government and bearing forged credentials, the occupants would stop in front of a house, enter it on the pretext of searching for arms or robbers, or with no pretext at all, take what they fancied and drive away. At the height of their career the bandits, pursued by a police motor car, waged a running fight with their pursuers through the Paseo de la Reforma, one of the principal highways of the city. Several deaths resulted from the interchange of rifle shots.

Later a society woman complained to the authorities that she had seen a valuable necklace stolen from her by the auto bandits on the neck of an actress. Called upon to explain, the dancer asserted that the jewels were a present from an admirer. The alleged giver was a general in the Mexican army. The necklace was returned, but apparently this clue did not lead to the leaders of the robbers.

The operatives, however, finally were surrounded while engaged in robbing a house in the foreign colony. But each time that it appeared that the truth was near disclosure, the principal witness, counted on by the state to establish its case, dies. Thus passed Mercadante and Oviedo.

PRACTICAL HEALTH HINT.

Reducing Flesh.

For reduction of flesh a simple hot bath is supplied with four pounds of washing soda and one pound of bicarbonate of soda. First the feet and wrists are warmed and then gradually the body, so that the shock is not too great. The tub should be well filled. Hot water should be slowly added as it cools. The treatment requires one to stay in the bath for twenty minutes. A flannel dressing gown, full length, is then slipped on, and the patient goes to bed between blankets. A glass of hot water is also taken at this time. Profuse perspiration naturally follows, and one should stay in bed for an hour or longer. After leaving the bed care should be taken to keep out of drafts and to remain indoors for the rest of the day, as the pores are open, and a slight chill might result in a cold or something more serious. These baths are somewhat weakening, so must be used sparingly. A hot bath without the addition of soda will frequently break up a cold that is just starting. The above precautions should likewise be carried out.

Dublin Ahead of the Times.

They are a little ahead of the times in Dublin. You may buy there colored postcards bearing pictures of King George and Queen Mary opening the new Irish parliament. One card shows them driving up in a carriage with postillions to the steps of the parliament building, at the entrance to which flies a flag bearing the words, "Welcome to Erin." The interior view represents the king and queen on the dais, with most of the members of the house looking in the other direction, while the gallery is packed with women.—New York Sun.

Good Class of Peasantry.

"You have a beautiful manor house, but you ought to have a little village for the peasantry, as we do in England. It adds to the landscape."

"All right," said the multimillionaire, "but it must be a restricted affair. No peasant admitted earning less than $5,000 a year."—Kansas City Journal.

What is a double acting baking powder?

A double-acting baking powder is one that starts its action in the mixing bowl and finishes it in the oven.

Ordinary baking powders develop their full strength in the mixing bowl and you have to hurry your cakes into the oven. Then, you are always afraid that the oven is not just hot enough, or that a door will slam or something else happen to cause the cakes to fall.

You don't have to hurry or worry when Egg-O Baking Powder is used. Egg-O rises only partly in the bowl. You may let the dough stand 15 or 20 minutes or longer—doing so will give better results. When put into the oven, Egg-O continues its action—this second action being so steady and strong that a cake is not likely to fall even if it does get an unexpected jar.

EGG-O Baking Powder

is double-acting and just what is needed to make a light baking with the heavy Government Standard flours.

Peterboro City Council Declined to Support the Petition for Temperance

COUNCIL MEETING

A letter was read from the Dominion Alliance at last night's meeting of the City Council asking that a petition which will be sent to the Dominion Government be endorsed by the Peterborough City Council. The petition asked the Government to prohibit the manufacture or importation of liquor for beverage purposes. Varied views were taken by the different aldermen and Ald. McIntyre, supported by Ald. Taylor, moved that no action be taken. They thought it was a matter to be left entirely in the hands of the Government and the City Council had no business in interfering in any way. Ald. Edgar moved an amendment, which was seconded by Alderman Hamilton, that the petition of the Dominion Alliance be endorsed. Ald. Garside, Hamilton and Edgar voted for the amendment and Aldermen Phelan, Taylor, McIntyre, Morrison and Gainey supported the motion.

Labour Men Appointed.

Mayor Duncan explained the text of a letter received from the Trades and Labour Council asking the City Council to appoint a fair price committee to investigate the prevailing price of bread and foodstuffs. Ald. Taylor moved, seconded by Ald. McIntyre, that the three Labour aldermen, Garside, Morrison and Gainey, be the fair price committee. Ald. Gainen objected to this motion, saying that Labour men should not comprise the whole committee. Ald. Morrison was in favour of the whole City Council being a fair price committee. Despite protests the motion was carried, with the proposed members of the committee alone dissenting.

Increase Cost.

Ald. Phelan, chairman of the Board of Works, brought the fair wage clause which was inserted in the bridge specifications at a previous meeting of the City Council by Ald. Gainey to the attention of the Council. He asked Mr. Frank Barber, the bridge engineer, to speak on the subject. Mr. Barber asked that a clearer definition of the fair wage clause be supplied so that tenderers may have a clear conception of the wages to be paid in the event of their tenders being accepted. He threw a bomb into the camp when he said that tenderers may, if they found the rates of the Union liable to increase while the bridge was being constructed, put in their tender a sum of perhaps $10,000 to meet any such contingencies. This would materially increase the cost of the bridge. Ald. Edgar tried to get around the difficulty by moving that tenders for the construction of the bridge be asked for, both with the fair wage clause inserted and without a fair wage clause, and see the effect. Ald. Garside promptly seconded the motion, but the other Labour aldermen did not seem to favour it.

Ald. Morrison:—"You will have to pay the Union and prevailing wage and we should have the estimates that way."

Ald. Gainey—"If the cost of living goes up it is the privilege of the Unions to ask for higher wages. This request of Mr. Barber is uncalled for."

Ald. Edgar's motion went to a vote and was carried as follows:

For— Ald. Phelan, McIntyre, Garside, Edgar, Taylor, Hamilton and the Mayor.

Against—Ald. Morrison and Gainey.

A Generator.

Ald. Morrison, chairman of the Fire, Water and Light committee, asked permission to buy a generator set at a cost of $3,000, to be installed at the fire hall. He and the Mayor were authorised to purchase the set.

The old question of liability in the sewage obstruction case of Mr. J. Davey, 517 Division street, who at a subsequent meeting was ordered to pay the entire cost of removing the obstruction, was revived by Ald. McIntyre. He was of the opinion that the city should pay half of the cost. He

Report Has Been Denied

Italian Delegation Did Not Threaten to Withdraw From Conference.

(United Press.)

PARIS, March 22.—Captain Ferucol, head of the Italian Press Bureau, to-day officially denied reports that Italy has threatened to withdraw from the Peace Conference, which is understood to have been circulated by a Press Association. Reports that the Italian delegation has threatened to withdraw from the Peace Conference if Italy is not given Fiume are absolutely untrue he declared.

The above report was carried yesterday by the Associated Press.

"Y" Minstrels Score Again

Performance Most Successfully Repeated Last Night.

The Y.M.C.A. minstrels, under the direction of Mr. Asa Huycke, added to their laurels at the Grand Opera House last night, when their second performance scored a big hit. The programme went through with professional snap and smoothness last night. The soloists all scored heavily, the chorus sang harmoniously and well, the end men's jokes and specialties were cleverly handled and the whole performance was a triumph for Mr. Huycke and the members of his company. The dancing numbers of the second part, upon which Miss Littlefield of the Y.W.C.A. is to be congratulated, were almost artistically performed. The Rainbow dance by the Y.W.C.A. trio, the French dance by the Y.W.C.A. girls and the dance by the Y.M.C.A. girls and boys in the finale were all successfully given, while the Irish jig by Miss Regetta Lewis and Miss Beryl Bo..., two clever young performers, was a number that brought forth well-earned applause. The whole performance was a splendid success, and encores were so numerous that the programme was extended to a considerable length.

WILL PUT IT UP TO SENATE

Delay Will Interfere With the Establishment of Peace Conditions —Must Ratify Treaty.

MEETING TO-DAY

(United Press.)
(By Fred A. Ferguson.

PARIS, March 22. — The league of nations committee, President Wilson presiding, met to-day to consider the amendments to the covenant proposed by the neutrals during the last two days.

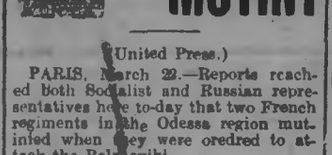
While the constitution was thus being reshaped the United Press was informed authoritatively that the American Senate will have to accept or reject the entire preliminary peace treaty, including the league covenant. Separation of the treaty and the covenant, as cables from the United States indicate the Republican senators are planning to do, would be impossible under the programme now being followed for drawing up the pact.

INTEGRAL PART.

Whether the covenant is in the body of the treaty or is attached as an integral part of the pact, it was learned from authoritative sources with the possible interweaving of references to the covenant in articles fixing the terms of peace. Consequently, it was pointed out, the Senate must ratify the treaty without amendment to the covenant or will have to refer the entire document back to President Wilson and the State Department.

If such a situation develops it naturally will mean a delay in the exchange of ratifications among the various allied governments, and postpone the establishment of peace conditions.

FRENCH SOLDIERS MUTINY



(United Press.)

PARIS, March 22.—Reports reached both Socialist and Russian representatives here to-day that two French regiments in the Odessa region mutinied when they were ordered to attack the Bolsheviki.

The French troops were said to have sent a delegation to their officers, declaring that they were "ready to fight for France but not to fight our brothers." Reminded that this was mutiny, and that the penalty was death, the soldiers were reported to have said theiy recognized this, but that their decision would not be altered.

Inspired By Wild West "Movies" Two Boys "Hanged" Chum

Emulating "wild west" movie actors, several boys in the south end almost hanged little Freddie Shambo, 95 Rubidge street, about a week ago, and left the lad in such a condition that he is still under the care of Dr. King, who said this morning that the boy would not be well for some time yet. The startling prank took place in the south end near the terminus of the C.G.E. line.

The directors of this bit of realism were boys of 12 and 13 years, but their victim was much younger. They tied his feet with true cowboy effect, and then twisted a rope around his neck, giving it four knots. Fred Shambo kept silent about the affair until Monday, when the doctor was called. One side of his face and neck was swollen like a tumour, and his neck was bruised and scarred from the mark of the rope. The boy gave few details of his experience, and it is not certain to what extent the "movie" executioners proceeded with their exploit of "Eddie Polo" or some such star. It is believed that the two stars of this action actually started to string up young Shambo, but their bravado failed, fortunately, at the last moment. There were two little girls, and one who loosened the victim from his bonds, who were threatened with the same thrills, but when the Shambo lad was nearly exausted, the two ringleaders faded away, or dissolved like the finales of the films.

Several By-laws Passed By City Council at Special Meeting Held Last Evening

Playgrounds Association Ask for Grant of Two Thousand Dollars—Illuminated Signs Must be Kept Illuminated—Aldermen Burn Midnight Oil.

The following by-laws received the three readings at the special meeting of the city council last night which broke up at midnight. All the by-laws were passed.

1. Authorizing the grant of $2000 to the Industrial Board.
2. Giving increases in salary to some of the city officials.
3. Fixing the tax rate at 31 mills and levying the taxes for the year 1919
4. Amending an original by-law re electric signs.
5. Providing the sum of $484.20 upon debentures to pay for the construction of sidewalks.
6. Providing for a sum of money to be raised upon debentures to pay for the construction and repairing of sidewalks.
7. Authorizing the agreement made with Mr. John Gibson in connection with the care of Central and Victoria Parks.
8. Authorizing the City Trust Commission to renew the lease of the theatre property of Mr. Michael Pappas to him at a yearly rental of $800.

By-law number No. 4 provides that all illuminated signs must be kept illuminated from a half an hour after sunset until ten o'clock at night. Ald Hamilton objected to the city leasing the valuable Royal property to Mr. Pappas for such an inconsiderable sum of $800. The mayor pointed out to Ald. Hamilton that the City Council had no recourse in the matter it was entirely in the hands of the City Trust Commission. On a vote being taken Ald. Hamilton alone voted nay.

Swimming Pool.

A bit of ancient history was revived at last night's meeting of the City Council when a deputation from the Playgrounds Association composed of the president, Mr. A. G. Roberts, Mrs. W. R. Morris, and Mrs. James Kendry asked that the grant of $500 which was voted this year to the Playgrounds Association for a swimming pool be increased to a sum which would be adequate for a first class swimming pool. Two thousand dollars was the sum suggested and Mrs. Morris stated that this would make an increase of only one sixth of a mill to the taxes which would not be a burden to the tax payer, and the speaker thought the required sum could be raised without adding to the present rate of 31 mills. Every year [illegible] surplus which could be devoted to the building of a swimming pool. The column of miscellaneous expenditures could also be drawn upon.

Ald. Edgar reminded Mrs. Morris that the rate had already been struck and the miscellaneous column was placed there in order to have a celebration in honour of Peterboro's returning soldiers.

The deputation made it clear that they would not accept a grant of $500 but that they wanted the council to become interested in the plan.

Expert Swimmers.

Mrs. Morris thought that the work would receive the approbation of the ratepayers. She spoke of the inadequacy of the Y.M.C.A. and Y. W. C. A. pools to provide the younger element of the city with proper bathing facilities although the Y.M.C.A. was endeavoring to do all in its power to solve the situation.

Inspector Pa... too far away from the centre of the city and was not convenient so the supervisors of the playgrounds could watch the children. There would be six supervisors this year as a third playground was to be established as a result of the grants of the Board of Education Only expert swimmers would be engaged as supervisors and these would be in charge at a public bathing place.

Some years ago the Association had mentioned $1000 as a sum which would cover the expense of building a pool but in the intervening years labour and material had risen so enormously in value that nothing short of $2,000 would be adequate.

Recalled the Great Fire

Member in Commons Discusses "Fish and Lobsters"—No Repetition.

(Special to Examiner.)

OTTAWA, March 22. — Memory of the great fire of February 3, 1916, which destroyed the House of Parliament, was recalled vividly to the Commons last night, still sitting as a result of that conflagration, in the temporary quarters of the Museum.

W. S. Loggie of Northumberland, N.B., was discussing fish and lobsters, when J. J. Denis of Joliette, suddenly remarked that Loggie had been talking about the very same subject when the fire was announced three years ago, and he suggested they had better be careful on such dangerous ground.

It was just before nine o'clock on that fateful Feb. 3rd that Mr. Loggie was saying: "In my judgment fish are sold at moderate prices all over the Dominion when, according to Hansard, "C. R. Stewart, chief doorkeeper of the House of Commons, came hurriedly into the Chamber, and called out, 'There is a big fire in the reading room; everybody get out quickly.'"

Fortunately there was no repetition of the disaster on this occasion.

Big Republic Truck Deal

Mr. A. [illegible] Has Secured the Agency for This District.

The Nova Scotia Government has placed an order with the Republic Motor Truck Company for fifty trucks of different capacity. These trucks will be distributed throughout the province, for the purpose of road building. Mr. C. Brown, the local McLaughlin dealer has the district agency for the Republic Truck in this district. He states that there will be two of the Republic Trucks on exhibition at the coming Motor Show.

"Brass Hats" Interfere

Advance Agents From London Seek to Meddle With Arrangements of War Railway Board.

HALIFAX, N. S., March 22. — Argyll House is not contributing in any marked degree towards the perfection of the system for the handling of soldiers returning from overseas. In fact there have been several instances of late of the tendency of the "brass hats" at London, England, to meddle with matters on this side of the Atlantic and make the work of the Canadian officials here harder than would otherwise be the case.

The latest move on the part of Argyll House is to send out advance agents for units about to return to Canada. These advance agents have little or no knowledge of transportation matters and yet undertake to tamper with plans formulated by the railway companies after very careful consideration. There is trouble enough owing to the difficulty of securing equipment, to arrange for the safe transportation of troops, without any "brass hats" throwing a monkey wrench into the machinery.

A Remarkable Aerial Flight

Total Length of Trip Was 1,285 Miles.

(Canadian Press.)

LONDON, March 22.—The first account is now officially published of the remarkable long distance flight over the North Sea which was performed by a British non-rigid airship the U. S. Eleven, during the past few days. The trip was marked by extremely unfavourable weather and therefore it ranks as the most notable flight ever undertaken. The total length of the round trip was twelve hundred and eighty-five air miles and the time taken was about forty and a half hours.

THE LEAGUE OF NATIONS

Senator Borah Has Returned From a Speaking Tour—What People Want to Know.

WORKERS' CLUB

(United Press.)
(By L. C. Martin.)

WASHINGTON, March 22. — With a staggering war expense bill still unpaid, the American people are now earnestly enquiring how much membership in the league of nations will cost them before they take on the contract, Senator Borah of Idaho declared to-day on his return from his speaking tour against the league.

Borah spoke in New York state, Ohio and Indiana. Everywhere, he said, he found interest increasing in the league covenant. The two questions the people want a plain answer to, in Borah's opinion are:

"Will the proposed league prevent war or foment it?"

What will it cost us in men and money?"

There is a general feeling, he declared that the league covenant should be separated from the peace treaty.

"The people want the league to stand on its own feet, if there is going to be a league," said Borah. "When they learn what it will cost they won't want it."

Cables from abroad telling how Turkey and Armenia demand that the United States be given the supervision of their interests, have caused much uneasiness, he said. The people want no more bills for keeping up a large military establishment to police some other country. They are deeply concerned over meeting United States be given the supervision.

They want no more Americans killed fighting a foreign foe on foreign soil. The letters and appeals from mothers clubs and individuals show that, Borah declared.

Special Session Of Both Houses

(Canadian Press.)

PARIS, March 22.— A special session of both Houses of the American Congress will probably be called to assemble about the middle of May, the date when President Wilson hopes to return to the United States. It is possible if the treaty of peace is sufficiently advances to warrant such a course, a special session of the Senate may be called even earlier to deal with this subject. Before being called upon to direct its attention to other important matters, the chief of which will be financial affairs.

WILL ATTACK FOOD SHIPS

German Sailors Want Ships Restored to Germany After Peace is Signed.

COAL SHORTAGE

(United Press.)
(By Frank J. Taylor.)

BERLIN, March 21. — Radical sailors have threatened to attack allied food ships unless they are allowed to man the vessels, it was learned to-day.

According to despatches from Hamburg the sailors have announced their intention to bombard the ships from the Cuxhaven fortifications, and at the same time attack Bremen and Hamburg if their demands are not granted. They further ask assurance from the allies that the ships will be restored to Germany after peace is restored.

While the Radicals among the sailors are greatly in the minority, it was feared that any offensive move by them would result in active co-operation of the Spartacan elements in the vicinity and precipitate a serious situation. These ships which were to be turned over to the allies under the economic agreement, already have been delayed beyond their schedule by the refusal of the dock-workers to coal them. There is also said to be a coal shortage owing to extensive miners' strikes.

Lakefield Man Returns Home From Oveseas

Was a Member of the Princess Pats—Lakefield News.

LAKEFIELD, March 22.—Pte. Wm. Shewen of the Princess Pat's arrived in Lakefield on Thursday morning. They reached Ottawa on Wednesday [illegible] and were welcomed by thousands of citizens who turned out to do honor to the pioneer regiment of the Canadian Expeditionary Force. At six p.m. they were demobilized and returned to their homes. Pte. Shewen has been overseas more than a year and is from Mount Julian; Mrs. Fred Crawford of Lakefield is a sister.

ABOUT VICTORY BONDS.

At the present time when so many men are out of employment and the conditions are such that some of those who invested in Victory Bonds feel it necessary to dispose of their investments in order to tide them over the period of depression, a word of warning may not be out of place. It is unfortunately the case that in a number of cities there are unscrupulous individuals who are endeavoring to make a good thing out of the purchase of these bonds. They are persuading people who do not understand such matters very clearly to either exchange their Victory Bonds for apparently attractive securities that are practically valueless, or else to sell their bonds for a price that is away below their real value. Cases have come to light recently where holders of $100 Victory Bonds were persuaded to sell them for as low as $50. There is no occasion for any such sacrifice. If it is necessary to dispose of a Bond in order to realize some ready cash, the holder should deal with a bank or some reliable firm. One financial man suggested an even better course and that is to borrow a portion of the value of the Bond with the latter as security in order that when the depression is over the Bonds may be redeemed. However, whatever he does, the individual who wants to get full value for his investment should be careful to know with whom he is dealing.

COL. PRATT'S CHARGES.

The Ottawa Journal in commenting upon the charges made by Lieut.-Col. A. C. Pratt, M.P.P., against the administration of Canadian military affairs in England, remarks that Col. Pratt has seen no fighting service in France and is without wound stripes or decorations, while many of the men against whom he has been complaining are officers who have been at the front. The statement of the Journal may be quite correct. Col. Pratt may not have been on the firing line, but it is to be fancied that the people of Canada do not care very much whether he has had war service or has not. The only thing that interests them is the accuracy or otherwise of his charges against Sir George Perley, and the officers of Argyle House. The member for Norfolk has made a number of grave and specific complaints. He first caused them to become public by means of a letter written from England to a Toronto newspaper in which he predicted that if the abuses were not remedied there would be serious trouble and his warning was given a startling confirmation shortly after, by the riots at Kinmel Park. Col. Pratt's written complaints have been followed by even more vigorous charges in an interview that he gave newspaper men on his arrival in Canada last week. The Ottawa Journal, notwithstanding, Canadians do not care what personal animosity lies behind the statements of Col. Pratt, but they are intensely interested in his indictments of conditions overseas for it bears out the information that has come from different sources as to the need of reformation in the overseas administration.

LABOUR CONDITIONS.

Industrial conditions are about the same in Peterboro as they are in the other manufacturing centres of Canada; the majority of the factories are "marking time," and until the situation is readjusted there will be more or less enforced idleness. Those who are out of work, however should not make the mistake of moving to another town without the assurance that there is a position ready for them. Among some people there seems to be an idea that unemployment is greater in Peterboro than in other centres—a totally erroneous impression that causes men to flock to Toronto and other large places, with the result that the situation there is aggravated. Only yesterday a returned soldier was heard to complain somewhat bitterly of conditions in Peterboro. The labour situation here was the worst in Canada, he intimated. "I was offered no fewer than three positions in Ottawa," added the returned man as proof of his claim that conditions were at their worst in this city. The only comment that might be made about the offers this soldier received in Ottawa, is that he was three times as lucky as hundreds of soldiers in the city he mentions as well as thousands in other centres throughout the country.

The facts are that Peterboro is no worse than any of the other manufacturing cities, and that with the building of the Hunter street bridge, improvements to the Trent Canal, the contemplated extensions to the street railway system, and the undoubted revival that should quickly set in among local industries, the prospects are that this city will be found among the best places in Canada, from the standpoint of employment. The raising of the British embargo should soon have a decidedly beneficial effect upon a number of Peterboro concerns and there is no reason to be pessimistic over the outlook.

ANOTHER CHANGE OF FRONT

The article in regard to the Hunter Street Bridge, in last evening's issue of the Review, will not add much to that journal's reputation for consistency. Our contemporary, which several weeks ago laughed at the idea of a public meeting to discuss the bridge question, now comes out flat-footedly in favour of such a step being taken. When the Examiner suggested a public discussion of the problem—before the Council had decided to ask for new tenders—the Review found the proposal very amusing, and said so at great length and on several occasions. There had been talk enough, said the Hunter Street journal, and all the discussion in the world wouldn't build the bridge and much more along the same line. And then, when Mr. R. R. Hall pointed out that it would be possible to build a much cheaper bridge that would give equal service, the Review, jeeringly, inquired where Mr. Hall had learned engineering. Now our contemporary calmly adopts the Examiner's suggestion of a public meeting and Mr. Hall's plan of a cheaper bridge. There are doubts expressed as to whether or not a concrete bridge would be safe. And the Review even goes so far as to wonder whether "it is wise to rush into such expenditure at all just now."

"With these facts before us and knowing the growing sentiment in favour of the Council exercising as much economy as is consistent with safety in the building of the new Hunter Street Bridge," says our contemporary, "we urge that a public meeting be called for discussion of the project with a view to arriving at the best course to be pursued with satisfaction to ratepayers generally. The City Fathers are not engineers, but we have both engineers and men conversant with concrete and steel structure in our midst, citizens not interested in the question from a business standpoint, only in so far as they will have to share their quota of the debt, and they would gladly attend such a meeting, prepared with expert advice and discussion."

Why such a sudden change of front? If a public meeting at this late date is considered advisable, it was all the more needed a month ago, before the Council had decided to advertise for new tenders. And yet when the Examiner proposed such a course of action, the Review called the suggestion ridiculous. The vagaries of the Hunter Street organ must be mystifying to its regular readers.

'Twas a Memorable Night When the Sheriff Seized the Old Ashburnham Railway

An Interesting Reminiscence Racily Written of a Very Human Episode in the Early Days of Peterboro—The Citizens Made a Valiant But Vain Effort to Retain Their Railway.

IN THE DAYS OF OLD

(By F. H. Dobbin.)

Nearly all men who have been boys—and most men have—will agress that there comes into the life of a boy who has been a real boy, with a boy's avidity for adventure, some incident or happening that stands out beyond all others. That forms ever after a sort of standard of comparison or snubbing-post, by which all that came before is judged and everything coming after is measured as to boyish value and satisfaction. Something that a real boy will describe as "a whale of a time," and fondly recall in after years his participation in the event. Such a time came to me when I was a boy and when I was concerned in the wrecking of a railroad. It came about in this way.

Shortly after the building of the line of the Grand Trunk Railway along the shore of Lake Ontario from the East to Toronto, there broke out in this part of the province of Upper Canada an era of railroad promotion. Railroads were projected in great profusion. From Belleville to Peterboro; Madoc to the same place and Trenton joined in with its own pet scheme. Madoc put in a claim for recognition. Cobourg, not to be outdone and being nearest, got to work and had a say. Port Hope organized the Port Hope, Lindsay and Beaverton line, and there were others. Each proposition called for a bonus for people were sanguine and dreadfully in earnest. The first line to be put into the stage of construction was the line from Cobourg, promoted by a genial gentleman named John Fowler and his accomplices. The proposition being in brief, that each township along the proposed line, should put in $15,000.00 and Mr. Fowler and his friends each put in fifteen hundred cents, or the equivalent in English coinage. To the surprise of the general population both turned the trick and work was started. This was along about the beginning of 1853.

When Sawmills Flourished.

That a railroad was pertinent to the development of the sawn lumber business can be seen when it is noted that in the year previous to the opening of the road the export of lumber from Peterborough was about 4,000,000 feet of board measure. In the year following opening of the railroad the export leaped to 27,000,000 feet. The big saw mill at Nassau and known as the Red Mill had a standing challenge to cut against any mill in the province for a wager. This mill was the first in the district to introduce the use of what was at that time an American appliance known as the "gang saw," a set of saws in a group of ten or twelve that turned off the same number of boards at one travel of the log. The mill had the record of cutting as much as 56,000 feet of inch lumber in twelve hours, a record for that day.

Project to Bridge Rice Lake.

But to get back to our railroad. Shorty after work commenced on the line from Cobourg to Harwood on Rice Lake. An eminent British engineer came out to look over the line of the Grand Trunk, and he was induced to come out to Harwood to pass on the proposition of bridging the lake. He came and looked. For some time a fierce controversy had been on as to twin projects, to cross the lake, (Bewdley) and come into Peterboro on what is now practically the line of the G.T.R. The eminent engineer was positive and confidential. Sure thing, he said. Cross the lake, quite so. Look at your magnificent forests. Consider your splendid timber. All around the tight little island where we live at 'ome, we build docks, warehouses and tramways out in the sea on piles. Cut and point the piles. Drive them to resistance. The lake, you tell me is not deep. Put on the superstructure and the bridge will carry the rolling stock. The foregoing is a summary of his advice and direction.

While he was right in the abstract he was wrong in the concrete. The rolling stock of those days was a peach for being diminutive. The locomotives were mostly whistle and cow-catcher, with a bell as big as you find on a country church. Two driving wheels, one on each side, and a large, fierce man at the throttle who viewed the scenery and used fearful language when cattle got on the right-of-way and sauntered leisurely along the track. They never blew the whistle except when the thing was standing still for the boiler was not large enough to supply steam for noise and locomotion at the same time.

Freight cars showed up about the size of a regulation motor truck of to-day, while the passenger coaches were only a trifle larger than the drays in which we see men handling furniture about the streets. Cosy and eminently sociable, these cars, and passengers could exchange remarks and plug tobacco with great convenience. Taken together the outfit was not impressive, but it was a railroad. We were certainly making progress.

Frost Proved a Bomb

But what the eminent engineer had not reckoned with was the forces of a Canadian winter. The road was opened for traffic in the fall of 1854, but in the winters of 1855 and 1856 what the ice did to the bridge was cruel. It froze about eighteen inches thick around the piles, and the flood water coming down to the lake in the spring got under the ice and lifted it and the piles, so that the profile of the bridge was anything but symmetrical, in fact quite delirious. They got to work and hammered down some of the piles and in spots where hammering was of no avail the low places were shored up with layers of timber and sleepers. The progress of a train across the bridge resembled the movement of a caterpillar over a particularly broad leaf. In fact for a time a ferry was established across the lake as using the bridge was too risky, especially in the season of 1855.

H.R.H. Played Safe.

When in September, 1860, His royal Highness, Albert Edward (afterwards King Edward of England) was on his Canadian tour and approaching Peterboro, by way of from Cobourg, he was escorted to the lake and the party given the choice of crossing by boat or bridge. Said the Duke of Newcastle, the chaperone of the Royal party, "Let me see the boat." He inspected the small steamer "And now the bridge." This was subjected to inspection. "We'll take the boat," was the decisive rejoinder. It will be observed that the party took the lesser of the two serious chances.

Evil days came to the road. The Port Hope line had been built in the meantime and the lumber traffic was largely diverted to that lake port, having the better harbor of the two. The two being Cobourg and Port Hope. Frequently financial difficulties augmented and the Cobourg line was seized by some process of law. Then the owners, or controllers, decided to get the rolling stock out of the county of Northumberland, where seizure was due and to run it out to Ashburnham, and hold it there. So one day, coming out of school we found many freight cars on the side tracks and grew curious. When two locomotives at once appeared on the rails we rushed to the conclusion that Ashburnham was going to be a railroad centre. When the other passenger coach appeared on the rails we were sure of it. And so the process of the covetteous law was frustrated, for the time being.

Seizure Impended

But all things reach an ending. Again coming out of school, on an afternoon, we found one of many placards nailed to the door of the old village hall. Soundry citizens perusing the same, that is the placard. In the most severe Queen's English, it set out that certain things would be done and that all peoples were prohibied under divers severe penalties from interfering. Concurrent with our breathless inspection of the notice, we saw that piles of dry millwood had been distributed along the street, the main street of the village and now Hunter street, east. What for, we asked, would any sane person set edgings in such places. Reflection showed that the one legitimate use would be to start bonfires. So there would be an illumination. Rushing home, we gleaned from our elders that the Sheriff from Belleville was even then on his way so fast as good horses could bring him to serve seizure on the cars and engines and that the project was to get these chattels across the river into the town of Peterboro and so once more fend off execution. The thing was to be done that very night. Oh, joy! Gee! what a time we should have!

Now it will be quite plain to any observing person that an operation of such magnitude could not go on satisfactorily without the assistance of boys. Sure thing. That is what boys are made for, or so at least we thought. As the gloom of the September evening came on we rushed to the scene of trouble, volunteered for service and reported for duty on the spot. It did not make the least difference that we were not wanted. The austere person we ran up against shoved us away and added threats of personal chastisement. We discreetly withdrew from the vicinity and attended at other places. We would have doffed our coats only that most of us had not had use for a coat the three months previous.

Mill Hands as Cohorts

Now the plan of campaign was as follows. Those interested in the chattels had arranged with the owners of the big saw mills in and around the town for the assistance of the mill hands, after the mills closed for the day. These men were big, husky river and mill men, given to rough clothing, rude language and violence. They generally gave vent to their emotions as in a body, going about together when not at work. Men from the big Nassau mill, from the Ludgate steam mill on the shore of the Little Lake, foot of Mark street, from Perry's mill, (where the Waterworks dam now crosses the river) and from sundry other smaller lumber industries were all engaged. These began to arrive about seven o'clock in the evening. They brought with them teams of the big Percheron bred horses used to haul lumber to the stations.

How the Plans Worked

As mapped out several sections of track had been made of rails spiked to ties. These were laid on the street and the cars gently urged along the temporary tracks, the sections being taken up and carried to the rear to take on more cars. Additional sections were provided to accommodate the locomotives. As the gloom of the evening set in bonfires were started to give light. The first thing that went out of gear were the tempers and efforts of the mill men. It will be observed that refreshments had been provided in several handy jugs, pails and kegs. Resource to these stimulants brought diversity of opinion and ultimately of procedure. Things reached a crisis when the mill men, having chased the master-of-ceremonies across Clancy's lot and adjacent properties and immersed him in Law's creek, decided that they would have no more of the temporary tracks. These were thrown to one side and a team of the big horses hitched on. Now anyone who has tried to pursuade a loaded waggon or other small vehicle and drawn by a rope, to go where it is wanted, knows that the thing is impossible. Same with the cars. Going down the street they slewed from side to side. In a few trips the road was sliced and furrowed by the flanges of the wheels. As there was fully twenty teams at work, and as all were hauling cars, the scene became diverting and the contourse hilarious. There was, of course, the refreshments. Then competition set in as to which gang would eclipse the others in shortest trips. The street was full of cars, horses, sweating and hauling men, so the general public took refuge on the ridge poles of the houses and viewed the catastrophe with interest, until stoned from their elevated perches.

A Revelry for the Small Boy

But as to the boys. We had been pressed into service to carry pails of water for the thirsty, doing so with ardor and leaving the well with a full pail and reaching the scene of hostilities with about a quart in the bottom of the pail. We added, to the gayety of nations by surreptitiously tying the strings to the whistle of the engines that stood with steam up and waiting turn, and blew long and fearful blasts until some fool person would cut the string. Likewise in excess of emotion we hitched a rope to the bell and toiled a mournful peal until chased over the fence, to come back and feed the bonfires.

Official Intervention

Generally in all gigantic operations there is some one detail that falls down and spoils the whole enterprise. This was the case and all along of the Warden of the County. The bridge, as has been previously observed, was built as a joint affair by the town and county. Early in the evening the Warden had been sent for from Lakefield, to determine if these cars should be taken over the bridge. He reached the scene of action and at once exploded in strong objection that the floor of a perfectly good bridge should not be cut up by the flanges of the wheels, no, if he could help it! This action held up the moving, so far as crossing the river was concerned, and the cars were left at the side of the street, both sides for that matter, until the overplus began to show all way up the hill to about the opening of Lake street, (now Burnham street.) As a compromise it was agreed to cover the bridge floor with boards and teams were despatched to the mill yards for the lumber. A venturesome and valient spirit suggested that the cars should be dragged across the bed of the river at the spot of the old ford, opposite Simcoe street. This was tried and several cars left in midstream, the horses being rescued with difficulty. Evidently crossing by water was not a success.

Feverish Work

By this time the freight cars were all transformed to the eastern end of Elizabeth street and the coaches were being pulled, pushed, spiked and sworn on the journey. The locomotives were coming along. Carefully coached, nursed and tenderly bossed that they should not get off the temporary tracks. But when the first of the two reached the top of the hill near the stone mill a rope was attached and snubbed to the "dead-man" sunk in the street, to ease the engine down the grade. On the highest ground, near the hill, a big bonfire had been lighted. On the other side of the street, high up on the board fence overlooking the proceedings, was a string of boys, hanging on by their hands and banging their bare feet against the boards in an excess of emotion, and hoping, earnestly hoping, that the engine would break away and add the finishing touch to the perfect evening. At the critical point of the descent, the "dead-man" pulled up by the roots, covering the populace with stones, sand and road metal, and the engine came on for several yards with a rush and carooned up against the corner of the mill. It was a shock to the mill, the engine and the community.

Then Came the Sheriff

Just then, down by the bridge, where there had been much language and several fights, there came an ominous hush over the proceedings. We hastened along to find out the reason. Sure enough, there was the sheriff, standing up in a buggy, reading the riot act or habeus corpus, or some other equally sanguinary decument, reproving the unseemly levity, the lack of decorum and calling on all to quit. This request was quite in line with public opinion. Everyone was tired out, many were fighting drunk, several were sleeping in corners the sleep of oblivion, and the enterprise had simmered out. It was decided to call it a day. And just as the sun was coming up and showing over the crest of Armour's Hill, I trotted up the street, climbed up the cook shed roof, crawled through a window and sneaked into bed, tired, dirty, but happy and satisfied, thoroughly satisfied, that after all life was worth living.

Have You Friends Who Suffer?

You have friends who are discouraged, who seem to have lost all interest in life, and whose sufferings are acute—because they are afflicted with Kidney or Bladder trouble?

Here is your golden opportunity to be a real friend to your friends. Tell them about Gin Pills, what they have done for others, and about the thousands who have found relief by taking this remedy.

Persuade your friends to try them, if only a sample box. Mrs. Thomas Harris of Port Rowan took the advice of a friend and wrote under a free sample. Hear in her own words the result:

"My husband had suffered for some time with lame back and Kidney Trouble. He became so bad, work was almost impossible. So many remedies were tried without effect that he became discouraged. A friend advised him to give Gin Pills a trial, which he did, and to-day he is almost entirely cured."

The case of W. T. Baldwin, of Smithville, Ont., is similar in many respects. Mr. Baldwin suffered from a pain in the back for over three years. Finally on advice from friends he tried Gin Pills, with the result that he obtained relief from his pain after taking the first box.

There is no need for anyone to invest a cent in Gin Pills until they have received a sample free and tried them, as Mr. Harris did. Write to-day, telling us to send a sample box free to your friend's address.

Reeve W. A. Anderson Will Not Let County Clerk Interfere

Ex-Warden Anderson is Prepared to Back Up His Statements Concerning Good Roads.

To the Editor of The Examiner:

Last week I made use of your columns to give the taxpayers and property owners of Otonabee some of the facts concerning the present road situation in the Township:

1. The Otonabee part of a county road system would take in about 45 to 50 miles of the most used roads in the township.

2. They would be used by practically all of the people of the township.

3. Under the present system all of the property contributes to the upkeep of the main roads.

4. The amount of money formerly devoted to the making and repairing of these roads will have to be increased at once, higher wages and more motor traffic being the principal reasons for the needed increase.

5. If the present expenditure of $3,300 to $3,400 on the main roads annually were doubled about $33,000 would be received from the Province of Ontario and the City of Peterboro, making in all nearly $10,000 a year for the main roads of the township.

If this amount were applied to roads annually for several years we would have a decided improvement.

A frontage tax to raise this extra $3,400 is not necessary.

This week the County Clerk has given the readers of the Examiner another of his attempts to prejudice the farmers against entering into the county scheme of road improvement which is open to them, whereby they can participate in the money now collected from the users of motor cars and trucks, and available for highway improvement under a county road system.

After ten years in the council (six years as reeve) and at the present time I am absolutely convinced that we could have a greater expenditure and better supervision on our main roads, I made a careful estimate for maintaining all and constructing part of our main roads and bridges annually.

I would not have mentioned Mr. Elliott's name at the present time had he not undertaken the task of criticizing this estimate which was worked out by myself and never seen in detail by Mr. Elliott nor any other person.

As Reeve of Otonabee and a member of the County Council I wish it to be distinctly understood that while I am Reeve I represent the people, and am not prepared to let Mr. Elliott or anyone else interfere with me in trying to solve this road question for the township of Otonabee.

Respectfully yours,
W. A. Anderson.

DO YOU WANT PINK CHEEKS?

They Can Be Had by Keeping the Blood Rich, Red and Pure

Every woman—every girl—wants pink cheeks. They mean not only beauty but good health. When a woman's blood is scanty or anaemic, her colour fades, she looks debilitated, is short of breath and her heart palpitates after slight exertion. Sometimes this trouble is accompanied by severe headaches, or pains in the back or sides. This condition is entirely due to weak, watery blood, and can only be cured by making the blood rich, red and pure. For this purpose there is nothing on an equal Dr. Williams' Pink Pills, which act directly upon the blood and in this way bring new health and strength to weak, ailing people. Mrs. Anderson Hearst, Ontario, says, "Before coming to Canada from England, I was a sufferer from anaemia for upwards of a year. I had been gradually getting paler and weaker. I did not realize that I was sick, but felt constantly tired and worn out. I had no ambition for anything and grew so white that my brothers used to call me 'snowball.' At this stage my mother decided that she would get Dr. Williams' Pink Pills, which are a favorite medicine in England as well as in Canada. On the day I commenced taking them I fainted on getting out of bed and mother urged me to stay in bed for a few days. I really felt so weak that I was glad to take her advice. I looked more like a corpse than a living person. I remained in bed for a week, taking the pills regularly, and then I felt that I was able to get up, though not able to go about. From that on, however I gained strength daily, and in a little more than a month I was feeling as well as ever I did. The color returned to my cheeks and lips and my friends were all surprised at my rapid recovery. I took no medicine but Dr. Williams' Pink Pills, so that they deserve all the credit for my restoration to health."

You can get Dr. Williams' Pink Pills through any dealer in medicine, or by mail at 50 cents a box, or six boxes for $2.50 from the Dr. Williams' Medicine Co., Brockville Ont.

Origin of Wedding Ring Is Egyptian

CHICAGO, ILL.—Why is a wedding ring? Why does a man slip a ring on the finger of a woman who becomes his bride? Why doesn't he give her a bracelet, or a necklace, or a pair of earrings? Why is a ring the universal symbol used at weddings? And what is it the symbol of? Ever stop to think about all this? Probably not. When you were ready to marry you hustled off to the nearest jeweller's and bought a ring for your bride and, as far as you were concerned, that ended the matter.

The origin of the wedding ring is wrapped in obscurity. Numerous theories have been advanced to explain it. One harks back to ancient Egypt. Before the time of mints and coinage in Egypt, gold money was made in the form of a ring and the fingers of a man's hands were his most convenient bank. He wore his money. When an enarmored swain slipped one of these money rings on his bride's finger he did it to symbolize that he gave her not only himself, but his fortune. He meant in fact just what the modern bridegroom means when he says in the ceremony of the ring at the altar, "With all my worldly goods I thee endow."

The styles to-day are bands of platinum, plain or engraved, for wedding rings, and solitaire or cluster rings of any kind of gems, preferably diamonds or pearls for engagement rings.

The Peterboro City Council

moved a motion that the city pay half of the cost. Ald. Gainey moved an amendment that the City Council visit the place before deciding, and Ald. Edgar moved an amendment to the amendment that no action be taken. The amendments to the amendment was carried and the original decision still stands.

Bread Inspector.

A letter was read from Sergt. James Reid, Bread Inspector of the city, asking that his remuneration in that capacity be increased to a sum as large as that received by the truancy officer. He did considerable extra work and he thought that his salary should be raised.

The first results of the flood which created some local excitement last Monday night was read at the Council when Mrs. Mary Smith who owns a grocery store at the corner of Rubidge and McDonnel streets, claimed damages from the city for injury done the stock when the water entered the store. The matter was referred to the Legal committee.

Notice was received, from City Solicitor C. R. Widdifield to the effect that the action being brought by Crown Attorney Hatton to quash the by-law authorizing the construction of a sewer past his property on McDonnel street will be tried at Peterborough in the near future. He advised that in the meantime no work be done on the sewer which is to be built to connect Mount St. Joseph with the city sewage system.

The William Hamilton Co. intimated that the city would hear from them in the near future in regard to the damage done in the moulding room by the recent flood. Mr. J. Edmund L. Goodwill is acting for the company.

Cheaper Plans.

The Sherwood Construction Company of Toronto, offered to submit plans for the Hunter street overhead bridge which would be much less expensive than the one proposed and would at the same time be little different in appearance and would conform to the specifications in every way.

A communication was received from Mrs. W. H. Denham in which she thanked the City Council for their fine sentiments expressed in relation to her late husband.

Mr. John Simonds, of Charlotte street, applied for the responsibility of handling Government fish. His name will be sent to Ottawa.

Ald. Gainey moved that the question of granting the local bands a lump sum of $600 be referred back to the committee. The motion carried.

The estimates include a yearly salary of $750 to the assistant assessor, and Ald. McIntyre said that this was little enough for a man who had fought for his country and at the same time supported a wife and family. An increase of $150 was suggested by Ald. McIntyre. Ald. Gainey and Ald. Garside supported the move, but Ald. Edgar was against any such procedure. A girl could fill the position, and under the present plan Mr. Ringer would receive a raise per annum of $50 which would in three years reach the maximum of $900. No outside organization had any right to interfere in the affair, was the opinion of Ald. Edgar. The young man was satisfied with his salary and had accepted the position quite aware what the salary would be.

Motion Carried.

Ald. Gainey seconded the motion of Ald. McIntyre to increase the salary of the assistant assessor to $900. Ald. James Hamilton did not object to supporting the motion if in it was incorporated a clause that the yearly increase of $50 be rescinded. Ald. McIntyre was not very amenable to this, but later made it as part of the resolution and the motion was carried.

The question of abolishing municipal offices, which was endorsed some time ago by the Brantford City Council was opened up by Ald. Gainey, who moved that a resolution be sent to the Government to that effect. The vote was:

For the motion—Ald. McIntyre, Garside and Gainey.

Against the motion—Ald. Hamilton, Edgar, Phelan, Taylor, the Mayor.

Army Surgeons Splice Nerves To Cure Paralysis

Remarkable Feats Accomplished in Treating Wounded Back From France

WASHINGTON, D. C.—Remarkable advancement in nerve surgery is going forward in army base hospitals throughout the country, it became known to-day at he headquarters of the Medical Corps. The work is of a character which will astonish the world, and is the direct result of great numbers of peripheral nerve injuries suffered by American soldiers in battle in France.

The condition is the result of a severance of a motor nerve, by which a person is able to control, through will of the brain, the leg or arm with which the nerve is connected. If the nerve is cut, then the leg or arm is paralysed and remains so until the condition is corrected.

The joining together of these severed nerves requires the help of the most highly specialized nerve experts in the United States. The surgery has progressed to a remarkable extent already and there still are many cases to treat.

During the times of peace there have been few such injuries and those which did exist were scattered throughout the country which prevented group study. They were chiefly the result of knife wounds, which cut the nerves. During the war chiefly due to shrapnel fire, there have been between 1,000 and 3,500 cases of peripheral nerve.

Because of lack of qualified nerve surgeons, a policy has been adopted whereby all cases of peripheral nerve will be sent to a limited group of hospitals, where the wounded soldiers may be assured of the finest treatment. There will be ten or eleven hospitals in all under the present programme. One of these will be the Base Hospital at Williamsbridge, N.Y.

It is estimated that of the casts only twenty per cent. will have to be operated upon, the others being put through a treatment of hot and cold baths which have been found valuable in promoting recovery. It is the twenty per hour, however, on which the spectacular work is being done.

Operations of this character present the problem of finding the ends of the sewed nerves and splicing them together. At times this is extremely difficult and it is usually necessary to saw out a piece of the bone of an arm or leg in order to obtain sufficient exposed surface with which to splice the loose ends.

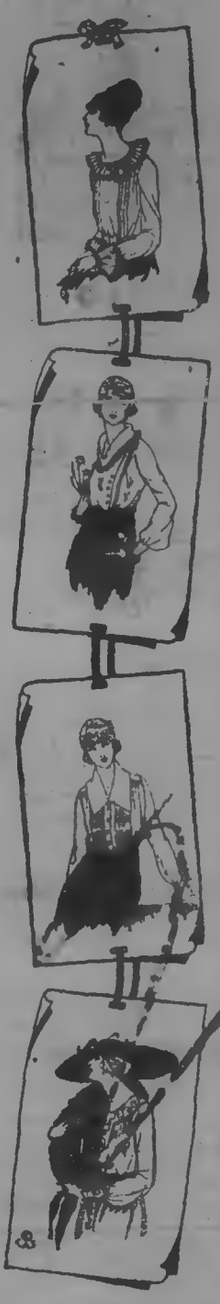
Fashion's Favorite Blouses

Have The Delicate Beauty of Spring Flowers



The continued and universal use of Georgette is Fashion's demand—and never before did Blouses so winsomely express its filmy charm.

With the immense popularity of suits this Spring, the separate blouse is raised to a higher pinacle of importance. There's a wonderful and varied array now in our exclusive blouse department. Russian blouses, waistcoat blouses, slip-overs, blouses with round, square, V or U shaped necks—with all manner of trimming—but emphasizing again and again the all-prevailing georgette crepe. Let us draw your attention to the following:

Like a breath of the beautiful Spring is one Georgette model in the charming orchid shade. It has a V-shaped neck in front and hemstitched handerchief collar in the back. Fastened at side. Elegantly embroidered in the front with orchid silk thread and gold beads. The price, $15.00.

Of excellent quality white Georgette, a simple but most attractive model, is fashioned. Box pleated both front and back. Round collarless neck with a finishing touch of rainbow (coral) beads. It has the quaint three-quarter bell sleeves, trimmed with beads. Priced at $15.00

Another collarless style, comes in dust color Georgette with a V-shaped neck in front. The neck is bound with Victory red braid and finished with a narrow tie of the same material. Both front and back have a panel effect formed of pin tucking done in Victory red stitching. Priced at $13.50.

Black and white Georgette makes a serviceable blouse, as well as a most attractive one. It has a vest of white georgette, pin tucked, and finished at the top with a hemstitched band. White Georgette collar and cuffs are embroidered with black beads. The price $12.00.

Not forgetting the ever-alluring Flesh Georgettes—there's one very effective, yet simple little blouse, that depends for its trimming almost entirely upon tiny tucks, of which the vest and lower part are formed. It has a plain, hemstitched Billie Burke collar, finished in front with a small velvet bow of Foch blue. Priced at $12.75.

Bronze Memorial Tablets at St. Paul's Inscribed With the Names of 161 Enlisted Members

Thirty-one of the Men of the Congregation Made the Supreme Sacrifice—Unveiling Ceremonies Will be Held To-morrow—Tablets Presented by Choir.

THE FORMAL OPENING OF SPRING

Yesterday the sun stood on the equator knocking at the door of the northern hemisphere to announce that Spring was coming down the highway and would be here, before the year was much older, with all its glories of music and flowers and perfumes, its bright colours and clear cleansing light, and its kindling warmth to infuse the earth and its people with new life and hopes and revivified ambitions. This first day of the vernal season which virtually marks the beginning of another year must have appealed to expectant hearts but minds that are unaroused by and unresponsive to the wonders of the firmament doubtless gave little heed to the overwhelming fact of the sun's returning in its spiralled orbit from Capicorn to Cancer.

These majestic manifestations have become as commonplace to the unperceiving observer as the familiar features of the street in which he lives, and perhaps as incomprehensible, for behind the seemingly petty affairs of everyday existence and the mighty system in which the constellations and numberless suns follow finely fixed and regular courses there is the same presence of purpose and perfection that is unknowable and which the intellect of man yearns to understand.

But Spring comes nonetheless on its appointed day, and with heralds that have preceded it this year doubtless as a hundred years ago. The robin arrived several weeks ago with its cheering song, the bluebird sounded its sweet, reedy call in a shy friendly salutation the other day and flashed its unmatchable colour in short flights among the scattered cedars, and the song sparrow has already poured its melody in unfaltering cadences that cast a spell of enchantment after the winter's absence and never lose their charm with repetition. A few nights ago there were plaintive bird notes "cheeping" in the darkness overhead intimating the end of a long migration and seeking rest on ledges illuminated by the city's lights.

Farmer's say the sap is running, and the "pussy willows" are in full growth. Life outdoors is beginning to pulse again; the sunsets glow with wondrous shades of pearl-pink and carmine, the air is scented with the strange and not unpleasant exhalations of the unfettered earth, the days are expanding, Orion is retiring in the midnight sky before the approaching in peace and Nature is straining for release to meet the labour or reproduction.

NEXT WEEK AT THE GRAND

"De Luxe Annie" Norma Talmadge's latest Select Picture which will be shown here on Monday, Tuesday and Wednesday at the Grand Opera House, is vastly different from the average crook play, and, by the same token, infinitely superior. It is the story of a finely bred woman whose husband is interested in criminal psychology and who is herself transformed into a criminal by an accident. The crime she practises is the "de-luxe game," an adaptation of the old badger game in which the woman poses as a seller of de-luxe editions and inveigles some individual with a weakness for pretty girls, whereupon her mate confederate then breaks into the scene and blackmails the victim whom she has found in an embarrassing position with his "wife."

Norma Talmadge is especially suited for the title role in this screen drama since it calls for not only beauty, style and a high order of artistry in the star, but also for an innate intelligence and an intellectual background vouchsafed by the gods to but few of us. Miss Talmadge's performance, however—and her myriad admirers need hardly be told this—brings out every shade of emotional feeling in her portrayal of this crook part, lifting it far out of the commonplace by the force of her vivid personality as well as by the odd psychological twist of the story.

"De Luxe Annie" appeared originally in a two-part story in The Saturday Evening Post; later it was made into a play by Edward Clark and achieved considerable success in New York. After considerable competition for the photo-play rights to this metropolitan stage "hit," Select Pictures Corporation secured it for Norma Talmadge's Select Star Series. The scenario for the screen production was prepared by Paul West and the direction is by Roland West.

Constipation Cured in His 78th Year Without Drugs

Did you ever know any person who was permanently cured of Constipation by taking drugs of any kind? Drugs seem to assist Nature at the time but as time goes on larger doses are necessary, until the trouble becomes chronic.

Internal Bathing is the only real cure for Constipation. It keeps the Colon or Lower Intestine free from all accumulation. Soon the system performs its regular functions unaided and there is no further trouble.

Mr. A. Ritchie of Conger Lumber Co., Parry Sound, writes: "I have been troubled with Constipation for the last 35 or 40 years and could not pass one day without taking medicine. I purchased the 'J.B.L.' Cascade' since getting it 21 days ago, with wonderful results. Will recommend any person to use it."

Dr. Charles A. Tyrrell of New York, invented and perfected the "J. B. L. Cascade" for Internal Bathing, which is to-day the only efficient means of accomplishing the desired results. Dr. Tyrrell has published an interesting book on "Internal Bathing, called "Why Man of To-day is Only 50 per cent. Efficient," which can be had for the asking at the Warne Drug Co's drug store. They will also be pleased to show and explain the "J.B.L. Cascade" to you.

BIG TURNOUT OF VETERANS IS LOOKED FOR

A very large turn-out of members of the Great War Veterans' Association is requested for the parade to St. Paul's church to-morrow morning to attend the unveiling of memorial tablets in that church. To honour the memory of their fallen comrades is one of the chief objects of the War Veterans' Association, and as to-morrow morning's event is in line with this object the officers of the Association are anxious that the parade should be as large as possible. It will headed by the G.W.V.A. band and will fall in at the armouries.

NEW FUEL ADDS 10 MILES AN HOUR TO SPEED IN AIR

WASHINGTON, D.C.—Development, too late for use in the war, of a motor fuel which adds ten miles an hour to the speed of airplanes and has possibilities for use in automobile racing was announced to-day by the Bureau of Mines. The liquid a combination of benzol and cyclohexane, called hectar, costs about $1 a gallon, so while of military value it is not regarded as practical for commercial purposes at present.

Another combination developed by the bureau, consisting of benzol and gasolene, which has been found to be more powerful than gasolene alone, is expected to prove of value to industry.

Compare! The Pathephone

DON'T believe everything you hear—without the proof. Do not permit mere sales talk to influence you in purchasing a phonograph.

When you are planning the purchase of the greatest of all musical instruments let your EARS, EYES and BRAIN compose the jury that will return the verdict as to which is the best phonograph for you. Compare the Pathephone with any other phonograph and in your comparison note particularly the following:—

TONE — Rich, full, musical and natural—a true reproduction of the original.

CONVENIENCE AND ECONOMY OF OPERATION — Reproduction being by means of a sapphire ball, there are no needles to change and no wear on the record.

PERFORMANCE — It will play any record. Do not knowingly limit yourself to only one kind of record.

CABINET DESIGN — Beautiful reproduction of classical furniture instead of ugly boxes.

CONSTRUCTION AND FINISH — Note with what care and expert workmanship the Pathephone is built and the extra fine finish not only on the front but all over,—the quality goes right through.

PRICE — Although the Pathephone is better built, better finished, better designed and better value than any other phonograph it costs no more money than the ordinary phonograph.

"JACOBEAN" PATHÉ
Price $215.00

Mr. S. D. Hall Returns From New York

Mr. S. Dickson Hall returned from New York on Tuesday. The results of Mr. Hall's New York trip will be seen at the Hall store after Monday, where there will be shown a magnificent assortment of exclusive dresses, capes, suits and coats. Many of them Paris reproductions, but no two alike—something that every woman will appreciate. They are very modest in price too. The writer had the privilege of seeing many of the beautiful dresses and not one was over $30.00. The great difficulty would be to choose one from so many handsome styles.

Open Letter to Mr. J. H. Burnham M.P.

Dear Sir:—

In last night's Examiner you advocate that the indemnity should be raised to $4000.00 and state that the cost of living makes this essential.

I beg to contradict this statement that the cost of living makes it essential for $4000.00 to be paid to the Members of the House of Commons.

There are not twenty-five members of the House of Commons that are worth more than $2000.00 a year of actual money in any decent, honest job for which they should be paid. The ordinary Member of Parliament goes to work at about three o'clock in the afternoon, when the House meets, and stays until six, with an occasional session sitting in the evening, so he works on an average of about three hours a day for four or five days in the week and for some five or six months in the year, and all his work could be done in a month if he worked both morning and afternoon and there were not so many gas attacks and useless talking by back bench members in the House.

Your suggestion of increased salary would mean that for a man actually working as a House of Commons Member for three hundred and seventy-five hours, which is a fair average of the time he speaks in the House, he should receive $4000.00. This means that each Member of the House of Commons would be paid $11.36 approximately for every actual working hour, which is the basis upon which the workingman is paid in the different industrial concerns in Canada. The Cabinet Ministers would receive then, their $7000.00 per year and $4000.00 in sessional indemnity, with their private secretaries and transportation free.

This is pure Bolshevism and because you and a few others have a chance to make a raid on the treasury and declare it to be legal, is no reason why it should be done. Lenine and Trotzky are doing the same thing in Russia and declaring it to be legal there, but you should remember that you were elected by the people and are a servant of the people and you and the other members have no moral right, without a mandat from the people, to pay yourselves out of the peoples' fund without their express sanction and approval.

Of course, you have the legal right to do it, but that does not justify it from a moral standpoint. At the present time, here are men who have gone overseas and made a greater sacrifice than most of us have done, and in some cases these men have received a pension of two dollars and a half a month and in other cases have been refused pension and refused examining boards to deal with their cases, until the Great War Veterans' Association forced the issue, and in some cases pensions were increased and in other cases pensions were granted where they had been refused, and these pensions had been improperly refused because physicians had reported that the returned men had suffered physical unfitness through overseas service, and the Pension Board finally when pressue was brought upon it, granted pensions. These are the men who will be helping paying you at the rate of $8000.00 a year since you, as a Member, will be busy at Parliament for only six months in the year and receive $4000.00, which is at least $8000.00 net income.

However, it may be that you and the others feel that this is the last chance for a great many sitting in the House to get some easy money, and are making the best of the opportunity.

As you say you will write letters from time to time to the press. I hope to have the opportunity of answering some of them, where I think it will be in the interest of the public to explain your position to them.

Yours truly,
G. L. GORDON.

Jail's Colony of 17 Shows An Increase

Seventeen prisoners are at present resident at the county gaol, none of whom are held for any serious crimes. Five are defaulters, three held for house breaking at Campbellford, and three for vagrancy. The number of prisoners is unusually high, the average being about six since prohibition, before which the offenders usually totalled about fifteen. There are no women at present in the gaol.

Editor, Examiner:

Sir,—In answer to the grievance Geo. H. Harper complains of in Thursday's Examiner, we have never been guilty of asking a man to do what he says is the usual thing in Peterborough.

Yours truly,
GUPPY & HALL.

Mr. Editor,—I am of the same mind as the one who signs himself "Looker-On" in the issue of the Evening Examiner of 20th, of the way in which Peterborough welcomes her returning heroes, I myself not blowing about it, but the notice I have taken since I returned home, which was the end of December last, after serving four years and five months. I think I was the second man to leave the city, which was on August 10th, 1914, to go straight to active service, and I can voice for myself that I had a thoroughly good send-off, but by my own friends, but on returning home after demobilization I never saw a welcome sign or anything else. The only reception I have seen since my return has been given by the Salvation Army band, who are working in conjunction with the G.W.V.A. As soon as the men detrain here their friends and relatives have been able to take them away, which would not be done if the City of Peterborough were alive. They could and should give "the welcome" to them the heroes richly deserve. Just look at the way Toronto and other cities, even the smaller towns around us here, are showing their appreciation for their returning men. It is a show up for this city. Take a pattern from Toronto and give these returning heroes a good time once a month. I don't mean to say the same men every time, but those returning during the period of one month. It would show the city's spirit towards them, so you see "Looker On" is right when he says, wake up Peterborough. If the boys were as sleepy when they were "over there," God help Peterborough. Thanking you, Mr. Editor, for this valuable space in your paper, I remain,

One of the Boys.

To the Editor of the Examiner,

Dear Sir, — Some time ago you published an editorial dealing with the subject of moving pictures, and deploring their influence upon the women and children who have become "movie fiends," and these number up a mighty legion.) I recall your statement that the movies were doing for women and children what the bar used to do for the men.

Associated as I am with children, and knowing much of their lives, I most heartily endorse your sentiments. I admit that the moving picture may have a certain educational value, but the type of film witnessed by children at present is not a good influence, indeed anything but that.

An incident occurring last Saturday may possibly add emphasis to this statement. A little boy of five years, playing some distance from home, was forcibly taken possession of by some older boys, who, having first tied his hands behind his back, proceeded to "hang" him. They wound a rope tightly around his neck four times and tied it securely in four knots. Their original intention was to string him to a tree, but whether they scented an alarm or were seized with another bright idea, they decided to leave him. By this time the little fellow was past making any effort to run for help, even if he had been old enough to realize his condition. Fortunately, a girl a year or so older, who had been an eye witness, ran to his aid as soon as she dared, and untied the knots with difficulty. The child was fearfully discolored and swollen, and has been under the doctor's care ever since. A sadder feature is that the little chap's parents both died of the influenza some weeks ago, and he, with a little brother and sister, have become the charge of feeble grandparents, who are advanced in years. Now, the culprits who are evidently escaping all consequences of a deed that proved within an ace of being fatal, were, it seems, "playing cowpuncher," and "doing Eddie Polo stunts."

Not being a movie fan myself I do not know this star or his "stunts," but I judge that they must have a very uplifting influence indeed.

Teachers often wonder if parents actually know just what their children often see when they are at the movies. Children, yes and even wee babies, who should be at home in their beds, are breathing the foul air of the average theatre, absorbing false and pernicious standards of life and incidentally becoming, unless parents exercise some control and common sense, a race of anarchists.

Special Meeting of Bridge Held Committee Last Evening

Ald. H. Phelan, the Chairman; Ald. H. Gainey and A. A. McIntyre and Mayor G. H. Duncan of the Special Bridge Committee met last night and discussed with Engineer Frank Barber the idea of substituting a concrete platform leading to the Quaker Oats Company in the plans instead of the ramp which has been decided would be a heavy addition to the cost of the bridge. The change in the plans would be made without any additional expense to the city but more definite information will be supplied the committee before any action is taken.

Mr. Barber was asked to include in his bid for tenders for the contract of building the bridge the cost of building a bridge which would be nine feet narrower than the present plans call for. This bridge would have only a single line of track. The present tender of a bridge sufficiently wide enough to accommodate two lines of tracks will also be asked for and no doubt the two tenders will be compared. Mr. Barber estimates that by building a bridge which would accommodate only one line of track a total of $40,000 could be saved to the ratepayers.

The advice of the Railway Board will be sought in this matter.

PRICE

When motor car prices are discussed, keep in mind the fact that you can buy the Gray Dort at the lowest price compatible with quality in a light car.

The Gray Dort is not built down to a price. It is built to a very high standard of service and beauty. Efficiency in buying and building has made the price low. Thus every dollar invested in a Gray Dort brings you heaping value—in service, in appearance, in comfort, in economy of upkeep. The quiet, powerful Gray Dort motor gives you perfect control of time and distance. The deep upholstery, long springs, commodious body, assure comfort in riding and driving. The standard equipment banishes trouble. The beauty of appearance is lasting.

The touring car is $1245; the Gray Dort Special—the car with added refinements and extra equipment, is $1420 extra; there are also a coupe, and a sedan. All prices f.o.b. Chatham, and are subject to change without notice.

Blocks of Wood Filled With Heavy Metal Were Once Used by Peterboro Curlers

Peterboro Curling Club had a Small Beginning—A Brief Review of its History.

At the annual meeting of the Peterboro Curling Club held this week Mr. George Giroux, the President-elect for 1919 traced the progress of the local club from the day of its foundation up to the present day.

The local club was founded in 1872. The curlers in that year curled on the east side of the river close to what is now called Riverside Park. The first president was the late Mr. Peter Connal whose son, Mr. J. H. Connal is now one of the most active members of the club. Only 20 members were on the membership roll the first year and among them were such well known names as Mr. W. G. Fergusson, Mr. Adam Hall, Mr. J. F. Denison, Mr. W. Ramsough and Mr. Robert Taylor. In 1875 Mr. Thomas Fortye joined the Club and in 1877 a new rink was established close to where the Quaker Oats now stands. This part of the river was then known as "The Raceway".

Three Sheets of Ice.

There was skating then at the same time and three sheets of ice for curling The rink was a large frame building and in 1885 the same structure was moved to the present premises. The president in 1885 was Mr. R. P. Boucher and this year saw many new members of the club. Some of these were Mr. Robert McKee, Mr. C. Rutherford, Dr. C. S. Cameron, Mr. Joseph Pentland, Mr. Gus Hay and in this year Mr. George Giroux the present President was admitted as a member.

On January 2, 1918, the club was burnt down but this did not stop all curling activities. A hut was built at the rear of the premises and the game was kept going all winter. Mr. C. N. Brown was president that year.

This rink which had such a small beginning is now one of the finest in Canada. In the early days blocks of wood were hollowed out and filled with lead and equipped with steel shoes to be used as stones. This past season's prize list could not be beaten by any club in Canada except perhaps the Winnipeg Curling Club.

Pres. Giroux spoke of the days when William Croft, Dr. Boucher and Judge Weller were members of the club and when Mr. Dickson Davidson and Mr. George Boucher were known in "curlingdom" as "The Railbirds."

A CHANCE FOR A CHICKEN SUPPER

Mr. P. Gettas' All-Stars have filed a challenge to the E. K. O. Club five-pin getters, the losers to donate a first-class fowl supper to the winners The match will be played at the Water street alleys a a date to be announced later. This should be an interesting one as Pete has a strong aggregation and the E.K.O. Club are the Champions of the recent five-pin league.

Proposed Amendments Approved By Peterboro Association

Several Improvements to the Motor Vehicles Act—Of Interest to Local Automobile Owners.

The following proposed amendments to the Motor Vehicles Act, and now before the Ontario Legislature, were endorsed at last night's meeting of the Peterborough Automobile Association:

4.—(1) No person whose sole or principal occupation is the driving of a motor vehicle for hire, pay or gain whether such motor vehicle does or does not belong to him, shall drive a motor vehicle on a highway unless he is licensed to do so, and no person shall employ any one so to drive a motor vehicle who is not so licensed.

Subsection 3 of Section 4 of the Motor Vehicles Act is repealed and the following substituted therefor:

A license shall not be issued to a person who drives a motor vehicle for hire, pay or gain unless he files in the office of the Minister of Public Works and Highways certificates that he is a fit and proper person to be so licensed, having regard to his character, physical fitness, ability to drive and knowledge of the rules of the road. One of such certificates touching the applicant's character shall be furnished by the chief constable of the municipality in which the applicant resides and one other certificate touching the applicant's physical fitness, ability to drive and knowledge of the rules of the road shall be furnished by a member of the Ontario Motor League appointed for that purpose by the Lieutenant-Governor in Council and residing in the municipality in which the applicant resides.

Section 9 of the Motor Vehicles Act as amended by the Motor Vehicles Admendment Act of 1917 is further amended by adding thereto the following subsection:

(6) The Lieutenant-Governor in Council may make regulations to limit or restrict the candle power of any lighting device on a motor vehicle.

Subsection 1 of Section 11 of the Moto Vehicles Act is amended by striking out the word "fifteen" in the third line and substituting therefor the word "twenty" and by striking out the word "twenty" in the fourth line and substituting therefor the words "twenty-five."

More Than One Witness.

(3) No person may be convicted of an offence under this section upon the opinion of a single witness as to the rate of speed.

(4) No person may be convicted of an offence under this section unless it be shown that the rate of speed fixed by this section was exceeded for a distance of one-quarter of a mile or more, upon any highway outside of the city, town or village, or for a distance of one-quarter of a mile or more, upon any highway within a city, town or village.

Section 16 of the Motor Vehicles Act is amended by adding before the word "approaching" in the second line, the word "knowingly" and by adding before the word "approach" in the eighth line the word "knowingly."

Section 23 of the Motor Vehicles Act is amended by adding thereto the following subsection:

(2) This section shall not apply in case of a collision between motor vehicles on the highway, or in case of a collision between a motor vehicle and any other vehicle which is being operated on the highway between dusk and dawn and which does not carry a lighted lamp in a conspicuous position.

The Motor Vehicles Act is further amended by adding thereto the following sections:

No person shall let or hire a motor vehicle unless the person to whom such motor vehicle is to be driven is a person licensed to drive a motor vehicle as required by this act, or is a person to whom a permit has been issued pursuant to section 3, of this act, or is a person to whom a certificate of competency has been issued by the Minister of Public Works and Highways.

Wrecking Cars.

All persons who buy, sell, wreck or otherwise deal in second hand motor vehicles shall keep a correct record of all motor vehicles bought, sold or wrecked and of such information as will enable such motor vehicles to be readily identified and such record shall be produced for inspection whenever so required by authority of the Minister of Public Works and Highways.

No person shall buy, sell or wreck or otherwise deal with any motor vehicle whereof the serial number or similar identifying mark has been obliterated or displaced or is not readily recognizable.

Where any motor vehicle is placed in the possession of any person who buys, sells, wrecks or stores motor vehicles and the same remains in his possession for more than two weeks without good reason, such person shall forthwith, upon the expiration of the said period of two weeks make a report thereof to the Minister of Public Works and Highways.

Work Secured For 18 Applicants Out of 45 This Week

During the past week the Employment Bureau has been unusually quiet. Only 45 applications for work were received of which 18 were placed Of the forty-five applicants, twenty-four were soldiers, and one-third of these found employment. The majority of applicants were unskilled labour with a few desiring office or mental work No women came in during the week. At present there are several vacancies for farm labourers, but for some reason presumably the question of remuneration, the agency finds it hard to place men in the country. Such applications as two received to-day at the agency in which the farmer offers a house, stable and land to a married man, present the difficulty of insufficient wages.

The Fight For Healthful Milk

Rather a strange statement is it not? But a hard struggle for HEALTHFUL MILK has been going on for years in Peterboro, as well as in other places.

One may well ask why must there be a struggle to secure for the people something everyone admits is desirable and even necessary for the public welfare. The struggle came about not because there was any difference of opinion as to the need or desirability of healthful milk, but because there was a difference of opinion as to how it could be secured.

Physicians long ago realized that milk was an agent by which the organisms causing typhoid fever were carried from the diseased cow to the man. They also felt certain that other and less specific troubles were due to the use of unhealthful milk especially by babies.

The solution of this problem of securing healthful milk—milk free from harmful effects—came through the demonstration of the scientific system of

or, heating the raw milk to a temperature of 145 degrees, after being cleansed of dirt, etc., passed through clarifying machines. For years the plant of the possesses both clarifying and pasteurizing machines, through which all raw milk must pass before being bottled.

PETERBORO MILK PRODUCTS

We have had to fight to establish this healthful milk for the citizens of Peterboro, and without any remuneration or extra cost to customers.

Annual Meeting of the Peterboro Motor Association

Officers Elected for the Year—Meeting Was Well Attended.

At the annual meeting of the Peterboro Automobile Association, held last evening in the Bank of Montreal Chambers, the officers elected for the ensuing year were:

Hon. Pres.—Mr. Reg. Turner.
Pres.—Mr. C. E. Canfield.
Vice-Pres.—Mr. C. R. Banks.
Sec.-Treas.—Mr. H. O. Fiske,
Directors — Mr. Borbridge, Mr. M. Burnham, Mr. R. Dobie, Mr. A. Brown, Mr. Fitzgerald and Mr. W. R. Breyfogle.

The meeting last evening was exceedingly satisfactory to the members of the Association, particularly on account of the large and representative attendance. While at the annual meeting last year only five of the members attended, this year the attendance totalled thirty-eight.

Good Roads Discussed.

Following a discussion on good roads in which the unanimous expression of opinion was to the effect that it is high time some action was taken to have the roads attended to or lose the tourists who have already said they will not return on account of poor roads. The secretary was instructed to write the Council and Motor League of Durham and Northumberland, the Motor Association, the Council, and the Board of Trade of Peterboro, the Council of Lakefield, and the Cottagers' Association, asking them to form a delegation to meet the Minister of Good Roads, to ask him to have the road from Port Hope to a point at Lakefield or Buckhorn, made a provincial road.

Booth at Motor Show.

It was decided that the Motor Association will be represented at the coming motor show on April 9, 10 and 11th ;also to cooperate with the Motor Show in the motor procession.

Dangerous Corner.

A committee composed of Mr. C. H. Pennefather, Mr. A. Brown and Mr. Banks, was appointed to see what could be done at the corner of Park and Charlotte streets to have the railway system so arranged that danger of accidents might be eliminated. At present the street cars stop at the wrong side of the road, making the corner a dangerous place for motorists to pass. It was suggested that a policeman might be be detailed to stand at the corner to direct the traffic.

New Quarters.

Mr. Fiske, Mr. Canfield and Mr. Pennefather were appointed to meet the Board of Trade to inquire about the rental of the new quarters of the Board of Trade in which the Association thought they could hold their meetings and make their headquarters.

Place Signs.

It was decided to place suitable signs at the entrance and exit of the city for the direction of motorists bearing the sign, Peterboro, Speed Limit, 15 miles.

Suggested Activities.

Several suggestions were made as to the activities of the Association for the year. Mr. C. E. Canfield suggested holding a large dinner at the Empress soon to which several farmers might be asked with the object of arousing enthusiasm and securing larger membership. It was also suggested that the Association might devote a day towards taking the old people and children of the Shelter out for a motor trip. Mr. Turner suggested that the Association purchase motor badges from the G.W.V.A. to attach to the cars. These badges are really an invitation to returned men to drive in the car when it is possible.

President's Remarks

After a few words from the new President, Mr. Canfield, in which he outlined the campaign proposed for the year the meeting adjourned.

"THE BRIDE SHOP" COMING TO GRAND

No fashion show, whether held in New York, Paris, London or any other place has ever created more interest and favorable comment, than has "The Bride Shop", the big musical comedy success, which George Choos will offer the patrons of the Grand Opera House, on Thursday evening next.

In the first place, as a musical comedy, this clever work of Fred De Gressac who wrote "The Purple Road," "The Enchantress", "Flo Flo", and several other plays equally well known as one of the best offerings he has ever given the stage. It is brimful of bright comedy, witty dialogue and numerous complications all of a ludicrous nature, and with excellent lyrics and tuneful music of Darl MacBoyle and Water L. Rosemont has proved to be one of the real successes of the current season.

Secondly, just as "Everywoman", had her experience in her quest of love, so does the bride to be have hers in her quest for the handsomest trousseau, which of course is the cause for lavish expenditure in gowns and lingerie which enlisted the service of over twenty thousand dollars, and which represents the work of Poirett, Redfern, Gordon, Mmes. Francis, Dazian, Wannamaker and the Orange Manufacturing Company and the services of twelve of New York's most famous models to show them off.

Mr. Choos has engaged an excellent cast among whom will be found Eddie Vogt, Lew Naden, John Sully, George Goss, Edith Benjar, Nan Hopestill, Muriel Rostrick, Sally Hunt, Francis Allison, Muriel Thomas and a chorus de Luxe, picked from the beauty gardens of many different states.

From every view point, the production is all that either the eye or the ear could wish for, and is bound to please even the most fastidious.

How Germany Will Be Made Militarily Impotent By Allies

Teeth Will Be Removed From All Military Activities.

THE NAVY

(By Ed. L. Keen—Copyright, 1919, by the United Press).

PARIS, March 22.—The extent to which Germany will be rendered militarily impotent by the pending peace treaty was fully revealed for the first time to-day in information obtained by the United Press from authoritative sources. The military, naval and aerial terms of the treaty, as finally agreed to by the Supreme War Council, are, according to information, as follows: Military—Germany to be allowed a maximum of seven divisions of infantry and three of cavalry; totalling 100,000 men, of which officers must not exceed 4,000.

Officers Employed.

Officers employed in the war ministries of the various states must not exceed 300, while civilian employees of the war ministration will be limited to ten per cent. of the schedule for 1913. The great general staff war school and similar institutions will be abolished. One military school will be permitted for each branch of the service and will be used solely for training officers. So called veteran societies, tourist clubs and other organizations indulging in military exercises will be prohibited.

Fortified Works.

All fortified works within fifty miles of the Rhine will be destroyed. The construction of new works in this region is forbidden. The retention of the existing fortifications on the eastern and southern frontiers is permitted. The infantry will be allowed 64,000 rifles, 756 heavy machine guns, 1,131 light machine guns, 63 medium calibre trench mortars, 189 light trench mortars, 168 trench guns, and 84 four-inch field guns.

The cavalry will be allowed 18,000 carbines, 36 heavy machine guns, 36 field guns. No heavy artillery will be permitted.

Munition Works.

Stocks of ammunition will be stringently rationed. Depots where they are held must be made known to the Allies, who reserve the right to limit the number of munition works. All war material above the requirements fixed will be surrendered to the Allies, by whom it will be buried. Imports and exports of war material, including asphyxiating gases, armored cars, tanks, etc., are forbidden in the future.

The Navy.

The German fleet will be limited to six battleships of the Deutschland or Lothringen type, six light cruisers, 12 destroyers and 12 torpedo boats. (The Deutschland and Lothringen are old battleships of 13,2 displacement, carrying a main battery of four 11-inch guns. There are four of the former type built between 1904 and 1906 and five of the latter type built between 1902 and 1903. They are considered obsolete). In replacing the fleet units new vessels will not exceed 10,000 for armored ships, 6,000 tons for light cruisers, 8,300 tons for destroyers, and 200 tons for torpedo boats. The newest type of American battleships displace 43,000 tons and carry twelve 16-inch guns. Light cruisers now building displace 8,000 tons, and the latest type of destroyer displaces about 2,000 tons, except when ships are lost. No battleship or cruiser may be replaced until it is twenty years old. Destroyers and torpedo boats must be fifteen years old.

The personnel of the navy will be limited to 15,000, including 1,500 officers. Warships now being constructed will be broken up under the supervision of the Allies. All auxiliary cruisers will be disarmed and returned to the status of merchant ships. All submarines will be surrendered. The construction of submarines for either war or commercial purposes is forbidden.

Military Training.

Military training of officers and men of the mercantile marine is forbidden. Fortifications commanding ed. The use of high power wireless stations for naval, military or political purposes, except by the Allies' consent, is prohibited. The disposition of the surrendered fleet, including submarines, is still undecided. The fortifications of Kiel and Heligoland will be dismantled, but the destruction of Heligoland harbor is not yet confirmed.

Aerial—No military air force will be allowed except one hundred seaplanes, and which will be used for the destruction of mines until Oct. 1.

No airdrome will be permitted within ninety miles of the western or eastern frontier, or within ninety-three miles of the Italian or Czecho-Slave boundaries. The Allies retain the right of free aerial passage and landing in German territory until the complete evacuation of the Allied troops. All military aviation material will be surrendered.

A PIMPLE REMOVER THAT NEVER FAILS

Dr. Hamilton Stands Behind His Formula.

Bad blood is always responsible for pimples, blackheads and humours.

Pimples, eczema and boils are the common result.

My remedy known as Dr. Hamilton's Pills of Mandrake and Butternut, invariably reaches the trouble.

For putting life into sleepy organs, for forcing out every kind of waste and foreign matter, for making health-sustaining blood, where can you find such efficiency as in Dr. Hamilton's Pills?

In a thousand cases I have demonstrated that Dr. Hamilton's Pills cure facial blemishes and skin disease.

I look upon these pills as the best blood purifier and system builder of the age, and guarantee they will cure every complaint having its origin in a weak or debilitated blood supply.

If Dr. Hamilton's Pills will not cure these tired rundown condition, if they will not change lack of force into energy and vim, then nothing will.

By creating an abundant supply of rich, nourishing blood, they maintain that standard of health so much desired by those participating in the strenuous life we live to-day.

WANTS EVERYBODY TO KNOW ABOUT IT

John Ashley is Like New Now Since Taking Tanlac—Gained 30 Pounds.

The best evidence of the merits of a medicine is what people who have actually taken it have to say about it. And this is true and beyond all question when such statements are made by people of high character and published right in the community where each fact can be investigated and verified.

John Ashby, a well known and highly respected citizen of Bloomfield, Ont., called at the City Drug Store, in Picton, recently, and made the following remarkable statement regarding the benefits he has derived from the use of Tanlac:

"The best proof I can give that Tanlac was the right medicine for me is the way it has relieved my suffering and built me up. My normal weight is around one hundred and fifty pounds but I had fallen off as a result of a bad stomach and other troubles until I was getting to look like a skeleton. When I first started on Tanlac I weighed one hundred and seventeen pounds and I now tip the scales at one hundred and forty seven. Think of it; I have actually gained thirty pounds and have only taken four bottles of Tanlac.

"Last June my stomach got all out of order so that I couldn't eat without suffering from indigestion. I was also badly constipated, suffered from a sluggish liver and would often have dizzy spells when my head seemed to be going round and round. I was under treatment for several months but in place of getting better I was going down hill rapidly. I couldn't work and simply felt all run down and miserable all the time.

"Finally, one of my neighbors advised me to try Tanlac and almost as soon as I commenced taking it I started to straighten up. I have taken four bottles now and without going into detail about my wonderful improvement with each bottle, I'll just say I am like a brand new man. I haven't lost a day from work in two months. Tanlac is great medicine for the stomach and for constipation I have never run across anything as good as the Tanlac Laxative Tablets. By using the two together all my indigestion, constipation, dizziness and everything else that troubled me, have been relieved. I want my statement published in all the papers, as I want to do what I can to let all people who are suffering like I was know about this most wonderful medicine."

Tanlac is sold in Peterboro by W. B. Warne Drug Co., Ltd., in Havelock by A. C. Denike, in Lakefield by Tanner Drug Co., Ltd., in Fowler's Corners, by W. A. Hunter; in Gelert by A. J. Scott, in Westwood by G. Pringle & Son.

Saturday Evening Bulletin:

LONDON, March 22. — A Paris despatch says it is learned from an authoritative source that the Supreme War Council yesterday definitely decided to award Dantzig to Poland, with a corridor running from the Posen district to the Baltic. Another Paris despatch says the Chinese delegates have submitted a memorandum to the peace conference asking for the restitution of the port of Kiao Chau, seized from Germany by the Japanese.

A Bremen despatch quotes a Berlin paper as saying the recruiting of sailors at Hamburg has reached a point where two ships to carry American troops home from France, have already been manned.

A Berlin despatch says the first flour imported into Germany since the armistice will be placed on sale this week, but for use in gravies, etc., and not for making bread.

BEST ANNUALS FOR YOUR FLOWER GARDEN

(Experimental Farm Note.)

Annual flowers succeed exceptionally well in nearly all parts of Canada. For the "Home Garden," whether it be in the city or the country, the best annuals are the old favorites which have become so popular because they have fitted in with the needs of a large class of flower lovers. The reason for the popularity of the "annual" is that it can be raised easily and grown with but very little expense or labor. A few packages of seed costing five or ten cents each, a garden patch and someone interested in flowers, form a combination which, in the space of four or five short months may produce the most delightful results.

The old favorite annuals are the best because they have stood the test of time. In addition they have been improved and increased in size, form and color by the plant hydridist and by the seedsman so that to-day they have almost reached perfection. In one hundred years or less they have made as much advance as most other forms of life have made in several thousand. The "poor man's orchid" is the descriptive term for the modern sweet pea and the term is legitimate because the sweet pea of to-day is wonderful. It is a new creation as compared with the sweet pea of a century ago. The same is true of many other annuals.

The favorite annuals are those which can be depended upon to give results. The final results will depend upon: 1. Seed; 2. Culture.

1. SEED. Some annuals are difficult to raise from seed and, therefore, the best for the home-garden are those which produce seed which will germinate well. The seed of such annuals can be dealt with in two ways: (a) It may be sown in pots or flats in the house and the seedings transplanted to the garden, or (b) it may be sown direct into the garden. Latitude and climate must settle which method is better for the greatest success, although with many annuals either method might give good results.

2. CULTURE. The culture of an annual flower is not a laborious task or trial of skill. The cultural directions are generally printed on the seed packages. Soil, cultivation and rainfall are three factors of importance. Soil sould be of garden loam quality and neither too sandy nor too heavy. Barnyard manure will stimulate good growth. Cultivation will keep the growth vigorous and healthy. Rain or artificial watering not less than once a week in the early stages of growth is almost essential.

Annuals are splendid for purposes of cut bloom. Some of the best for this purpose as well as for garden display, are as follows: China Asters, Sweet Peas, Nasturtiums, Sweet Sultan, Sweet Scabious, Snapdragons, Everlasting, Zinnias, Pot Marigold or Calendula.

Other good annuals are:

LOW GROWING—Pansies, California Poppy, Mignonette, Petunias, Portulacas, Pinks, Drummond Phlox, Verbenas.

MEDIUM HEIGHT—Everlastings, Balsams, Coreopsis, Larkspurs, California, Clarki, Salvia, Stocks, Zinnias.

TALL GROWING—Cosmos, Helichrysum, Tall Larkspurs, Nicotiana, Salpiglossis, Sunflowers.

UNHAPPY ROYAL JOHNS

Apropos of the death of Prince John, it is apparent that of all names John has the reputation of being the most unhappy with Royalty. When John Stewart ascended the throne of Scotland, he changed his name to Robert, but even this did not avert the calamities that overwhelmed him. Of the Popes named John only the nonentities escaped disaster. The record of John, the English king, we all know. John I. of France reigned only a few days and John II., having lost the battle of Poitiers, died a captive in London.

And thus through the past centuries of history we see the melancholy procession of Johns dogged by disaster and misfortune in Constantinople, in Sweden, in Russia and in Bohemia. The two exceptions in the tragic gallery are John of Portugal and John Sobieski.

Coughs, Colds Bronchitis

If there is an ailment in the throat or chest, it is surely essential that the remedy be conveyed direct to the affected part. It's because the healing vapour of Catarrhozone is breathed into the sore, irritated throat and bronchial tubes that its balsamic fumes kill the germs and destroy the cause of the trouble. These are the reasons why Catarrhozone never yet failed to cure a genuine case of Catarrh, Asthma, Bronchitis or Throat Trouble.

The wonderfully soothing vapour of Catarrhozone instantly reaches the furthest recesses of the lungs, produces a healing curative effect that is impossible with tablet or liquid, which goes only part of the way, and fails entirely to help the throat or lungs.

Catarrhozone
Just Breathe It

To permanently cure your winter ills your coughs sneezing and Catarrh, by all means use a tried and proven remedy like Catarrhozone. But beware of the substitute. Large outfit lasts two months, costs $1; small size 50c., trial size 25c. Dealers everywhere.

THE WIFE

BY [illegible]

RUTH ENTERTAINS MOLLIE KING

CHAPTER CLX.

Mollie accepted Ruth's invitation at once. She arrived a little before the Major and was so radiantly happy that Ruth could not help really liking her—for the first time. She fairly exuded joy. When Ruth congratulated her she said.

"The war has done a lot for many men and women but I think sometimes it has done more for me than for anyone else. I was just a silly girl, rather priding myself on having temperament and so understanding men better than their own wives did—or could. I even tried to pity Brian because you made him comfortable in spite of himself. You should have heard him talk of you overseas! There was no virtue you did not possess. You had no vices, not even a fault. I often used to wish he would talk of something else. But after I met Major Williams I knew just how he felt. Why, I wanted to talk of the Major to everyone I met. You see, when one cares for very much I imagine they can't help wanting to discuss that person."

"Where did you meet the Major?" Ruth asked.

"I nursed him when he was wounded. He wears three wound stripes, but I did not take care of him until the last time he was wounded. He is a wonderful man and I am the luckiest girl in New York."

Just then Brian and the Major came in, so confidences were no longer indulged in, although when Ruth congratulated the Major she thought he never would stop telling how he was to be envied because he had won Mollie.

"You can't imagine how popular she was, Mrs. Hackett. All the boys made love to her. Nationality made no difference. The British, Poilus, or our own fellows. It was always the same. Wherever she was, there was always a uniform making love to her. It is fortunate I am not inclined to be jealous. Were I my heart would have been eaten out long ago, I believe that is what happens."

"As long as it was only the uniform and not what was inside of it, that made love to me, I don't see why you find fault,' Mollie pertly returned.

"Just for that I shall tell Mrs. Hackett that I was horribly jealous of Brian when I first commenced to care for you. I often wished he'd get sent home on a furlough so I'd have the field to myself. But Mollie has sworn that he spent all the time he was with her talking of and praising you."

"To get even, and because confession is good for the soul, I shall have to tell you, Major, that I was just as jealous of Mollie as you could possibly be of Brian. His letters were full of her. She was the one and only nurse, the one female who could make life at all bright for a man overseas."

"That's no joke! I tell you. Why, had it not been for girls like Mollie, bright, happy-natured girls, the horrors would have been too much for our nerves. To a man who had spent days and nights in the trenches, or prowling over death strewn fields, their bright faces and everyday chatter came like a whiff of heaven. No one will ever know what the fighters in this war owe to the brave women who as nurses, canteen workers, or in other ways helped the boys to carry on. And,"— his tone grew lighter, "Mollie was the best of them all."

"Oh, do, stop!" Mollie exclaimed, "Mrs. Hackett will think you terribly silly, and I don't want her to. I want her to think you are—next to Brian—the finest man in the world."

"How can she help thinking so when you have chosen me from all the army?" he returned with a laugh.

Rachel announced dinner and so the talk veered into other channels. Brian told of his new office, its location and that Ruth had selected the furnishings.

"I'll bet it is all right if she attended to it," Mollie said appreciatively, "I wish I had your artistic ideas, Mrs. Hackett. When——" she blushed adorably, "When we get married you will help me fix up a home, won't you?"

"I'd love to!" Ruth answered, sincerely meaning it.

"You see I have changed my idea somewhat about a home. I think I would like a little apartment like this. I used to think studio rooms with a kitchenette—the rooms decorated with posters and old theatre programmes were artistic. They seem so cheap and tawdry now, especially beside such a home as you have."

Ruth was always delighted when anyone praised her artistry before Brian. So Mollie's praise was very welcome, especially as she, Ruth, well knew that her husband had agreed with Mollie in thinking a studio apartment the ne plus ultra of home keeping.

"I shall be very grateful if we can have such a home,' the Major broke in with a fond look at Mollie that sent the blushes to her cheeks.

To-morrow: Arthur Mandel makes Ruth a proposition.

LUXURY IN PRISON.

Convicts in Switzerland Seem to Enjoy the Life.

Prison life in Switzerland is a luxury instead of a punishment. The comic opera jail at Thoroughg, where the inmates did as they pleased, has only recently been suppressed by the Berne authorities, yet details are published today of a similar institution at Sarnen, in the canton of Oswald.

Sarnen is apparently an ideal pena resort, for the happy criminals who are sentenced to terms of "retention" in that institution have a far better time than hundreds of "free" Swiss citizens who are forced to earn their bread.

A correspondent of a Lausanne paper states that he was passing through Sarnen when he saw a number of men dressed in dark blue clothes with white stripes, walking about the village smoking and joking.

Others were seated in a cafe, and some were working in a leisurely manner, carrying bricks for the construction of a new building. To his astonishment the correspondent found that the men were convicts from the cantonal prison close by.

These convicts are permitted to leave the prison early in the morning and find work around Sarnen or walk about the country until nightfall, when they return of their own accord to the prison.

They are unaccompanied by warders, and there is nothing to prevent their escaping, but they are far too comfortable to think of relinquishing their quarters, for they have as much liberty as other men and are, moreover, fed and lodged for nothing.

The money earned by those convicts who choose to work can be spent as they like. One convict, who is employed as a gardener by a local magistrate, sends his monthly salary to his wife and children.

Two or three convicts "escaped" some weeks ago, but they eventually returned to the prison in a half famished condition, and after being severely reprimanded they were allowed to return to their apartments.

One convict was discharged recently after the completion of his sentence, and he remained in Sarnen for the purpose of continuing to earn money as a bricklayer, but his "colleagues" in prison unfitted made things so unpleasant for him that he begged the governor of the prison to allow him to resume his "uniform" and status as a convict.—London Express.

Based upon figures for the period from July, 1917, to November, 1918, the length of a horse's life on the allied side in the war was three years and three months. Figures based on the period from July, 1918, to October, 1918, showed the average life to be two years, eleven months and twenty-two days. During certain periods of the most severe fighting in the British army their records show the average life of animals to be but three months. The principal losses come from debility, mange, influenza, shell wounds and lymphangitis. The losses from glanders have been remarkably light during this war.

A Use for Golf.

The crowd around the ticker was discussing the operations of a youthful speculator, who shall be nameless. Said one:

"I hear he was hit on the head with a golf ball two years ago and has been rather stupid ever since."

"Maybe so," said the floor manager, "but he has cleaned up a million or more in the same time."

"Gee!" said the first. Then after a pause, "Say, how do you go about learning to play golf?"

The Art of Abdication.

History affords King Ferdinand of Bulgaria many precedents in the art of abdication, but few have ever resigned their thrones except under compulsion.

The most remarkable voluntary abdication on record is that of Christina of Sweden, daughter and successor of the great Gustavus Adolphus. Growing tired, at the age of 28, of the restraints imposed on her by her high office, she resigned in favor of her cousin and went to Rome, which city she entered in the costume of an Amazon. Later she settled in Paris.

The desire to reign seems to have returned in later years, for she tried to recover her own kingdom and made a bid for the throne of Poland.

But even kings who abdicate by their own choice are not always allowed to enjoy freedom from the burdens of government. Philip V. the founder of the Bourbon dynasty in Spain, was a nervous and gloomy man, much tormented by religious scruples, and he found life as King of Spain intolerable. At the age of 40, and in the 24th year of his reign, in order to look after "the affairs of his soul," he resigned the crown of Spain and the Indies in favor of his eldest son, Don Luis, who was at that time only 17 years of age.

But the peace that King Philip had hoped for lasted barely seven months. The young king was attacked by smallpox, and died at the end of that period. Before his death, however, he had made an act of renouncement of the crown to his father, who for another 22 years bore unwillingly the heavy load of kingship which he had so unsuccessfully attempted to throw off.—Tit-Bits.

Didn't Want to Repeat.

An early morning customer in an optician's shop was a young woman with a determined air. She addressed the first salesman she saw: "I want to look at a pair of eyeglasses, sir, of extra magnifying power."

"Yes, ma'am," replied the salesman; "something very strong?"

"Yes, sir. While visiting in the country I made a very painful blunder which I never want to repeat."

"Indeed!" Mistook a stranger for an acquaintance?"

"No, not exactly that. I mistook a bumblebee for a blackberry."—Chicago News.

Picturesque Drury Lane

WHATEVER flutter may be caused in dramatic circles, and in circles far wider, by the change in ownership, declared to be on the way, of Drury Lane Theatre, the famous old London playhouse, it is to be suspected that the prospect leaves Drury Lane itself quite unmoved. For Drury Lane is used to changes. During the hundred and seven years that the present building, the "plain, honest, homely, industrious, wholesome, brown-brick playhouse" of the "Rejected Addresses" has been standing, it has witnessed many changes in its own management and in all around it. As one writer has said of it, in desperation it has worn motley, caught eagerly at every bizarre attraction, and been a monster concert hall, a French hippodrome with spasmodic intervals of pantomime and legitimate drama. The spasmodic intervals, however, were great intervals. With supreme confidence in its own ability to hold its own, Drury Lane has survived all vicissitudes. The pot-boiling stopgaps have faded out of memory and almost out of history, and the names of Edmund Kean and Joe Grimaldi in and about 1820; Macready, in and about 1840; and Dion Boucicault and Chatterton in the sixties are sufficient to carry it over the first half century of its career; whilst the story of Sir Augustus Harris' triumphs in management, and those of his successor, Arthur Collins, bring the annals of the old playhouse almost to the present day.

Everything by turns, and nothing long;

The story of Drury Lane, however, goes much farther back than a hundred years or so. It was indeed, in the early days of the Restoration that one Thomas Killigrew, afterward Master of the Revels to the Merry Monarch, purchased from the Earl of Bedford a lease of a piece of ground, situated in the two parishes of St. Martin's-in-Fields and St. Paul's, Covent Garden, and thereon built a theatre. He opened it on Thursday, April 8, 1663, with a play called "The Humorous Lieutenant," acted by "His Majesty his Company of Comedians," and the New Theatre, the "King's House," as the ubiquitous Pepys calls it, quickly became one of the great places of assembly for fashionable London. Most of the great actors and actresses in the history of English drama have been connected with it; whilst most of the great literary lights of the Eighteenth and early nineteenth centuries criticised and were criticized within its walls. It was here that Nell Gwynne made her first appearance, and here that Mrs. Bracegirdle set all London by the ears. But the names of the great, connected with Drury Lane, as of the indifferent, are legion; Cain, Macklin, Garrick, Mrs. Clive, Mrs. Pritchard, Mrs. Siddons, and John Kemble all won fame or added to it at Drury Lane; whilst Addison, Bolingbroke, Horace Walpole, and Dr. Johnson, to take only a few names almost at random, were amongst its regular habitues.

During all these years, however, it was not the same Drury Lane that witnessed these goings and comings of the great for the present building is the fourth to stand on the plot of ground secured by Thomas Killigrew. The first theatre was burned down in 1672, and two years later, a new theatre, designed by Sir Christopher Wren, opened its doors. It was this theatre that saw the triumphs of the dramatic eighteenth century; but toward the close of that memorable period it was pulled down and another playhouse, "a model of elegance and beauty," was erected, only in its turn to be demolished in 1809. Three years later the present building was completed. Its opening was a memorable occasion for many reasons; but for one reason above all others, because it was the immediate cause of the appearance of that famous production, to which allusion has already been made, namely, the inimitable "Rejected Addresses" of Horace and James Smith.

Shimmering Glass.

Whatever connoisseurs of antiques may say, no glassware has ever been produced in the world that is at all comparable in beauty to the stuff of shimmering metallic colors that nowadays fetches such extraordinary prices.

The profit is enormous, for the method of its manufacture (once the secret is known) is surprisingly simple.

The article of glass—be it vase, wine glass or what not—is at the start in no way different from any similar thing of first-class workmanship. So far it is simply a matter of days for a skilled hand.

But in the final and finishing process a dry spray of one or more metallic oxides is distributed over the surface of the vase or other article. It may be (though rarely) pure gold dust; it may be gold dust mixed with copper oxide. It may be oxide of manganese, or nickel oxide, or cobalt oxide, or some other metallic salt.

Whatever the nature of the metal dust, the latter is literally incorporated with the material of the hot surface of the glass. The latter, during the process, is at red-hot temperature and therefore expanding. It absorbs the metal particles, which become part of its substance.

Hence the beautiful hues of this shimmering glass. They are metallic colors. Not only the familiar metals, but various kinds of rare earths of metalliferous kinds (such as yttria) are being utilized for the purpose, so that there is no end to the variety of hues obtainable.

HAD WEAK and FAINTING SPELLS

Those feelings of faintness, those weak, "all gone" sinking sensations, which come over most people from time to time, are warnings that must not go unheeded.

They mean an extremely weakened condition of the heart and a disordered nervous system.

When the system is in this condition there is no time for delay. One fainting spell may be recovered from—will the next? One dizzy spell may pass off, but the next may be more serious.

Those who are wise will start taking Milburn's Heart and Nerve Pills, before their case becomes deep rooted and perhaps hopeless.

They will act directly on the disordered heart and weakened nervous system and restore them to full strength and vigor.

Miss Mary McCoy, Alford's Mills, Ont., writes:—"I was awfully troubled with fainting and weak spells and I could never get any doctor's medicines to help me. One day a friend of mine was at the house when I took one of those spells, and she got me a box of Milburn's Heart and Nerve Pills. That was six years ago, and from that day to this I have never had any of those spells. I would not be without your pills for any money and can highly recommend them to any one."

Milburn's Heart and Nerve Pills are 50c. a box at all dealers, or mailed direct on receipt of price by The T. Milburn Co., Limited, Toronto, Ont.

OUR DAILY SHORT STORY

Betty's War Garden

By MYRA E. SMITH

(Copyright, 1918, by McClure Newspaper Syndicate.)

Betty dug savagely at a huge weed whose roots refused to come up. Red and perspiring at length she straightened up and tossed it triumphantly on the weed heap. Just then an auto horn sounded and gay voices called:

"Betty! Oh, Betty Mason! Come here."

Betty hesitated in dismay, glancing at her earth-stained dress and hands, and thinking ruefully of her tumbled hair. Then, as she saw no way out she advanced to the machine.

Within were two girls in dainty summer costume, who gazed in pitying amusement at the slender khaki-clad figure with its bright face. One exclaimed gaily:

"Behold the farmerette!"

The other girl spoke sharply: "For heaven sakes, Betty, don't make a fright of yourself getting sunburned and actually dirty out in that garden. Hurry up and get ready to come with us for a ride. This is Lieutenant Clayton, who is anxious to meet the farmerette we talk about so much. Bob and Jack made us promise to persuade you to complete our party. Don't you dare say you can't go."

Betty flushed miserably as she met the young officer's keen gray eyes, feeling that an detail of her disreputable appearance had escaped them. Her brown eyes were troubled as she shook her head firmly.

"I can't Katherine. You mustn't tempt me. I would be delighted to go with you if I could leave my hoeing. But the weeds will smother my potatoes and beans if I don't hoe them this week. And then, there is canning—"

"Betty Mason, you are perfectly absurd when you could afford to hire that kind of work done, and you might be knitting for the Red Cross."

"But I don't like to knit," retorted Betty. "And I do love to work in the garden, so I am doing my bit here."

"A very important bit, too," interposed Lieutenant Clayton smilingly. "It may sound ungrateful, but if we soldiers had to take our choice between mufflers or helmets and a square meal we would surely take the square meal!"

Katherine pouted and, glancing at her charming white hands, asked hastily, "Surely you don't expect all girls are going to toil at such dirty work as farming? I am certain I never could stand it."

"We don't expect the lilies to do anything but look beautiful. Miss Mason and I are of different stuff. As a farmer myself from the middle West I can sympathize with her. I wonder," added the lieutenant slowly, "if I couldn't suggest a solution of our difficulty. Suppose you girls go on with Bob and Jack and leave me to assist Miss Mason with her hoeing. I am sure we can finish by noon then and you can come back for us, and we'll spend the rest of the day with you. Won't you accept a helper, Miss Mason?"

Betty was too surprised to more than gasp in amazement.

"But you couldn't! It wouldn't do to work in a garden in that uniform."

"This uniform means I am in the service of Uncle Sam to help him beat the Huns, whether I dig trenches in France, or dig weeds in the garden here. Please may I help you? I really can hoe!"

It was settled in spite of Betty's protests, and the others drove off, promising to return at noon, while her new assistant, stripping off coat and hat, went speedily to work. She soon found he had spoken the truth about his ability and, although she worked rapidly, he quickly outstripped her.

The others returned and soon were all enjoying the swift motion of the car and the cooling breezes.

Lieutenant Clayton found frequent opportunities to renew his acquaintance with Betty's war garden and its farmerette. He told her about his Western farm and of his plans for it when the war was over. He shared his worries with her over the difficulty of finding a manager who would take a real interest in it and carry out his plans until his return.

At last the time drew near when he was to go. He called on Betty one morning and announced that he had decided on a new manager for his farm. Betty was at once interested and asked if he had secured a good one.

"I think so," answered the lieutenant, with his old twinkle. "I am sure that I have selected a good gardener, as I have had a very good chance to judge the new manager's work from personal observation. All I am anxious about is whether she will accept the place."

"She, did you say?" exclaimed Betty in surprise that changed to confusion under the officer's smiling scrutiny.

"Yes, Betty, dear, do you care enough to marry me and wait for me on the farm till I come back? Then we can carry out our plans together. I have no one of my own people, and I would like to feel you were on the old farm waiting for my return from 'over there.' Will you accept the position as manager, Betty?"

Betty did accept it, and now, in her Western home, she cares for a larger war garden and waits for her soldier boy to come home.

DOCTOR URGED AN OPERATION

Instead I took Lydia E. Pinkham's Vegetable Compound and Was Cured.

Baltimore, Md.—"Nearly four years I suffered from organic troubles, nervousness and headaches and every month would have to stay in bed most of the time. Treatments would relieve me for a time but my doctor was always urging me to have an operation. My sister asked me to try Lydia E. Pinkham's Vegetable Compound before consenting to an operation. I took five bottles of it and it has completely cured me and such work is a pleasure. I tell my friends who have any trouble of this kind what Lydia E. Pinkham's Vegetable Compound has done for me."—NELLIE B. BRITTINGHAM, 600 Calvert Rd., Baltimore, Md.

It is only natural for any woman to dread the thought of an operation. So many women have been restored to health by this famous remedy, Lydia E. Pinkham's Vegetable Compound, after an operation has been advised that it will pay any woman who suffers from such ailments to consider trying it before submitting to such a trying ordeal.

Remains of a Famous Ship.

In scientific annals the Beagle, in which Darwin made his first exploring expedition, is almost as sacredly remembered as "Old Ironsides" in American history. This ship has long been lost from sight, and nobody knew exactly what had become of it. Toyosi Noda now writes to Nature that the Beagle was broken up in Japan, where it was used as a training ship until 1889, and that a part of its ribs has recently been found in use as a stand for stones piled up near the temple of Suitengu, near the Oaki shipbuilding yard.

Locating a Bullet.

The army surgeon now finds that by connecting one terminal of a telephone with a moistened electrode applied to the patient's skin and the other terminal to a metallic probe it is possible to discover a bullet located in a man's body. Directly the probe touches the bullet imbedded in the tissues a grating sound is heard in the telephone receiver. This method not only reduces the time of search, but prevents serious disturbance of the patient's tissues.

Wages In Portugal.

Wages in all lines of industry in Portugal have reached figures unheard of in that country, where labor always has been poorly paid. It was necessary for all classes of employers to increase the pay schedules, either voluntarily or as the result of demands to enable employes to meet the extremely high cost of living.

Painless Payments.

Robbie often heard his father complain of customers who were slow pay. "It is just like pulling teeth to get money out of them," the father would say, and Robbie, who had watched the work of the dentist next door, pitied the poor creditors greatly.

One day a miserly customer came in to pay a bill, and the boy gazed sympathetically at the unwilling payer as he slowly and caressingly unfolded each separate banknote and laid it lingeringly on the counter. Suddenly an idea came into Robbie's head, and he turned excitedly to his father.

"Why don't you give him gas, papa?" he cried. "Then it won't hurt him so much."—Success Magazine.

Force of Habit.

"Seeing that you divorced him, would it not be more proper to refer to him as your former husband rather than as your late husband?"

"I suppose it would, but I got so used to having to refer to him as my late husband while we were married that I don't seem to be able to break myself of the habit."—Chicago Record-Herald.

Low Up-Keep Cost of Dominion Friction Surface Belting

Cost of maintaining equipment in the average plant is seemingly so small when compared with other costs that it is seldom considered seriously, but when totalled at the end of five years, represents a far greater expense than actual necessity demands.

Maintenance of belting is in itself an important item, because each repair means idle employees, idle machines and less production, the total cost of which is often greaterthan you would pay for better belting.

Dominion Friction Surface Belting is built for "service first" that its long continuous performance may eliminate the necessity for repairs and replacements.

But it gives an added service in conserving power—the rubber that goes into it is a special friction compound that prevents practically all slipping on the pulleys even under quick load changes.

Our belting experts are ready to help lower your maintenance costs in belting and can suggest changes that will lower your production costs.

A phone, wire or letter to our nearest service branch places at your disposal, without obligation or charge, not only their services but the entire facilities of the oldest and largest rubber organization in Canada.

Brazil Is Rich Country

And Has Important Future

Among Nations of World

THERE is no question of the fact that one of the Kaiser's little plans had to do with Brazil.

The German immigrant population of that republic was to start a revolution, engineered from Berlin, and to seize the country or part of it—such seizure to be promptly followed by a recognition of the German Government of Brazil by Germany, which would thus acquire a most valuable colony in the New World.

Of course, this would have meant war with the United States, but it would have been a naval conflict, and the Kaiser, possessing a navy far stronger than Uncle Sam's, had no doubt of winning. Having won, he might annex at leisure all of South America.

The Americans escaped this peril because Germany decided to conquer Europe first, and to deal with the Americans afterwards, so Great Britain's navy saved the United States from attack and defeat.

So much for the past. For the future Brazil offers enormous opportunities for commercial invasion. Brazil to-day may fairly be regarded as the most interesting country in the world. It is larger than the United States, its area being five-sixths as large as the whole of Europe. In length, from north to south, it covers a distance equal to that which separates the northern extremity of Maine from the coast of Venezuela.

Draw a line from the south coast of Alaska to the southernmost tip of Greenland, chop off Labrador, and what then remains of North America corresponds rather remarkably in size and shape to South America. Brazil occupies the central part of the southern continent. Geographically, the United States of North America and the United States of Brazil are somewhat alike. But the main river system of Brazil runs from west to east, the tributaries of the mighty Amazon spreading out like a fan in such wise as to facilitate water communication with the most distant parts of the interior, and to make the coast cities outlets for the products of regions reaching back to the foothills of the Andes.

It is a country of the future—a territory almost virgin, indescribably rich and susceptible of a wonderful development. Nowhere else does the coffee tree bear so bountifully, producing four times the weight of fruit yielded by the plant in Mexico. Cotton and sugar-cane grow like weeds. Rubber and the chocolate bean are already exported in vast quantities. Fruits are of almost infinite variety. A catalogue has been compiled of 22,000 species of woods (some of them the most beautiful in the world) found in the valley of the Amazon alone.

Brazil is the home of many native tribes that are the naturalest people in the world. Such dress as they wear is for ornament — the bright feathers of parrots and macaws, iridescent beetles' wings for necklaces, and the like. Many of them are cannibals, hunting men for meat. They distend their earlobes and lips with huge plugs of wood or stone. Some of them are fairly amphibious, living most of their lives in dug-out canoes.

In point of volume the Amazon is by far the largest river in the world. Its mouth, 180 miles wide, is a gigantic estuary, with many islands, and containing one island, Marajo, that is 200 miles in length and 125 miles broad. At one point, the Strait of Pauxis, the stream is more than a quarter of a mile deep. Many of its affluents are themselves great rivers. Some of them have clear waters; others (like the Rio Negro) have "black" waters, discolored by resinous substances from coniferous forests, and yet others (like the Xingu) have blue waters.

THE HIRED MAN'S OPINION.

The city folks keep comin' to the country for a change.
I can't see why they want to, and it seems darnation strange.
I'll bet you if I lived there I could have a lot of fun
Instead of always stayin' where there's nothin' ever done.

They seem to think it's nothin' but a picnic just to stay
Out on a farm and watch us while we're haulin' in the hay.
It beats the very dickens why they shut their houses tight
And spend their time and money where there ain't no fun in sight.

They'd nothin' suit me better than to go up there, by jings,
Where there is something doin' and there's theaters and things
I'd like to take their places and just have them jump in mine
You'd never hear me kickin', and perhaps they'd think 'twas fine.

These city folks who're livin' in the remotest of style
Who're crazy for the country—well, it makes me want to smile.
I feel all fired sorry for the lucky city chap
Who don't know for a minute when he has a bully snap.

You bet if I was livin' in some tony place up there,
With all kinds of excitement and a chance to go somewhere,
I'd never, never hanker for the country any more,
Where we go to bed at lamplight and get routed out at four.

Wilhelm's Abdications.

When Wilhelm II became King of Prussia he inherited an elaborately carved chair, overhung by silken curtains, which was the ancestral throne of the Hohenzollern dynasty.

This chair, however, was a modest and unpretentious affair compared with the throne of the German Emperor, which is said to have cost more than $100,000. It is described as built of native woods in their natural tints, with the armorial bearings of the Hohenzollerns above the lofty back and covered with carven designs emblematic of the states composing the Teutonic federation.

The back, supported by two columns of wood, is of feather and ivory and the seat is overhung by a canopy of velvet. The tips of the arms are solid gold, with a setting of emeralds. There is also much cloth of gold to lend additional picturesqueness.

Upon this wonderful chair, on state occasions, the All Highest sat in awful majesty, dressed in a military uniform of white and gold, in posture bolt upright and with his right hand clasping an arm of the throne, while one foot rested upon a velvet-covered hassock.

But Herr Hohenzollern will never again occupy either of these thrones. He is out of a job and is, perforce, content to sit on an ordinary chair, writing, writing at a window in Holland, while wondering what sort of just punishment is to be meted out to him.

Would not an electric chair just suit his requirements?

Stomach So Bad

THOUGHT HE WOULD DIE.

CAN EAT ANYTHING NOW.

But for indigestion and dyspepsia, many a life might be a pleasant one.

The misery which stomach troubles cause the sufferer knows only too well and any one who has suffered knows what joy it would give to be able to eat three good meals a day and not be punished for it after.

Nearly everything that enters a weak stomach acts as an irritant, and even the little that is eaten causes such torture and is digested so imperfectly that it does little good.

Before you can eat heartily, and not pick and choose your food, you must put your stomach right so that it will manufacture its own digestive ferments.

For forty years now Burdock Blood Bitters has been making weak stomachs strong, and permanently curing severe cases of indigestion and dyspepsia that other remedies were powerless to reach.

Mr. A. L. Fairweather, Cumberland Bay, N.B., writes:—"I was troubled with my stomach for two years, and sometimes was so bad I thought I would die. I tried everything I ever heard tell of, and had medicine from three doctors, but continued to grow worse. One day I read of some wonderful cures made with Burdock Blood Bitters. After taking two bottles I could eat any kind of food without any bad effects and by the time I had taken four I was in perfet health."

Trinidad's Lake of Asphalt.

Notwithstanding the enormous quantity of liquid asphaltum, or bitumen, removed every year from the great lake of that substance in the island of Trinidad, the supply is undiminished. The lake covers about a hundred acres and is higher in the middle than at the edges. Near the center the black pitch is semi-liquid, but toward the sides a crust, intersected with fissures, covers the surface, and on this crust a man can walk, although when he stands for a time the crust gradually sinks about him, forming a kind of basin some yards across. Between 30,000 and 60,000 tons of asphaltum are removed from the lake annually.—Harper's Weekly.

THE BATTLE OVER BANAT.

Rich Territory Claimed by Roumania and Serbia.

Banat, in Southeast Hungary, where Roumanian and Serbian claims conflict, is rich in agriculture, minerals and history. Political football of continental powers for centuries, battle-ground for armies that turned the course of European history, experiment station for early reclamation projects and scene of a pioneer "back to the farm" movement, Banat never has cut a large political figure on its own account.

The district derives its name from a form of government it never had. A territory governed by a "ban," who corresponds to the German "markgraf," or the early Polish "plan," meaning master or lord, was known as a Banat under former Hungarian designation. Banats of Dalmatia, Bosnia and Croatia disappeared during the Turkish wars, but curiously, the name clung to the counties of Torontal, Temes and Krasso-Szoreny, though this group never was ruled by a "ban."

Long referred to as "the Banat," the region to-day commonly is called Banat. Sometimes it is described more exactly as "Banat of Temesvar," thus indentifying it by its principal city, less than 200 miles southeast of Budapest.

Hemesvar, picturesque and busy before the World War, bears both scars and monuments of its eventful history. Buildings were known to the Romans. The Tartars destroyed it. Its diet was the foundation for the Hungarian representative system.

Near Temesvar were defeated the peasant forces headed by Stephen Dozza, in their encounter with John Szapolyai of Transylvania four centuries ago. Dozsa was captured, a throne of fire was built in mock honor of the "King of Peasants," and as he was placed amid the flames a red hot crown was set upon his head. Thus Dozsa's name became a Hungarian byword for heroism, and, according to popular belief, Szapolyai was smitten with blindness for his cruelty.

To-day the crumbling walls of the inner city of Temesvar, from which radiate avenues, like wheel spokes, to four suburbs, bear testimony of the strong fortifications built by King Charles Robert of Anjou, one of the most powerful monarchs of his day.

Rich agricultural lands about the city and throughout Banat, recall the drainage of marshes, swamps and thick forests, instituted by Maria Theresa, the "Good Queen Bess" of Austrian history, who, incidentally, almost accomplished the overthrow of Frederick the Great. She failed, partly because Russia abandoned the Allies of the seven years' war.

An arsenal stands where Hunyadi Janos built a castle fifty years before Columbus set sail for America. That famous Hungarian general is credited with being one of the first military leaders to substitute strategy and organization for personal courage. So successful was his theory that he all but drove the Turks out of Europe.

Conspicuous in Temesvar's principal square is a Gothic shaft, ordered there by Emperor Francis Joseph, in recognition of the city's defenders during a 107-day siege against Hungarian revolutionists of 1849.

Banat covers an area a little smaller, and has a population slightly greater than the state of Maryland. Temesvar to-day has a population about equal to that of London, Ont.

An appalling case of deafness was that of an old lady who lived just across the street from the navy yard. On Washington's birthday they fired a salute of twenty-one guns. The old lady was observed to start and listen as the last gun was fired; then, adjusting her cap and smoothing her dress, she exclaimed, "Come in!"—Success Magazine.

ELECTRIC JUMPS.

By measuring how far an electric current can jump through the air from one piece of metal to another electricians can determine the voltage of a current, and it is by setting a current to making broad jumps and then scoring the feat with a tape measure that the very high voltages used nowadays are ordinarily measured. But the judges of these athletic feats have recently determined that the electricity jumps much more surely from some marks than from others, just as a man is not likely to jump so well from a mud spot as from firm ground.

Spark gaps, as these jump measures are called because of the great electric spark that jumps across the gap, have been made of needle points. Now it has been found that if metal spheres are used and the electricity made to jump from one to the other the result is more accurate, and where spark gaps are replacing the needle point jumps.

Even with spheres to jump from, the athletic electricity is not entirely satisfied unless each sphere is as big in diameter as the jump the current is expected to make. With such spheres the spark of a current of 500,000 voltage will break down when the spheres are a little more than fifteen inches apart.—Saturday Evening Post.

Machine Guns.

France is now in the midst of a controversy as to the identity of the man who invented machine guns. The invention has always been attributed to Gatling and Nordenfelt, but it was recently asserted on some authority that the real inventor was a Japanese in 1704, who was promptly killed for being too clever. It has now been put forward and hotly argued that what may be called French patents existed as far back as the fifteenth century, and some pieces in the artillery museum are cited as evidence.

Old Spy Oak.

What is known as the "old spy oak" stands close to the intersection of Westchester, Hobart and Morris Park avenues, in the Bronx. It is a tree of fine appearance, having a diameter of five feet at a distance of five feet above the ground. There is no definite history of the old monarch, but tradition has it that it was the tree from which spies were hanged during the Revolutionary war. Efforts are being made to preserve it.—New York Press.

MANY CASES OF RHEUMATISM NOW

Says We Must Keep Feet Dry, Avoid Exposure and Eat Less Meat

Stay off the damp ground, avoid exposure, keep feet dry, eat less meat, drink lots of water and above all take a spoonful of salts occasionally to keep down uric acid.

Rheumatism is caused by poisonous toxin, called uric acid, which is generated in the bowels and absorbed into the blood. It is the function of the kidneys to filter this acid from the blood and cast it out in the urine. The pores of the skin are also a means of freeing the blood of this impurity. In damp and chilly, cold weather the skin pores are closed, thus forcing the kidneys to do double work, they become weak and sluggish and fail to eliminate this uric acid which keeps accumulating and circulating through the system, eventually settling in the joints and muscles causing stiffness, soreness and pain called rheumatism.

At the first twinge of rheumatism get from any pharmacy about four ounces of Jad Salts; put a tablespoonful in a glass of water and drink before breakfast each morning for a week. This is said to eliminate uric acid by stimulating the kidneys to normal action, thus ridding the blood of these impurities.

Jad Salts is inexpensive, harmless and is made from the acid of grapes and lemon juice, combined with lithia and is used with excellent results by thousands of folks who are subject to rheumatism. Here you have a pleasant, effervescent lithia-water drink which overcomes uric acid and is beneficial to your kidneys as well.

Oldest Leaf Ever Found.

Thirty feet beneath the surface of a newly built railroad in Spokane, Wash., a ginkgo leaf was found last spring, its age being estimated at 100,000 years. "It bears a message of more certainty than those carved in tablets of stone," writes Fred Niederhauser in Harper's Weekly. "This discovery tends to substitute the theory that the crust section has been formed by successive upheavals of the great sea ditch which has now developed into the system of the Rocky mountains. So violent were the upthrusts that in the process the beds of the inland lakes or arms of the sea were turned into rock. The clay was changed to slate, the sandstone to quartzite, the limestone to marble."

Difficult Telephone Work.

Though nearly 500 miles of telephone wire has been put up in Abyssinia, the contractor who is doing the work for the government has to encounter unusual difficulties. Tropical rains wash out the poles, white ants eat away the parts in the ground, and when iron poles are substituted for wood the natives steal them to make tools of. Monkeys find the wires delightful swings, while elephants use the poles as scratching posts and often knock them down. Lastly, the jungle grows so fast that a party of men is kept constantly employed in cutting away the young growth.

Our Munition Output.

Over 65,000,000 shells, ranging in size from 13-pounders to 9.2 inches in calibre, were purchased in Canada by the Imperial Munitions Board since its inception in December, 1915. The entire outlay in Canada by the board in behalf of the Imperial Government for shells alone reached almost the billion dollar mark, the actual value of the orders placed being $937,456,826.

To this vast sum must be added the outlay on shells before the Imperial Munitions Board was organized, and that for orders placed in behalf of the United States Government, the figures for which are not available at present.

18-pounder shrapnel (empty), 8,664,920.
18-pounder shrapnel (filled), 24,939,798.
18-pounder high explosive, 5,629,411.
4.5-pounder low explosive, 13,571,344.
60-pounder low explosive, 1,104,276.
8-inch pounder low explosive, 753,517.
9.2-inch pounder low explosive, 783,355.
15-pounder shrapnel, 299,258.
Total, 65,343,648.

Before August, 1914, no Canadian manufacturer had ever made a shell or a cartridge case or a fuse, yet in the second half of 1918 Canada was producing 55 per cent. of the shrapnel shells, 42 per cent. of the 4.5 shells, 27 per cent. the 6-inch, 15 per cent. of the 8-inch and 16 per cent. of the 9.2 inch shells used by the British armies. The record of the Dominion from that time on was equally creditable.

In addition to the expenditure on shells, the Imperial Munitions Board have spent early $300,000,000 in Canada on other materials and equipment for the British Government, including aircraft, ships, chemicals, etc.

Amendment to Covenant

Woodrow Wants to Overcome Opposition in "God's Country."

By Carl D. Groat.
(United Press.)

PARIS, March 24.—An amendment to the League of Nations covenant, covering the Monroe Doctrine, advocated by President Wilson and Col. House, is expected to be presented at to-night's session of the League Commission.

The proposed amendment would prevent any power from acquiring territory in the western hemisphere by conquest, purchase, treaty or otherwise, unless the Americans consented.

This article was reported to-day to be meeting with opposition within the committee, especially by the British and French, who have extensive interests in the Americas. It could not be learned whether the President will attempt to force the amendment, despite this opposition, but it was believed he will strongly advocate its adoption, inasmuch as it would remove much of the ground for opposition in the United States. The Monroe Doctrine proposal is held by some to mark a considerable recession from Wilson's original position that the covenant would not be altered except in a minor way.

DOMINION-MADE VALUES IN CLOTHS.

Returning soldiers should see the cloths. They are the kind that have the snap and distinction to which the military man is accustomed.

The prices also are a matter of considerable interest to those turning to civil life as they enable them to clothe themselves with correct styles from Oak Hall at moderate cost. With a ten per cent. off means unusual value for the money.

"IS FULL OF DYNAMITE"

One Reason Why Germany Has Been Playing for Time—Menaced on Two Sides.

BLOCKING ALLIES

(By William Philip Simms.)
(United Press)

Paris, March 24.—The Bolshevik movement, culminating in Hungary setting up a Soviet Republic and declaring war on the Allies, was believed to-day to have furnished an explanation for Germany's dilatory and obstructive tactics toward the Peace Conference.

Germany, playing with time, has now reached a point where she will offer to oppose a Bolshevik invasion of Western Europe in exchange for less severe peace terms, in the opinion of many delegates.

This is not such a preposterous situation as at first appears, according to the opinion expressed in some quarters. The entire situation south of the Baltic is chaotic and "full of dynamite." It may possibly grow entirely out of Allied control, it was pointed out, unless it is met squarely at once. One solution apparently will be to raise an Inter-Allied expeditionary force. The alternative is to allow the Germans, who are in a much better strategic position to deal with the situation, Germany would become the allied mandatory in Eastern and Central Europe.

Blocking the Allies.

Germany in the meantime is blocking the Allies at every point possible. Many are convinced she is taking this attitude for no other purpose than to force permission for her to play, "Horatius at the Bridge."

Menaced on two sides, one by the Germans and the other by the Bolsheviki, Poland is desperately in need of food, equipment and the assistance of her troops that fought in France. Yet Germany is refusing to permit these troops to land at Dantzig, placing the Peace Conference face to face with the alternative of backing down or disembarking the Poles under the guns of Allied warships.

Demands Speed.

The situation in Rumania is darker still in many ways. Added to the threat of a Bolshevik invasion from the east is the new menace of a Soviet Hungary. Poland and Rumania desire a common boundary so they may form buffer states against the Bolsheviki, under protection of the League of Nations. But it would require some time to bring this about and the situation apparently demands speed of action above everything else.

The feeling is growing here that making this international jigsaw puzzle of peoples and nations fit, is the most important problem before the conference and that whether the preliminary treaty with Germany is ready for signing next Saturday matters little unless strong measures are taken by the Allies to stamp out the mischief brewing throughout eastern and Central Europe.

The World Faces a Serious Situation

The Peace Conference Is in a Muddle and Further Delay in Signing Peace Will Be Dangerous.

CRISIS REACHED

By Fred S. Ferguson.
(United Press.)

PARIS, March 24.—Hungary's alliance with the Bolsheviki and declaration of war against the Allies, renders necessary the occupation of strategic centres in Eastern Europe, unless peace is speedily signed.

This belief prevailed here to-day when leaders of the Associated Powers met to discuss the new crisis.

Spread of Bolshevism into Austria will mean the severance of Allied communications with Poland and the Czecho-Slovakia, both of which are regarded as certain to join the Bolsheviki if the steady flow of food is interrupted.

Another despatch said official announcement had been made in Budapest that a Czech army is marching against Hungary.

PARIS, March 24.—The world faces an infinitely more serious situation to-day than it did a year ago, when the German super offensive was at its height, according to the belief expressed in certain official quarters. This, despite the fact that the armistice was signed five months ago and the peace conference has been in session three months.

Instead of a military defeat, it is an economical, financial and social collapse that is now threatening. Economic experts agree that every day lost in signing peace, brings the general crisis that much nearer. There was a tendency to-day in fact to regard Hungary's actions in forming a Soviet Republic in alliance with the Russian Bolsheviki and declaring war on the Allies as meaning the crisis already has been reached. There was no disposition to hide the belief that the menace of Bolshevism had been increased a hundred fold by the new situation in Hungary.

Stagnation and Disorder.

"A year ago everyone in the world was at work," said one of the leading economic and financial authorities. "If they were not fighting they were producing. In addition patriotic impulse was speeding up work. The governments had control and everyone had to do something. But everything is now headed for stagnation and disorder, unless speedy counter action is taken.

"In the meantime the peace conference is in the worst muddle since it opened. The hour of decisions having arrived, it can be stated authoritatively that the situation is as follows:

There is a constant tendency to drag in extraneous questions. For instance the Syrian question was taken up and Gen. Allenby was brought from Egypt to discuss it, although the Syrian problem has no bearing whatever on peace with Germany.

"The question of territorial rights in Dalmatia is constantly bobbing up, although it is purely one for Inter-Allied settlement.

"The Polish question has been mishandled. The War Council Saturday reached the point where it started on this matter and decided to adopt the programme originally proposed.

Post of War.

"In economic and financial discussions the French are still clinging to the hope of an international pool of war expenditures, in which, the United States would pay the majority of the bills. As an alternative they suggest international relation of exchange. The effect of this would would be to bring up the economic value of the franc with consequent loss in the present value of the dollar.

"Meanwhile, France has done nothing to date to meet the serious financial situation confronting her. Due to this hope of some international arrangement, the French people have not been taxed with fifty per cent. as heavily as the British and Americans for carrying on the war, with the present situation as the result.

Set Programme.

"Against the set programme of having all committee reports submitted by March 8, only two major committees have completed their work, military and naval bodies. These terms are now ready for inclusion in the peace treaty for a few minor details. Reparation, boundaries and post war econ-

Measures to Stop the Bolsheviks

Allies May Have to Put in Larger Forces—Menace Is Growing.

ALLIED OPINION

By Robert J. Bender.
(United Press.)

WASHINGTON, March 24.— With most of continental Europe now either under Bolshevik control or threatened with it, disquieting reports, both press and official, have thrown a new and serious light over the entire International situation during the last twenty-four hours.

Hungary appears in the grip of Soviets, Lenine is reported despatching soldiers to aid in the firm establishment of Bolshevik rule in Hungary, and it is reported that the "Reds" have declared war on the Entente.

Observers saw in the trend of events a growing possibility of Germany refusing to sign the peace, and under the influence of the Spartacans, joining the Bolsheviki ranks against the Allies.

The situation would seem to present three alternatives if the chaos is to be checked before it spreads further in Europe.

All were being discussed when the peace conference first took up the Russian problem. All were discarded at that time for the plan to invite all Russian factions to Prinkipo to talk it over.

Plan Fizzled Out.

That plan has fizzled out. The three alternatives again present themselves:

1. Recognize the better Russian Soviets as de facto governments in their respective districts, or

2nd. Place an Allied armed ring about the Bolsheviki ridden parts of Europe and try to stop the spread of the movement while attempting to "talk sense" to the Reds, or

3rd. In an effort to stamp out the whole Bolshevik movement, the Allies band together to actually wage war on those threatening world peace.

That sharp measures are necessary to stop the "Reds" has long been the belief of many of the foremost statesmen, both in Paris and here. On the other hand there have been strong exponents of the theory that the "Red Peril" cannot be squelched by bullets and guns, but must be "treated" with food and reason. Up to the present the latter have prevailed.

Whatever is done by the administration, authorities say, must be done in concert by the civilized powers.

TWO TRANSPORTS DOCKED TO-DAY

(Special to The Examiner.)

HALIFAX, March 24.—The Cretic, with 1,800, and the Olympic, with 5,000 returning Canadian war veterans, entered the harbour this morning, the Cretic proceeding immediately to dock and the Olympic anchoring in the stream. Clearing depot officials hope to clear both steamers to-day. About 3,000 are from Ontario points.

The Royal George with 1,600 more, is expected to dock this afternoon. Metagama has also arrived at St. John.

6,000 Miners Out On Strike

Workers Indignant at Government's Compromise Offer.

(United Press.)

LONDON, March 24.—While representatives of the "triple alliance" and the government were continuing their negotiations to-day, 6000 miners went on strike in the Rhondda Valley region. They announced that the walkout was in protest against the government's failure to grant the miners' full demands.

Railway workers in Liverpool passed resolutions expressing indignation at the government's compromise offer and demanding a strike. Railway union officials described the situation as "difficult."

DEMANDS CONCEDED.

(Canadian Press.)

LONDON, March 24. — In discussing to-day the negotiations between the railway men and the government J. H. Thomas, the general secretary of the National Union of Railwaymen, said that most of the demands of the railwaymen had been acceded to in principle and from that point of view the negotiations had been a success.

The great difference, he added, was not between the government and the railwaymen, but between the unions concerned.

"The Bride Shop" a Good Show

The appended telegram addressed to the manager of the Peterborough Grand Opera House speaks for itself:

The "Bride Shop" opened last night and is one of the very best musical shows we have ever had. It ranks with "Miss Springtime," "You're in Love," and "Katinka," and you can praise it to the limit. It is truly a great performance and your people will be delighted.

Peterboro Men On the Cretic

(Special to The Examiner.)

HALIFAX, N.S., March 24. — The following Peterborough men arrived at Halifax on the Cretic this morning:

196718 Pte. James Darwin, 93rd Battalion.

196300 Pte. Bruce Doupe, 93rd Battalion.

344021 Driver S. A. Shook.

FRANK JENNE Says:

"We had a function in a few days ago—a stag—officer who had been overseas since early in 1915. He was there as soon as he could get there," said Frank Jenne.

"He said he came direct to us because he had been seeing Semi-ready Stores and signs in every town and city he passed through from Halifax to Peterborough.

"While in Montreal he was assured that he could buy a Semi-ready suit and overcoat in the shop on George street at exactly the same price as he would pay there. That's the meaning of the label in the coat—we pay the freight."

FRENCH ARE HOLDING OUT

Peace Conference Is Hampered By Accumulation of Unsolved Problems.

WILL ENFORCE PEACE

By Lowell Mellet.
(United Press.)

PARIS, March 24.—The Peace Conference to-day began what was supposed to be the last week of its work on the preliminary treaty, with everything apparently in a state of chaos. It seemed as though the delegates had nothing to show for their many weeks of hard work except an increased accumulation of unsolved problems. If the situation is half as bad as its surface indications, it seems certain the conference will not wind up its work on the treaty this week or for several weeks. But members of the American delegation pointed out that the situation is similar to that of the closing days of Congress, a State Legislature or a national convention, when it appears impossible that the work will be completed, yet it is always finished.

Rhine Question.

There was a tendency to feel, too, that thereafter the British and Americans will cut the Gordian knots in the peace settlements by the direct method of laying down a programme for solution and enforcing it by their economic, financial and political domination. For instance, the Rhine question, which appeared insoluble to-day. The French are still holding out for territorial security on the left bank. Various compromises have been suggested, rejected and renewed. The most notable of these is creation of a buffer State by establishing independence of the Rhinish Provinces. If no scheme consistent with principles of self determination and reparation is achieved, the proposal is expected to be terminated by a flat American and British declaration somewhat to this effect.

Ended in Failure.

You have tried and we have helped you to work out a plan of territorial guarantees which will not violate the principles underlying the armistice. Our attempts have ended in failure. Therefore you must accept simply the guarantee offered under the League of Nations.

Few here doubt the ability of Great Britain and the United States to enforce the solution above suggested. The Anglo-American delegates are expected to take the same attitude toward Italy and Japan. As a result, while there appears to be no solution to these and many other questions in sight, it is always possible to fasten the lid on internal bickerings and sign a treaty covering the necessary points in line with the armistice provisions.

THE MASSEY BICYCLE

Here are fourteen reasons why you should choose a made in Canada Massey Bicycle:—

1. It is absolutely made in Canada by Canadian mechanics.

2. It is absolutely guaranteed with an official guarantee with every machine.

3. The frame is made of the finest seamless steel tubing with the famous fishmouth reinforcment at every joint.

4. The wheels are of the standard Canadian size for which tires are obtainable anywhere.

5. The front and rear hubs are turned out of solid bar steel and heavily nickel plated over copper, making them practically rust proof.

6. The spokes are of the best piano wire obtainable and heavily nickelled.

7. The rims are made from carefully selected maple and are treated in such a way as to make them withstand the moisture and temperature to which rims are subjected. Each rim is made from a single piece of maple and the ends joined with an eight-fingered interlocking joint.

8. The handle bars are just the width and shape for easy control of the bicycle and are practically rust proof, being heavily nickelled over copper.

9. The chain is tested to withstand a greater strain than that ever subjected to it in every day use. It is half-inch pitch and is almost stretch proof.

10. The sprocket is not a stamping but the work of the best of Canadian mechanics. It is accurately milled so that the chain engages evenly at each and every tooth and not riding insecurely over the teeth.

11. The brake is the Hercules. "The little fellow with the big grip," which is the best and simplest brake on the market today. The parts are easily obtained and are easily fitted.

12. The mudguards are anti-rattle, being of very sturdy material, gracefully curved and firmly rivetted to steel braces. The front guard extends about six inches to the front of the forks. It is also fitted with a leather flap.

13. The tires are high grade Dunlop made in Canada tires.

14. Because it is better to pay the price of a good bicycle than the penalty of a poor one.

Shouted "Down With England"

A Demonstration Against the British in Berlin.

(Canadian Press.)

AMSTERDAM, March 24.—A demonstration "against the violation of German territory under the peace treaty" was held in Berlin Sunday in front of the residence of President Ebert. After the meeting the crowd went to the Hotel Adlen, where most of the Entente nations in Berlin are quartered. Seeing American officers, they mistook them for British and shouted "Down with England."

ALL AUTHORITIES AGREE ON SERIOUSNESS OF THE SITUATION

Attention is called to the fact that Paris despatches by Ferguson, Simms and Mellett represent three different viewpoints on the situation, each inspired by information from different sources of information. All agree, however, on the seriousness of the situation, due to the complexity of the International issue, class and national interest, and the Bolshevik issue.

THERE WILL BE A MEETING OF THE RATEPAYERS OF NORTH MONAGHAN IN ST. GEORGE'S CHURCH, HUNTER STREET, TOMORROW EVENING. ALL ARE REQUESTED TO ATTEND.

Auto-Truck Manufacturers Buy Renfrew Co. Factory?

Former Cordage Company's Plant Was Sold on Saturday—No Official Announcement as to Name of the New Owners—Mr. Low is in Renfrew.

REPORTS ARE ENCOURAGING

A company manufacturing automobile trucks is reported to have purchased on Saturday the plant of the Renfrew Manufacturing Company on the corner of Lake and Ayle streets, formerly the property of the Canadian Cordage Company, which was bought and operated as a munitions factory during the war by the Metal Products Company.

Enquiry this morning established the fact of the sale, but no definite information was available as to the identity of the purchasers. Mr. Thos. A. Low, president of the Renfrew Manufacturing Company is at his home in Renfrew, and is not expected to return to Peterboro until Wednesday.

Orders to the Men.

Since the cancellation of the munitions contracts and the gradual disposal of the remnant shells, only a few men have been employed in the shops. Lately some of the machinery has been sold, but a workman stated this morning that the management had issued an order to discontinue the dismantling of the equipment. He said he had learned that the new comers were manufacturers of automobile trucks who intended to organize a big industry, making complete trucks, including engines, in Peterboro.

There is no doubt that the establishment has been disposed of by Mr. Low's company, and all the rumours heard this morning were unanimous that the buyers were auto-truck manufacturers. Several citizens who were both curious and interested in the current report tried to verify them, but the only fact they could run down was that the factory had been sold on Saturday to an auto-truck concern.

Is Encouraging News.

The news inspires spontaneous hope that an official announcement from Mr. Low will not be disappointing. The citizens will regret the transaction that means the severance of his interest here, but there will be compensating satisfaction if the sale brings an automobile manufactury. It would be one of the most acceptable industries that could locate here in these first days of reconstruction. One automobile factory usually begets or attracts others, and the fact that trucks are just beginning to come into their own is promise of opportunity, expansion and a lengthy pay roll.

"Peterborough Presents Possibilities Unsurpassed."

MONDAY, MARCH 24TH, 1919.

A STUPID POLICY.

The action of the authorities in delaying the arrival of troops trains in order that the battalions on board might reach Toronto at an hour at which it would be convenient to render them a proper reception seems to be another in the series of stupid blunders in connection with the repatriation of Canada's soldiers that have kept many men of the army in an angry mood ever since the armistice was signed. In connection with the 58th Battalion and the 2nd C.M.R., it was stated on Saturday that the trains carrying these men were kept all Friday night on a siding east of Montreal and would run on a very slow schedule all day in order that they might reach Toronto on Sunday morning." Surely the military authorities must have known that the men's only thought was to get home as soon as possible, and yet the trains were deliberately held back in order that the people of Toronto might not have to stay up too late at night or get up too early in the morning to welcome the men from overseas.

No wonder there was indignation on board the troop trains, and the civic authorities in Toronto, as well as the military transportation officials, deserve censure for the thoughtless policy adopted. The citizens of Toronto would prefer, it may be considered certain, to turn out in the middle of the night to welcome the returning heroes than they would in replies that the desire of the troops to get home without delay was appreciated in order that the convenience and comfort of the civilian population might be assured.

SWIMMING POOLS, AGAIN...

The bathing pieces question is not yet settled and the hundreds of citizens who are interested in this matter will no doubt be glad to learn that the special committee which had been appointed by the Council will be able to arrive at a decision that will be more popular than was the recommendation of the Property committee. The Playgrounds Association, as was expected, has declined to accept the responsibility of attempting to establish a new swimming pool with the grant of $500 that was suggested, and has asked the Council to make an appropriation of $2,000 to provide a proper place and to carry on the work as a civic duty.

The committee of the Council, which has been given instructions to consider the whole question, should investigate the possibilities of a bathing house that would be revenue producing. While there should be accommodation for the youngsters who could not afford to pay for a separate dressing compartment, the building should be so constructed that there would be a number of these compartments available for the use of adults who would gladly pay for the privacy to be obtained by such a system. In other cities the rental of private dressing rooms and of bathing suits and towels has made the civic bathing place practically self-sustaining, and judging by the popularity of Inverlea Park last summer there is no reason to doubt that a similar bathing house here would be equally successful.

THE FAIR PRICE COMMITTEE.

The other members of the City Council are doing a little quiet chuckling at the expense of the Labour aldermen, over the appointment of a Fair Price committee. There has been considerable reluctance here, as in many other cities, to take advantage of the powers conferred upon the municipalities by the Order-in-Council passed last year, which permit the investigation of the prices of foodstuffs. Municipal councils have fought shy of these inquiries for obvious reasons, and so when the Trades and Labour Council brought the issue squarely up to the local Council, the members of the aldermanic board who were not elected on the Labour ticket, saw a good chance to unload the responsibility, and three of the Labour aldermen were appointed as the Fair Price committee. Naturally the Labour trio objected strenuously, but they were outvoted and there the situation rests. If the Trades and Labour Council wants food prices investigated, let the Trades and Labour Council aldermen do the work, is what the Council's decision means.

It is regretted, however, that such an important matter was treated in this fashion. The other aldermen were scarcely playing the game in throwing the responsibility upon the shoulders of Ald. Morrison, Gainey and Teeside, and it is evident that the Council have not studied very carefully the provisions of the Order-in-Council, the intention of which was that the Fair Price committee to be appointed by the municipalities should consist of a representative of the Council, and two other citizens, one representing the dealers of the section to be investigated, and the other the consumers.

The wisdom of selecting three aldermen for the position is to be questioned. In addition to their private business the members of the City Council are on a number of civic committees and are not in a position to make the food price probe as thorough and as exhaustive as it should be if results are to be obtained. The Examiner has on several occasions urged that the Council should take advantage of the Order-in-Council and appoint a representative committee. There is so much talk of unreasonable profits of the people being held up for everything they need, that a proper investigation would clear the air and would be welcomed by those dealers who have been satisfied with a reasonable spread of profit, but who, in the absence of definite information, are sometimes lumped in the public's condemnation with the profiteers. A proper inquiry would not only be in the interest of the consumer, but would be beneficial to the honest dealer.

The matter is an important one and the selection of the committee should have been given more consideration by the Council than it was accorded at Monday night's meeting. It was shrewd politics on the part of the other aldermen to dump the problem into the lap of the Labour men, but while admitting the necessity of the move, it must be said that the Council failed to consider the question as thoroughly as their responsibility as representatives of the people warranted.

THE SUN LIFE.

A remarkable degree of progress characterized the Sun Life Assurance Company's activities in 1918. The 48th Annual Report of this company is the best of its history, being such as to easily enable the company to maintain first place among Canadian Life Assurance companies.

Gains were made in new business, total assurances in force, income, total assets and net surplus.

The new business written and paid for amounted to $51,191,000, a gain of $3,700,000 over the figures for 1917 which was the best year previous to this in the company's history. The fact that the company is able to pile one record year on top of another speaks volumes for their organization and business methods. Total assurance in force now stands at $340,000,000, a gain of nearly $20,000,000; income received totalled $21,651,000 or a gain of $2,000,000 over the previous year; assets now stand at $97,620,000 or a gain of $7,460,000; while undivided net surplus over all liabilities and capital stock exceeds $8,000,000.

Policyholders have reason to feel gratified at the showing made by their company. The year was a particularly trying one to insurance companies and the fact that Canada's largest insurance company, the Sun Life, made such a splendid showing, is a matter of congratulations to the officers, policyholders and the Dominion at large. The fact that our largest insurance company could establish new records during a war year and in the midst of an influenza epidemic is a fact that should not be lost sight of by the people of Canada.

THE UNCHANGED GERMAN

have him named," says the Associated Press correspondent, cabling from Weimer about the personnel of the German delegation to Paris, and describing the failure of Count von Bernstorff to obtain a place on that delegation. "It was only about a month ago that Bernstorff was openly planning to go." The Allies notified the Ebert Government that they would not receive him, and the German president himself announced at the time of his election—in consequence of his notification—that he would not appoint him.

What an amazing revelation this is of the unrepentant state of the official German mind? Who in a sane nation could have expected that the Allies, and particularly the Americans, would consent to look upon, much less to enter into engagements with the man who presided over the whole spy system from Canada to Argentina; the chief of Luxburg and Eckhardt; the man who in time of peace between his country and ours organized the burning of factories, strikes and riots, the activities of bombers and firebugs, not only in the United States but in countries further south; the man who certainly had knowledge of the approaching fate of the Lusitania, and who, we have every reason to believe, issued his warning message only because Von Jagow, or somebody in Berlin equally merciful, ordered him to do so?

And yet this "great pressure" to have this impossible man sent to shake hands with Americans with citizens of the country he had plotted against, and even with the President of that country, is merely a piece with with all the revelations of the German mind that have come to us. On this page yesterday appeared a strange correspondence between Samuel Harden Church and General Von Dickhuth- Harrach of the German General Staff. There is not a line in Dickhuth's letter to show that he has the least comprehension of the condition of outlawry to which Germany has reduced herself. He compares Germany with America as if they stood on equal terms, and says "Surely America will not forsake her godchild in the hour of her deepest necessity." America, that is the United States, has sacrificed 110,000 lives not in an amicable disagreement of opinion, as General Dickmuth supposes, but because she loathed with unspeakable horrror the inhuman monstrosity that attempted to desolate the world. When he time comes that Ormazd and Ahriman can sit down amicably together and discuss the necessary compromises between good and evil, then it will be possible for such a mind as General Dickmuth's to seem normal.

In December the German government—not the Kaiser's—appointed Baren von Der Lancken and Dr. Rieth to negotiate with Herbert C. Hoover on the food supply question and these two men asked Mr. Hoover where he would meet them. Lancken was one of the murderers of Edith Cavell and Reith had a record for cruelty in the administration of Belgium under German rule. Mr. Hoover, receiving this request through the Commission for Belgian Relief in Rotterdam, wired back to Walter Lyman Brown, its director:

You can describe two and a half years of arrogance toward ourselves and cruelty to the Belgians in any language you may select, and tell the pair personally to go to Hell with my compliments. If I do have to deal with Germans it will not be with that pair.

Whereupon, of course, innocent wonderment among the Germans. Why should Hoover refuse to deal with "that pair" merely because they were spotted with blood? Nor is that all. The German Government sent Hugo Stinnes, one of the worst oppressors of Belgium, to co-operate recent men from other nations in the restoration of Belgium. It was the horrified protests of the Belgians themselves that caused Stinnes's recall. Germany could see nothing paradoxic in the appointment.—New York Times.

GERMANY WILL NOT RELEASE DANTZIG TO POLES

Says Pres. Ebert—Silesia and West Prussia Must Remain German.

(Special to The Examiner.)

COPENHAGEN, March 24.— Germany cannot and will not sign a peace which involves the annexation of Danzig to Poland, President Ebert declared in a speech on Sunday. He added that Germany could not give up West Prussia or part of Upper Silesia. He declared Germany was prepared to agree to neutralization of the Vistula, which would include Danzig as a free port.

Music & Drama

PRETTY BABY.

Plenty of lively comedy and lilting music, a riot of colourful costumes, worn by girls as pretty as their garb and with a super-abundance of pep from start to finale, the musical comedy "Pretty Baby," proved a most entertaining production at the Grand on Saturday afternoon and evening. It was the second appearance of the offering here and although the cast was not the same, yet the performance was equally as successful. The place of chief comedian billed on the last appearance here by the eccentric Jimmie Hodges, was taken by Howard Myers and the latter was as funny as his predecessor, which is about as high praise as can be given. Myers is a comedian at the genius commonly known as "nut." He kids the company, the orchestra, and the audience and works at top speed from curtain to curtain. There were no dull moments when he was in sight. Bernice La Barr in the title role sang and danced nicely and in appearance justified her cognomen. Joe Richardson was very funny in a black face part and although some of his stores were old friends, they did not appear shop-worn, so well did he get them over. Norma Cowley and Joe McAnnelan contributed some splendid song numbers and George B. Twymann was successful both in his singing and acting. The "Pretty Baby" trio scored heavily in a series of songs.

The costumes were as rich as have been seen here in a long time, notably those worn by the show girls in the "Sweetest Girl on Broadway" number, which opened the second act. They were elaborate enough to make the ladies in the audience gasp. There were other costumes that were not so elaborate, not nearly so. So then there was something for everybody. "Pretty Baby" will be welcome any time in Peterboro if produced on Saturday's standard.

Voice of The People

To the Editor:

Sir: Noticing young Boland's accident in your paper, who was struck by a G.T.R. engine on Lake street crossing, I think it is a shame that the above crossing is not better protected to avoid accidents. There is no signal bell nor gates at the crossing and many children go up and down to school; and besides there are a great many children who live on Lake street, and often there are engines going by rear-end first, without protection, when the rules of the railway are when a light engine is moving the brakeman is supposed to be on the front, that is when it is coming rear-end first. The same rule is for freight trains backing up to have a brakeman on the front car to see the way is clear. I hope and trust that some better protection will be taken to avoid any other accident.

Resident.

To the Examiner:—

As a returned soldier, and this country being free, both for rich and poor, I am entitled to free speech, but it is not very often allowed, so I am taking the burden upon myself. I have heard a good deal about what they are going to do for soldiers, but never have they done much yet to my knowledge. A soldier is something like a pig. The pig is fed till it weighs to suit, and it is sold to the highest bidder, or so much a pound. By the time it gets to the people in general, it is twice the price bought at, thus everybody making a profit except the labour class. It's the same with the soldier. He is fed and clothed, and when the dirty work is finished, and a few have sacrificed their lives, and others who sat back have made their little stake, out of the war and out of the pig, they say you can go now, we have what we want from you, you are no use to us now. We have to live, you know, it's true. I am getting $70 a month, but I am speaking for those who have wives, have seen service in England alone, could not get any further through some disability.

If the returned man can't get work and can't get a living in the country he fought for, what interests has he in the country. People say, if you don't like the country you live in, why don't you go elsewhere. The question is, are they making a living. I say no, they have a job to keep from starving. What interests will they have in the next war?

Yours etc.,

A RETURNED SOLDIER.

To the Editor of the Examiner:—

In Saturday's Examiner I notice a letter signed "City Teacher," relating to the moving picture business, putting the blame on the "movies" because a couple of small boys tied another child up with a rope a short while ago.

I think it may safely be said that the moving pictures as seen in our city are as free from objectional features as those shown in any other city, and we do not hear of any tragedies as the result of attendance at moving picture theatres elsewhere.

The moving picture business is one of the greatest factors in giving people of small incomes an opportunity of seeing high class artists. How many people in Peterborough would have the pleasure of seeing Mary Pickford, Pauline Frederic, Theda Bara, Douglas Fairbanks, Elsie Ferguson, Marguerite Clarke, Wm. Farnum, Ethel Barrymore, Geraldine Farrar and dozens of others who were recognized as high class artists on the stage but who are now providing excellent and clean entertainment for millions of people who otherwise would not have the opportunity of seeing them only on the screen.

It may be that an occasional film may have a little "wild west" feature in it, but I am sure there is nothing shown that would be apt to make our boys bad ones.

The men at the head of the film-making corporations are big men and I believe are as much interested in giving good clean photo plays as the public is interested in seeing them. They realize the force for good that moving pictures can be in the community and will endeavour to keep away from as much criticism as possible which usually comes from those who do not attend picture houses.

Also all films shown are subject to censorship by a Board appointed by the government and as a consequence the public is protected in the showing of films to a greater extent than in the showing of some of our own local plays.

Yours truly,

Theatre-goer and moving picture fan.

VOICE OF THE PEOPLE.

To The Editor,

Dear Sir:—I have read Mr. Burnham's two recent letters on current questions, and must say I cannot understand how any man occupying a responsible public position could sign his name to such irrational and irresponsible statements. His logic and reasoning in connection with the prohibition question would be laughable were it not so pitiable and did it not border so closely on blasphemy. "God made alcohol and therefore it is wrong to suppress it." What nonsense, God made the grain, 'tis true, of which alcohol is one of the constituent parts, but God did not tell man to separate the alcohol and use it in a concentrated form to the debasing of both body and soul. To ally God not only with the brewer and distiller but with the bootlegger and the keeper of a common dive as he does when he says that 'under prohibition God Himself would be liable to fine and imprisonment," is not only silly but an indignity offered to God.

Let Mr. Burnham come out straight and say I am against prohibition and on the side of the liquor interests, and while we may not agree with him, we can respect him, but such twaddle from a public man is nauseating. Mr. Burnham also speaks as if for the Federal House to pass prohibition would be a too autocratic act and an outrage on democracy. This is not true, at least as far as his vote is concerned, for this constituency has voiced its prohibition on three separate occasions by large majorities and if Mr. Burnham casts his vote against prohibition he will by acting in contradiction to the sentiment of this constituency, and will be arrogating to himself an autocratic power to decide a question against the will of the people he is there to represent. As for there being any great demand for the return of the liquor regime, I do not believe there is any apart from those who miss the easy money proposition it presents to them and perhaps a few who are not yet weaned. But the great majority thank God daily for the great blessing prohibition has been and is to our country and view the very thought of the return to conditions which obtained under it with abhorence. Do we want to see again the drunkard rolling along the streets, to see again the wretched home, the half-clad child and have again the problem of the blacklister on our hands? Dare any sobermind man or woman take upon themselves the responsibility of helping to bring back such a state of affairs? And for what purpose? To make a few bloated millionaires richer still; to give a set of lawbreakers; men who have used every possible expedient to break the prohibition law a free hand and to enable men who say they can do without it and thus drown themselves potential drunkards, to indulge their appetites. Is it worth while for these people to reintroduce a dangerous nuisance? I believe the great Canadian public will say no.

George Leader.

Interesting Address Given in Lakefield

LAKEFIELD, March 24. —Rev. J. Lintoll Taylor gave a very interesting address on mission work in the South Sea Islands, in the school room of St. John's church on Tuesday after the W. A. annual meeting. Mr. Taylor has travelled extensively and lived for many years in Australia and has visited several times the islands of the South Pacific. As the subject was a large one, he spoke principally of the Friendly or Tonga Islands and the Island of Somoa and the Fiji Islands, which is associated in one's thoughts with the late Robert Louis Stevenson. The natives are simple folk and are very earnest Christians, the call of the church bell at any hour of any day brings them in crowds to their churches to worship.

These islands, which are mainly of coral formation, are most interesting and attractive.

Church Destroyed.

Mr. Taylor told of one church on one of the Tonga Islands, which was capable of holding 3,000 people, which had not a single nail in it. It was bound together with a substance called sennet, the roof being made of cocoanut palm leaves. Several years after his visit to the island this church was destroyed by a hurricane which swept over the island.

Mr. Taylor visited Somoa also, one half of the island is very fertile and the other destitute of all life owing to a volcano which was very active for years. On the seaward side of the volcano the molten lava flowed red hot, down the mountain like a water fall, many feet, until it went boiling into the sea. Since that time the volcano has ceased its activity and this phenomena is no longer to be seen

Warship Wrecked.

One part of the coast is very treacherous, and many years ago when a terrible storm visited that part of the Pacific two large warships were destroyed, one the "Trenton," belonging to the American navy, and the other the "Elba" of the German navy. A British ship, the "Calliope," was saved, though it narrowly escaped destruction. One of the small islands in the Friendly group was notable for a rare and beautiful cave. The ship's boat sailed through a beautiful river to an island which possessed a remarkably large cavern, in the extreme end of which was a large stone called the 'shrine,' which at a certain hour each day had a shaft of sunlight strike it through a cleft in the rock above, in such a manner as to give it the appearance of white marble, almost transparent. This is one of the great sights of these islands, which seem to possess the greater attractions both in climate, scenery and vegetation.

SPRING OPENINGS IN LAKEFIELD

LAKEFIELD, March 24. — The spring millinery openings were held on Wednesday and Thursday afternoons. This year the hats are exceptionally pretty and the dainty spring flowers seem especially welcome after the long winter. The hats are mainly small or of moderate size and brightly coloured flowers are very much shown. Blue is popular in all shades and sand retains its popularity. The pineapple straw is a new feature which is attractive. Mauve and purple are very much in evidence.

THE year 1918 was for the business of life assurance a year of supreme achievement.

Owing to the combined effect of the war and the influenza epidemic, death claims were unusually high. The payment of these claims enabled the Companies to render an unprecedented measure of public service, and to fulfill to a more noteworthy degree than ever previously the beneficent purpose for which they were founded.

The record achieved during 1918 by the Sun Life of Canada was one of particularly striking success. For the first time in the Company's history new assurances paid for exceeded Fifty Million Dollars. The growth in size strength and prosperity accentuates the Company's position as not merely the leader among Canadian life offices, but one of the great insurance corporations of the world.

The Company's financial power is emphasized by its large Assets, Income and Surplus. During the year $7,460,000 was added to the Assets, which at December 31st, had reached the huge total of $97,620,000. The Income is now $21,651,000, while the undivided Surplus is $8,027,000.

Some idea of the magnitude of the benefits to the community from the Company's operations is afforded by the disbursement to policyholders of $9,768,000, of which $3,268,000 represented sums paid to the beneficiaries of policyholders swept away by death.

The Policyholders have again had the opportunity, of taking, through the Company, the leading part in subscribing to the 1918 Victory Loan. Besides fulfilling to the utmost of its ability its patriotic duty in this regard, the Company has also been able to take advantage of the unique opportunity to purchase on very favourable terms large amounts of long-term securities, the beneficial effects of which will be felt on the earnings for many years to come.

The impetus given to life assurance by the experience of 1918 continues into the current year, and the results of the operations for the first two months greatly surpass all previous records.

IMPRESSIVE SERVICE IN ST. PAUL'S CHURCH SUNDAY

Brass Tablets Were Unveiled at the Morning Service—A Tribute to the Heroic Dead—Special Music for the Occasion.

With reverence and ceremony befitting such a service, the two brass memorial tablets given to St. Paul's Presbyterian Church by the choir of the church, were unveiled yesterday at the morning service. The usual church service was altered in keeping with the occasion nad special prayers in commemoration of the fallen were said in the form of a litany preceding the unveiling of the memorials, after which the tablet to the fallen was unveiled by Mrs. A. McIntosh, who gave two sons to the war. Following this, the last post was sounded by a bugler in the vestry, the congregation standing during the tribute to the boys who will not return. The tablet to those returning was unveiled by Dr. T. N. Greer, whose son, Major G. Greer, has won unusual distinction in the discharge of his duties at the front, winning the Milltary Cross and the Croix de Guerre.

Formal Presentation.

In making the formal presentation Mr. H. R. H. Kenner said that a great deal of credit in the placing of the tablets was due to the enthusiastic support and service of Mrs. John Allan, who had worked diligently towards having the memorials erected. He said that though the number of heroes whose names appeared on the lists (161) would seem to be very large in remembrance of the fact that so many of the young men of St. Paul's Church are of Scottish descent, the figures are not surprising. To the young men who crossed we said good by with tears, and followed them with prayers and pride through St. Julien in 1915, at which battle they won undying fame, through the Somme in 1916, and over the heights of Vimy in 1917, until in 1918 we went with them to victory through Cambrai and Mons. The prayers of the people are now for the safe and speedy return of the boys who have not returned yet. He spoke of the debt that Canada owes the boys who went not only in words but in deeds. Mr. Kenner referred with great feeling to the endurance of our boys and of their devotion to duty on land and sea and in the air, who never wearied of holding the emblem of freedom on high. He also referred to the spot in France paid for in the lives of the young men of Canada. In conclusion he spoke of the comfort to the mothers and fathers, the strong faith in immortality of the soul must be through which they may take comfort, in knowing that though the boys have gone a little ahead, it is only for a few short years until they will meet them again. It is the hope of the choir, he said, that the tablets will remind us of the debt we owe those who fought for us, and keep green the memory of the heroic deeds of St. Paul's dead and served as an inspiration for all time.

Musical Programme.

The musical programme was particularly impressive. In the solo part of "Watchman, What of the Night?" Mr. Douglas Carlisle made a great impression on all who heard. Mr. Maurice Park's solo, "Be Thou Faithful Unto Death," was rendered with great feeling, and Mrs. Park's solo, "Home, Sweet Home," was a feature of the service. The benediction was pronounced by Canon J. C. Davidson.

War Veterans Attend.

A large representation from the War Veterans occupied the centre seats of the chuch. Headed by the band they paraded from the Armouries to the church. As the Veterans entered Mr. John Allan's "March Triumphale" was rendered in pronounced effect. At the conclusion of the service the Veterans marched to Hunter street and returned by way of George to the armouries for dismissal.

During the service, Mr. Pogue referred to the return of three of St. Paul's boys, Howard Hall, Jack Jones and George Munro.

The Sermon.

"And they loved not their lives unto the death." Revelations 12:11.

It is a very solemn service which we hold to-day, said Rev. Mr. Pogue. A service in memory of departed, loved ones, must of necessity be solemn. But though solemn it need not be sad nor gloomy. The clouds may be dark overhead and yet there may be peace in the heart. The Christian has a secret spring of joy even in his sorrow. We meet together to-day, not as pagans, but as Christians, as those who believe in the resurrection of the dead, the life everlasting, and the blessed and comforting hope of reunion beyond the grave. We should try and think of life as those see it who have passed within the veil and are now in the world of light. We know they are happy, and we know that they would wish us to be happy also. So though our thoughts are occupied this morning with matters serious and solemn, I trust there may be in all our hearts a little of that peace which those know who "loved not their lives unto the death," and are now "where glory, glory dwelleth in Immanuel's land."

Heroic Deeds.

We have met this morning to commemorate the heroic deeds of our immortal dead and the equally heroic deeds that we, who remained at home and on whom there rests the responsibility to 'carry on" and make permanent in our civilization the liberties they died to win, may gather in the heroic traditions of their lives and receive inspiration from their deeds. What I shall say, therefore, will be in the form of a tribute, first to our honored and heroic dead, and secondly to those who fought side by side with them and showed courage the equal of theirs, and whose lives a kind Providence has spared to us. And then, thirdly, I shall say a few words in closing on the message of their heroism and sacrifces for us of to-day.

1. How shall we think of those who gave their lives for us, some of them on red fields, others on grey seas, and others in the viewless air; and whose bodies lie buried, where poppies grow, in Flander's fields, or in desert sands, where Syrian stars look down; or in deep seas whose laughing waves sing a joyful requiem for those who loved nobly and died bravely? How can we suitably commemorate the noble deeds of those rich dead,—

"Who laid the world away; poured out the red
Sweet wine of youth, gave up the years to be
Of work and joy, and that unhoped serene,
That men call age, and those who would have been
Their sons and gave their immortality?"

Poverty of Speech.

When we think of them and try to put into words our thoughts of them; when we attempt to speak of their heroic deeds and their heroic death, we feel the poverty of human speech, and we long for a gift other than human that some measure of justice might be done those whose lives were ended ere they were scarce begun.

I pay a tribute to their fine sense of duty. When the call came there was no drawing back. They knew well the probable cost. Few believed they would ever return. The most they did was to hope. When duty called:

"Their's not to reason why,
Their's not to make reply;
Their's but to do and die."

They had the same love of life which we all have. God has made man for life and not for death. Death is an intruder, a something foreign to God's purpose for the race. They had an innate love of life and all things pleasant and beautiful, but when duty spoke their 'loyal souls swung like a needle to its pole," and counting not their lives dear unto them,

"They never turned their back
But marched breast forward."

A Tribute.

I pay a tribute to their courage. Who were those who heroic deeds we recount to-day and which will be recounted by generations yet unborn? They were school boys, some of them; office and bank clerks, others of them, sons of farmers and artizans still others of them. They were not professional soldiers. They did not love war. They hated it. They were gay and careless youths, loving life and following the arts of peace. They did not belong to a militant nation. It was sometimes said by advocates of universal military training that only by such discipline could that heroism be developed which would be needed if we ever found ourselves in a great war. And yet our boys were not found wanting in courage when the time came. In the hour of trial they faced the foe without blanching. They would not have been human if they had not felt the loneliness of that last night in the trenches before going over the top and if their thoughts had not been often on home and the

THOUGHTS ANTI-INCENDIARY

(By a Peterboro Soldier)

Revolution? Who has seen a revolution? The work of the guillotine, the streets red with blood, the wild eyed mob in the palaces of king and noble, the breaking of prisons, the rage of people. Was this the French revolution? The cessation of labour, the rattle of machine guns, the anarchy of Russia. Was this the Russian revolution?

These things are but the results of revolution. No man has seen revolution. He has seen the trees sway and bend and roar when the wind blows, he has seen how they are the wind—that like unto fans they agitate the air around them?

He cannot see the wind, but the trees show there is a wind blowing. Even so is a revolution. You only see that there is one.

The wind moves the clouds before it stirs a twig on a tree.

So, also, revolution is preceded by a stirring and unrest in the region of invisible, intangible things.

So also, revolution is preceded by a stirring and unrest in the region of invisible, intangible things.

The wind of philosophy, religion, and revolution is stirring the unseen hearts of nations and of men; anon it will descend upon cities and civilizations and manifest itself in their swaying and trembling.

Must revolution come blood red, destructive, disintegrating; or may it come in peace, creating, unifying, in the hearts and minds of men is true revolution, and their minds must guide their hands.

Let those, therefore, who desire the new order usher it in with peace, devote their energies to instructing the minds and guiding the hearts of the people towards that goal.—J. R. H.

Special Services at George Street

A campaign of special evangelistic services began yesterday in George Street Methodist Church and will continue every night except Saturday during the next two weeks. The pastor of the Church will be in charge and will be assisted by local ministers. The meeting will begin each evening with a song service at 7.45 and as special Gospel hymn sheets have been provided the singing will undoubtedly add greatly to the success of the work. The services will be held in the school room which will accommodate about 500 and when occasion demands, the church auditorium will be used. The prospects are exceedingly bright for a successful campaign as was evidenced in the service last evening when about 20 signified their determination to seek the forgiving grace of God and live the christian life. This is a work which should commend itself to everybody for the spiritual quickening of individual hearts will result in better citizenship, happier homes, a purer city and a more prosperous nation. The public are heartily invited to attend as many of those services as possible.

BAIL REFUSED.

A posse of military police under Sergt. Carmody, arrested James Roy McGlynn, 201 Rutherford Avenue, at a farm house in Emily Township, on Sunday morning at 3 o'clock. Mr. J. O'Brien appeared for the young man but bail was refused, the military police asserting that McGlynn eluded them once before. He was remanded for a week.

AND SOMEBODY SAID---

"A Poor Corset Could Spoil The Figure of Venus"

THERE'S many a figure which needs proper molding to approach to some degree the ancient Grecian grace and beauty. Correct corseting consists of getting the proper corset for your individual figure plus the right corset for the prevailing silhouette. This service can only be attained where corset service is a special feature, and it is a very special feature at the Cressman store. We are now showing the newest models in corsets, a varied and comprehensive array of models, and our corsetiers will be glad to show you the ideal corset for your own individual requirements.

"Nemo Corsets," Ideal for Stout Figures, priced from $2.75 to $6.50.
Also other makes, including "D. & A." and "P.C."

EDUCATION A GREAT FACTOR IN RE-CONSTRUCTION

Of the various phases of reconstruction made necessary by the restoration of peace, none has been given a more deserved prominence than the subject of education. It has been realized that, if we are going to make the world a better place to live in, we must give the new generation the best possible training that can be devised and much thought is being given to the removal of whatever is antiquated or useless in our educational system as a means of bringing it more in harmony with the needs of to-day. In the midst of all this revision of the methods and content of education we must be on our guard, however, against the danger of losing sight of the realy vital factor, the teacher. For the past four years, teachers' salaries have been steadily falling in purchasing power with the result that trained teachers have been leaving the profession and the superior attractions of other occupations are making it more and more difficult to fill their places even with unskilled beginners. If this condition is allowed to continue, the most perfect course of study and the best material equipment that money can buy, will fail of their purpose for lack of skilled teachers to make use of them.

The large cities of the province have been wise enough to realize the situation, and the teachers of Toronto, Hamilton and Ottawa have recently been given a schedule of salaries more in keeping with the importance of their work. Is Peterborough keeping up with other cities in this respect? A comparison of the salaries paid in those cities with those paid in Peterborough inclines one to answer in the negative. No doubt the cost of living in those cties is somewhat in excess of the cost of living here, but the excess is hardly enough to justify a difference of $1200 in the maximum salaries of Public school Principals, $750 in the case of Vice-Principals, and $650 in that of female assistants. It is true that the Toronto schools are much larger than ours, but the work of the assistant teachers is identical, while the principals are largely relieved from the necessity of teaching a class by the appointment of a principal's assistant. Ottawa schools are practically the sme size as our own. The men and women in Peterborough Public schools have the same qualifications and the same standing as the teachers in those cities and if the present inequality is allowed to remain, the more alert and ambitious will be drafted off to fill positions there.

Public school education in Peterborough has been kept at a high standard—one which can challenge comparison with that of any city in Canada; it will be very difficult to keep it so, if we continue to be so greatly outbid by other cities. If we want a first-class article of public education, we must be prepared to pay for it.

Thirty-six Varieties of Cars Registered in Peterboro County

Interesting Statement Supplied By Mr. H. O. Fiske at Friday Night's Meeting of Automobile Association.

At Friday night's meeting of the Peterborough Automobile Association, held in the Bank of Montreal Chambers, the following was read by Mr. H. O. Fisk, Secretary-Treasurer of the Association:

"From time to time various letters have appeared in our local papers on the Good Roads system. With a view of showing up some facts in connection with motor cars in this county, a careful audit of the local Registrar's books was made and from this work the following interesting facts have been derived, namely, that for the year 1918, 1489 cars were registered in this county covering 36 varieties. 797 or 53 1-2 p.c. were from the country outside of the city and 692 ,or 46 1-2 p.c. were from the city. The fees paid by the country cars exceeded those paid by city cars by $1,162.50. , 97 8-10 p.c. of the country cars registered for the smallest fee, and 8? 1-2 p.c. of the city cars also registered for the smallest fee. The city percentage was somewhat lower by reason of the numerous trucks which have practically replaced the horses. However, these facts show conclusively that the so-called 3 ton car does not exist in this vicinity and those that do exist, are practically all trucks used for city delivery service only.

The proportion of cars to population for the city and country is as follows: In the city there is one car to every thirty (30) people, whereas in the country there is one car to every twenty-four (24) people.

Approximate Value.

The approximate value of the cars in the country outside the city today is $706,500.00. The maintenance of this value of cars undoubtedly could be reduced by 75 p.c. if they were operated on improved roads.

The City of Peterborough have paved about 5 miles of road at a cost of $175,000.00 which would link up very nicely with the Good Roads scheme from Port Hope and would easily link up with the roads from Warsaw, Norwood and Hastings. At the present time it is costing the city $4,000.00 per year to clean up this pavement after horses which are largely from the country, for the city horse is practically a thing of the past. This is not mentioned with any feeling toward the horse driven vehicle from the country, but merely to show that all the load is not on the poor farmer, as a recent writer in our local paper would have us believe.

Impressive Service At St. Paul's Church Yesterday

loved ones far away. And yet we know that they wrote their last message with a firm hand and a stout heart and faced the sudden blotting out of the fair horizon that opened out before them, without either sorrow or regret. And then when they charged the foe it was with a sublime disregard of life and limb, their only thought being that they might not fail in their duty to those they left behind, to their country, or to their God. And that "they loved not their lives unto the death" was evidence that their courage did not fail them.

Did not Forget.

I pay a tribute to their unselfishness. Had they thought more of themselves and less of us they would never have enlisted. Had they thought more of ease than of duty, more of a good time than of liberty, more of life than of honour, they never would have made the sacrifice which they did. In all they did they put the consideration of others before their own. Those of us who have visited their homes know how frequent and cheery were the letters, how they made light of their hardships and their dangers, how they avoided all reference to the likelihood of being killed. We know how they practiced the art of camouflage in hiding from anxious mothers the dangers to which their lives were exposed and the hardships they endured. And then we have heard of their unselfishness to each other. We have read of how a comrade has risked his life for a friend. I have before told the incident, which I beg to repeat, of the soldier, who seeing a bomb fall in the midst of a group of companions threw his coat on it, and then sat on it. He was horribly lacerated and yet he lived. On being [illegible] he did it, he replied "I forgot myself!" Of course he did. That is what our men were doing all the time. They forgot themselves, but they did not forget us, and they did not forget their country, nor did they forget the cause for which they fought and gave their lives.

Nor shall we forget them. We shall ever hold dear their memory. We shall ever be inspired by their example. When tempted to ease and self-indulgence we shall be shamed by their sufferings and sacrifice. We sorrow because they will come home to us no more. But we do not sorrow as those who have no hope. God will give them back "bright, pure and beautiful." In that hope we will dry our eyes and be as heroic in our loneliness as they were in the midst of the horrors of war. And we shall say as we think of them:

"Because you live, though out of sight and reach,
I will, so help me God, live bravely too;
Taking the road with laughter gay and speech
Alert, intent to give life all its due."

Back from Death.

3. I can only speak very briefly to you who have come back from the jaws of death, back from the mouth of hell, whose lives have been graciously spared, continued the speaker. You would not have me dwell at length on anything you have done. I have noticed how difficult it is, in conversation with you, to get you to tell anything about yourselves, even those of you who are decorated with medals. I cannot look upon you today without a feeling of thanksgiving. God has spared your lives. Some of you feel that it is a miracle of his grace and love that you are here at all. What hair breadth escapes some of you have had! Two of you at least were shot to the earth by German airmen and still you live to tell the tle. Others of you could mention deliverances just as miraculous. You cannot help but feel that you were spared because your work was not done. It lies before you. You will not forget the past but you will not live in it. Your country and your God need you here just as truly as they needed you on the battlefields of Eufope. There is a great work to be done which will call for the exercise of equal heroism to that which you displayed on the field of battle!

3. I am more concerned this morning in the time at my disposal to speak a word to those who stayed at home and whose liberties have been made secure by the heroic dead whom we seek to honour and by such men as those whom I see before me, and those whose names are on one of these tablets just unveiled. And that you may rightly appreciate what you owe to the living and the dead I am going to read to you a tribute recently paid our soldiers by Lloyd George. It is only when we grasp the full desire of their endurance, their unflinching courage, and their wonderful services and sacrifices that we ourselves can live worthily of the sacrifices they made for us and that we can honor them as those ought to be honoured who risked their all for us.

In Peril of Death

He said, "To this hour I cannot hhink of the herroism of our soldiers without wonder—without wonder and reverence. There has never been in the history of mankind such a courage as theirs. Never! Think what it was. The least of us is capable of a flash of valour. In a sudden emergency, the meanest of us might be brave. But think what these men did. It was not for an hour, nor for a day, nor for a week, nor for a month, nor for a year that they did these fine things.

Year after year their life was a fine thing. It was not valour they displayed; it was not even herroism; it was something so new and terrible, so undreamed of, that man has created no word for it. I try to find some word for it. I can't. The nearest word I can get is Endurance. They were in hell every day of their lives, and they endured. They were in peril of death, and worse than death, day after day, night after night, and they endured. They were exposed to all the nerve shattering rage of artillery, artillery which rived the soil like an earthquake, which hurled the bodies of the dead in the air, and flung the bodies of the living into a deeper sepulchre, and they endured. They went out in the darkness to storm the trenches of the enemy, to destroy machine gun nests to break a line of fire, the very thunders of which deafened men; and they endured. But something omre. That is what haunts me. They endured for all these years a manner of life utterly unnatural—utterly unnatural, and horrible beyond expression of words. Our people are the cleanest in Europe; to keep their bodies clean is one of their joys, a part, almost, of their religion, and think how they lived; They lived in mud; and worse than mud; they lived in unutterable filth, breathing an air that clotted the lungs with disguet; their young bodies attacked by vermine; their feet sinking into squalor, their hands touching a tevery turn things which one care not speak about. And our people are the most domesticated in Europe our climate has enforced us into making indoor life the very heart of existence; and these young men were exiled from their homes, were forced to live almost entirely without the grace and charm and consolation of women, were obliged to herd together in great companies in a freign country, and not only in a foreign country and not only in a ed country from which the sulphurour flames of Satanism had scorched the leaf of the meanest weed.

Midst of Horror

There they lived always in the presence of death, always in the midst of horror, always on a rack of torture, a rack, which stretched and tortured not the muscles of the body, but every nerve and the whole mind, and the entire soul, and they endured. Yes, they endured, endured inexpressible agony, with patience, even with honor, and at the end, flinging themselves upon the enemy drove him headlong; they drove him out of his trenches, sent him flying, beat him, beat him to his knees. There has been noting like this in the history of the world!

What kind of people ought we to be in view of these sacrifices? What should we make of the liberty they secured at so great a price? But for their valour, their endurance, the Hun flag would be floating to-day over large parts of France and England, and even Canada itself and many of you who are here this morning would not be living at all. How shall we think of that holy thing which they have purchased for us? Why should we seek to keep their memory green and to treasure all their heroic deeds? Is this memorial service a mere sentiment? Will it be to any purpose in our lives, will it be anything but a solemn mockery if we go out fro mthis place to amuse ourselves, to shirk difficult duty, to seek soft and easy places?

We do not speak of the dead without using the word sacrifice. Have the living no sacrifices to make? Nothing but our sacrifice can answer to their sacrifice. If they loved not their lives unto the death, we must respond by giving to the death all selfishness, and pride.

Comradeship

Our soldiers developed a sweet spirit of comradeship. They were one in their sufferings, and one in their struggles. They fought like brothers and many of them sleep together in kindred graves. Can not that same spirit of brotherhood be fostered and practiced among all classes in our national life? The war has been a great leveller, greater than a few snobs have yet learned. It has brought home to us the old Scripture which tells us that God has made of one blood all nations that dwell on the earth, that:

"What man so 'ere I chance to see,
Amazing thought, is kin to me,
And if a man, my brother."

Unless this be our creed, unless it be with us a living faith embodied in the very warp and woof of life and in all our relations with our fellowmen, then the war will have been fought in vain, and instead of erecting such monuments as these to our dead soldiers and our returning brave, let us bury them deep out of sight, and go through life with drooped head and shamed cheeks.

Oh, could our dead, who see the meaning of life with clearer eyes than we, but speak to us this morning, they would say: "Do not sorrow for us. It is well for the faithful dead. Live for God. Be brave be unselfish, be true, be generous. Take Jesus Christ as your Savior, Friend and Brother. Then you, too, will come where we are, and where all go who, for Christ, 'loved not their lives unto death.'"

Receives a Gold Watch

Corp. L. L. Sisson Welcomed Home By the People of Cavan.

The people of Cavan are showing he proper spirit in welcoming home the Cavan boys who have been serving overseas. Corp L. L. Sisson, of the 52nd Battalion, who recently returned from overseas, was presented with a handsome watch by his fellow citizens and a similar gift awaits the other soldiers from Cavan as they come back. The gift was accompanied by a card from the committee consisting of J. H. Paul, D. J. Hunter, R. W. Lough, Jas. Douglas, Jas. Kennedy, M. McDowell, B. T. Carley, stated that the watch was presented to Corp. Sisson "as a mark of appreciation of his services for King and country in the great war."

omic terms are still in a fluid state.

"At the present rate of progress the discussions must drag on for weeks, but certain conferees agree this cannot be the case. In view of reports from Hungary and Germany, some drastic action appears likely to be taken with in a few days.

"The President and other leaders have put in long hours, and the committees have done the same, but they have little to show for their efforts since the President's return.

Bolshevism Has Spread

State of War.

(Canadian Press.)

COPENHAGEN, March 24. — Detachments of the Russian Bolsheviki armies were reported in a Berlin despatch to-day to be marching toward Budapest to aid the new Soviet Republic, established in Hungary.

Budapest said a state of war has been declared against the Entente and that a general mobilization has been ordered in Hungary.

Despatches from Vienna said the Bolsheviki envoys in Budapest have promised that the main forces of the Soviet armies would be ready to march into Hungary within a few weeks. The newly formed Workmen's Ministry in Budapest is said to be headed by Alexander Garbai.

The Hungarian Soviet Republic, according to a Budapest despatch, has sent a wireless message to Premier Lenine asking him to come to Budapest and personally take charge of the situation. Lenine was greeted as the "International Leader" and was assured of Hungary's "solidarity." He is said to have replied, asking that he be kept constantly advised of the "military situation."

Ministry Resigns.

Count Karolyi, in announcing the resignation of his Ministry, issued a proclamation declaring Allied occupation was intended to make Hungary the "jumping off place" for operations against the Russian Bolsheviki, with the aid of Czech troops. He said the Workmen's and Soldiers' Councils had decided that they must form an armed alliance with the Bolsheviki against the Entente.

Situation Alarming.

(Canadian Press.)

LONDON, March 24. — Fear of a spread of Bolshevism into Roumania, Poland and Czecho Slovakia as a result of the setting up of a Soviet government in Hungary was expressed by London morning newspapers today.

The newspapers called the Hungarian situation most alarming. Editorials declared it confronted the statesmen at Paris with a serious problem and might complicate the work of delegates seeking a quick peace. Liberals argue that events in Hungary demonstrate the immediate need of a League of Nations.

A despatch from Budapest said the Czechs have begun to mobilise against the Hungarians.

The Hungarian Soviet sent Premier Lenine a wireless addressing him as "Chief of the Universal Soviet," and asking military aid against the Entente. Lenine replied that Russia is delighted at Hungary's action and that she would keep in touch with the military situation.

History of the War

THE TIMES History of the War published by "The Times" of London, admittedly the greatest organization of its kind in the world.

This history is the result of constant work of The Times staff of writers, editors, photographers, correspondents, from the very beginning of the war until the end.

When war broke out, this highly trained and world-embracing organization commenced immediately to write and compile this history.

The Times organization has worked throughout in co-operation with British and Foreign Government officials and censors.

The result is a complete, authentic, interesting record of The War.

This history deals not with British or Allied operations only—but with enemy and neutral states as well.

It includes a record of The War on all fronts, and all branches of activity, military, naval, aerial, etc.

The Times History of the War contains over 10,000 illustrations, many of them taken by staff photographers, depicting scenes, events, incidents that have passed away forever.

The Times has a century-old, international record for enterprise in news-getting, authenticity, initiative. The production of this History has enhanced this record.

Today, and in future generations, The Times History of the War will be the final and undisputed authority for information and knowledge of the War.

NATIVES OF WEST AFRICA ABHORRED GERMAN CONDUCT

Mrs. M. R. Hilford, Who Has Returned From Sierra Leone and is Visiting Her Father, Mr. A. J. Johnston, Spent Two Years in Missionary Work.

INFLUENZA'S HEAVY TOLL

The uncivilized natives of West Africa were scandalized at the campaign conducted by the Germans in the war, Mrs. M. R. Hilford (nee Grace Johnston), who with her little son, returned from Sierra Leone a few weeks ago, told the Examiner. She said that the natives, amongst whom she worked during the past two years took a keen interest in the war during the entire campaign, said that the atrocities which the Germans committed were worse than they in their native uprisings ever stooped to. The natives, whom the missionaries never deceive, and with whom the British are careful to always deal justly, had come to look upon the white man as a God who could do no evil, could scarcely believe the tales which came to them of the German atrocities.

The natives she said, are to a great extent intelligent and glad to learn the Christian religion. The majority of them are absolutely without religion, while some have become Mohammedans through the teachings of followers of Mohammed, who drift through the country, spreading their religion to any natives with whom they come in touch. The latter are considerably harder to Christianize than those who know no God.

Christianizing the natives in the district in which Mr. and Mrs. Hilford worked, is retarded on account of the weather conditions. The natives become very strongly attached to a teacher and willing to implicitly believe and follow her, but when her influence is beginning to make itself felt she is forced through illness to resign. No white person can stand the climate more than a year or two. Mrs. Hilford herself was forced through climatic conditions to return to Canada and will probably never return to Africa.

The Flu Epidemic.

During the 'flu' epidemic, which was brought to West Africa on a boat, the natives died at a terrible rate. In two weeks it is estimated from two to three thousand died in the district. The heavy toll may to a certain extent be attributed to the lack of sufficient medical attention. In one hospital of about fifty beds, one nurse did all the nursing besides such work as keeping up necessary fires and the cooking. The epidemic was spread like wild fire by the natives, who, in trying to flee from it, spread it to all parts of the country. All travelling by railroads was stopped at the time, and Mrs. Hilford, who was on the way home, was kept back by this. She finally made the journey to the coast, and crossed from Africa to New York in one month.

PAYING FOR THE WAR

(By J. T. Hull)

It seems to be generally agreed that the returned soldier shall be a farmer, and we will, therefore, assume that Private Smith, having done his duty overseas, as becomes a good soldier, has been honorably discharged and has made a start on a homestead "somewhere in Saskatchewan," and is getting things into shape to make his fortune out of seventy cent wheat. We will also assume that, in accordance with present-day rumor, the Government has remitted the 7½ per cent. war duty, and that the customs schedule stands at hte pre-war rates.

Having retired to sleep at an early hour the night before and slept the sleep that comes with a clear conscience, ex-private Smith is wakened the next morning by an alarm clock, taxed 30 per cent. He raises his head from the pillow, taxed 30 per cent, and proceeds to get from under the blankets taxed 35 per cent. and off a bed, taxed 30 per cent., and mattress, taxed 30 per cent. He steps upon the carpet or linoleum, taxed 35 per cent. which is lying upon a floor, the lumber of which is taxed 25 per cent. He divests himself of his sleeping wear, taxed 35 per cent. and proceeds to put on underwear, taxed 35 per cent., socks taxed 35 per cent., and outer clothing taxed the same. He puts on a pair of boots, taxed 30 per cent, and laces them with laces taxed 30 per cent. He next proceeds to wash himself in a basin, taxed 35 per cent, with soap, taxed 35 per cent., drying himself upon a towel taxed 25 per cent., and completing his toilet with a comb taxed 35 per cent., and a brush taxed 27½ per cent. He cleans his teeth with a paste or powder taxed 35 per cent. and a brush taxed the same. He next puts on a hat, taxed at 35 per cent., and going outside takes up an axe taxed 22½ per cent, to cut wood. He throws the wood into a stove taxed 25 per cent, applies a match, taxed 25 per cent, and adds coal, taxed $3 cents a ton. He takes a pail, taxed 30 per cent., and fills it with water at a pump, taxed 30 per cent, returning and filling a kettle, taxed 30 per cent. He places on table 30 per cent, covered with a cloth, taxed 35 per cent., table-ware, taxed 30 per cent. and cutlery taxed the same. He opens a can of meat, taxed 27½ per cent., and a can of milk, taxed 3½ cents per pound, including the can in the weight and a can of fruit taxed 3½ cents a pound, and to give piquancy to the meat he adds a bottle of sauce, taxed 35 per cent. The water boiling, he makes himself a cup of cocoa, taxed 20 per cent and sweetens it with sugar, taxed $1.08 per cwt. His bread is made of flour taxed 60 cents a barrel, and if he has porridge, it is made of oatmeal, taxed 60 cents a cwt. Breakfast over, he fills his pipe, taxed 35 per cent, out of a pouch taxed same with tobacco taxed 55 cents a lb., and sets to work to wash the dishes in a basin, taxed 35 per cent, after which he sweeps the floor with a broom, taxed 20 per cent, and carries out the debris on a shovel taxed 22½ per cent. His house put in order, ex-private Smith remembers that his application to the Soldiers Settlement Board for an advance has been accepted, so he decides to take a trip to Ryrie and see about the improvements that he needs to properly work his place. He goes to his hastily improvised barn and, having put the harness, taxed 20 per cent, upon his one horse, he hitches it to a buggy, taxed 35 per cent. and hies townward. On interviewing an implement dealer, he learns that the wagon he wants is taxed 25 per cent, the plow 20 per cent, the harrows 20 per cent, the seeder 20 per cent, the binder 17½ per cent, the mower 17½ per cent, the hay rake 20 per cent, the fanning mill 25 per cent, the disc 25 per cent, but that he can get a cream separator untaxed. Bearing up manfully under the shock, he arranges for implements as far as his resources will permit, and returns home in a thoughtful mood, his mind alternately dwelling upon the taxes he is called upon to pay, and comparatively recent sundry events connected with Ypres, Festubert, the Somme and other places somewhere in France." Arriving home, he prepares a meal with the same taxed utensils and consisting of more taxed goods, after which he proceeds to mend a rent in his taxed overalls, using a needle taxed 30 per cent and thread taxed 25 per cent. Darkness coming on, he lights a lamp taxed 32½ per cent, burning oil taxed about 10 per cent, and draws the window blinds, taxed 35 per cent. He decides to write a letter to "somebody" who is always looking for one, so he hunts up the paper, taxed 25 per cent, and the ink taxed 25 per cent, and sets to work with a pen, taxed 27½ per cent, on a writing desk, taxed 35 per cent. His theme is not taxation and we have nothing to do with it, but he finishes his letter, lays aside his taxed pen and his taxed pipe, divests himself of his taxed clothes and gets once more into his taxed bed, there a dream of the coming time when the "somebody" to whom he has written will come and share his taxed home and add to the taxed clothes he must buy and the subsequent years which will see more mouths to fill with taxed food and more bodies to cover with taxed clothes, and then the end of it all, when he will lie in a coffin, taxed 25 per cent, under a tombstone, taxed 35 per cent, and perhaps, inscribed with the suitable epitaph: "Taxed to Death."

Peterboro Men Return Home

Driver Max Smith returned on Hospital Ship.

Driver Max Smith who went overseas with the 52nd Battery in 1916 returned to the city last evening. He came over on the Araguaya, which docked in Portland, Maine, on Saturday and made the city before the balance of the boys who came on the same ship by catching a freight at Port Hope. He was wounded on May 28th and had been in hospital ever since. The three others who are headed for Peterboro from the Araguaya, of whom Private Kenneth Brown, 517 Weller Street, who enlisted with the 93rd and went to France with the 26, is one, will it is expected arrived in the city this evening.

No Violence.

(Canadian Press.)

LONDON, March 24.—The proclamation of Bolshevism in Hungary, says the Pall Mall Gazette, has given a shock to the peace conference, which is precisely what it is intended to do. The change in government of Budapest was effected, not by violence, but by collusion.

Big Baseball Meeting Here Wednesday Night

Everybody who is interested in baseball is asked to attend a meeting in the Empress Hotel on Wednesday night of this week to organize a ball team and represent Peterboro in the new Midland League which is to be organized shortly and which promises to be a great success, judging by the enthusiasm with which the project is being received in the district. Seven teams are already in line: Lindsay, Oshawa, Bowmanville, Port Hope, Cobourg, Belleville and Peterboro, and the organization meeting of the League will be held on April 2nd. As the Cobourg World puts it "baseball enthusiasm seems to be running at fever heat throughout the district," and in the different cities the players and fans are already excited over the prospects. It is to be hoped that all people of Peterboro who are interested will attend the meeting of the local club on Wednesday night.

Peterboro Gun Club Re-organized

Mr. C. Graham Was Elected President

A most enthusiastic meeting of the Peterborough Gun Club was held Friday evening in the Empress Hotel, for the purpose of re-organizing after the last few years of inactivity on account of the war, and absence of members. Many of the old members were present and the secretary received the names of several new ones for the coming season. After the election of officers a committee was formed for the purpose of making all necessary repairs to the club house and getting the grounds in condition for the first shoot of the season, which will be held in the near future. The Club will this year will be affiliated with the American Trap Shooting Association, and will be pleased to receive the names of any who would like to become members. Any returned soldiers who wish to continue in the shooting line will find this good manly sport. All information may be received from the President or Secretary.

Officers Elected.

President—C. Graham.
Vice-President—S. Coon.
Captain—H. Cook.
Sect'y-Treas.—C. Wood.
Ground committee — L. Hall, C Mills, H. Reilly.

Shooting will be held regularly during the summer months on the 1st 3rd and 4th Fridays in each month commencing the 1st Friday in May Several trophies will be offered for competition, particulars of which will be arranged later.

Norma Talmadge's Double Success At Palm Beach

Plays whether made on the screen or on the roulette wheel are all the same to Norma Talmadge. The Select star spent a few weeks at Palm Beach recently and tried her luck at the Casino; where, with the good fortune which invariably follows her lead, she almost broke the bank. Her amazing winnings attracted a throng of curious spectators who watched her plays with fascinated interest.

Miss Talmadge's second success came in the Red Cross lawn fete and auction, which was held at the resort while this popular star was vacationing there. She took her turn on the auctioneer's chair along with other celebrities of the stage and screen, and her session with the gavel brought $15,000 for the Red Cross fund.

On returning to New York, Miss Talmadge set about filming "De Luxe Annie," her latest Select Picture which will be shown here today, Tuesday and Wednesday, matinee daily, at the Grand Opera House, and went ahead on full speed, permitting only one interruption. This occurred during the recent Third Liberty Loan campaign, when Norma Talmadge signed her name to a subscription for $200,000 worth of the bonds—another typical illustration of the large heartedness displayed by the petite star in every good cause.

The famous Humphrey sisters will present their singing and dancing specialty and a well balanced programme of first run pictures will complete a splendid programme at the Grand. Today, Tuesday and Wednesday.

Americans Complain of British Embargo

ACTION OF BRITISH BOARD OF TRADE RESULTS IN LOSS OF MILLIONS' TO AMERICAN EXPORTERS.

WASHINGTON, March 24.—Three months of near peace finds the American concerns far behind their pre-war stride in exports to England as a result of the British import restrictions.

The export of most commodities except food is running millions short of pre-war shipments, the United States comerce reports show.

Complaints are flooding the department from American exporters, who flocked to England upon the signing of the armistice, eager to resume normal commercial relations.

These complaints say the refusal of the British Board of Trade to license imports is shutting Americans out of many English markets, where in 1918 there was a big demand for American goods. It is pointed out that the English import restrictions do not apply to goods from the British colonies.

Russian Money Foments Revolution

New Hungarian Foreign Minister Was a Prisoner in Germany—A Friend of Lenine.

(Special to The Examiner.)

BERLIN, March 24.—That seizure of power by the Hungarian communists is a result of Russian Bolshevik missionary work and the financing of the movement with Russian rubles seems apparent from the history of the movement. Bela Kun (or Kuhn), the new Foreign Minister, who probably was the man who formulated the communist proclamation, spent a long time in Russia as a prisoner and made there the acquaintance of Nikolai Lenine and Leon Trotzky. He was originally chosen to organize the Spartacan-Bolshevik movement in Germany, but went instead to Hungary.

The Hungarian Socialists would have nothing to do with Kuhn and he thereupon founded the communist party.

SLOVAKS MARCH AGAINST HUNGARY

New Slovene President Resigns.

(Special to The Examiner.)

COPENHAGEN, March 24. — The Czecho-Slovak army has been sent against Hungary, according to an official report received in Vienna and forwarded here.

T. G. Masaryk, President of Czecho-Slovakia, has resigned, according to a report received here.

BOWLING NEWS.

The prize winners at the George Street Alleys last week were Wm. Downer, P. Gettas and D. Forsythe, some very high scores being made in the different contests. Good prizes will be given this week for high scores on the different alleys.

Motor Show Tickets On Sale To-morrow

Committee Will Push Advance Sale of 7 Tickets for $1.00—Proceeds for Health Association

The greatest Motor Show in Peterborough's history is to be conducted in aid of Peterborough Health Association at the Armouries, on Wednesday, Thursday and Friday, April 9th, 10th, and 11th. Arrangements are rapidly nearing completion and the showing of automobiles and the entertainment to be provided together with the special attractions will be far ahead of any previous Motor Show.

The advance sale of tickets is being taken care of by the Young Ladies' organizations which were organized for war work and are still anxious to be of service to the community in any capacity in which they may be found useful. Their taking hold of the sale of advanced tickets makes possible a thorough canvass and the committee hope for as hearty support as ever for the Motor Show which will be greatly worth while this year and the proceeds being for the Health Association, is a guarantee that funds are urgently needed and will be spent for the purpose of making our citizens healthier and happier.

Criticism Levelled At Peace Conference

London Globe Attacks Idea of Incorporating League of Nations in Peace Treaty.

(Special to The Examiner.)

LONDON, March 24.—The Hungarian revolution and the reported alliance of the new government with the Russian Soviet, which is considered here as a grave menace to Europe, has given rise to new criticism here of delays in the Peace Conference proceedings. The Globe, referring to the situation in Hungary, says.

"That is the natural consequences of delay in the peace conference in making peace, and if delay continues we will have worse consequences still. All this discussion of a league covenant before even preliminary peace has been reached, simply encourages the spread of the Bolshevik disease and gives our chief enemy opportunities for intrigue."

Bolshevik Defeat the Allied Forces

Supreme War Council Will Likely Take Up Bolshevik Spread—Action in Black Sea Region.

(Special to The Examiner.)

LONDON, March 24.— Further successes by the Bolsheviki in the Black Sea region were reported in the official communique received from Moscow today.

The statement said the Bolshevik armies drove the Allies back in disorder between Voznessensk and Odessa, defeating an entire division. On the Archangel front, the despatch said an Allied outpost was captured. It may result, therefore, that the first job of the League of Nations, the Allies and neutrals co-operating, will be joint action to suppress the spread of Bolshevism.

What effect the new developments in Europe will have upon plans for American demobolitation and bringing home of troops, will be up to the war chiefs in Paris, it was stated here early to-day.

NO FOUNDATION FOR THE REPORT

(Special to The Examiner.)

PARIS, March 24. — The highest American authorities declared to-day that there is absolutely no foundation in a report that Italy had threatened to withdraw from the Peace Conference unless awarded Fiume. On the contrary they said they have found Premier Orlando displaying a spirit of co-operation and good humour in all his recent conferences with Allied representatives.

Cross of War For a Local Man

Two Military Decorations Awarded to Sergt.-Major Sam Thomas.

Mrs. S. Thomas, 519 Chamberlain street, received on Saturday from Lieut.-Col. Harry Genet, Kingston, the Belgian Croix de Guerre won by her husband, Regimental Sergt.-Major Sam Thomas, who went overseas with the 21st Battalion. A congratulate letter was received with the decoration from the Colonel.

Since winning the Croix de Guerre Sergt. Thomas has won further distinction in receiving the D.C.M. at Amiens. The latter decoration has not yet been forwarded. Sergt. Thomas who has been overseas for the past four years is at present in England.

Dewart's Charges to be Investigated

Sir William Meredith Will Likely be the Commission.

(Special to The Examiner.)

PARLIAMENT BUILDINGS, Toronto, March 24.—The Commission to probe Hartley Dewart's charges against Chief License Inspector Ahearst is likely to be appointed this week, according to Hon. F. B. Lucas, Attorney General, who expressed the above opinion this morning. The Government is desirous to expedite the investigation as much as possible and to this end will lose no time in placing the proper machinery of inquiry in motion. It is not known how long the inquiry will last or what will be the scope of the evidence taken. It is probable that only one Commissioner will be appointed. Hon. Mr. Lucas stated, expressing the opinion that an inquiry conducted by one man would best meet the circumstances of the case. He would give no intimation as to whom the government might select as Commissioner, but did not contradict a query as to whether Sir William Meredith would be selected.

An Original Member of the Princess Pats

One of the original members of that famous regiment, the Princess Patricia's Canadian Light Infantry, has taken up residence in Peterboro in the person of Mr. J. J. Corbett, who has come to Peterboro to take a position as assistant manager of the Peterboro Bread Company. Mr. Corbett went overseas in 1914 with the Princess Pats and served with them at the front for a long period, being finally invalided home last September and receiving his discharge from the army in January. He saw much hard fighting with the Pats, as he was with them during the majority of the battles in which they distinguished themselves. Mr. Corbett is becoming a member of the Peterboro Branch of the Great War Veterans' Association.

The Situation Summarized

(Canadian Press.)

NEW YORK, March 24.—The Associated Press to-day issues the following the Hungarian situation: The question of the barrier which the peace conference intended to erect against the spread of Bolshevism into the former Central Powers has come sharply to the front as a result of the situation in Hungary where Bolsheviki elements have seized power and declared that a state of war exists between Hungary and the Entente powers.

Special Session.

Premiers of Allied States were called to meet in special session in Paris at three o'clock this afternoon and it was reported that important military decisions might be taken at a meeting of the Supreme Council at four o'clock regarding the situation in Hungary and Poland. Premier Clemenceau and Foreign Minister Pichon had a long conference Sunday regarding Hungary and it is indicated by Paris newspapers that action looking to military movements was taken. Paris newspaper writers see the situation as serious and as one calling for military action. They express the belief that Germany may be behind the movement for the purpose of defeating the work of the Peace Conference. Some commentators in London see the Hungarian situation as partly the result of a delay of the peace conference in bringing about a preliminary peace.

Says Boy Asked To Be Tied Up

In connection with "Teacher's" letter in the Examiner on Saturday the two boys who were supposed to do the tieing up of the smaller boy, called at the Examiner office today with the father of one of them and told this story of the affair:

"Three boys and two girls were playing Boy Scouts together and the little chap who is past seven, asked that he be tied up, and the rope which was the property of one of the girls was loosely wound around his body not near his neck or feet. The boys continued right at the play and took the rope off themselves, without any injury of any kind having been done."

They say that if the little fellow has any bruises it was done afterwards with other means and not at any time by them.

Security of the Pay Envelopes

Canada's Chief Hope Lies in a Fireproof Forest.

While the public tax collector holds out his hand for hundreds of millions of our dollars the forest fire thief, hidden in the wilderness, calmly appropriates millions of the country's basic capital between April and November year by year. This is the dual picture suggested by the Canadian Forestry Association of Ottawa in a statement on the nation's forest losses, and methods of timber protection.

"Forest wealth is the most easily destroyed of all the natural resources. Lands, mines and fisheries are immune from ruin by fire, but by this single agency more than half of the nation's valuable timber wealth has been blotted out.

"Since confederation, Canada has lost about three quarters of a billion dollars in forest conflagrations that were largely avoidable.

Sole Security.

"Over fifty million dollars a year are handed out to forest workmen. The sole security of these pay envelopes is the standing timber.

"In spite of improved fire patrol systems, timber losses continue to be severe. Forest fires are mostly from human causes and in attacking these causes the educational method brings abundant results. Careless fishermen, careless settlers and others cannot usually be accused of malevolence or treason. They are ignorant of the consequences of their acts, and can best be reached by appeals to their intelligence and goodwill. The educational method, beyond any doubt, is successfully blocking the path of forest fires.

"Canada's chief hope of an expanded foreign trade in lumber, pulp and paper and other forest products is based on a 'fireproof forest.'"

World's Happenings

AMERONGEN, Holland, March 24. —The Dutch guard about the former Kaiser's residence here was reinforced to-day as the result of the receipt of letters threatening his life. Wilhelm was also said to have received a warning telegraph from a friend.

German Sailors Relent.

(Special to The Examiner.)

BERLIN, March 24.4—The German government has reached an agreement with the seamen regarding ships to be turned over to the Allies, it was announced today. The German sailors, it was said, composed their factional differences, and decided to take the ships out. Four sailed from Hamburg to-day.

Demand Release.

(Special to The Examiner.)

DUBLIN, March 24.— Hundreds of protest meetings were held outside churches throughout Ireland yesterday demanding the release of Irish political prisoners. Several bishops and priests participated in the meetings.

Extremely Radical.

(Canadian Press.)

BERLIN, March 24.— Berlin press, from the most extremely radical to the most conservative, sees in the events which are occuring in Hungary a terrible warning for the Entente. This is the view taken, for instance, by two extremes of Socialists and the Tages Zeitung.

HAS BEEN DISARMED.

LONDON, March 24. —An Entente detachment near Budapest has been disarmed by Bolshevist soldiers, according to a dispatch from that city received to-day by way of Vienna.

Major B. E. Kelly Returns Home

Major (Dr.) B. E. Kelley, D.S.O., Croix de Guerre, of Bridgenorth, who went overseas with the Second Field Ambulance, arrived in the city on the G.T.R. on Friday evening, and is at present visiting at the home of his brother-in-law, Mr. N. J. Ireland, 524 Homewood Ave. Major Kelly, who is a son of the late Dr. W. B. Kelly, of Bridgenorth, was subsequently appointed to the 9th Field Ambulance. He is home on two weeks' leave, when he will return overseas, unless orders to the contrary are received.

It was just three years and three weeks ago that Major Kelly's unit embarked from St. John, N.B., for overseas service. Arriving in England the unit was sent to Bramshott Camp, where equipment and training were completed. The unit left for France early in April, joining the Third Canadian Division at Poperinghe, near Ypres. The day after the arrival of the unit it was called upon to take over the front line work of evecuating the wounded from the Sanctuary Wood and Maple Copse in the Ypres salient. Capt. D. Watson, an original officer, was killed in May.

In August the 9th went to the Somme and did front line work during the Third Division's stay in that area. In November it moved to Vimy Ridge and did wonderful work in the Vimy engagement in April, 1917. At Lens and at Passchendaele it added to its reputation. Since August, 1918, the corps has been in all the open fighting that ended with the signing of the armistice. The unit had the distinction of forming the first ambulance post in Mons a few hours after the infantry entered the city.

The unit has been commanded successively by Col. C. A. Peters, D.S.O., who organized it, Lieut.-Col. A. T. Bazin, D.S.O., and Lieut.-Col. C. W. Vipond.

"THE BRIDE SHOP"

It goes without saying that any theatrical production that earns the general approbation of press and public from coast to coast must have distinct and positive merit. Such is the proud and enviable record of "The Bride Shop" George Choos' successful musical comedy with book by Fred de Gresac, lyrics by Darl MacBoyle and music by Walter L. Rosemont, which is announced to appear at the Grand Opera House on one night only, Thursday, March 27th.

The cast is headed by Eddie Vogt who has always ranked high among comedians. Also there is that widely known team of fun-makers, John Sully and Lew Nathan; the two riotous specialty dancers, Muriel Thomas and Sally Hunt; such principals as Nan Hopestill, Muriel Rastrick, and Edith Benjar and about two dozen beautiful and talented show girls who are the pick of Broadway and wear their stunning costumes with the utmost graces and chic.

"The Bride Shop" comes heralded for the wealth of its scenic environment and costuming. The music is labelled as of the catchy, whistly kind, and the song numbers such as will cling to memory. The display of Parisian lingerie and dress is said to make a positive and pleasing appeal not only to the women but to the male auditors who have an admiration for the confections of feminine attire. "The Bride Shop" appears to have all the qualities of a three-act musical comedy and one of the edifying shows that come to stay and leave a lasting impression.

WEDDING BELLS

BOSKILL—YELLAND.
A quiet wedding took place at the home of Rev. J. R. Webb this afternoon when Miss Olive May Yelland, daughter of Mr. Joseph Yelland, 693 Harvey Street, became the bride of Mr. Frederic Boskill. The ceremony was performed by Rev. J. R. Webb. Mr. and Mrs. Boskill left on the afternoon train for the west, and will take up residence in Regina.

The death occurred on Saturday morning of Mary Agnes O'Toole, eight weeks old daughter of Mr. and Mrs. H. O'Toole, 826 Water street. The funeral took place yesterday afternoon to St. Peter's cemetery.

MRS. SAMUEL KENNEDY.
After a lingering illness, the death occurred at Nicholls Hospital Sunday afternoon of Mrs. Samuel Kennedy, aged 68 years. She leaves to mourn her loss, her husband and five children, Margaret, David and Samuel at home, Robert and William of Montreal, also one sister, Mrs. J. Mundell, Westbrook.
The services conducted by the Rev. Mr. Pogue, will be held at her late residence, 224 Park Street, Monday evening. The remains will be taken on the G.T.R. train Tuesday morning for interment in Cataraqui Cemetery, Kingston.

Daughters of England Held Social Evening

The daughters of England are to be congratulated upon the concert held in the Sons of England Hall last Thursday evening. The programme was very pleasing throughout, and judging by the hearty applause which greeted every number, was greatly enjoyed by all present. A pleasing feature was the marked ability displayed by the junior performers. Selections on the Pathephone were keenly enjoyed and evoked much favourable comment. At the close of the concert refreshments were served by the ladies.

Hydro Engineers Will Proceed

According to a letter received by Mr. J. H. Burnham, M.P., the Hydro Engineers have been instructed to proceed with the acquirement of the private interests in the dams and other water power privileges at Lakefield. The request from the Lakefield Council was necessary before the Hydro-Electric Commission could proceed. The privileges will be expropriated at once, the letter states.

Weak, Sickly Folks Regain Health Quickly By New Remedy!

A BLOOD-FOOD NOW MANUFACTURED THAT ACCOMPLISHES MARVELS.

Lots of people that were thin and miserable for years have recently been restored by this simple treatment. All you have to do is take two little chocolate-coated tablets with a sip of water at the close of each meal.

The tablets, which, by the way, are called "Ferrozone," are in reality a perfect food for the blood. They contain exactly those elements your blood lacks when it becomes thin, weak, and unhealthy.

This is just the time to use Ferrozone; it excites jaded appetite, gives digestion splendid aid, supplies nourishment for all weak organs. At once you feel buoyant and strong. Nutritious blood courses through your veins, supplies strength, makes you tingle with animation and ambition.

No more headaches.

None of that tired languor.

You feel like doing things because Ferrozone completely renews and strengthens your whole system.

No medicine on earth gives such quick, lasting benefits as Ferrozone. It has raised thousands from downright weakness, brings robust health simply because it contains the fortifying elements that run-down systems require.

One week after using Ferrozone you'll feel like new, you'll appreciate what real robust health means. In a month you'll scarcely credit the push your vigor and spirits have received. Ferrozone is more than a tonic because its work lasts, its benefits remain and are not temporary. It restores health where other treatments fail, and should be used by every man woman and child. Try it. 50c. per box or six boxes for $2.50. Sold by all dealers or by mail from The Catarrhozone Co., Kingston, Ontario.

Canadian National Exhibition.

The Canadian National Exhibition has turned in to the city of Toronto the sum of $96,597.74, the largest amount added to the city's revenue from this source in the history of the exhibition. The directors plan for even greater expansion in the future, and before next August hope to have erected a great arena for the judging of live stock which is one of the most important features of the fair. Another possibility within the immediate future is the erection of a magnificent British building, which will be reserved exclusively for the display of goods manufactured in the British Isles.

WILKINS, IN FIRM VOICE, ENTERS PLEA OF NOT GUILTY

Physician Regains Nerve After Sleepless Night Spent Weeping in His Cell.

MINEOLA, L.I., March 25.— With firm tread and no display of the nervousness that has marked his attitude since his incarceration in the county jail, Dr. Walter Wilkins stood before Supreme Court Justice Seeger in the Nassau County Court here, and in a firm voice pleaded not guilty to a charge of murder in the first degree. The indictment against Dr. Wilkins was found Thursday by the Grand Jury, and he stands charged with having murdered his wife Julia, with a hammer on the night of February 27 last, at their home in Long Beach, L. I.

Daniel Seeley, court clerk, read the charge to Dr. Wilkins, and his special counsel, Charles N. Wysong, answered for him. There was some question as to the correct spelling of the physician's name, but Dr. Wilkins set matters right by spelling it for the court in a loud voice.

Mr. Wysong spent many hours with his client, going over and discussing every feature of the case. Dr. Wilkins explained how he had gone home with his wife on the night of the murder, and, seeing men in the house, sent his wife for help, while he went into the house. The subsequent assault was told to Mr. Wysong, who had a stenographer with him, and careful notation of everything the prisoner said was made.

Laughs at "Other Woman" Story.

After Dr. Wilkins had entered his plea in answer to the indictment he was returned to the jail. Mr. Wysong was approached by newspaper reporters and questioned about the possibility of there being another woman in the case who might supply a new motive. Mr. Wysong laughed at the suggestion.

"The story of another woman is pure bunk from beginning to end," he said. "The doctor had no motive that would prompt him to get rid of his wife. He was older than she was and an invalid, while his wife was a strong, healthy woman. He had every reason to believe that he would outlive her. When I first saw Dr. Wilkins he broke down. I was deeply impressed with a belief in his innocence. This is one of the saddest cases I ever saw.

"Here is a man charged with a serious crime who has led a blameless life for all these years. His wife was his companion, dietitian and nurse. She lived for him and he lived for her. She urged him to give up his practice, and he had everything to gain by her continuing to live and nothing to gain by her death."

Regarding the hammer and piece of pipe believed to have been used to kill Mrs. Wilkins, Mr. Wysong declared that Dr. Wilkins had told him that, as far as he knew, the hammer and pipe had never been in his house and did not belong to him. Efforts are being made by the county investigators to use the weapons as circumstantial evidence against the prisoner.

Dr. Wilkins Weeps in His Cell.

Before Dr. Wilkins appeared in court and regained his nerve he appeared to be a broken man. Attendants in the jail stated that he did not sleep during the night. Toward morning he began to weep and told William Coombs, a keeper, that if they kept him in jail long he would die. He was so depressed that the jail officials discussed the advisability of placing a special guard over him or put a "trusty" in the cell with him to prevent him from harming himself. His breakfast of oatmeal, rolls and coffee were left untouched by the physician.

Dr. Wilkins' cell is on the second tier floor facing the west and overlooking the jail garden and part of the Garden City golf course. It is No. 9. On the same tier is one other alleged murderer. Since he has been a prisoner Dr. Wilkins has not mingled with the other prisoners in the tier corridor. Most of his time is spent sitting in a mournful attitude, apparently meditating. He has not asked for a newspaper or magazine and shows no interest in what is going on around him.

Louis Friess, who has been attorney for Dr. Wilkins for years, stated that the physician has an account from which he can draw ready money, but that Mrs. Wilkins had had an interest in it and Dr. Wilkins did not think it would be quite honourable to take money from it without court action. Mr. Friess also stated that he knew that the property at No. 8 West Sixty-eighth street was owned by Dr. Wilkins, but had not known that the physician had an office there.

"We think we know all the property that Mrs. Wilkins owned or had an equity in," said Mr. Friess. "It was worth about $65,000."

Concerning the so-called second will of Mrs. Wilkins, which was unwitnessed, Mr. Friess said that he understood that Mrs. Wilkins had a typist copy it in 1915 and that she should wish to change her first will of 1903 to include Dr. Wilkins was entirely natural, because of their mutual affections.

Charges That Baker's Secret Orders Aided the I.W.W.

Member of Court Martial That Tried 135 Objectors Says Instructions Were to Ignore Their Attitude.

KANSAS CITY, Mo., March 25. — Newton D. Baker, Secretary of War, was accused directly of "aiding and assisting the I.W.W., Internationalists and Humanitarians, in their programme of blocking the construction of the army," by Major Dick B. Foster, member of the general court martial which tried 135 alleged conscientious objectors at Camp Funston, in an address before the City Club here.

"This was done," Major Foster declared, "by extending and perverting the acts of Congress for the protection, comfort and solace of these obstructionists.

"In making this accusation," Major Foster continued, "I consider no rumors, no suppositions and no guesses, but base it entirely upon my personal knowledge of the treatment extended these obstructionists. This knowledge was gained from official War Department orders and communications and the personal knowledge of obstructionists I gained while acting as one member of the general court martial of thirteen majors and captains before whom approximately 135 objectors came for trial.

The speaker cited alleged secret orders isued by the War Department of which the public knew nothing, he said, but of which the obstructionists were well informed, as one process of "extending the provisions of the Congressional act to the advantage of the objectors."

"Local draft boards," Major Foster said, "had received instructions to induct into military service and to send to army camps all men between the ages of twenty-one and thirty-one years.

"There was, however an inner working of the military programme. Objectors of all classes found protection awaiting in extensions of the act of Congress by secret orders, and any man who expressed or showed any disinclination towards military service found a well organized propaganda of the obstructionists awaiting that supported him. Bulletins and pamphlets from the National Civil Liberties Bureau of New York City, were semi-secretely promulgated among the drafted men upon their arrival in camp. These bulletins were arguments against military service and contained detailed instructions as to how the rafted man might avail himself of pacifist protection.

"Confidential letters and bulletins were sent to all commanding generals of all National Army and National Guard contonments and camps, the very nature of which prohibited any officer in the United States Army imparting to the public their contents. Each confidential order or bulletin contained the closing paragraph:

"Under no circumstances should these instructions be communicated to the newspapers."

"Public opinion no doubt was responsible for the secrecy of these instructions as they were of a nature which would have been revolting to the American public had they known the full facts.

"One of the first of these secret orders provided absolute immunity for any man who chose to refuse military service. In part it reads:

"'With reference to their attitude of objecting to military service these men are not to be treated as violating military laws, thereby subjecting themselves to the penalties of the Articles of War, but their attitude in this respect will be quietly ignored and they will be treated with kindly consideration.'

"Officers of the army were dumbfounded that the War Department should order violations of military laws to be quietly ignored, and that the violators of the law be treated with kindly consideration.

"The number of objectors increased and numerous complaints on the peculiar condition went from army officers to Washington. A board of inquiry under the direct and personal supervision of the Secretary of War resulted. The announced intention of the board was to discriminate between the true objectors and false objectors. The range of the board, however was limited by a second secret order promulgated by Secretary Baker December 19, 1917:

"'The Secretary of War directs that until further instructions on the subject are issued, personal scruples against war should be construed as constituting "conscientious objectors" under the instructions contained in confidential letter from this office dated October 20, 1917.'

"By that order every man who had any reason for objecting to military service, whether cowardice, humanitarianism, international socialism, belief in the principles of the I.W.W. or what not, had to be permitted to violate all the military regulations, and his violations had to be quietly ignored and the man treated with kindly consideration.

Major Foster attended the first officers' training camp at Camp Funston, and there received his commission as lieutenant. With the assignment of General Leonard Wood to Camp Funston he was appointed chief of the department of training camp activities and amusements and his elevation in rank came with his activity in that assignment. In private life he is a member of an architectural firm in Kansas City.

Major Foster was at his own request given a discharge from service at the time General Wood left Camp Funston for Chicago to take command of the Central Division.

"Men are always wanting to do some great thing. Let them overcome themselves, for that is the greatest conquest."—Henry Drummond.

"And having thus chosen our course let us renew our trust in God and go forward without fear and with manly hearts."—Abraham Lincoln.

Advertising Talks By P. H. HAYES

Advertising Benefits Both the Merchant And the Public.

When a Merchant advertises he virtually says: "Buy my Merchandise and see that my claims for it are genuine. I'm behind it because I know it's right. I'm linking my name with it so you'll see how much confidence I have in it."

And when a merchant does that you know what it means. It means that from the moment he takes that stand his store is going to be a more desirable place to trade. It means that he wouldn't invest money in advertising without having resolved to back up every claim. The mere fact of his advertising creates confidence in the mind of the public—a result from which both the merchant and the public benefits.

An Oily Skin.

An oily skin means that the diet is not what it should be. Avoid all fatty foods, strong coffee and rich viands. Eat fruit early in the morning and drink mineral waters. Green salads are good. Stimulating and astringent washes are needed to restore tone and vitality to the relaxed glands. The use of bay rum, alcohol, camphor and ammonia is to be deplored, as these are all too drying. The astringent wash will be found most excellent not only as a means of removing oil from the skin, but as whitening the surface and refining the pores.

THE WIFE

BY JANE PHELPS

Arthur Mandel Makes Ruth a Proposition

CHAPTER CLII.

After dinner the four played bridge for an hour or two, then Brian and the Major talked while Mollie and Ruth listened. They told stories of conflict, making light of their part in the struggle, but praising unstintedly their "buddies." They described air raids and the falling of shrapnel, the taking of the Germans and destroying of their nests. They did not dwell on the horrors, but talked much of the good the war would do, of what it had already done for many of the men in a mental and spiritual way.

Just for a moment the Major again talked of the nurses. This time as a body, not mentioning Mollie.

"It is hard to imagine what would have become of the men, had it not been for the Red Cross, especially their wonderful nurses," he remarked then he quoted softly:

"There's a rose that grows on No Man's Land,"
And it's wonderful to see;
Though it's sprayed with tears,
It will live for years
In my garden of memory;
It's the one red rose the soldier knows,
It's the work of the Master's Hand
'Mid the war's great curse, stands the Red Cross Nurse—
She's the rose of No Man's Land.

Then, with the words of the sweet song still in their ears, good nights were said, and a friendship commenced that was to last far on into the years. A friendship all the closer, perhaps, because of the misunderstandings at it's beginning and the frankness with which they had been discussed.

"Now, Mrs. Lawyer Hackett," Brian commenced the next morning. "Suppose we talk business—get right down to brass tacks. How much does it cost to run this shop? Everything, mind you, Rachel's wages included."

For nearly an hour Ruth and Brian discussed the cost of everything getting an average for a week. Then when they had put down in black and white every smallest item which went toward the upkeep of the apartment, Brian asked:

"How much do you spend for clothes for yourself and the baby?" Then, as Ruth hesitated: "No camouflaging, if you please, I propose to know how much I have to make to keep you—as you have been keeping yourself."

Ruth knew it always hurt Brian to speak of her paying the bills, so she hurriedly gave him an amount she thought the least he would possibly accept, as enough to dress her as she had dressed herself. But the long drawn whistle of astonishment with which he greeted her reply, proved that he had not yet learned anything of the cost of woman's clothes. So she hurriedly added:

"But Brian I don't need any clothes to amount to anything for some time. I am well provided with almost everything. You see, I had to be when I was in the shop, and then too my clothes wore out much faster than they will now that I am to remain at home where I can wear house dresses instead of always being gowned for the street."

"That's so," he brightened at once. "Well I am going to make a terrible stab at caring for my family. I feel more than ashamed when I look at that," he pointed to the paper upon which he had figured their expenses, "and think that you have earned enough to do that, while I—until I went overseas—did practically nothing a man should do."

Just as Ruth was about to answer him, the bell rang and Rachel admitted Mr. Mandel. Ruth was so surprised she was scarcely polite, but Brian greeted him easily, so giving her time to recover her poise.

"I suppose you are surprised to see me, and I really apologize for making so early a call," Mandel said after a moment. "But Mrs.—Mr. Hackett—I have come to make a proposition and—I want you to consider it. In fact, Mrs. Hackett, I scarcely know how to run my business without—anyway for a time. La Monte has been so severely wounded that it will be a long time before he will be able to take any responsibility, if he ever can. Now to come to the point: Will you do a little work at home for me? I understand perfectly that now, with Mr. Hackett home and your boy needing your care, that it would be inconvenient for you to come to the shop as you have been doing. But if the plans of the interiors are taken and submitted to you will you draft out your ideas for the decorations until such time as I can find someone sufficiently capable to do the work you have been doing? Please do not refuse me! I will send you only enough to take three or four hours each day," he stopped and looked not at me but at Brian.

NOSE CLOGGED FROM A COLD OR CATARRH

Apply Cream in Nostrils To Open Up Air Passages.

Ah! What relief! Your clogged nostrils open right up, the air passages of your head are clear and you can breathe freely. No more hawking, snuffling, mucous discharge, headache, dryness—no struggling for breath at night, your cold or catarrh is gone.

Don't stay stuffed up! Get a small bottle of Ely's Cream Balm from your druggist now. Apply a little of this fragrant, antiseptic cream in your nostrils, let it penetrate through every air passage of the head, soothe and heal the swollen, inflamed mucous membrane, giving you instant relief. Ely's Cream Balm is just what every cold and catarrh sufferer has been seeking. It's just splendid.

One of Miss Keller's Gifts.

Many persons in an assemblage recently addressed by Miss Helen Keller marveled that this distinguished deaf and blind woman united in her remarks and acknowledged applause at the proper moment, just as if she had been in full possession of her hearing. Miss Macy, the devoted instructor of Miss Keller, was approached by several after the meeting had adjourned, and she was requested to explain the "mystery." "Very simple," she laughed. "Notice of the applause was carried to Miss Keller by the vibrations that she felt through her soft soled shoes while standing on the platform."—Boston Post.

LIFT OFF CORNS!

Apply few drops then lift sore, touchy corns off with fingers

Doesn't hurt a bit! Drop a little Freezone on an aching corn, instantly that corn stops hurting, then you lift it right out. Yes, magic!

A tiny bottle of Freezone costs but a few cents at any drug store, but is sufficient to remove every hard corn, soft corn, or corn between the toes, and the calluses, without soreness or irritation.

Freezone is the sensational discovery of a Cincinnati genius. It is wonderful.

AGGRESSIVE BASEBALL.

McGraw's Scheme Is Go as Far as You Can on Every Play.

Writing on taking a chance versus playing it safe in baseball, Hugh S. Fullerton in the American Magazine says:

"It remained for the New York Giants to develop the 'take a chance' style to its highest form since the days of the old Baltimore team. Probably no man understands or realizes the weaknesses and strengths of the Giants as well as does the little general who leads them. He knew that to win a championship the team must score many runs; must, in fact, score an abnormal number. He knew that speed was the chief asset of the team and that to win he must utilize the best asset to the limit. The object of batting fast men on the bases is not so much to have them steal as it is to force the other team to throw the ball and throw it quickly. One moment of demoralization of a defensive team is enough to lose a game. McGraw's aim was to make opposing teams beat themselves by hurrying their plays. He reverted to the Baltimore system of ignoring the number of times a runner is caught trying to steal, provided some one steals or takes an extra base at the critical moment.

"Get on! Get a base on balls; get hit; get anything, but get on. And once on, run! Go as far as you can on every play.

"That in brief sums up McGraw's system of attack and its success has been demonstrated. While no official statistics are to be had, I believe the Giants are caught stealing much more frequently than are the runners of any other team. But they lead in stolen bases, and their running netted two pennants. In one game that I watched five Giants tried to steal against Archer. The Chicago crowd went wild as Archer threw all five out, one after another, as fast as they started. The sixth reached first and started without hesitating. Archer threw wild, the runner raced on to third, scored on a fly ball and eventually New York won the game by one run."

A CHILD'S TONGUE SHOWS IF LIVER OR BOWELS ARE ACTIVE

Every mother realizes, after giving her children "California Syrup of Figs," that this is their ideal laxative, because they love its pleasant taste and it thoroughly cleanses the tender little stomach, liver and bowels without griping.

When cross, irritable, feverish or breath is bad, stomach sour, look at the tongue, Mother! If coated, give a teaspoonful of this harmless "fruit laxative," and in a few hours all the foul, constipated waste, sour bile and undigested food passes out of the bowels, and you have a well, playful child again. When its little system is full of cold, throat sore, has stomach-ache, diarrhoea, indigestion, colic—remember, a good "inside cleansing" should always be the first treatment given.

Millions of mothers keep "California Syrup of Figs" handy; they know a teaspoonful to-day saves a sick child to-morrow. Ask your druggist for a bottle of "California Syrup of Figs," which has directions for babies, children of all ages and grown-ups printed on the bottle. Beware of counterfeits sold here, so don't be fooled. Get the genuine, made by "California Fig Syrup Company."

GERMANY'S FUTURE.

Friedrich Ebert States His Plans and Convictions.

All the world is interested in Friedrich Ebert, the one-time saddler and harness maker, now revolutionary head of Germany. Everybody wants to know what form of Socialism he is aiming to set up. Recently he made the following speech at Berlin, which throws light upon his ideas:

"The great German revolution of November 9 must not and will not be turned into a dictatorship. It must not and will not bring Germany into servitude. Its task is, on the other hand, to establish democracy for all time. We Germans have suffered long enough under the dictatorship of the Junkers and the military. It was that dictatorship which thrust our country into the most terrible calamity, and another dictatorship, whether it comes from the Right or the Left, would be insupportable for the German people. We want a democracy firmly built upon a foundation of justice and a constitution. To create this democracy and place it upon a solid foundation will be the task of the National Assembly. The German Social Democracy has ever said and sung, with pride, 'We battle not with the weapons of barbarians, not with sword and spear.' This old principle of ours must guide us now when we have the power in our hands. Upon justice and reason the young German Republic must be built up.

"One of the most important tasks of the National Assembly will be to prevent the threatened break-up of the German nation and to weld the German people more than ever into a uniform and energetic body. Even though matters may look gloomy in this respect, still we need not despair. No power on earth is strong enough to shatter the political unity of the German tribes, which rests upon the unity of our economic life. If we are thrown back into the medieval system of small states what is to become of our workmen, whose existence depends upon the German metal and textile industries and the export trade? It is not exclusively political interests that guide us, but the economic interests of the German working people.

"Besides this, the National Assembly must give us peace without which we can neither build up our economic life nor secure food. The hurried evacuation of territory after the armistice jeopardized the feeding of the people in the gravest possible manner and we have to depend to a great extent upon help from abroad. But we can keep our industries going only if it be possible to obtain raw materials from abroad very soon. But even then it will be a superhuman achievement to build up again what the war has destroyed. Our fields, our arable lands, are completely exhausted. Our industries have deteriorated, our transportation is stagnant. The health of the people is broken; the German people are very sick, so that they can hardly keep upon their feet. Under such circumstances it will be only through passionate energy that we can earn bread for our women and children.

"Our socialistic convictions and the deep distress of our country compel us to proceed according to socialistic principles in the work of reconstruction. But I will say one thing with the greatest possible emphasis—this socialization must not be the experiment of individual enthusiasts. If we do not want foolishly to hazard the existence of the German laboring classes this socialization can only be undertaken after the most serious scientific preparation and by means of a comprehensive organization.

"I want once more to give you the assurance that the German working people need give themselves no concern about the socialistic successes of the revolution. Socialization will be carried out by the Government according to plan and resolutely, and so far as possible even before the National Assembly. We are resolved to attack the profits upon capital in the most uncompromising manner. We are willing to prevent any income not derived from labor. We are willing to levy upon the large fortunes to the greatest extent for meeting the cost of the state. We are willing to collect war profits unsparingly. We need a pronounced development of the inheritance tax and the republic's right to inherit. That is a program not of the remote future, but one that will be taken up without delay.

"If the revolution is to be crowned with success and riotous outbreaks, whether political or economic, must be most energetically resisted. Russia is 90 per cent. agrarian and only 10 per cent. industrial. But we are a country of highly developed industry, which must depend upon foreign trade. How do you think it would be possible with machine guns and Browning pistols to keep our highly developed industries in operation? Neither have we any desire to set up a regime of a few months' duration, in order then to give place to a sharp reaction and a still worse regime of force. We want to create a durable, sound work, making possible a wholesome political life."

LONG DISTANCE WIRELESS.

The Big Problem of Putting a Girdle Around the Earth.

According to Professor J. A. Fleming, several of the most powerful wireless stations are now generating ether waves, having a length from crest to crest of about four miles, and these disturbances can be "detected" at distances up to 6,000 miles from their source. That is, four such stations would suffice to girdle the earth. Obviously, however, the ability to "detect" the signals over this vast distance, presumably under favorable weather conditions, is a very different thing from the power to maintain commercial communication along the route. As yet the wireless service available to the public covers but a third or at most half this distance.

There is as yet no means of determining the practical limit of wireless communication. Improvements in apparatus, perhaps even some new discovery as to methods of stirring up the ether, may revolutionize the art and upset all present standards. But at present even the most successful systems get into serious difficulties when called upon to maintain constant communication over a line about 2,000 miles in length. A recent British wireless commission was able to secure but one demonstration on a line a thousand miles long, although several companies declared their ability much to exceed this distance in a commercial installation.—New York Post.

Interest by Mechanism.

A Hungarian citizen has invented an instrument which shows instantly the amount of interest due on any given sum for any period at any given rate of interest. The instrument, which is made in the size and shape of a watch, has a very simple construction, and all that is necessary to operate it is to place the hands in the proper position on the dial and the exact amount of interest in each case is indicated on the face.

OUT WENT SINNER!

A Negro Superstition That Still Survives.

The well-known practice of negro folk of "conjuring the shadow" and thereby fixing the guilt of some one under suspicion, is described by L. Frank Tooker in a story in the Century magazine.

The room was full of people when later in the evening Sis' Mame appeared at the door. She ducked her her and laughed.

She sidled into the room with a funny little pitching step, humming a gay tune as she advanced; but as she neared the middle of the room, her tall, gaunt form suddenly stiffened into immobility, and her keen eyes glanced about her. "Sin 'is done come in de do'," she said harshly—"sin 'is done come in. Ah feel it in ma ol' bones, col' an' shibbery, lak ere grabe."

She walked to the table, and, taking up two lighted candles that stood there, carried them to the front of the room and set them on a shelf by the open door. Then she walked back to the middle of the room.

In the deathlike stillness she stood rigid, like one in a trance. To the strained eyes of the watchers her face seemed gradually to take on all the aspects of death itself. Her eyes were open, but in their unblinking fixedness of gaze there was neither sight nor intelligence; her jaw had dropped; an ashen grayness overspread her face; its wrinkled ridges looked hard, like stone. For a long time she stood thus, and then slowly almost imperceptibly, life seemed to flow back in a tiny trickle. Her arms twitched; now and then she moaned like one in pain; and presently her whole body was in motion—motion that seemed apart from volition, and which gradually increased until her frail form seemed the vehicle of unconscious frenzy.

Her eyes were blazing now as she whirled rythmically in a wild dance that kept time to a low-hummed accompaniment. The accompaniment grew louder, a clearly enunciated series of sounds that were yet unintelligible. Then suddenly she broke into a chanted song:

One man passed frough da needle's eye
(O sinner, doan' you' see da do'?)
On da do' see his shader lie
(Sinner, sinner, com no mo'!)

Shader o' blood an' heart o' sin
(O sinner, doan' you' see da do'?)
Go frough da do' dat yo' come in (Sinner, sinner, come no mo'!)

Still dancing, she pointed a finger at Peter Bohun, imperiously waving him out.

Scowling, he hesitated; but something about that grimly pointed finger and gaunt form, with all the traditional dread of Sis' Mame's mysterical power, bore down his resistance, and rising slowly at last, he slunk away. His face showed both resentment and apprehension, but no one heeded; all eyes were turned toward his shadow as it darkened across the dirt floor. A sigh of relief ran through the company, and all eyes again turned toward Sis' Mame, for the shadow was not red.

LEMONS BRING OUT THE HIDDEN BEAUTY

Make this lotion for very little cost and just see for yourself.

What girl or woman hasn't heard of lemon juice to remove complexion blemishes; to bleach the skin and to bring out the roses, the freshness and the hidden beauty. But lemon juice alone is acid, therefore irritating, and should be mixed with orchard white this way. Strain the juice of two fresh lemons into a bottle containing about three ounces of orchard white, then shake well and you have a wholesome quarter pint of skin and complexion lotion at about the cost one usually pays for a small jar of ordinary cold cream. Be sure to strain the lemon juice so no pulp gets in the bottle; then this lotion will remain pure and fresh for months. When applied daily to the face, neck, arms and hands it should help to bleach, clear, smoothen and beautify the skin.

Any druggist will supply three ounces of orchard white at very little cost and the grocer has the lemons.

X-Ray's Value Proved.

The X-ray, as might readily be imagined, has proved to be one of the most valuable aids in the surgical system of our army. Like plastic surgery and many other specialities of medical science, the war has set it ahead at a rate equal to a decade's progress in time of peace.

For instance, one of the most important uses of the ray is to ascertain the exact position of foreign substances—shrapnel fragments and the like—in the body.

One of the most ingenious of these is the Hirtz compass, invented by Col. Hirtz of the French army. Details of its construction are not available for publication, but it furnishes the surgeon a direct guide to the foreign body during the operation for its removal. The element of guesswork is said to be eliminated. The ordinary X-ray machine serves only to tell the surgeon how far the splinter of bullet is perpendicularly beneath a point marked on the skin. The operation follows.

There is another X-ray outfit which can be taken anywhere, for it furnishes its own electric current. A standard ambulance is altered slightly so that it carries a gas engine, a high tension transformer, a special portable X-ray table; a portable dark room and the other necessary accessories. The gas engine and generator remain in the ambulance. The portable dark room is set up near it. Then the outfit can be taken anywhere a motor car can travel.

Another outfit can be taken to the bedside of the patient. This is particularly valuable in the case of certain chest wounds.

HIGHEST EGG RETURNS

Secure These by Hatching Your Chicks Early.

Not Every Farmer Should Plant an Apple Orchard—Only Those Who Understand the Business and Wish to Specialize—The Small Orchard Is Usually Not Profitable.

(Contributed by Ontario Department of Agriculture, Toronto.)

THE early hatched pullets are usually the best winter layers. Pullets hatched during the first three weeks of April not only lay from two to three dozen more eggs during the year but lay many more eggs during the winter. The average pullet begins laying at an age of six and one-half to seven months; the later hatched ones are slower to mature than those hatched early. To be sure your chickens will be hatched early an incubator is almost a necessity. The later the hens begin to lay, generally the later they become broody.

An incubator is a machine and responds to treatment the same as any other machine. It is not difficult to handle but it cannot supply its own oil for heat or keep itself clean, nor yet can it supply the little chicks inside the eggs with good pure air unless the room in which the incubator is placed has good air.

The room in which the machine is run should be clean and well ventilated. If you can sleep in the room comfortably it is good enough. Usually a cellar is the best place because the temperature is more even and the machine is therefore easier to regulate as to heat. The incubator should be clean; especially is this true of the interior of the machine. It is advisable to wash out the machine as clean as when new, then wash it out with water and soap and lastly disinfect it. Perhaps one of the easiest materials to use is the common tarry compounds that are used about the stables. Coat spray or wash the machine thoroughly after each hatch. It does not take much time and saves a lot of trouble with the chicks. With some types of machines having cloth tops in the hatching chamber it is wise to remove the old cloth each season and replace it with a new piece.

Be sure and test the thermometer. Take it into a drug store and the druggist will test it for you alongside one of known accuracy. Many hatches are lost through bad thermometers.

Get only clean eggs and of good size or set the kind of eggs you want the pullets to lay. Be sure your hands are clean when you turn the eggs. Oily or dirty hands lower the hatch. Do not keep the oil can in the same room as the incubator.

When chicks hatch do not feed them before they are at least forty-eight hours old. Should they pant inside the machine open the door a little. Give them plenty of air.—Prof. W. R. Graham, O. A. College, Guelph.

Who Should Plant an Apple Orchard.

The apple growing industry of the future in Ontario will be developed by men who like the work, and who have the perseverance and intelligence to meet the problems encountered. The necessary practice and experience can be acquired as one goes along, and the difficulties of financing the business can be overcome by starting in a small way, or by putting one's time on other crops while the orchard is growing. The men who should not undertake apple growing are those who do not like the work, and those who from lack of experience and knowledge expect to find in it phenomenal profits. The apple industry offers perhaps as good opportunities for profit as are to be found in any other line of agriculture or horticulture, but is at the same time no more profitable, on an average, than any other well-managed business; neither should encouragement be offered to land speculators, many of whom in the past put out misleading information as to profits to be made. The success of the industry will depend on, 1st, the man; 2nd, his local and farm condition. A man who understands orchard work and has a liking for it can make a success of apple orcharding as a side-line in general farming, in stock farming, or in dairying, although it may be pointed out that many dairy farmers find it does not pay to neglect their herds in order to care for a orchard. Orchards below five acres in size are likely to receive very little attention on most farms, and farmers who wish to develop apple orchards as a profitable side-line should plant not less than ten acres if possible. Orchards ranging in size from ten to twenty-five acres can be conducted as profitable side-lines on many farms.

The commercial apple growing industry is developing along two lines. There are now to be found quite a number of orchards ranging in size from forty acres up to one hundred and twenty-five or larger. These constitute highly specialized businesses and are sound economic propositions provided one is so situated as to have the extra labor required at picking time. The chief difficulty with an orchard of this class is that a great deal of help is required at certain periods of the year, while at other periods there is little or no work to be done. The problem, therefore, becomes one of adjusting apple orcharding to other lines of production, so as to equalize the distribution of labor throughout the year. It would appear that an excellent system of diversification could be worked out by using strawberries, raspberries, currants and gooseberries along with apples or other tree fruits, excepting cherries. Cherries conflict in picking season with the small fruits, but can be handled along with apples unless strawberries and raspberries are preferred. — Prof. J. W. Crow, O. A. College, Guelph.

A SLEEPY HOLLOW LANDMARK.

Passing of Treaty Tree Under Which Washington Irving Wrote.

Washington Irving's great treaty tree at Sleepy Hollow in the Philipse Manor section, lost its last three leaves recently. Tourists and visitors have noted with much concern for over a year that it was dying. It is twenty feet in circumference at its base. It had bravely withstood the disease that has destroyed most of the chestnut trees throughout the east, and it is probably the last to die in the Sleepy Hollow and Tarrytown sections.

This monarch of the forest is known in history as the tree under which the last treaty was made between the whites and Wequas Creek Indians. Under its romantic shade also Irving wrote his famous "The Headless Horseman," with scenes laid at Philipse Manor.

Although the treaty tree is practically dead, it will not be felled and destroyed like hundreds of its fellows there. It is to be preserved, and long trailing flowering vines have been planted about its base to cover it completely in the future. It stands almost in the center of the Philipse Manor property, close to the Hudson river, in full view from Broadway or the old Albany post road.—Tarrytown News.

The Saracen.

The word Saracen was applied in the middle ages to Turks, Arabs, Moors and other Mohammedans in Western Asia and Northern Africa. The same kind of people live now, but the word is seldom used except in romance, poetry and history.

Took Severe Cold ON HIS LUNGS

COUGHED PHLEGM and BLOOD.

On the first appearance of a cough or cold, do not neglect it, but get rid of it at once before it has a chance to grow worse, and gets settled on the lungs, causing bronchitis, pneumonia and other serious lung troubles.

Dr. Wood's Norway Pine Syrup will cure the cough or cold on its first inception and perhaps save you years of suffering.

Mr. G. F. Stratychuk, Canora, Sask., writes: "Last winter I took a most severe cold on my lungs and was coughing up phlegm and blood most of the time. I had the cough for over two months, and took a great deal of different medicines, but found no relief from them. At last a friend advised me to take Dr. Wood's Norway Pine Syrup, which I did, and it gave me great relief in very short time, and to-day I am enjoying good health again."

The marvellous results that Dr. Wood's Norway Pine Syrup has achieved in its cures of coughs and colds has caused many so-called "pine" preparations to be put on the market, which do not contain any pine whatever. See that you get the genuine when you ask for it.

Put up in a yellow wrapper; three pine trees the trade mark; price 25c and 50c. Manufactured only by The T. Milburn Co., Limited, Toronto, Ont.

Largest One Piece Flagpole.

What is claimed to be the largest one piece flagpole in the world is to be erected on the grounds of the provincial courthouse in Vancouver, B. C. The pole is of British Columbia fir, 205 feet in length, weighing approximately five tons after being [illegible] and allowed to season six to eight months. It will be set in a foundation of concrete ten feet deep, giving it a height of 195 feet above the ground after being placed in position.

PRACTICAL HEALTH HINT.

For Insect Bites.

Bites and stings may be bathed in a strong solution of baking soda or ammonia and water. Extract of witch hazel, diluted with one-half water or even a little stronger, is useful. With some of the irritating rashes powdering quickly with cornstarch or any good unscented powder may bring relief by excluding the air.

Fox Farming on Prince Edward Island

(1) Coaxing some pups with tempting morsels.
(2) Black beauties watching the photographer. This pair in the last three years have produced fifteen beautiful pups and are big earners.
(3) A noble sire. This animal is a direct descendant of a fox whose pelt brought the world's record price, $2,700.00.

A FEW years before the war, silver fox farming suddenly sprang into the list of Canadian industries, and from Atlantic to Pacific travellers in the observation cars of the C. P. R. used to have pointed out to them fences where thousands of dollars worth of animals were said to be penned up. Companies were formed to exploit fox farms, and the speculation was about as great as that in the Calgary oilfields. Since the outbreak of war less has been heard of this boom, and yet in certain districts it still seems to flourish. Furs are still in demand and are worth a great deal of money.

At the beginning of the pelting season in 1917 the number of foxes on the ranches of Prince Edward Island was approximately 10,000. From December 1st, 1917, to January 31st, 1918, 2,500 foxes were killed and their skins sold. In 1918 there was a pup production of 3,500, thus making the number of foxes at the opening of the last pelting season 11,000. Allowing for a kill of 3,500 during the past season and the shipment of a small number abroad the season of 1919 will open for March breeding with about 7,000 selected foxes as a breeding stock.

Good silver fox furs are of great value. They are worn by real queens and movie queens. When the daughter of the Duke of Devonshire was married not long ago a silver fox fur was one of the most prized gifts she received.

One of the best known fox ranches has a central passage through which is carried the feed to be distributed on either side and which is also used for carrying away the refuse from the pens. A guard fence nine feet high of boards with wire overhung and wire extending into ground encloses the ranch proper. This gives privacy, protection and prevents the foxes escaping should they get out from the central pens. Outside the guard fence is a twenty feet watch tower used by the keeper to keep accurate records during mating season and general supervision throughout the year without unnecessarily disturbing the foxes. Each pen is of a large enough size to give the animal plenty of exercise and passages are arranged so that the keeper can give any pair the full use of two large pens. The pens are divided by double partitions of wire which prevent the animals from fighting and injuring themselves as might happen if only a single partition were provided. The wire netting runs down into the ground about three or four feet or to the hard earth, which is known as hard-pan. In 1915, there were realized, averaging about $750 each.

The walls are nine or ten feet high and have overhangs of netting extending two feet on either side of perpendicular walls to prevent the foxes from getting out or other foxes getting in. The latest model fox house is a twin-house, one being the den and the other the living room with a chute connecting and another chute for entrance from outside to the living room. These houses are each about four feet long, two feet wide and eighteen inches high with hinged roof to enable cleaning and catching the foxes.

Americans bought 253 inland foxes in 1915. Japanese and Norwegians are entering the fur breeding industry. Japan took 34 inland foxes last year and Norway took 24. Good prices

A good time to visit a fox ranch is in the spring when the young pups are usually born in March or April, nature to full growth by the following November and produce young in the succeeding spring.

Stuffed Head Cleared Of Catarrh Germs By "Catarrhozone"

To catarrh victims we have just one word of advice—cure it now. The remedy is "Catarrhozone." That it will cure permanently you cannot doubt. Catarrhozone has cured thousands; it will cure you, too.

It acts in two ways: First, it destroys the germ—then checks the progress of the disease. Its second action is to heal the sore places the germs caused. Nice to think of breathing little drops of healing to every part of the lungs, bronchial tubes and nasal passages. It is such absolute thoroughness that makes Catarrhozone so effective in grippe, catarrh, and colds. Then by its sedative influence upon the mucous surfaces it clears away the cough and the tenderness very quickly. We owe something to a science that has given us Catarrhozone—that wonderful remedy which so surely enables us to permanently cure disease of the breathing apparatus. We all know that stomach dosing is useless, and this departure in the mode of treatment is a vast advance in medical science that everybody can appreciate and value. Complete outfit of Catarrhozone, which is guaranteed to cure any case of catarrh, asthma, bronchitis or throat troubles, lasts three months, price $1.00; smaller size, 50c.; trial size, 25c.; sold everywhere.

Our Latest Battleship.

No. 39, the latest battleship to be built for the United States navy, is to be constructed at the New York navy yard, Brooklyn. Sister to the Pennsylvania, she will be the largest and most powerful battleship under construction. The particulars are: Length, 608 feet; beam, 97 feet; displacement on trial, 31,400 tons. She will have a belt of armor fourteen inches thick and eighteen inches on the turrets, in which will be carried twelve fourteen-inch guns. The complement will number 1,100 officers and men, and the ship will cost complete $10,000,000.

CATTLE MARKET

Union Stock Yards—Receipts were 179 cars, with 3,293 cattle, 504 calves, 2,486 hogs, and 161 sheep and lambs.

Trade was little slow at the start off, in part due to the high prices asked. Butcher cattle on the whole held steady at last week's closing prices. Heavy export steers were in very slow demand, only one transaction in this class being made up till noon, and this was for a bunch of eight choice quality steers about 1,300 lbs., which sold at $16. Export steers were estimated to be off about 50 cents from last week.

Calves are slow, and it looks as if the market is off another dollar.

Sheep and lambs about steady.

The hog market is easier and packers are figuring on knocking a dollar off for to-day's market. Their quotations for to-day are $18.25 f.o.b. and $19 fed and watered. Hogs sold yesterday were contract at last week's closing.

Capt. A. F. B. Carpenter, V.C.,

Who Took the Vindictive Through Zeebrugge Fight

MEET to be reminded on with the Revenge and the Victory in H. M. S. Vindictive, one of whose gallant commanders—Capt. A. F. B. Carpenter, R.N., V.C.—recently visited Canada.

Zeebrugge and Ostend, the centre of the German submarine peril, might have been made another Gallipoli, with even greater sacrifices and even less results. But instead of outmanoeuvring battleships, bluejackets and soldiers to securing possession of these points, the British Navy utterly destroyed their usefulness, while leaving the Germans in absolute geographical occupation until the very end of the war. The Vindictive was one of the ships and Capt. Carpenter was one of the men who "did it."

You would think, to hear this rather pale-faced, blue-eyed, spare-figured man talk of it, that it was a small thing—though interesting—this smashing of the vipers' nests.

"None of us expected to come back," he said, "but, my word, we did enjoy it! The men were all picked from volunteers and tried out under intensive training. And didn't they behave splendidly. Every man! Every single man! By jove, one can't say too much about the way those fellows did their jobs!".

Six old cruisers, an ancient submarine, two ferryboats that once gathered fares at Liverpool, a few destroyers and a swarm of motor launches, coast patrol boats and smoke-makers started for the Belgian coast in broad daylight on April 22, 1918, steaming slowly, at the speed of the "limpiest duck of them all."

CAPTAIN CARPENTER, V. C.

At midnight they rolled down on Zeebrugge, their smoke screen borne ahead of them on the northeast wind. When almost at their goal the wind shifted, blew their smoke back on them, and laid every outline bare to the enemy searchlights. The whole harbor burst into a blaze of flame, and the storming party of the Vindictive, with the Daffodil and the Iris II. lashed to her port side, found themselves under the concentrated fire of the whole German defence.

Clad in oilskins and wearing an old navy cap, Capt. Carpenter "conned" the Vindictive from her open bridge till the Daffodil had bunted her into position. His oilskins were ripped with bullets and shrapnel.

"It's a rather shabby old thing," he said afterwards, showing the cap, "but I thought it hardly worth while to put on a good cap for a job like that."

His prudence was vindicated. Bullets scored the crown of the cap from brim to brim, from front to back and from side to side. His searchlight goggles were smashed, his smoke goggles were smashed. A bullet went through the leather case for his binoculars. And his chronometer went, too. He had charts for three courses in front of him, every inch of progress separately calculated, to allow for wind and tide—these charts were chewed up by bullets and splinters as by rats' teeth. Yet the man survived.

The Vindictive's port side had been prepared by building flame-throwing huts and a false deck along it, lined with sandbags. This was to carry the landing parties. Eighteen hinged gangplanks, called "brows," were dropped to land the storming column. As the ship heaved up and down, with the faithful Daffodil blowing up her boilers in the effort to hold her on the shelving foundation against tide and current, bluejackets and marines scrambled along the brows, leaped on to the concrete of the Mole, swarmed over its parapet, dropped sixteen feet to the inner surface of the structure, and "mopped up" every German they found alive. They bombed all the works in sight—and the Mole was equipped with everything imaginable, from railway trucks to mortar batteries. They did all this in the teeth of fire as searching as may be imagined from the condition of Capt. Carpenter's belongings.

Col. Elliot, leading the marines, and Capt. Halahan, leading the bluejackets, were killed while the brows were being lowered. Lieut. H. T. C. Walker had his arm shot away, and in the darkness the storming party rushed over him. Capt. Carpenter recognized him and dragged him aside. "Good luck to you! Good luck!" he shouted to the stormers, waving his remaining arm. Capt. Carpenter told the incident in Ottawa at the Russell Theatre, and was amazed to find Lieut. Walker in his audience, a guest of Lady Kingsmill!

Those boarders stopped for nothing till the whistle blew, and they didn't want to quit then. "The signal arranged for the men to re-embark was a long blast from the Vindictive's siren," Capt. Carpenter said. "That had been shot away, so we did the best we could with the Daffodil's little hooter, and the fellows made for their scaling ladders. That was the Hun's chance. The fire turned on those chaps as they clambered up the ladders, most of them trying to carry away a dead or wounded pal, was awful! Talk about heroism! Every man was a hero. You must ask some of them who actually landed to tell about that. Wonderful!

Now this was no hit-and-run affair, designed to smash a few hundred yards of concrete and kill a few hundred Germans. The Vindictive's sweeping of the Mole and the submarine's blowing up of the viaduct were spectacular, and intended to be so. But while they were at it three ancient British cruisers, with their holds full of concrete and their sides fringed with mines, fought their way with blazing guns into the entrance to Zeebrugge canal and harbor, and gracefully sank themselves—or were sunk by the furious fire of the defence batteries—in such a way as to completely block the entrance. Their crews were all taken off by attendant launches.

While all this was going on, the same thing was tried at Ostend. It did not work so well, for there was no Mole to attack and hold the Huns' attention, and the ships meant to block the entrance were sunk before they got into proper position.

The brave old Vindictive, battered as she was, crawled out again on the 9th of May—two weeks after her Zeebrugge escapade—and finished the Ostend job. Commander Godsal had charge of her this time; he had commanded one of the ships which was sunk in the preceding raid. He laid her athwart the entrance piers, in a storm of German shellfire which equalled the Zeebrugge show. A shell which demolished her conning tower ere she sank killed him and many of his officers, but their work, and the old ship's work, was done, and well done. Ostend, like Zeebrugge, was blocked. "Closed for the war" might have been the sign over each. With the blocking of the entrances the submarines became mere laboratory specimens of the genus sea-snake, interesting but harmless; Ostend and Zeebrugge were the bottles which confined them.

"As blind as a mole" is a bad comparison, for a mole has good eyesight.

STOMACH UPSET?

When meals upset you and you belch gas, acids and undigested food. When you have lumps of indigestion pain or any distress in stomach you can get relief instantly—No waiting.

As soon as you eat a tablet of Pape's Diapepsin all the indigestion pain stops. Gases, acidity, heartburn, flatulence and dyspepsia vanish. Pape's Diapepsin tablets cost very little at drug stores.

Scientific Plant Marriage.

Plants very commonly depend for their cross-fertilization upon insects, which carry pollen from flower to flower. But, of course, the matings thus accomplished are purely haphazard.

The plant-breeder to get worthwhile results must select the destined parents and control the character of the offspring by making sure that a particular flower receives only a certain pollen, the latter being the male element.

He accomplishes this by artificial impregnation—a matter easy enough, especially in a greenhouse. The pollen may be carried in a watchglass and applied with the tip of a little brush. There are, however, other methods.

To make the flower safe against other and accidental pollens, it is inclosed in a tiny bag of cheesecloth. Then the breeder is sure of his parents, and it remains only to be seen how the offspring will turn out. It may prove a valuable new variety.

Suppose that a fruit is concerned. The latter, to prevent injury by insects or birds, may be further protected by a cheesecloth bag big enough to allow for its full development. Thus it grows to ripe perfection and, when it is ready to be picked, judgment can be given as to its value.

Factories on the Aisne.

Of the 45,000 horse-power utilized in the Department of the Aisne, France, four-fifths are estimated to have been employed in factories in that portion which was in German occupation. The sugar refineries, of which there are over 80, employing nearly 15,000 people, have been severely damaged and their restoration will be a serious problem.

Dandruffy Heads Become Hairless

If you want plenty of thick, beautiful, glossy, silky hair, do by all means get rid of dandruff, for it will starve your hair and ruin it if you don't.

It doesn't do much good to try to brush or wash it out. The only sure way to get rid of dandruff is to dissolve it, then you destroy it entirely. To do this, get about four ounces of ordinary liquid arvon; apply it at night when retiring; use enough to moisten the scalp and rub it in gently with the finger tips.

By morning, most if not all, of your dandruff will be gone, and three or four more applications will completely dissolve and entirely destroy every single sign and trace of it.

You will find, too that all itching and digging of the scalp will stop, and your hair will look and feel a hundred times better. You can get liquid arvon at any drug store. It is inexpensive and four ounces is all you will need, no matter how much dandruff you have. This simple remedy never fails.

TRANSFORMING A CITY.

Progress Rio de Janiero Has Made In the Past Few Years.

Within fifteen years Rio de Janeiro has been transformed. Up to that time the city had taken little advantage of its wonderful natural location. The streets were narrow, with rough pavements and open, noisome sewers. As the city is almost under the equator the death rate under such conditions was high.

A decade or so ago Brazil, under the leadership of Dr. Muller and others, began her awakening. Her statesmen realized her tremendous resources and knew that capital and immigration could make her one of the great nations of the world. With that motive, therefore, the work of improving Rio de Janeiro began. Eventually the improvements cost $200,000,000.

The city now gives an imposing impression of wealth and prosperity. It has a growing millionaire colony and is gradually coming into its own as a mecca for tourists. The city's water front, many miles long, which formerly was a fever swamp, has become one of the most magnificent boulevards on earth, thoroughly protected from the bay. It is a winding double drive of macadam, separated by lawns and groves of royal palms, while there are walks for pedestrians along the water's edge.—Argonaut.

When your liver becomes sluggish and inactive, the bowels become constipated, the tongue becomes coated, the breath bad, and the stomach all out of order.

Then come those terrible sick headaches. They take out every bit of life and ambition, bring on depression, and often end in complete mental and physical prostration.

To keep the liver active, and your bowels moving regularly, is the only way to get rid of the constipation and the distressing sick headaches. Milburn's Laxa-Liver Pills will do this for you by stimulating the sluggish liver into manufacturing sufficient bile to act properly on the bowels, thus making them active and regular.

Mrs. Winslow McKay, Jordan Branch, N.S., writes: "I have been sick for a number of years with sick headache and constipation. I tried all kinds of doctors' medicines, but none did me any good. I tried Milburn's Laxa-Liver Pills, and after using four vials I am completely cured. I would heartily recommend them to all sufferers."

Milburn's Laxa-Liver Pills are small and easy to take; and do not gripe, weaken or sicken as so many pills do. Price 25c a vial at all dealers, or mailed direct on receipt of price by The T. Milburn Co., Limited, Toronto, Ont.

"DANDERINE" FOR FALLING HAIR

Stop dandruff and double beauty of your hair for few cents.

Dandruff causes a feverish irritation of the scalp, the hair roots shrink, loosen and then the hair comes out fast. To stop falling hair at once and rid the scalp of every particle of dandruff, get a small bottle of "Danderine" at any drug store for a few cents, pour a little in your hand and rub it into the scalp. After several applications the hair stops coming out and you can't find any dandruff. Your hair appears soft, glossy and twice as thick and abundant. Try it!

He who has truth at his heart need never fear the want of persuasion on his tongue.—Ruskin.

Nobleness of character is nothing else but the steady love of good, and steady scorn of evil.—Froude.

OUR DAILY SHORT STORY

The Dethronement of Douglas

It Didn't Last Long After the Explanation Came.

By JANE INGRAHAM.

Harriet Winthrop belonged to the class of girls who bow to physical strength in the opposite sex. Frail, almost flowerlike in her beauty, the sort of girl who had been protected and served all her life, she yet decorated her tiny morning room with etchings and small statuettes of classic heroes famed for their physical prowess, and she could sit through a veritable blizzard to watch a football match and shout herself hoarse for Ted's college team.

Ted was her brother, and he said that somewhere in Harriet's makeup was a strain from the blood of an ancestral belle who had cheered on her hero in the old tournament days, for the Winthrops could trace their lineage to the tournament days and further, and, even though Mr. Winthrop had lost a large slice of the old family fortune through ill advised investments, they maintained their social standing, lived in rather severe but elegant fashion and held fast to every tradition, including the firm belief that no lady rides in a street car or other public conveyance. She may walk abroad for exercise only, but when calling or shopping the plain, rather old fashioned brougham of the depleted Winthrop stables was brought into service.

That was why when many other girls with more money to spend on shopping tripped merrily up and down the great retail thoroughfare Harriet Winthrop chafed in the Winthrop brougham, caught in a blockade of snarling motormen, sharp faced chauffeurs and obstinate cabbies. The brougham swung to one side, the wheels grating the curb, and Harriet leaned forward to see how close they were to the shop wherein could be found a certain piece of silvery blue gauze marked down to post holiday prices. Then, with a gasp and a shudder, she leaned back in the carriage and closed her eyes. She had forgotten the silvery gauze, the shop, the jam of vehicles — everything save the tall, square shouldered figure of a man, whose entire attention seemed to be centered on the flint of pancakes he was turning in the window of a white front restaurant.

The brougham moved forward a few inches, then several feet. Very soon it would be out of range, so Harriet took one more glimpse at the window to make sure that her eyes had not deceived her. No, it was he, and this time he was actually handling the white aproned waitress a plate piled high with golden brown cakes.

What was Jerry Douglas doing in that window, and how could he bestow upon the white aproned girl precisely the same frank, cordial smile with which he had greeted Harriet at that last dance, after Teddy's team had won through Douglas' clever coaching? She bought half a yard more gauze than she needed and went home firmly convinced that Jerry Douglas had been cooking cakes to pay a wager. That night she went to a dance where many mutual friends gathered; but no one seemed to have heard of the escapade, and she was too proud to make inquiries. The next day she went back to the shop so close to the restaurant. A bit of pale blue velvet ribbon would set off that silver gauze, but she decided that, after all, she did not care whether the silver gauze was developed into a creation or not. Nothing mattered save that her idol had crumbled at her very feet or, more properly speaking, within a few feet of the wheels of her brougham, for there again was Jerry Douglas, turning what she thought must be very fat and indigestible fried biscuits.

So it was not an election wager or anything of that sort. Ah, she knew! He had gone in for sociology. He was studying the condition of the working classes. Next thing he would be living in one of these dreadful settlement houses, holding club meetings for ragamuffins and poor factory girls and writing silly things for magazines—this man whom she had watched with baited breath on the football field, whom she had pictured as sallying forth to pit his magnificent strength, physical and mental, against the magnates of the commercial and financial world.

Cooking cakes in a restaurant window!

Harriet Winthrop walked with firm, deliberate step to her desk and took down from the wall above it a picture showing a group of lusty young men in football attire and also a certain individual picture of a young man with a finely formed head and broad, square shoulders. She thrust the two behind some boxes on the top shelf of her clothespress and then sat down for a good cry.

Of course she might have found out what it all meant if Teddy had been home, but Teddy, after leaving college, had gone to Paris to follow up his studies in naval architecture. Anyhow it did not matter. Of course it had been only a girlish fancy, and then Jerry Douglas has acted rather strangely since he went back to his Virginia home—a few casual notes, no references to his future career, in which she had betrayed an interest which she now felt was presumption and unmaidenly, and so she cried some more.

And just after she had worked herself into a fine nervous state, from which she would issue forth pallid and forlorn, a messenger brought her a most amazing note. It was from Jerry Douglas, and it calmly invited Miss Winthrop to attend a little supper he was giving at the Empire restaurant in honor of his promotion. It would be served on the upper floor of the restaurant at Thursday midnight, after the rush was over, and would she please come, because Mrs. Ned Landers had agreed to act as a chaperon and every one knew that Mrs. Ned was a host in herself.

Here was a perfectly legitimate avenue of inquiry which even the Winthrop pride might not hesitate to follow, so she bathed her eyes, summoned the Winthrop brougham and drove to Mrs. Ned Landers' smart studio apartment. Of course she could not accept the invitation and she would not decline without making inquiries.

Mrs. Landers, shrewdly reading from the white, tired face that something had gone amiss, made tea directly, and Harriet sipped it appreciatively.

"You know, mother is a bit old fashioned"—

"She even disapproved of studio flats instead of houses?" inquired Mrs. Landers, with dancing eyes.

"She thinks you are the most wonderful manager in the world, but a restaurant supper—I mean that particular sort of restaurant"—

"I understand, and I am just bubbling with the secret. I've been waiting to tell every one for weeks, but Jerry Douglas made me cross my heart and swear no. My dear, he is a hero, the sort you don't often find in this day of spoiled millionaire sons and fawning parasites. When he finished his college course and started to read law with an old friend of his father's down in Virginia he made what was to him an awful discovery. His inheritance had paid only his bare expenses at college. All the little pleasures, accessories, the social end of the game, his mother had made by her own handiwork. She had been doing exquisite embroidery for a woman's exchange and a New York department store to keep him at college as his father and grandfather had been kept before him.

"His first feeling, being a Virginia man of chivalric pride, was deep humiliation. I am afraid he was a bit hard on the little mother for daring to do such a thing. Then he turned his back on the law and came north, going straight to the father of a young ster he had known at college, the sort who roll in wealth made in a single generation. The boy's father has all sorts of commercial interests, including a chain of quick lunch counters, and he promptly offered Jerry the chance to act as cashier in one of those dreadful lunch rooms."

Harriet was leaning forward, drinking in every word, oblivious to the fact that Mrs. Ned was studying her face with matronly amusement.

"Well, this particular lunch room was in a badly disorganized state, and Jerry not only made changes, but he fired the cook, who had been making trouble, and cooked himself until he could get a decent man. He stopped quarrelling among the waitresses—and now he is going to Mexico for the man who was just trying him out in a lunch room, and, what is more, he is going on a most ticklish and important mission."

Harriet leaned back with a sigh that might have meant reaction or something deeper.

"And so he has hired just six of us to have that little supper, for which he agrees to cook all sorts of things, from pancakes to something he calls butter cakes. Anyhow, it can't be worse for our digestion than some of the Newburg messes our friend makes in chafing dishes. Will you go?"

Harriet rose instantly.

"If you won't think me abrupt. I'm going home this minute to telephone my acceptance."

Wise Mrs. Ned did not suggest that in her hallway was a telephone instrument, which Harriet had oftimes used, and the girl went her way. Later as she hung up the telephone receiver in the Winthrop library her eyes seemed to shine like diamonds, and a soft flush mounted to her pale gold hair. And from the library she went straight to her own room, climbed up to a clothespress shelf and lugged forth two photographs. Then, with her chin resting in the palms of her hands, she sat down, studying them with eyes that still shone with the light that once must have brightened the face of the ancestral belle at the tournament.

15 TIMES THE MONEY

was spent on doctors' bills, without any benefit, as was spent in Zam-Buk, which effected a complete cure!" says Mrs. Fred Gervais of 126 Bleury St., Montreal.

"A rash broke out on my baby's skin, and she became very fretful and lost weight. I took her to a doctor, who gave me some lotion to apply, but it did not do baby any good. I then took her to another doctor, but with the same result.

"Then a friend, who saw the condition baby was in, brought me some Zam-Buk, which she so highly recommended that I commenced using it. In one week's time baby looked much better, and before a month had elapsed she was quite well again.

"Baby is now the picture of health, and I think it wonderful that $2 worth of Zam-Buk brought about this cure when $30 spent in doctors' treatments did no good whatever! I certainly advise other mothers not to experiment with useless remedies, but to save their little ones unnecessary suffering and themselves needless anxiety and expense by using Zam-Buk in the first place."

Zam-Buk is also best for eczema, ringworm, scalp sores, boils, ulcers, abscesses, blood-poisoning, piles, cuts, burns and scalds. All dealers or Zam-Buk Co., Toronto. 50c. box, 3 for $1.25.

What Happens to the food you eat?

During digestion certain kinds of food containing proteins, such as meat, egg white, milk casein, wheat gluten, etc., are split into many different substances.

Some of these the body uses to rebuild damaged or dead tissues; some, however, are not only useless and harmful but in some cases actually poisonous. Regular, thorough bowel evacuation gets rid of the latter.

Constipation permits stagnation and absorption of these poisons into the blood, with injury to the whole body.

Taking castor oil, pills, salts, mineral waters, etc., in order to force the bowels to move does not—cannot cure constipation—but makes it worse.

On the other hand Nujol overcomes constipation and brings about the habit of easy, thorough bowel evacuation at regular intervals, because Nujol is not a drug, does not act like any drug.

Nujol brings about a return to Nature's methods of supplying necessary lubrication of the bowel contents, by facilitating intestinal muscular action, by absorbing poisonous matter, and thus securing necessary cleansing of the intestinal canal and protection of the defensive properties of the blood itself.

Nujol has no deleterious after effects, produces no bad habits, makes the bowels regular as clockwork.

Nujol is efficient at any age—under any conditions—is satisfactory and safe.

How and Why Nujol overcomes constipation is described in an interesting and authoritative booklet, "Thirty Feet of Danger" free on request. Send for it and get a bottle of Nujol from your druggist today.

MY FAVORITE AUTHOR.

I have a certain bookcase where
Behind a curtain lurks
A row of books beyond compare,
My favorite author's works.

I finger o'er the well loved tomes,
I reverently note
The various essays, novels, pomes,
My favorite author wrote.

All eagerly the leaves I turn,
Read here and there a line.
Ah, words that ring! Ah, thoughts, that burn!
Ah, style so true and fine!

How well the characters are drawn!
What charm! What atmosphere!
Subtle, yet vivid as the dawn;
Mystic, yet crystal clear.

And poems of such metric art,
Such rhythm, rime and rune!
Surely these lines came from a heart
To melody attune!

Ah, they are wondrously well done,
The books on that long shelf!
I thrill to think that every one
Was written by myself!

Very Unfortunate.

Young Henderson, who has graduated in medicine, is very fond of giving wise opinions on all matters.

One day while calling on an elderly woman she remarked:

"One of the greatest sorrows in my life is that I have never had any children."

"Ah," said Henderson, "perhaps it was—ah—hereditary. Did your mother have any children?"—Detroit Free Press.

What Did He Mean?

"Is there any place around here where I can get my shock absorber fixed?" asked Petlow, addressing the man in front of the rural garage.

"Waal, I dunno, mister," was the reply. "This here's a prohibition state, but I may hev some on hand for medical purposes if you're reely sufferin'."—Toronto Globe.

Thin People of Peterborough

Bitro-Phosphate will give you a small, steady increase of firm, healthy flesh each day. It supplies an essential substance to the brain and nerves in the active form in which it normally occurs in the living cells of body. An Inside Bath Makes You Look and Feel Fresh

Says a glass of hot water with phosphate before breakfast keeps illness away.

This excellent, common-sense health measure being adopted by millions.

Physicians the world over recommend the inside bath, claiming this is of vastly more importance than outside cleanliness, because the skin pores do not absorb impurities into the blood, causing ill health, while the pores in the ten yards of bowels do.

Men and women are urged to drink each morning, before breakfast a glass of hot water with a teaspoonful of limestone phosphate in it, as a harmless means of helping to wash from the stomach, liver, kidneys and bowels the previous day's indigestible material, poisons, sour bile and toxins; thus cleansing, sweetening and purifying the entire alimentary canal before putting more food into the stomach.

Just as soap and hot water cleanse and freshen the skin, so hot water and limestone phosphate act on the eliminative organs.

Those who wake up with bad breath, coated tongue, nasty taste or have a dull, aching head, sallow complexion, acid stomach; others who are subject to bilious attacks or constipation, should obtain a quarter pound of limestone phosphate at the drug store. This will cost very little but is sufficient to demonstrate the value of inside bathing. Then begin tomorrow each morning and see if some unexpected results are not obtained as to health and appearance.

FARMERS

For Forty Years We Have Been Allies

Do you remember what farming was like in Canada forty years ago?
We remember very well what manufacturing was like, what there was of it.
The farmers were struggling on farms and getting low prices for their produce.
The few manufacturers were also struggling, for the most part unsuccessfully.
For forty years we have worked together. Have we not both prospered?
We buy from you most of what you grow. You buy from us most of what we make. That has been and is the basis of our alliance.

The manufacturing establishments in Canada employ nearly 700,000 people. Their wage-roll is about $700,000,000 a year. Moreover, they buy annually nearly $2,000,000,000 worth of raw material, mostly in Canada. Around these factories are congregated a hundred other forms of business. All these are your customers, and statistics show that this home market is four times as valuable to you as your entire foreign market. Decrease its buying powers, and your sales lessen and your prices drop.

How A Minority Seek to Sever Our Alliance

The Prairie Grain Growers are urging the Government to throw down the tariff wall between Canada and the United States because they want to save a little money (mainly on freight rates) by buying from the United States manufacturers just south of them. They, who constitute about 20 per cent. of the agricultural population of Canada, ask all the other farmers, who constitute the remaining 80 per cent., to change the policy which they have supported for forty years.

Furthermore, to raise the Dominion Government revenue, they would substitute for the tariff, which collected last year about 60 per cent. of that revenue, an increase of income taxes, inheritance taxes, corporation taxes and taxes on unimproved land values. As it is quite obvious that such taxes would affect the farmer but little, this is the inducement they are using to get you to forsake us and follow the free trade prophets no one knows where.

We think this appeal will fail. First, because it seems to be founded on the assumption that the farmers of Canada want to slip out of paying any increased taxes that may be needed for soldiers' pensions, gratuities and re-establishment. We have found in all our experience that the farmers of Canada are not this class of men. Second, because the argument is unsound. It requires little reflection to see that if our market is thrown open and flooded, many of our manufacturers, caught in the struggle to re-adjust themselves from war to peace conditions, will not be able to keep going. Would this not result in many of our people, unless they were able and willing to take up farming, leaving for the United States? Would not the rest of the population then, which might consist chiefly of farmers, have to pay all the taxes?

The Grain Growers do not represent the entire population of the Prairie Provinces. They do not represent the business population; they do not by any means represent all the farmers. The Prairie Grain Growers' Associations are dominated by a group of free traders whose one idea seems to be to get free trade all over the world. Unfortunately for their theories, just at the present time all the rest of the world seems desirous of getting protection.

Tariff Policy of Other Nations

GREAT BRITAIN is shutting out the goods of other countries (except the Dominions) by FRANCE and ITALY are shutting out the goods of other countries by import restrictions.

THE DEMOCRATIC PARTY in the United States, which advocates low tariffs, seems to be going out of power, and the Republicans, who always support high tariffs, have now a majority in both Senate and Congress. Do you think that this means that the United States' tariff is going up or down?

SOUTH AFRICA is increasing its tariff. Australia, New Zealand, Newfoundland, Japan, Brazil and Portugal are all jealously maintaining their tariffs.

Why is this wave of protection sweeping over the world? In a word, because the various countries are trying to produce all they need at home, in order to provide work for their own people—many of them returned soldiers.

Why then is this Western minority of the farmers of Canada determined to go in the exactly opposite direction?

In opposing the demands of the Grain Growers, we do not in any sense intend, as they sometimes say, to show hostility to them. They are our customers. Is not our prosperity affected by theirs? Beyond all this, if the farmers do not prosper, neither we nor the country can prosper. Agriculture and industry are the basis of the country's strength.

But we feel that these demands of the Grain Growers aim a deadly blow, not only at industry but at the whole farming community.

What justifies the Grain Growers in demanding that their personal grievances be cured at the expense of the rest of the country? Are they in a desperate position? Have they been losing heavily? Are they suffering from too much adversity or too much success? Are they in any danger comparable to the one great danger in Canada now?—

THE DANGER OF UNEMPLOYMENT

the danger which may place thousands in need of shelter, food and clothing?

Most Canadians feel strongly that until this danger is avoided, and the country safely restored to a peace basis, the nation should not be disturbed by any tariff controversy at all.

When this danger is passed, and the country knows where is stands, and what other countries of the world are going to do, then the tariff question should be taken up and such a tariff should be framed as will suit, not the manufacturers merely, nor the farmers merely, but the country as a whole, and by adding to the prosperity of the nation, add to the prosperity of each and every class—the only safe path to prosperity for any country or any class in that country.

ORENBURG.

Once Peaceful City Becomes a Battleground.

The city of Orenburg, to which, according to a recent despatch from Omsk, contingents of French and British troops are being rushed to aid Gen. Dutoff in holding it against the attacks of Bolshevik forces, is an important community.

At the time of the outbreak of the world war Orenburg, capital of the Orenburg Cossack country, on the Asiatic border, ranked fourteenth in size among the cities of European Russia.

Established less than 300 years ago as a frontier fort, Orenburg was moved three times in less than ten years, its present site being nearly 150 miles northwest of its original location. It soon became an important trading post as well as a strong link in the fortified chain known as the Orenburg Cossack line.

At the time of the outbreak of the world war, the town was one of the most prosperous in the Czar's dominions, as it was an entrepot for the trade of Tashkent, Khiva, Bokhara, Knokand and European Russia. Great caravans brought the silks, wool, rugs, dried fruits, cotton and lambskins from these Asiatic dependencies of Russia to exchange them at the border city for the sugar, metal ware and textiles of Europe.

The traffic in live stock was also great. Formerly the sheep and cattle were merely driven through Orenburg, but in recent years the slaughtering industry has become important, thanks to the introduction of cold-storage cars which conveyed the meats to Samara, which lies 260 miles to the west by rail. Tons of tallow, butter, cheese, hams and sausages were shipped from Orenburg annually.

Thirteen years ago the railway line was extended from Orenburg to Tashkent, a distance of more than 1,100 miles. While this twentieth century achievement served to stimulate trade, it has robbed the city on the north bank of the Ural of many of its picturesque camel-caravan visitors.

Orenburg in peace times was not without its cultural advantages. It had two cadet colleges, nearly 40 churches besides 14 mosques, (25 per cent. of the inhabitants being Tartars and Bashkirs) and a branch of the Russian Geographical Society. Its climate is dry and subject to considerable fluctuations of temperature, for although the average for the year is only five degrees above freezing) the thermometer not infrequently rises to 98 in mid-summer, while 33 degrees below zero in winter is not uncommon.

The Ural river, which forms a part of the boundary line between European and Asiatic Russia, is not a navigable stream, otherwise Orenburg would be an even more important commercial centre.

"The city is the capital of the Russian Government or Province of Orenburg, which has an area somewhat less than that of South Dakota, but three times the population.

Before the war there were numerous settlements of German colonists in the neighborhood of the capital.

Orenburg for many years has been noted among womankind for its beautiful white and grey shawls, so finely knitted of pure goats' wool that many of them can be drawn through a finger ring. These products of skilful industry formerly sold for from $12 to $35 a square yard.

A Concession.

"My wife refused to recite the usual speeches in the marriage ceremony," said the worried looking man."

"That showed originality."

"Yes. But it hasn't prevented her from allowing the lawyer to use the customary phraseology in applying for alimony."—Washington Star.

SNOW IS A PUZZLE.

Even the Scientists Know Very Little About It.

You know as much about snow as anybody else on earth—which is to say nothing at all. You know that it is white, that it is either granular—composed of little round grains—or flaky. If it is flaky you know that each flake is a six-pointed crystal formation; at least you ought to know it, for it is a fact. But why it is white, why it is always six-pointed, why it was made to come in winter instead of summer — nobody knows that, except that it is part of nature's way, and therefore is the right way.

You can go to the library and get books that have been written about the snow. You can see magnified pictures of it. You can read where the scientists tell you about how it is formed in the clouds — and all of that. And when you have read everything that has been written about it and have seen all the pictures of the various kinds of snowflakes, and have spent hours with the scientists, you know what everyone knows and nothing more. You know that it is a wonderful arrangement of nature.

The snowflakes seem to form themselves out of the moisture of the clouds. At first there is a tiny formation, maybe no bigger than the point of a pin—but six-pointed. A number of these tiny six-pointed stars stuck together and make another six-pointed affair, and they jab into another of their kind and become a big snowflake and fall to the earth, and the whole thing is six-pointed. They are always forming high in the heavens, and starting down to the earth. But in the summer the air of the earth is so warm they melt and fall in rain drops; in the winter, when the air at the level of the earth is cool, they get all the way to earth, and instead of having rain we have snow.

Snow forms in the clouds everywhere in the world. But in the tropics, where it is always warm at the surface of the earth, they do not reach the ground. But if there is a mountain in the tropics the top of it will be covered with snow, because away up there it is cold. It would snow at the Equator just as it does in the Arctic regions if it were not warmer at the surface of the earth at the Equator than it is in the Arctics.

In this climate the snow serves a useful purpose in that it covers the vegetation and protects it from the severe cold of winter. It doesn't make any difference how cold it is, if the vegetation is covered with snow.

So the most advantageous winters we can have are those where the snow lies upon the ground. The snow forms a blanket, and prevents the cold from destroying the roots of the plants.

Now that winter is upon us, and the snows are due, study the flakes, get out of doors and allow them to alight upon your sleeve. Take a magnifying glass and look at them. They are beauties — six-pointed beauties; no two alike, but all of them six-pointed. When the big fellows fall you do not need a glass; you can study them with the naked eye.

And when the snow comes in drifts and [illegible] earth, and drifts [illegible] look an enemy, but a friend. See how nature has woven a blanket for her little children. Comprehend, if you can, the infinite patience that so devised it that these little particles should fall silently until they formed a great sheet to cover the region—a warm, warm garment of purity to shut out the bitter wind, the biting frost that would lap up the tender growing plants of the earth. There is no more wonderful thing than the snow—and no more kindlier thing; nor anything more universal over the face of the earth. Despise not the snow, nor complain about it; let it kiss your cheek in affection. It is all right.

Spartacans in Germany Plan a General Uprising Throughout Central Europe

Bolsheviki Forces Are Marching Into Hungary—British Patrol Boat Was Seized by the Hungarians But Was Later Released—Strong Demonstrations in Germany in Favour of Wilson's "Fourteen Points"—The Revolutionaries Clamour For a Wilson Peace.

PEACE CONFERENCE IS BEGINNING TO WAKE UP TO THE SERIOUSNESS OF THE SITUATION

By Frank J. Taylor.

BERLIN, March 21.—(By Courier to Paris).—The Spartacans are planning to launch their third revolution before the first of April. This revolt, it was learned from Spartacans themselves to-day, is intended as the signal for a general Bolshevist uprising through Central Europe. The Russian Bolsheviki have been asked to start an invasion to ensure the revolution's success.

The Spartacans expect to open hostilities without warning, since the general strike that preceded the last revolution gave the government time to prepare. They are gathering weapons, ammunition and food, which they are storing in numerous secret rendezvous.

Some of the Spartacans, vastly in the minority, favour postponing the revolution until after the Soviet Congress, which meets here April 8th, then seeking to persuade the Workmen and Independent Socialists to join them. This plan has met with little favour as the Workmen and Independents want no violence, and Spartacans do. The Spartacans recently sent a delegation to Moscow in an airplane they had stolen. This method of establishing communication was employed because the frontiers are closed. They asked the Bolsheviki to assist the pending revolution by throwing large forces of Soviet troops into Central Europe.

Spartacan leaders say it will take ten years for Bolshevism to dominate Europe completely. They are laying their plans accordingly. The government, under the direction of War Minister Noske, is massing weapons and ammunition and strengthening its organization preparatory to the struggle.

Hungarian Frontier Was Closed Last Evening.

(United Press.)

VIENNA, March 25.—The Hungarian frontier was closed last night, news from Budapest was meagre, but it was reported the city is generally calm. A few shops have been looted, and there are anti-capitalist processions in the streets.

The Revolutionary Government Council at its first meeting, decided to abolish all ranks and titles, separate the church from the state, and abolish compulsory taxes of ecclesiastical purposes. It also decided to choose a directorate from its members to supervise government commissaries and prohibit the sale of alcohol to all except workers and guards. All military factories have been placed under heavy guard.

British Monitors Arrive in Budapest After Being Fired On.

(United Press.)

PARIS, March 25. — Two British monitors have arrived in Budapest after being fired on en route, it was reported in despatches received through diplomatic channels to-day. They proceeded to the Hungarian capital along the Danube from Belgrade.

Ont British patrol boat was said to have been seized by the Hungarians, but was returned later with apologies. Reports received in official circles here declare that American troops in Budapest have been assured of every protection and may be asked to remain.

Martial law has been proclaimed in Hungary and the death penalty prescribed for armed resistance, robbery or plundering. Sale of liquor has been prohibited, under penalty of ten thousand dollars fine. Anyone, aside from a workers or guard, discovered drinking liquor, will be fined two thousand dollars.

Hundreds of former Hungarian war prisoners in Russia are said to be returning across the Carpathians daily, spreading Bolshevik propaganda among the peasants.

Have Called For a World-Wide Uprising.

(United Press.)

BERLIN, March 25.— The Russian and Hungarian Soviet governments have called for a world wide uprising of the proletariat, according to advices received here to-day from Budapest.

While agreeing to an offensive and defensive alliance with the Hungarians, Premier Lenine is said to have declared his opposition to an armed Bolsheviki crusade at this time, preferring to use propaganda and money, with the help of the foreign proletariat to win over the Bourgeoisie. All classes in Hungary are reported to be joining the Communists, who are raising a huge army in the hope of combining with the Russians in a war against the Entente. They plan to make their initial drive against the Czecho-Slovaks and Roumanians. Increasing restlessness is becoming evident throughout Germany. East Prussians are said to be arming and preparing for civil war if Dansig is awarded to Poland. They have adopted the battle cry "Death Rather Than Become Polish." Several strong demonstrations have occurred in Berlin, Breslau and Dansig, in opposition to annexation of Danzig and the Saar Valley and in favour of President Wilson's fourteen points. These demonstrations are led by Mathias Erzberger, Finance Minister Schiffer and other prominent officials. Sailors at Bremen are reported to have refused to allow merchant ships to leave port to be turned over to the Allies.

Conference Has Been Deeply Impressed.

By Fred S. Ferguson.
(United Press.)

PARIS, March 25. —Allied troops must be rushed into Hungary at once to save the situation, was the opinion expressed in advices received to-day by the Peace Conference from its agents in that country. The Allied forces now in Hungary are entirely inadequate, it was stated, and must be immediately and heavily reinforced to prevent Bolshevism from obtaining a foothold, from which it can spread into Western Europe.

The Conference has been deeply impressed by the collapse of the Hungarian government, the alliance of the new government with the Russian Bolsheviki and the reported declaration of war against the Entente. Every effort is now being made to speed up the peace settlement with Germany and the other enemy countries, with the resultant lifting of the blockade. One of the most potent weapons in the hands of the Allies to prevent the spread of Bolshevism westward will be the re-establishment of normal economic conditions in Central Europe, the delegates agree. The Supreme War Council proceeded with its routine business yesterday. But all the delegates showed the greatest desire to obtain all information possible concerning the Hungarian situation.

Developments leading to the Hungarian revolution were being discussed to-day in the light of what might have been done to avert it. When Count Karolyi was informed of the establishment of a temporary boundary by the peace conference permitting the Roumanians to occupy the 1916 line, he is said to have declared that his overthrow was inevitable. This situation was complicated by the fact that assurances of food relief constituted the strongest element in enabling the government to hold on.

Is a Bolshevik of a "Violent" Type.

While the Hungarians will not be in acute need of food until the middle of next month, Karolyi was led to expect shipments from their former enemies to avoid a crisis. After the American Congress passed an amendment to the Food Bill excluding all enemy countries, Karolyi is said to have informed officials of the American Food Administration that this was the beginning of the end. Considerable interest is being displayed in the personnel of the new Hungarian government. Alexander Garbai, the President, is described as a workman, uneducated but intelligent. Josef Poganny, Minister of War, formerly was an orderly in the army. He was punished for indiscretion in army affairs. He was Trotsky's aide for four years, following his capture by Russians, and is said to be a Bolshevik of a "violent" type.

German Austria Affected.

Canadian Press:

PARIS, March 25.—The conditions in Hungary seem to have affected German-Austria. "Advices" to the American Peace Conference delegates from private agents in Vienna indicate the existence of a threatening state of affairs there. One of these agents who has just come from Vienna reports that even the date has been fixed for some time in April for the transformation of the existing government in a Soviet Government, which will co-operate or merge with the Government of the Hungarian Soviet.

Soldiers Mobilizing.

Canadian Press:

BASLE, Switzerland, March 25.—The Hungarian Commissioner for Military Affairs, says a Budapest despatch to-day, has issued an order, instructing all soldiers to rejoin units without delay. "If the soldiers do not do their duty the Hungarian Soviet Republic is doomed," he adds. The Revolutionary Government requires armed discipline, and it will create an army well equipped and disciplined.

Cause of Riots in Canadian Camps

Col. Frank Reid, Who Was Member of Argyle House, Says Authorities Failed to Fulfill Promises.

FINE RECORD

(Special to The Examiner.)

HALIFAX, March 25.—Col. Frank Reid, formerly Adjutant General at Argyle House, apparently has no misgivings as to the cause of the riots among the men. Col. Reid, who had an excellent military record, attributes it to the fact that the authorities, once having given the promise of an early return to Canada, failed to live up to these promises. Col. Reid, who arrived at Halifax on the Olympic, was inclined to be reticent, when questioned concerning the bungling of Argyle House, but it is not at all improbable that more may be heard from him at some later date.

"The unfortunate Rhyl incident, as reported, was greatly exaggerated and has been a matter of great regret to all Canadians, who have every reason to be particularly proud of the magnificent record of the Canadians overseas," said Col. Reid, when interviewed. "The men were apparently disappointed regarding their return on a number of occasions, and the feeling is that had the promises not been made and then cancelled without suitable explanation, the unfortunate incident would never have occurred. In justice to the Canadians, rank and file, they are the most amiable men in the Allied forces to discipline, if properly and fairly administered. In other troubles some times when serious unrest developed, they had the fine record of being the only troops not involved in the large area in which the trouble referred to took place. This did not receive publicity. In one particular training area, with an average strength of over three thousand, not one single minor offence was recorded for forty-three days. This is a record and indicates how the Tommies played the game.

Another Position For Sir William

Accounts of the License Board Will Be Referred to Public Accounts Committee.

AYEARST ABSENT

(Special to The Examiner.)

PARLIAMENT BUILDINGS, Toronto, March 25.—The all engrossing topic of conversation and conjecture at Queen's Park is the impending probe into Hartley Dewart's charges against Inspector Ayearst of the License Board, the scope of the inquiry and the date of its commencement. That the last mentioned will be soon, there is little doubt. It is a matter of speculation, however, whether the probe will be open before the inquiry which Sir William Meredith is conducting on the police situation, is finally wound up. It is not generally the custom for a commissioner to have two such investigations on his hands at one time.

The appointment of Sir William Meredith as commissioner on the Dewart charges, occasioned little comment, for it had been generally forecasted. Premier Hearst's announcement to the House yesterday afternoon contained several surprises, however, chief among them being the resignation of George Morrison, a Provincial License Officer, and the promise that the accounts of the License Board will be referred to the Public Accounts committee of the House. The probe will thus be of a two-fold or perhaps of a three-fold nature, Sir William Meredith investigating Mr. Dewart's charges against Mr. Ayearst, Mr. Peter White devoting particular attention to Mr. Morrison's financial relations while in the employ of the License Board, and the Public Accounts committee investigating the accounts of the Board. The Public Accounts committee meets this week for organization, and will proceed with the duty entrusted it an early date. Mr Ayearst was not at the offices of the License Board this morning, and officials of the Commission declined to state whether he had resigned his position, after being temporarily suspended by the government.

Some Monaghan Men Opposing Plans for Union

Proposed Area Too Extensive In Opinion of Some of the Residents—Others Undecided.

A MEETING TO-NIGHT

Opposition to the proposed annexation of a strip of North Monaghan has been developing since the exchange of opinions looking to a possible agreement at the preliminary meeting last week of the Council's special committee and representatives of the affected residents of the townships. The promoters of union are not surprised that the project has not met with unanimous approval, but they expect to remove objections by discussing the city's first offer at public meetings, the first of which will be held to-night in St. George's Sunday School. It is understood that this may disclose itself as an "anti" meeting but the advocates of annexation will be there to plead the case, and several of the aldermen will lend their support.

Mr. Harold B. Ryan is reported by Byersville men to be antagonistic to slicing off the large area that was mapped out at the first conference. Other dwellers in the open country on the outskirts declare that they are quite satisfied with their conditions, although they have not decided yet what stand they will take.

"I'm going to the meeting to-night to hear both sides," said one resident of the township who works in the city." I want to know exactly what this fixed assessment means, and any other condition that may be put forward."

This seems to be the feeling of quite a number of the people of the township.

Byersville sentiment is warmly for annexation, although there are probably some opponents.

"If we don't accept the city's offer now, it will be only a year or two until the Provincial Board of Health will command us to join with the city for sanitary reasons," was one view as stated to the Examiner.

Another man this morning stated that he was looking for an argument at to-night's meeting if the objectors appeared. "I've been paying taxes to the township for the past six years and never got a cent's worth of value that I could see," he said. "I'd rather go in with the city, pay a little more taxes if necessary and get some of the ordinary conveniences we need."

It is evident therefore that the stand-patters will have their hands full if the men in favour of annexation work together as earnestly as they have given promise in the inception of their scheme. To-night's meeting should set the keynote, and it may or may not be set in sharps.

COMPLETED TO-MORROW

League Covenant Will be Turned Over to Committee of Legal Experts.

EQUALITY OF NATIONS

By Ed L. Keene.
(United Press.)

PARIS, March 25.—Reconstruction of the League of Nations covenant has progressed to a point where a report can be presented any time the Allied leaders demand it, according to an announcement made to-day.

The League committee completed the new draft of sixteen articles last night, adjourning at 1.30. The constitution is expected to be finished at Wednesday's meeting, after which it will be turned over to a sub-committee of International law experts, who will put it in technical shape.

The French again urged creation of an International general staff last night, but received no support. An amendment covering the Monroe Doctrine was put over until Wednesday. At that time the Japanese also are expected to present their amendment for racial equality, which has not yet been definitely formulated.

The Japanese made it plain to-day they have not dropped their original proposal for equality of nationalities, and that mere equality of nations will not suffice. The Americans are offering no objection to the contention of the Japanese who meantime are in conference with the British.

The Supreme War Council was scheduled to-day to discuss boundary questions and other matters directly affecting the preliminary treaty.

Another "Organola" Arrived

The Royal Music Co. have much pleasure in announcing to the public the arrival of another "Organola," which is now on display at the warerooms of the company, cor. of Brock and George street.

This wonderful photograph is the only machine in all the wide world which is equipped with tone control pipes like a church organ.

These pipes embrace every note in the scale and vibrate in sympathy as their notes are given forth by the record playing. Equipped with the new device the Phonola unquestionably takes front rank among talking machines as furnishing the truest, purest and sweetest tone possible to reproduce.

Experts who have heard it, and critically examined its performance are astonished at its infallible accuracy of tone, clearness, volume and freedom from harsh and foreign noises.

You are cordially invited to call and hear this wonderful machine and be thoroughly impressed with its tone, construction and beauty.

DAYLIGHT SAVING.

The confusion that will be caused throughout Canada if the Canadian Government does not decide to re-enact the Daylight Saving measure, is illustrated by the situation that has arisen in St. Thomas, Ont. In this well-known railway centre the Pere Marquette, Michigan Central and the Wabash Railways have announced that commencing next Sunday they will carry on operations under the United States Daylight Saving Bill. The complications that will ensue from this action are readily apparent, with the railway running an hour ahead of the city time. It is no wonder that the city council of St. Thomas is preparing to send a largely-signed petition to the Government asking that the Daylight Saving measure be adopted again this year. If all the Canadian railways conform with the United States time, as seems almost certain, the situation in St. Thomas will be repeated all over the Dominion. The confusion that will ensue as a result will be much more aggravating to the people of Canada than was the measure to the farmers last year for many of those living in rural sections could ignore the Act and it did not affect their daily work in the least. The matter has not yet been settled by the Government and the local city council should add its voice to the chorus from the urban centres of Canada that is asking the Federal authorities to re-enact the measure.

THE COUNCIL AND PROHIBITION

In some quarters there seems to be a tendency to criticize the members of the city council because of their refusal to endorse the petition that will be sent to the Dominion Government asking that the present prohibition law be made permanent. This criticism is both ill-founded and unjust. The aldermen have no mandate to speak for the people of Peterboro on such a controversial subject as prohibition. They were elected to transact the business of this city and whatever their own personal opinion on the subject may be they were well advised not to attempt to express the views of the whole people in regard to prohibition. The majority of the Council quite rightly took the position that as aldermen they would be going outside of the scope of their duties as representatives of the citizens if they endorsed the petition. In this course they will have the support of the majority of the ratepayers whether in favour of prohibition or not because it is realized that in a question of this kind in which in Ontario at least the people are going to have an opportunity to express their views in a referendum the council would be taking upon themselves the voicing of an opinion that should be given by the whole community and not by a few men whose election as city representatives had no connection whatsoever with the prohibition question. It is unfair to condemn the council for their prudence in declining to be drawn into a controversy.

MANY RURAL CARS.

One of the chief arguments used by opponents of the Provincial County Good Roads System in endeavoring to prejudice the farmers against the system was that the roads provided in this way were chiefly for the benefit of the motorist from the city. This argument is rather badly shattered by the figures presented by Mr. H. O. Fisk, Secretary of the Peterboro Automobile Association at that Friday's meeting of the Association. Instead of the city owned cars being in the majority, as nearly everyone imagined, Mr. Fisk pointed out that of the 7289 cars registered here last year, 4193 per cent. were actually owned in the country and only 3096 per cent in the city. The proportion according to population was a car to every thirty people in the city and one to every twenty-four people in the county outside of the city, so that it is apparent that the motorists in the county have more reason to desire the Good Roads System than their friends in the city, especially as Mr. Fisk shows that the cars owned outside of the city are approximately worth $666,500 and that the maintenance of these cars would be reduced by 75 per cent. if the county roads were improved.

THE MOTOR SHOW.

The fact that it will be the biggest exhibition of motor cars and accessories ever shown in Peterboro and that there will be a programme replete with novelties and unusual features, should be sufficient in itself to ensure a record patronage for the annual Motor Show to be held in the Armouries on April 9th, 10th and 11th. When, in addition, it is understood that the proceeds are in aid of that splendid organization, the Peterboro Health Association, the advance sale of tickets which commenced today should be an instantaneous success. There is no other cause that is more worthy of public support than the Health Association, whose aim is to make Peterboro a healthier and therefore a happier city. There are scores of suffering families who will gladly testify to what the Association has done in their cases. Their work has gone on quietly, but effectively, during the war years and because it was necessary to curtail some of the plans that were interrupted when the world was turned upside down by the terrific conflict, the members of the Association are looking forward to the opportunities that the coming of peace affords them to develop their work along the lines they had originally planned. Much therefore depends upon the financial success of the Motor Show and the citizens who are asked to buy tickets should consider it a privilege to be allowed to help in the great work of the Association. Many of the ladies who were prominent in war work have been public-spirited enough to undertake the task of selling the tickets, and the Examiner bespeaks for them a hearty welcome and a liberal response.

BOLSHEVISM.

The most illuminating study of Bolshevism that we have seen appears in the current number of the Round Table quarterly, says the Hamilton Herald which gives a lengthy review of the article in question from which the following interesting excerpts are taken:

"Not only against the bourgeoisie or middle class is the Bolsheviki sword wielded. Among the classes which are doomed to extinction are all Socialists who do not approve of Bolshevist methods and will not submit to Bolshevist rule; also all the so-called "intellectual" Socialists and political Labor leaders of western countries; all trades unionists who tolerate the existing industrial and social system and consent to bargain with employing capitalists. These are regarded by the Bolsheviki with more bitter hatred than even the bourgeoisie; they are denounced as traitors to the cause of the proletariat, and therefore more deserving of punishment than the open enemies of the cause. "There is only one Socialism—Bolshevik Socialism—and all other forms of Socialism are merely a betrayal of the working class." Lenine reviles almost all his former colleagues, and classes them as "counter-revolutionary."

The Round Table writer describes Lenine as a sincere fanatic and a man of great intellectual power and remarkable foresight —a man, moreover, of inflexible will, undaunted courage and guiltless of corrupt motives. "But he is absolutely without mercy in putting his plans into effect. Many other Bolshevist leaders, minor officials not exercising immense power and influence, are thoroughly corrupt. "There is little in the shape of false passports, Bolshevik documents, provisions, grain, eggs, butter —in a word, of everything over which the Bolshevik employees have control—even life and death—which cannot be bought for a price."

The chief aim and aspiration of the Bolsheviki is just simple communism. They claim to be the only reliable exponent of Marxism. Bucharin, one of their more authoritative writers, says: "To communism, through the dictatorship of the proletariat—that is our party cry. Dictatorship means an iron-power—a power which will not spare its enemies. The dictatorship of the working class is a state power of the working class which will strangle the bourgeoisie and the landowners. . . . We stand for the employment of revolutionary force. Along the path of compromise you will find nothing good."

And when the dream is fulfilled the society which will be brought into being is that pictured by Bucharin: All private property will be abolished. All wealth will belong to society as a whole, and not to individual classes or individual persons. All government will be suppressed, except a central statistical bureau. This bureau will decide despotically "how many boots, trousers, sausages, how much blacking, wheat, cloth, etc. shall be produced in a year; it will further decide how many comrades must work in the fields, in the sausage factories, in the tailors' workshops. In a correspondingly manner all labor will be distributed. All production will be carried out on a strictly calculated plan, based on the number of consumers, and agricultural implements, the amount of raw material and the supply of labor."

The machine devised by Lenine which, he expects, will enable him to accomplish his purposes, is a system of pure despotism. A study of the "Constitution of the Russian Socialist Federative Soviet Republic" reveals how carefully and efficiently the Bolshevist leader has created safeguards to secure a majority which will give effect to his will and exclude all possibility of political opposition. Nominally, the Central Executive Committee of the All-Russian congress of Soviets is responsible to the congress, which meets about once in every three months, the sittings lasting four or five days. In reality the Central Executive committee is the supreme authority of the R.S.F.R.S. Here is a section of the constitution which is designed to safeguard the authority of the present ruling faction from dangerous opposition by other groups of Socialists:—"Guided by the interests of the working classes as a whole, the R.S.F.R.S. deprives certain groups of their rights which are used by them contrary to the interests of the Socialist Republic." What a convenient weapon of political power! Possessing it, no government need allow itself to be overthrown.

"THE BRIDE SHOP"

Local audiences have had so long thrust upon them cheap sentimentality that is supposed to stand for pathos, vulgarity posing as wit, rough house action for humor and mere blare and noise for music, that a clean, clever musical show that has scored a positive hit and never met with an adverse criticism, ought to prove highly entertaining. This show is "The Bride Shop" and is scheduled for appearance at the Grand Opera House on Thursday, March 27th.

George Choos, who is the producer of this musical show, has made a record in its elaborate mounting and scenic investiture. But best of all he has selected a cast that leaves nothing to be desired in the matter of excellence. The company numbers 30 and numbers such artists as Eddie Vogt, John Sully, Lew Naden, Muriel Rastrick, Nan Hopestill, Edith Benjar, Frances Allison and Muriel Thomas. The handsome show girls, all of them specially picked, with their costume and lingerie display, form a feature that has been much commented upon, as also has its accompaniment of titivating melodies, and catchy songs.

TIP FOR OWNERS OF NEW AUTOMOBILES

Battery Is An Important Part of the Car.

The first thing that the owner of a new automobile should do is to go to the Battery Service Station and let the battery expert test his battery, according to Mr. G. S. Rich, the local Willard expert. He gives the following reasons for this.

"The battery really commences to wear the instant that it is assembled. As long as the plates are in contact with the electrolyte, the battery is slowly discharging itself.

"If therefore, an automobile is a long time in transit from the manufacturer to the dealer and then is a long time in the hands of the dealer, it is entirely possible that the battery may have become considerably discharged. This slow discharge is perfectly natural. Before the car owner puts it to hard usage, he should have it fully charged. If this is once done, the generator should keep it in that condition.

Half Charged Battery

"It is to prevent the motorist starting out with a half charged battery when he expects a fully charged one that we advise all new car owners to have their batteries tested immediately.

"This step is really more than just seeing that the motorist gets the full value for the money spent on his machine. It is really the first step in assuring him a long and useful life of service from his battery, for if the battery starts its life fully charged and then is closely watched by the owner during the first three months of its life, the odds are a thousand to one that it will give little trouble. If, on the other hand, it goes into commission, half charged, this condition gets worse and worse until finally the battery is thoroughly starved and the owner thoroughly disgruntled. This starved condition is particularly bad, for no amount of charging at the Service Station will put the battery back in the excellent condition in which it was at the start."

Open Spandrel Bridge Comes Into Service

Wadsworth Structure at Weston First of Type in Canada—Those at Oakville, Calgary and Peterboro Carry Out Idea.

BY JOHN WALSHE.

For the longer concrete arches, especially those in which the span exceeds 100 feet, a type has been developed, called the open spandrel arch which differs considerably from the more common arch of shorter span. That is, the roadway is supported by columns or walls (cross walls, perpendicular to the bridge) which in turn rest upon the arch ring or arch ribs. The common short arches have solid concrete walls on each side of the bridge (longitudinal walls, running the length of the bridge), and the roadway is supported by solid earth filling resting upon the arch ring and confined by these two side walls.

The first great arches were of stone masonry. The first very large mediaeval arch was built in the fourteenth century when some bold engineer flung across the River Adda in Italy a span of 251 feet. This was soon after destroyed, but the span was not exceeded for over 500 years. The beginning of the more recent activity in long arch construction was in 1883, when two arches 200 feet were built, one the Grosvenor arch, Chester, England, and the other at Turin, Italy. These held the record for length until 1864, when the Cabin John arch of 220 feet was completed at Washington, D.C. This span was not exceeded until 1902, when the Luxemburg Bridge of 277 feet, was built, the palm then passing to the Plauen Bridge, Saxony, finished in 1906.

It is not until within the last fifteen years that concrete has challenged stone for record spans. The longest existing is over the Tiber river at Rome, of 328 feet span, and next to this is the Grafton Bridge, New Zealand, of 320 feet span. The longest span in America is the Lahrimer Avenue Bridge in Pittsburg, 300 feet span. There are six open spandrel concrete arch bridges in Canada of spans over 100 feet. The first open spandrel arch bridge in Canada was the Wadsworth Bridge, crossing the Humber River at Weston, illustrated of span 128 feet 6 inches at that time the longest in Canada, and total length of concrete 328 feet.

It was designed by Webber and Young for the county of York and finished in 1910. The county commissioners of that year were Warden A. E. Pugsley; commissioners R. P. Cowlson, Sam Foote and H. J. Bull. The cost of the bridge was approximately $15,000. On account of its pioneer character and other new features, it is mentioned by H. G. Tyrrel in his "History of Bridge Engineering" p. 440, as one of the notable bridges of that year, 1910. Quoting from this work, "it replaced the old timber bridge built about 40 years ago by William Tyrrell, well known in Weston, who was reeve of York township and warden of the county." It is within a very short distance of the old Wadsworth mill, a landmark of Weston district, from which the bridge gets its name.

Palm For Long Arches.

The palm for long arches in Canada then passed to the King George Arch, Oakville, spanning the Sixteen Mile creek, clear span of main arch being 135 feet, with eight approach spans. The length of concrete floor being 476 feet, erected in 1915. James Hutcheon was county engineer for Halton, the bridge was designed and supervised by Frank Barber as consulting engineer. It took two seasons to erect, and cost about $60,000.

The bridge which it superseded was a low and level one. The present bridge spans the creek on the high level, the floor being 50 feet above the water. The memo. plate shows that in 1912 the warden was J. P. Griffin and in 1913 John F. Ford. The chairman of the bridge committee was David Hutcheson, since appointed treasurer to the County of Halton.

The Oakville Bridge (King George arch) is one the middle road, north of the village of Oakville, about one mile north of the Toronto-Hamilton highway. The bridge is largely for the convenience of people coming into the railway station from the north and west.

No unusual construction difficulties were met with until the centring for the main arch rings were put up. The falsework proved to be insecure and the heavy concrete settled out of line. The county then refused to pay for this part of the work, and the contractor was forced to blow down the arch rings with dynamite. It was carried out without injuring the abutments, and the present rings were afterwards concreted on stronger falsework.

Port Arthur Arch.

The Port Arthur arch of 130 feet, designed by L. M. Jones, was also constructed in the same year. This is a single span bridge of total length about 165 feet. The next large Canadian arch bridges are Saskatoon bridge over the Saskatchewan River, completed in 1915. It has ten arch spans, three of them being of 150 feet clear and the total length of bridge being 1250 feet. It was designed by A. P. Linton. This was then the longest concrete arch in Canada, but it was duplicated the next year by the Centre street bridge over the Bow River at Calgary. The Saskatoon bridge cost $400,000, the Centre street bridge $305,000.

The Calgary bridge has three main spans of 15 each and two approach spans, and is approximately 1,000 feet long. It was designed by John F. Green.

These spans will soon be exceeded by the new Hunter street bridge, Peterborough, over the Otonabee River, upon which work will shortly start. The estimated cost is $350,000. This consists of one main span of 225 feet with 14 approach spans, the total length of concrete floor being 1060 feet. The bridge was also designed by Frank Barber. The floor is approximately 60 feet above water. The Otonabee river is navigable at this point. The bridge is of sufficient height to allow a clearance of from 25 to 30 feet above high water. The present old bridge has long been too light, for the heavy traffic between Peterborough and the fine residential suburb of Ashburnham. The Dominion government have placed in the supplementary estimates this year $50,000 towards the cost of this bridge. In the design of this bridge there has been close collaboration between engineer and architect, Claude Bragdon, and great attention was paid to the architectural appearance. The beauty of the bridge lies in the simplicity and dignity of its lines and form.

For Two Car Lines.

The bridge is designed for two lines of heavy interurban electric cars. The roadway will be the full width of the city street. The bridge will be lighted by poles running along the centre of the floor, similar to the lighting of the Bloor street viaduct, Toronto. These poles will also carry the trolley wires as well as the cluster lights.

Other concrete arch bridges in Canada of over 100 feet clear span include at least three full spandrel or earth-filled arches of this measure—the Linhurst bridge, St. Thomas, span 116 feet, built in 1909 by James Bell, one of the pioneers in good concrete bridges; the Chicoutimi River bridge in Quebec, span 118 feet, by Gagne and Jennings, and the Lower road bridge, Halifax, built by the Canadian National Railways, of span 114 feet. These three bridges are all flat arches, the roadway being only a small distance above the springings of the arch, so that no great weight of earth filling is required.— Toronto Sunday World.

IS PETERBORO A MUSICAL CITY?

How often have you heard the expression that "Peterborough is not a musical city" or that Peterborough is not a "literary town." Well, we do not know anything about that high-brow literary stuff being plain everyday newspaper people. But one thing we do know and appreciate is a pleasant sound or sounds when we hear it or them. And so, gentle reader, no matter what your opinion may be to the contrary, we are going to demonstrate to you beyond a doubt, that Peterborough is a musical centre. Not by proving to you that our music dealers have sold more phonographs and player pianos than any other city of our size—not saying of course that "canned music" is not all right when substitutes have to do.

However, we can well afford to leave the aforementioned varieties to the idle rich and the profiteers who never really had a chance in their early youth.

If you were to take a trip around the different Sunday schools, you would be astounded to find in nearly every one of them a juvenile orchestra that would do credit to any city—likewise the T.A.S., the Y.M.C.A., and other organizations, and so on—world without end.

Why is this possible, you say? Let me whisper the answer, so that you may never again make the break that "Peterborough is not a musical city." In Peterborough we have what no other city of its size in Canada has got, a Conservatory of Music, the magnitude of which is not equalled outside of the larger places like Toronto or Montreal, and under the Conservatory management we have a symphony orchestra of no less than 35 pieces, under the leadership of Professor Gliddon, and composed of two artists who either do not have time or will not force themselves upon the public for material results, but are content with their laurels of appreciation of those who know and understand.

We do not agree in the main with their ideas in this regard. We are inclined to suggest that even necessary evil, the press agent, but we won't, because we do not want to be put down as materialists because, as we said already, we do enjoy and appreciate good music.

Just here, let me whisper one more thought in case you are still unconvinced. What city outside of two or three very large cities in Canada can boast of a symphony orchestra of 35 pieces?

We have just learned that you and the rest of us are soon going to have an opportunity to see and hear the above proven, and so put down forever, and banish that hackneyed phrase "Peterborough is not a musical city," for the Conservatory Symphony Orchestra is going to play for three nights at the Motor Show, April 8th, 9th and 10th, and as a final proof of their true artistry, they are giving their services free. Why? Because everyone of them is an artist, and as such, are interested in helping the Peterborough Health Association in their fight to down that awful monster, the white plague. And thus, in a measure, make the dot of gold at the end of the rainbow a reality for some poor soul.

Addressed the Selwyn Farmers

Plan to Consolidate the Cheese Factories in Peterboro County.

With object of combining a large number of farmer's cheese factories into a central company for the purpose of improving the quality of cheese and to lessen the cost of manufacture in buying supplies and to lessen the cost of marketing and finally export to foreign markets, if found necessary, a series of public meetings have been called, in the country to interest the farmers in the project. The first of the series was held last evening in Selwyn when an able address was given by Mr. John Kennedy, Vice President of the United Grain Growers, Limited of Winnipeg and Calgary. The meeting which was held in the Town Hall was marked by great enthusiasm on the part of the farmers concerning the suggested plan.

Outlined Success.

In his address Mr. Kennedy outlined the success in the West which should encourage the farmers to act here. He pointed out the enormous saving to the farmers in taking some action in the handling of the grain in the West and showed plainly to the farmers the great saving which could be made in a similar manner in the handling of the cheese. The two situations," he said, "are very similar in the fact that in the West they had a large number of local grain elevators owned and operated by the farmers and many others. They have now got a combined number operated by the Grain Growers of the West, of about 600 local elevators and also have their own terminals in Port Arthur and Fort William. They have also got an export company and carry grain to foreign markets of the world under their own supervision and do not depend upon any outside influence or assistance in marketing their own produce.

Permanent Foreign Trade.

Mr. Kennedy contended that with several hundred local cheese factories in Ontario they could all be brought into one joint company in the same manner and also have a terminal station at Montreal under lease from the Government or to be erected if found necessary. The farmers could thus be able to export their own cheese to foreign markets of the world just as well as any body of men can and possibly a little better for the reason that their object in exporting would not be for the commission that can be made but to work up a permanent trade in the foreign countries.

Nothing Definite Yet Regarding the Local Factory Sale

The lack of definite details regarding the reported sale of the Renfrew Manufacturing Company's factory, formerly the property of the Canadian Cordage Company, continued today. Mr. Thos. A. Low telegraphed the Examiner from Renfrew that "there is nothing yet for publication regarding the negotiations now being carried on for the sale of the property to an American firm."

Mr. Low thus intimates that the sale has not been completed, but from other sources seemingly positive, reports have emanated to the effect that the property has been sold to a New York firm. A representative of the American company was in the city on Saturday, but there is nothing authoritative behind the rumour that he was the purchaser. Mr. Low and Mr. Dickers are expected in Peterboro tomorrow, and will doubtless make an announcement that will clear the air of uncertainties and substantiate the hopes that have been aroused by the promise of an automobile factory locating here.

The tight underskirt and tunic is particularly smart developed in the darker tafeftas.

The straight buttonless type of jacket is most popular now with the smart Parisienne.

Bolshevik Army Enters Hungary

City of Brody in Hands of Large Army.

(Special to The Examiner.)

BERNE, March 25.—The Bolshevik army, which is on its way to Hungary, has reached Brody, according to the latest news received here.

Brody is a city in north-eastern Galicia, about fifty miles east of Lemberg. During the first two years of the war Brody was frequently the scene of hard fighting between the Russians and the Germans and Austrians.

AMENDMENTS TO LEAGUE OF NATIONS

Half of American Senator's Objections Are Met by Commission.

(Special to The Examiner.)

PARIS, March 25.—During a three hour session last night of the League of Nations Commission, considering proposed amendments to the covenant, they disposed tentatively of the first sixteen sections, agreeing upon the number of changes in form which the members of the Commission believe will meet more than fifty per cent of the objections offered by Senator Lodge and other American Senators.

Introducing the Famous "Wear-Ever" Aluminum to the Economy Basement.

Wednesday we introduce the famous cooking utensils to the Economy Basement. This adds another good line and makes for better service in this popular basement shopping place. You know most of the good points of "Wear-Ever" Aluminum. Here are some of them:—

"WEAR-EVER" ALUMINUM COOKING UTENSILS.

Are light in weight—are bright as silver—do not rust—do not contain and cannot form with fruit or vegetable acids any poisonous compound—they are as pure and safe as glass or china. They are solid metal—are uninjured by sudden changes of temperature—cannot crack or chip.

"Wear-Ever" utensils are stamped from thick, hard sheet aluminum—are made without seam or solder. The enormous pressure of rolling mills and stamping machines makes the metal in "Wear-Ever" utensils denser and harder than in aluminum utensils made in any other wear.

Just as there are different kinds of enamel utensils on the market, so also are three different kinds of aluminum utensils.

The handles of "Wear-Ever" utensils are made of the best tinned steel. Aluminum handles would become too hot—wooden handles would burn off or break.

Aluminum rivets with large heads grip the handles of "Wear-Ever" utensils. The heads are not sunk into the side of the utensil—the side remains of uniform thickness, strong enough to hold the handle on firmly for years.

The outside of a "Wear-Ever" utensil is polished. The inside is hardened by an electrical process which makes the metal darker, harder, smoother, less liable to be discolored by food or water containing alakali or iron, and more easily cleaned than would be possible if the utensils were not so finished.

"WEAR-EVER" REPRESENTS QUALITY.

For Wednesday, Friday and Saturday

Labour Council to Investigate Legality of the Mayor's Contract

Walter Sindon, a Local Painter, Alleges That Tenders Were Not Called for Recent Work of Decorating Public Library; Also That Mayor Duncan Shouldn't Have Accepted the Contract.

COMMITTEE APPOINTED

That Mayor Duncan had transgressed the Municipal Act by accepting a contract to paint and decorate the Public Library and that public tenders had not been called for this work, were allegations made by Mr. Walter Sindon, a painting contractor, at a special meeting of the Trades and Labour Council last night. After hearing Mr. Sindon's statement, and Mr. J. Guise Bagley's interpretation of applicable clauses of the Municipal and Public Libraries Act, the Council appointed a committee composed of Messrs. A. J. Bolwell, Fred Brown and Wm. Stevens to interview Mayor Duncan with respect to this complaint, and also to obtain a complete opinion from Mr. Bagley.

President Bolwell briefly explained the purpose of the meeting and called upon Mr. Sindon, who declared that painters employed by Mayor Duncan had told him they had performed the work at the Library. "He had four men on the job," said Mr. Sindon "and this contract was let without calling for public tenders from other painters in the city. This thing is going too far, and I thought I'd draw the attention of the Trades and Labour Council to it."

What the Act Sets Out.

Mr. Bagley stated that he didn't have time to look carefully into the case, but he sketched the law that seemed to cover Mr. Sindon's charges. He first pointed out that the Council provided for the maintenance of the Library by requisitions from the Library Board, which under section of the Public Libraries Act was composed of the Mayor, three other persons to be appointed by the Council, three by the Public School Board and two by the Separate School Board.

Mr. Bagley read Clause 29 to the effect that a member of the Board shall not enter into any contract, either in his name or in the name of another, and either alone or jointly with another in which he has any pecuniary interest, profit or benefit, with the board of which he is a member, or have any pecuniary claim upon or receive compensation from the board for any work or employment on behalf of the board, and every such contract or agreement shall be null and void, and a member violating the provisions of this clause shall ipso facto vacate his seat.

Again, on the complaint of any ratepayer, the County Judge shall, on proof of the facts, declare the seat vacant.

Under these conditions the treasurer of the Board would have to make good the money paid to a member, Mr. Bagley added.

Mayor Never Attended.

A delegate asked whether the Mayor would be excepted by reason of the reported circumstance that he had never attended a meeting of the Board.

Mr. Bagley replied that he did not think it would effect the case. The Mayor, he said, was an ex-officio member of the Library Board.

Municipal Disqualification.

Reading Section 53 of the Municipal Act, Mr. Bagley quoted that a person shall not be entitled to sit as a member of a Municipal Council who has himself or with or through another person an interest in any contract with the corporation or with any commission or person acting for the corporation.

"It looks to me as if a person who has an interest in a contract which has to be paid for by the corporation is disqualified as a member of the Council," Mr. Bagley concluded, "and if the Mayor is not disqualified, he has sailed very close to the wind."

"I hope the Labour aldermen will go the limit and see that the Mayor vacates his seat," remarked Mr. Sindon.

Tenders Should Be Called.

Ald. Morrison suggested that it would be a good idea to interview the Mayor. "I don't think he would do anything illegal intentionally."

A delegate— "Shouldn't he know that public contracts should be let by public tender?"

Ald. Morrison— "I suppose he should."

Mr. Sindon said he had talked with all the painters and they were aware that the Mayor shouldn't take a public contract unless it had been submitted for tenders. "I presume Mayor Duncan knew it," he added.

Ald. McIntyre advised the Council to interview Mayor Duncan first. "I was in the same position last year, and when the situation was pointed out to me I simply threw up my hands and let go."

President Bolwell said he would like to have a committee meet the Mayor. This was decided upon, and the Council also accepted Mr. Bagley's offer of his services without charging the usual fee.

The Allan-Park Recital

The seating capacity of St. Paul's Church was hardly great enough to accommodate the immense audience which gathered at the Allan-Park recital last evening. The splendid attendance was amply justified as the programme presented was one of rare merit which will long be remembered as one of the best musical treats given in the city in many years.

In solos and in duets the voices of Mr. M. Park and Mrs. Dorothy Allan Park were heard to advantage. Though her programme was a difficult and exacting one all numbers were rendered with the ease that is so characteristic of all her work. Perhaps the outstanding feature of the programme was the solo "The Cry of Rachel", admitted by all singers to be one of the most difficult songs. It afforded Mrs. Park ample scope for her wonderful mastery over dramatic singing. The sentiment of the solo with all its pathos was brought out in a truly masterful manner by the singer. Every note rang true and every word was clearly heard. Throughout the entire programme the audience was impressed by the wonderful range of Mrs. Park's voice and heartily appreciated the fact that they listened not only to a singer but to an artist in the finest sense of the word.

Mr. Park's Appreciation.

Mr. Maurice Park's contributions to the programme were heard with sincere appreciation by the audience. His solos and duets sung with great effect and expression were ample proof of his mastery over the art of singing and last evening he won even a warmer place in the hearts of his audience than he had held before. In the solo "Onaway Awake" from Hiawatha's Wedding Feast he displayed his adaptability to sing really heavy selections. He was insistently encored after each selection and very gracefully and generously responded to all encores. At the conclusion of the programme Mrs. Park was presented with a beautiful bouquet of roses by Miss Dorothy Moir on behalf of the ladies of St. Paul's choir who acted as ushers.

Selections Cancelled.

On account of the organ being out of order, to the great disappointment of the audience, Mr. John Allan was unable to give the organ solos which had been looked forward to by all.

Dressed alike in white, the choir of the church very capably acted as ushers and took up the collection.

The Programme

Soprano Recit. and Aria, from Theodora, (a) "Oh! wore than death indeed"; "Angels ever bright and fair", Handel; (b) "I hear you calling me", Marshall; (c) "Bid me discourse", Bishop.

Tenor Solo—"Onaway! Awake!", Coleridge Taylor, from Hiawatha's Wedding Feast.

Mr. J. H. Burnham Answers Mr. Gordon

To the Editor of the Examiner:

Sir: Mr. Gordon has written an extraordinary letter to the Examiner the chief burden of which is that the pay of the Members of Parliament should not be increased.

The reply to Mr. Gordon's letter, however, best suited to the occasion is a repetition of what I said before, namely, that men sent to Parliament, should as the Rev. Dr. Eaton truly says, have the interests of the public alone to serve, and not any private interests for themselves, for clients or for companies, as they may have at present, and, unfortunately, frequently do have. This view accounts for much of the disastrous waste of public money, and until people say to their member that he must drop all private interests when serving his country, his services are really only for the purpose of being sold out.

Mr. Gordon's pretended ignorance of the hours of Members of Parliament is laughable. The Member of Parliament opens his mail at 9 a.m. and usually has from 25 to 40 letters. He does good work if he can answer them before 11 a.m.

It frequently happens that the [illegible] to satisfy the business referred to in the letters, has to visit departments, and wait his turn. It takes a great deal of labor to follow up the requests of letter writers and answer them satisfactorily. Each member belongs to about three committees. These committees meet at least once a week from 11 to 1, and sometimes 3.30, and as they settle the clauses of the various applications made to them and of bills presented to the House, the labour is most arduous, especially in banking and commerce and railways. It is the work done in the committee that puts such clauses into bills brought into the House as gave $10,000,000 unexpectedly to the G.T.R. directors, because the word "implement" was put in by the lawyers and was allowed to pass by the lawyers.

From 3 to 6 the House sits and from 8 till all hours of the morning—often 2, 3 and 4—and frequently during a session till 5, and I have known, as in the Naval Debate, when we sat for two weeks night and day.

From the 1st of Jan., 1916, to the 31st of March, 1917—a period of 17 months—I was 13 months in attendance at Parliament, and had two months [illegible] election besides.

Surely that [illegible] the programme I have outlined ought to satisfy anybody that a Member of Parliament has a hard time of it. No man in public or private life has such long hours of hard work as a Member of Parliament. They extend, as I have said, from 9 in the morning on an average till 2 o'clock the next morning.

But don't let Mr. Gordon attempt to draw a herring across the scent. He will never get us Parliament if he is going there to serve private as well as public interests. That day is done, and he may make up his mind to cut it out.

The present salary of a Member of Parliament is not more than half of what it used to be in value to him, though $2500 nominally, it is not more than $1,200 in reality, which means that the average member must leave his family at home and be separated from them entirely for never less than six months in the year.

Mr. Gordon would do well if he will apply the same principle to other people's payment that he did to his own when he voted in favor of an increase of the lawyer's tariff, on the ground of the increased cost of living.

For him to throw stones at Members of Parliament is rather amusing, but I fancy that he would not have done so if it had not been for the fact set out by me that members of Parliament shall not in future serve private and public interests at the same time hit him a bit hard. However, we bear him no ill will as our cause is surely just and fair.

J. H. Burnham.

TEN ARMORED CARS WERE LANDED IN THE IRISH CAPITAL

Preparations Made to Receive Prof. De Valera on Monday.

(Canadian Press.)

LONDON, March 25.—In reporting the issuance of a proclamation at Dublin, forbidding meetings and processions in that city on the date of Professor Edward De Valera's arrival and reception, the "Mail" says there was some military activity in Dublin on Monday. The newspaper states that ten armoured cars were landed from the steamer during the day and that their passage through the streets of Dublin attracted much attention.

Bread Wrapping Scheme Abandoned

High Cost of Living Haunts Members of Legal Committee.

The regular meeting of the Legal committee of the City Council met last night. Those present were Ald. Turner (chairman), Mayor Duncan, Ald. Hamilton, Ald Phelan and Ald. Garside.

A resolution was read from the Board of Health, asking the Legal committee to endorse, it by which all bakers would be compelled to wrap their bread. Ald. Hamilton moved that in view of the high cost of living and the tendency to raise the price which the extra expense of wrapping might induce, that no action be taken at present. The motion carried.

No Action Taken.

Mr. G. N. Gordon wrote in the interests of the Rosanna O'Brien Estate, corner of Downie and Simcoe streets, claiming damage to the amount of $800, done by the recent flood. Mr. Gordon said that flooding the property might have been avoided if deep apertures had been constructed by the city on each side of Downie street. City Solicitor Widdifield thought that the city was not liable on account of the position of the house, which practically stood in a hole.

Street Commissioner Evans—"We didn't find very much wrong with the foundation. It is in good condition for a house that has been standing for 76 years. The Mayor moved, seconded by Ald. Hamilton, that no action be taken and that Mr. Gordon be notified that the city is not liable.

Support For Soldiers.

A circular letter from the City Council of Calgary asked that the Peterborough City Council endorse a resolution to be sent to the Acting Prime Minister, that in view of the fact that the responsibility for the welfare of returned soldiers rests with the people of Canada, these soldiers should be supported until they obtain permanent positions in civil life. The committee [illegible] opinion that the Government was handling this question and no action was taken.

Taxes on Churches.

The local County Loyal Orange Lodge urged that all churches in Ontario be compelled to pay taxes on their property. This movement was started by the Provincial Organization of the Orange Order and the same resolution came before the Legal committee last year.

Mayor Duncan—"I believe that every church should pay taxes."

Ald. Phelan—"It is a big question for us to tackle."

Ald. Turner—"It wouudn't be fair unless it were uniform all over Canada."

Ald. Garside recommended, seconded by the Mayor, that the City Council take up the question of taxing churches when it appears to be general in all provinces in the Dominion.

Ald. Phelan was on the negative side.

Damage Claim.

Mrs. Mary Burns, who owns a grocery store on the corner of McDonnel and Reid streets, asked that she be recompensed for damage caused to goods in her cellar by the flood on March 17.

The Mayor moved, seconded by Ald Hamilton, that Mrs. Burns be notified that the city is not liable for the damage caused.—Carried.

The committee were again reminded by J. Edmund L. Goodwill that the moulding shop of the William Hamilton Co. was badly damaged and that the city would hear about it as soon as a more definite list can be obtained.

May Appeal to Samuel Gompers

Gompers is in Paris, Helping to Frame Peace Treaty.

(By L. Martin—United Press).

WASHINGTON, Mar. 25.—Samuel Gompers may be appealed to, on behalf of American labour, to say whether in his opinion the League of Nations constitution now provides a loophole through which the free immigration of Orientals may become legal.

Gompers is in Paris, helping frame the peace treaty. Requests for his interpretation followed an exchange of telegrams on Japanese demands for immigration equality between Senator Phelan, California, and Senator Borah, Idaho.

Fish Was Fined Fifty Dollars

Magistrate Dumble delivered judgment this morning in the case of Mr. A. E. Fish who was charged with being a hawker or pedlar without a license. The Magistrate said that although Fish was the agent of the Dominion Art Company he was defeating the very object of the Act when he sold pictures on this plan to the prejudice of local men who make pictures.

He was fined $50 unless he takes out a license in which case the fine may be credited on the cost of a license. Costs amounting to $3.10 were also added. In default of payment Mr. Fish will spend 30 days in the County Jail.

Vocational Guidance.

Prof. Oscar D. Skelton, head of the department of economics in Queen's University, Kingston, and one of the Canadian Government's advisers on economic questions, in an address on "Unemployment," stated that, in regard to remedies, better technical training would make men more adaptable. Vocation guidance was necessary to permit boys and girls to choose their life work with their eyes open. The organization of the labor market by a system of labor exchanges, such as had been established in Great Britain, and were about to be established in Canada, would be of much service. The policy of reserving government contracts for slack times, in order to prevent extreme fluctuations, was difficult to carry out in practice, though, fortunately, there were at present in Canada many important and necessary public works, which had been postponed on account of the war, to keep the wheels of industry turning.

WAR RECORD SAVED WILLIAM SKEAFF

Was Accused of Two Cases of Theft.

William Skeaff, who pleaded guilty a week ago to two charges of theft and who was remanded came up before Magistrate Dumble, this morning and pleaded for leniency on the grounds that he was out of work at the time and had blood poisoning in his arm. He went overseas with the first contingent and as a veteran of the Mexican border has no intention of retiring from the firing line as the will be married soon. He said that he was willing to make reparation to Mr. Quigley from whom he stole $16 and also to Mr. John Watson, who was relieved of $22.00. The cost amounted to $44.10 and the Crown Attorney asked for $6.00 and on condition that Skeaff footed the total of $48.10, he was allowed to go on suspended sentence.

The magistrate in passing sentence said, "he had no sympathy for the young man but in view of his war record he would be given a chance to make good."

Parents Had to Pay All Costs

Freddie Shambo Case Aired in Police Court This Morning.

The aftermath of the wild-west tactics employed by two boys upon a seven year old chum was enacted in police court this morning when Desmond Hunt and Vernon Willard two boys of this city about twelve years of age were charged with assaulting little Freddie Shambo, on Monday March 17th. The parents of the boys answered for them and pleaded not guilty. Mr. G. N. Gordon appeared for Mr. Shambo, the grandfather of the child.

Fred Shambo was in court and appeared to understand the court proceedings. His head was bound with a white cloth and his left check was so swollen that one would think he was afflicted with the mumps. On his neck was a red mark and Dr. D. C. King, who attended Fred Shambo, said, "there was a large hard lump on his neck." His face was so swollen that one eye was almost completely closed. There was evidence that a light cord had been placed around the boy's neck. The skin was somewhat burnt and was quite red from the friction of the cord.

Mr. Shambo, the grandfather of the little boy corroborated Dr. King's evidence in regard to Freddie's condition. The occurrence happened on Saturday, March 15th but Freddie said nothing about it until Sunday.

Freddie Shambo giving evidence said the two boys were trying to imitate Boy Scouts and tied his arms behind his back and put a rope around his neck and tied it with four knots. They did not hang him up but left him that way.

Mr. Gordon did not press for a conviction. He said he thought the boys were suffering from too vivid an imagination.

"You are too realistic," said Magistrate Dumble. "You went through a performance that you saw somewhere, I hope that you have had a lesson. I do not think that you did it with malice nor with intention to injure the little boy and I am going to discharge you. Your parents must pay all cost including the doctor's bill."

The total bill amounted to $10.10—doctor's bill $12.00, witness fees $4.00, costs $3.10.

The bill was paid by the parents and the case closed.

CONFERENCE IS RESPONSIBLE FOR SPREAD OF BOLSHEVISM

IN MEMORIAM.

CAREW — In ever-loving memory of our dear Frank who died March 25th, 1918:
This day brings back our memories fresh
Of our dear brother, who has gone to rest.
There is no link death cannot sever;
Love and remembrance last forever.
The blow was bitter, the shock severe,
To part with him we loved so dear
Our loss is great, we'll not complain,
But trust in God to meet again.

A Gigantic Flagstaff.

What is pronounced to be the biggest stick of squared timber in the world will be utilized by the British Columbia Government for the purpose of a flagstaff to be erected in front of the court house at Victoria. The timber for this king of flagpoles, which will carry the Union Jack at a height where it may be seen from any part of the city, is two hundred and four feet long, and its diameter about two feet two inches at the base, tapering to about one foot at the top. If it is imbedded in the ground at least sixteen feet of the base will have to be buried.

Safeguard.

Two middle-aged English women were talking of the war and the means they'd adopted to earn a living should married men be forced to join the army.

"Well," said one, "if the worst should come, I can keep the wolf from the door by singing."

"Marie, you do," said the other matron very earnestly; "that is, if the wolf has a correct ear for music."

VIENNA, March 26.—All members of the Allied Missions in Budapest have been interned, including Col. Vix, chief of the French Mission. All communications are cut off.

Attempt Seizure of Fleet.

PARIS, March 26.—The Peace Conference has been notified that troops will be landed at Spalato, on the Dalmatian coast. The Hungarians are credited with an attempt to seize a portion of the former Austrian fleet, held by the Jugo-Slavs.

German Ships En Route.

BERLIN, March 26. — Twenty-six German ships leaving Germany for use by the Allies in exchange for food, passed Cuxhaven.

DEAD VOLCANO WAKES

Mount Elbruse in the Caucasus Is in Eruption Again.

LONDON, March 25.—Mount Elbruse in the Caucasus, has been discharging smoke for several days, a Russian wireless message from Moscow reports Rostov newspapers as saying. Blocks of ice which have been above the snow line of the mountain for hundreds of years, are being carried to the foot of the mountain in torrents.

Mount Elbruse is 18,500 feet high and the highest mountain of the Caucasus. It was supposed to have been an extinct volcano.

MRS. BURR, AGE 79, GAINS 27 POUNDS

Illinois Woman Suffered Thirty Years—Tanlac Restores Her.

"I have actually gained twenty-seven pounds by taking Tanlac, and while I am now past seventy-nine years of age, I declare I don't feel that old by forty years," was the remarkable statement made by Mrs. E. Burr, of Bradford, Illinois, R.F.D. No. 1, recently.

Mrs. Burr relates some very trying experiences of Civil War days, one of which was the loss of her first husband, who was killed in the great conflict. At the close of the war she moved to Illinois with her parents, in an "old covered wagon," and remained a widow until November of last year when she was happily married again, becoming the wife of a prosperous farmer of Bradford.

"Those Civil War days certainly were dark ones," said Mrs. Burr, "and if I should live to be twice as old as I am now I could never forget the terrible suffering and sorrow so many had to go through. I feel sure the nervous strain and hardships that came to me was what caused my health to break down later on. But while I have seen the dark and bitter side of life I have also enjoyed the greater part of it. I had always been blessed with fairly good health until about thirty years ago, when all of a sudden I just seemed to collapse almost completely. This was about the hardest trial of my life, as I had always been in the habit of getting out doors, raising chickens, gathering fruit and doing lots of outdoor work.

"I commenced first to be bothered with my stomach. Every little bite I ate would sour and form a sort of gas which caused me the most awful suffering. This gas would press against my heart and I would be so short of breath for hours that I could not walk. If I even tried to walk I would get so dizzy, weak and trembly that I would lose my balance. My nerves got in such a bad shape that I could hardly sleep and would just roll and toss all night long. I just couldn't stand a bit of noise. Just the chickens cackling would almost drive me distracted. I had no appetite and what food I did eat caused me so much pain that I would almost die. I kept going down until I was almost a complete wreck. I had lost so much in weight that none of my clothes fitted me and I was so weak that I could hardly walk across the room, let alone do my work.

"I tried most everything, but nothing helped me and I had given up nearly all hope of ever being well again. While I was on the lookout trying to find something to help me a friend of mine who had taken Tanlac with wonderful results advised me to try it. I started on Tanlac and the way it helped me right from the start was almost like a miracle. I have taken twelve bottles now and have not only been relieved entirely of all my sufferings but I am enjoying better health than I have in thirty years. My meals taste as good to me as they did years ago. I can eat just anything without the slightest trouble afterwards and I simply sleep like a child. I can now easily do all my work, including my washing, and my strength for a woman of my age is just remarkable. I am perfectly well and enjoy life as well as I ever did. Just lots of people have asked me what I have been taking to make me look so well and it's a pleasure for me to tell them Tanlac. I know as well as I know I am here that I owe my health and happiness to this grand medicine and I will always praise it."

Tanlac is sold in Peterborough by W. E. Warne Drug Co. Ltd., in Havelock by A. C. Denike, in Lakefield by Tanner Drug Co. Ltd., in Fowlers Corners by W. A. Hunter, in Gelert by A. J. Scott, in Westwood by G. Pringle & Son.

BOARDING HOUSE HELD UP; THREE ARRESTED IN CASE

NEW YORK, March 26.—Three revolver shots, followed by cries of "Stop thief!" and "Murder!" late Saturday night caused a policeman on duty in the Beach street station house to hurry to the street. They found a stream of wildly excited men and women pouring from the boarding house of John Bonafacio at No. 36 Beach street, who declared that five men, armed with revolvers, had entered the boarding house, lined the boarders against the wall and robbed them. Frank Strotich, twenty-five years old, was captured a block from the house, and on his information Frank Pesnulich, thirty-three years old, all of No. 408 West Twenty-fourth street, were arrested.

The police were told that the robbers had gotten $85, $35 and $13, respectively, from three of the boarders, and had slit the trousers and leg of another and found $1,728 in his stocking. A fifth man, who said he had no money to give, was struck over the head with a revolver and knocked unconscious, but $1,000 in a belt around his waist was not found.

The three men arrested were arraigned before Magistrate Thomas Nolan in Tombs Court on a charge of robbery and were held in $2,500 bail each for examination.

Belgian Count, With American Wife and Daughter, Here After Living 4 Years Among Germans

Count de Ways Ruart, Being Burgomaster of Belgium, Stayed With People When Enemy Overran Country—Was on Honeymoon When War Broke Out in 1914.

NEW YORK, March 26.—A real Burgomaster of Belgium, stepped ashore in New York upon the arrival of the steamship Noordam, of the Holland-America line from the Rotterdam via Brest. He is Count P. Cornet de Ways Ruart, head of the municipality that lies half way between Charles-le-Roi and Waterloo and of which the Chateau de Ways Ruart is the geographical centre.

The fact that his bailiwick lies off the "main line" in Belgium the Count declared he owed his comparative immunity from serious annoyance by the Huns during the four and a half years that he was practically exiled in his chateau. Incidentally, an American bride of three months shared his exile with him, and three years ago a young heiress came to join the Belgian and his American wife in their compulsory seclusion in the person of little Pauline, a charming baby daughter.

Count de Ways Ruart and Miss Gladys McMillan, of Detroit, were married in Paris in May, 1914, when there was no war clouds to prophesy serious trouble in Belgium.

The honeymoon was being spent at Ostend when war was declared between Germany and France, and Count de Ways Ruart, as Burgomaster of his litle district, was called upon to return home and look after his civic duties.

When the Germans swarmed over Belgium Count de Ways Ruart and his young American wife found themselves isolated, but, fortunately, out of the beaten path pursued by the ruthless Hun. Their chateau was in a secluded spot, and although the Germans confiscated the Count's motor-cars and horses, his personal property remained untouched, principally because the Count was very intimate with both the Dutch and Spanish Ministers at Brussels.

"The Germans did not dare interfere very much with persons socially or commercially prominent, because of the ready recourse those persons had to the Spanish and Dutch legations," said the Count yesterday. "So they took it out of the poorer people, who had no way of approaching the neutral Ministers except in a round-about and oftentime almost unsatisfactory manner.

"While the enemy looked for money and personal fortune, they did not find it, for it was carefully hidden in the cellars of the chateau. We were not permitted to communicate with any one outside of Belgium, however, we were practically isolated. We managed to exist very nicely, however and my wife did not suffer any serious inconveniences."

Baby Pauline was born while the guns rumbled over the country, but out of touch with the Count's district. Food, though scarce, was sufficient in the vicinity of the chateau, on the extensive grounds of which much food value was raised to satisfy the family of the Count and his servants. There were few and infrequent visits from the Germans because of the inaccessibility of the chateau.

The Count and Countess were met at the pier by Mr. and Mrs. Spencer Penrose, mother and stepfather of the Countess. Mr. Penrose is a brother of Boies Penrose, United States Senator from Pennsylvania. The Count and Countess will visit in the United States for some time and will spend a week at the Ritz-Carlton before proceeding to Colorado Springs.

Harmless Means of Reducing Fat

Many fat people fear ordinary means for reducing their weight. Here is an extraordinary method. Extraordinary because while perfectly harmless no dieting or exercise are necessary. Marmola Prescription Tablets are made exactly in accordance with the famous Marmola Prescription. A reduction of two, three or four pounds a week is the rule. Procure them from any druggist or if you prefer send 50 cents to the Marmola Co., 932 Woodward Ave., Detroit, Mich., for a large case.

GRAIN MARKET

Cash oats and barley eased off a little yesterday, reacting from the recent sharp advances. Manitoba oats at Fort William are quoted 1-2c. lower. Winnipeg options the same decline. Manitoba barley at Fort William is quoted 1 3-4c. lower. Ontario feed grains are steady and unchanged. Corn markets again opened weak, but also again took a sudden upturn before the close, which carried the March option up 3c. above Monday's close. May closing 1 5-8c. higher. Cash corn at Chicago was 2c. higher.

Manitoba wheat—In store, Fort William; No. 1 northern, $2.34 1-2; No. 2 northern, $2.30 1-2; No. 3 northern $2.17; No. 4 wheat, $2.11 1-2.

CATTLE MARKET

Union Stock Yards— Receipts, 59 cars, with 941 cattle, 241 calves, 1,064 hogs, and 36 sheep and lambs.

Trade was very slow yesterday. There was practically no demand for heavy export steers, what bids there were being a dollar or more below last week's prices for the same class of cattle. The demand for butcher cattle has also lost edge slightly, and bids are 25c. to 50c. lower, except for choice quality baby beef. With the market going so slow, a good deal of stuff was held over for to-day's market, when the sellers look for a brisker market.

Calves steady at Monday's decline. Sheep and lambs steady.

Hogs almost at a standstill, packers standing pat on their bid for this week's offerings on the basis of $19 fed and watered. There were but few transactions.

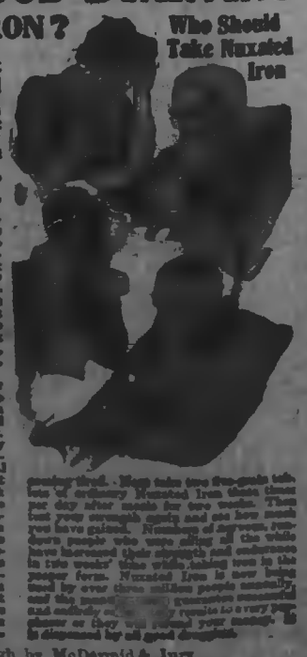
IS YOUR BLOOD STARVING FOR WANT OF IRON?

Who Should Take Nuxated Iron

Iron Is Red Blood Food—It Helps to Put Strength and Energy Into the Veins of Men and Roses into the Cheeks of Women. Why Nuxated Iron so Quickly Builds Up Weak, Nervous, Run-down People.



Thousands of men and women are making their conditions, having themselves open to illness and literally losing their health, simply because their blood is thinning out and pitifully starving for the rich red iron. Lack of iron in the blood not only makes a man a physical and mental weakling, nervous, irritable, easily fatigued, but it utterly robs him of the vim, vigor, stamina and strength of will which are so necessary to success and power in every walk of life. It may also result in a beautiful, sweet-tempered woman being but a wreck, haggard and irritable.

Iron is absolutely essential to enable your blood to transform the food you eat into muscle, nerve and brain. It is through iron in the red coloring matter of the blood that life-essential oxygen enters the body. Without iron there is no strength, vitality and endurance to combat disease or withstand severe strains. Contrary to general opinion, lack of iron in the blood does not necessarily mean you do not have enough blood, but it means your blood is not of the right kind. To help make strong, healthy, red-blooded people there is nothing better than organic Iron—Nuxated Iron. Unlike the older inorganic iron products it is easily assimilated, does not injure the teeth, make them black nor upset the stomach. No matter what other troubles or iron remedies you have tried without success, if you are not strong or well you owe it to yourself to make the following test. See how long you can work or how far you can walk without becoming tired. Next take two five-grain tablets of ordinary Nuxated Iron three times per day after meals for two weeks. Then test your strength again and see how much you have gained. Numerous cases are reported where people who were pale and sickly have increased their strength and endurance in two weeks' time while running into the regular form. Nuxated Iron is now being used by over three million people annually and the manufacturers guarantee successful and entirely satisfactory results to every purchaser or they will refund your money. It is dispensed by all good druggists.

Advertising Talks By E. HAYES

Advertising Benefits Both the Merchant And the Public.

When a merchant advertises he virtually says: "Buy my Merchandise and see that my claims for it are genuine. I'm behind it because I know it's right. I'm linking my name with it so you'll see how much confidence I have in it."

And when a merchant does that you know what it means. It means that from the moment he takes that stand this store is going to be a more desirable place to trade. It means that he wouldn't invest money in advertising without having resolved to back up every claim. The mere fact of his advertising creates a confidence in the mind of the public as a result of which both the merchant and the public benefits.

Brian Gives His Consent to Ruth Doing Home Work

CHAPTER CLIII

How glad Ruth was that she had told Arthur Mandel what she had concerning Brian, his feeling about her work, etc. And how more than glad she was that Brian had begun to appreciate what Mandel had done for her, both before he went away and while he was overseas. She almost held her breath as she waited to see what Brian would say.

"What do you think, Ruth? Do you care to help Mandel until he finds someone?"

The question so startled and surprised Ruth that for some moments she could not bring herself to answer, not until Brian had added:

"Did you think me so selfish, dear, that I would object? I know how you love the work—I also appreciate your kindness to us when I was away," he said, turning to Mandel. "Decide as you please, Ruth."

"I shall be delighted, Mr. Mandel!" Ruth's eyes shone with delight. She had dreaded more than either of the men facing her realized, the giving up of her loved tasks, the excitement grown almost necessary to her. Then too it would be some time before Brian would get really started. While she had saved a good deal, and he a little, she knew only too well that what they had would not last long, did not paying practice soon come to the soldier-lawyer. "I can easily give two or three hours each morning to you without in the least interfering with my home duties. Rachel is very competent," she had added that last because she wanted Mandel to know she would still keep a servant if she did not receive the large salary he had paid her—that Brian could afford to let her do that.

"I can't tell you how grateful I am," Mandel replied as he rose to go and rather sheepishly drew some plans from his pocket. "You see, I took your kindness for granted and brought the plan of the Murry house in Boston along. It is to be entirely re-decorated." He then explained the different exposures of the rooms, the lay-out of the grounds, etc. "I have taken the liberty of speaking of you to several of my friends," he said to Brian, who accompanied him to the door. "I told them you had changed the location of your office and were now ready for business. You do not look quite strong yet; I should advise that you go slowly for a time."

When Brian returned to the sitting room he found Ruth quietly waiting for him, no sign of the plans Mandel had left with her to be seen.

"I suppose you are anxious to get to work," he remarked.

"No, I shall only work when I am alone. I left the shop to make a home for you. And, Brian, I am so happy you do not object to my doing a little in my old line. I love it and besides that it will help a lot until you get going. But dear, I never shall have the work around when you are at home. We have been separated so much that now nothing must make our companionship less close.

"I mean to try to be reasonable," Brian had returned. "My objections to women in business are ingrained in me. I hate to see a woman outside of her home unless it is imperatively necessary that she be the bread winner. But I am not such an old grouch as to deprive you of doing things at home that will give you luxuries that for some time I may not be able to earn, or that will make you happier—because you can keep Rachel."

"That's not all, Brian, truly it isn't! I do hate housework, and I love Rachel, and like to have her with me. But my work is a perfect joy to me. It isn't work—not as I shall do it now). It is playing with something that interests and entertains me immensely. You have made me very happy."

"Thank God for that! I guess I have made you pretty miserable at times. Be a working lady as long as you want to, if you work inside your home instead of in public places. Now we won't talk of it any more. It is settled and we are both happy. Get on your duds and we'll go down to the stationers and order what I need for the office."

"Oh, I forgot you would need all sorts of paper and things!"

"Don't look so chagrined. You did so much that you have left me almost nothing to attend to. Come on, I'll introduce you to all sorts of legal papers, briefs, etc. Then next time you furnish a lawyer's office you will be up on stationery requirements."

"There'll be no 'next time.' How dare you suggest it?" so, laughing and chatting happily, they went out to shop, the perfect understanding which existed between them making for such happiness as neither had known for years.

Dominion Rubber System Belting is Uniform and Dependable

A uniformly high quality of materials put together by a process into which no element of chance can possibly enter insures an infallible uniformity of construction.

This gives to our transmission and conveyor belting a sturdy dependability that enables it to carry loads in excess of its intended capacity.

This dependability for service is maintained throughout our entire organization and it is on this basis that all of our products have been made for more than fifty years.

Although uniformity, dependability, economy and satisfaction are built into each foot of our belting, we maintain a staff of belting experts to make its dependability doubly certain.

These experts will analyze all of your belting equipment without charge, and any recommendations they may make will provide a belt that will not only live up to our claim for dependability but it will create a greater efficiency in your plant.

This service is obtainable through any of our service branches. Phone, wire or write the one nearest to you and let us prove its value to your satisfaction.

SCRAMBLE FOR A SUPPER.

Dainty Methods of French Solons When Free Meals Are Served.

Describing the supper arrangements made for French legislators during their sittings in the Palais Bourbon, the Liberte says:

"At the appointed time the marble tables in the restaurant are covered with plates of larded veal, saveloys, cold ham, salad containing little cubes of Gruyere cheese and baskets of bread. As soon as the chamber gets wind of these preparations a general exodus takes place, and the member addressing the house is left to address his successor, the president, the ushers, reporters and other melancholy officials.

"It is not exactly a stately banquet that the legislators sit down to. There are no knives, no forks and in the place of plates just a few saucers. The members first fortify themselves upon the bread baskets and pick the nicest looking pieces; then, making free use of their elbows toward the veal, the saveloys or the ham, seize a slice in their fingers, put it on the bread, keep it there with the thumb, while they squeeze their way out of the press and devour their spoil.

"Such manners take us back to far-off prehistoric days, when our ancestors ate on the floor of their caverns. But it is just this return to the simplicity of nature that exercises such a healing effect on party animosity. The legislator who has, by a series of subtle manœuvers, secured a bottle of wine shares it with his thirsty neighbors.

"It has been noticed that the deputies from rural districts usually carry a pocketknife, which they lend to their town colleagues. This, too, makes for harmony and the healing up of strife."

His Mission.

"There goes a young man who has led thousands in his footsteps."

"What is he—an evangelist?"

"No, an usher in a theater."—Florida Times-Union.

CATARRHAL DEAFNESS MAY BE OVERCOME

If you have Catarrhal Deafness or are even just a little hard of hearing or have head noises go to your druggist and get 1 ounce of Parmint (double strength), and add to it ¼ pint of hot water and a little granulated sugar. Take 1 tablespoonful four times a day.

This will often bring quick relief from the distressing head noises. Clogged nostrils should open, breathing become easy and the mucus stop dropping into the throat. It is easy to prepare, costs little and is pleasant to take. Anyone losing hearing or who has Catarrhal Deafness or head noises should give this prescription a trial.

TURN ABOUT IS FAIR PLAY.

The Brusque Stranger Might Have Gained More by Civility.

When the brisk stranger came in he made for the office railing and stood snapping his fingers impatiently while the young lady in charge finished answering a telephone call.

"Can I see Mr. Smith?" interrupted the caller.

"What do you wish to see him about?" asked the young lady.

"I did not come in here to answer questions," snapped the caller. "I came to ask one. I have asked it. What is the answer?"

Abashed and puzzled by the caller's attitude, the young lady stammered: "Mr. Smith always sees people in matters which interest him."

"That is not the information I seek," quibbled the caller testily. "If you do not wish to answer a civil question, say so at once."

Here Mr. Smith in person came out of his private office, having overheard the talk.

"I am Mr. Smith," he said. "What can I do for you?"

"I am introducing a work"— began the caller, but Mr. Smith interrupted.

"I asked you a civil question. Why don't you answer?"

"Well, you can buy the work. That is what you can do."

"What if I can't," demanded Mr. Smith. "I can do many things that I never do."

"I did not expect to be insulted when I called," remarked the visitor sulkily.

"Your expectations are immaterial," retorted Mr. Smith. "I cannot give any time to them."

Perceiving that he was meeting his own fire, the caller turned and fled.

"I want a copy of that work," signed Mr. Smith. "If the fellow had been reasonable and civil I should have dealt with him."—Philadelphia Ledger.

Method in His Madness.

There was a half witted youth in Bridgetown to whom the neighboring farmers liked to offer a penny and a nickel.

Gathered about him in a circle on market day, the farmers one after another would say:

"Now, which'll yer have, Peter? Here's a cent; here's a nickel. Take your choice."

And fool Peter would invariably choose the cent rather than the nickel, and the farmers before such incredible foolishness would roar with laughter, double in two and slap their legs noisily with their brown hands.

"Peter," a man said one day to the lunatic, "why is it that you always take the cent instead of the nickel?"

Peter grinned a very cunning grin.

"Suppose I took the nickel," said he. "Would I ever get a chance to take another one?"—New York Globe.

In the Gloaming.

"Do you think traveling is good for one?" remarked the young man as the clock struck 11.

"Why?" asked the sweet young thing.

"Because I'd like to travel."

"I think it would be good for you. That's papa coming downstairs."—Yonkers Statesman.

If the spring when you're "all in" and fagged out—blood thin, if you will turn to Nature's remedy, a tonic made from wild roots and barks which has stood fifty years as the best spring tonic—you will find strength regained. No need to tell, Smith's Dry Pierce's Golden Medical Discovery, put up in tablet or liquid form, and sold by every druggist in the land. After a hard winter—shut up indoors, your blood needs a temperance tonic, a tissue-builder and blood-maker such as this "Medical Discovery" of Dr. Pierce's.

STRATFORD, ONT.—"I can highly recommend Doctor Pierce's Golden Medical Discovery and Pleasant Pellets. I have used these remedies twenty-five years in my family. Had a very bad case of neuralgia and 'Golden Medical Discovery' completely cured me in a very short time. I have given it to all my family, also to my grand children. I had a grand-child last summer that we thought could not live. We gave him the 'Discovery' and he is strong and healthy as any child could be. I am a great believer in Doctor Pierce's Medicines and would not be without them."—Mrs. A. BOWLING, 238 Railway Ave.

"I raised these vegetables myself."—Kansas City Journal.

PRACTICAL HEALTH HINT.

The Feet.

Pumice stone used frequently keeps the skin of the feet smooth. It is especially necessary on the heel and on the ball of the foot, where the weight of the body rests in walking.

Never cut the toe nails too short, as they are more likely to become ingrown. And file them smooth with sandpaper, so they will not catch and pull the threads of your stockings.

OUR DAILY SHORT STORY

In Harbor

By Walter Joseph Delaney

(Copyright, 1918, Western Newspaper Union.)

When Reuben Marsh, humble assistant bookkeeper in a large printing establishment, was dumbfoll dazed and then roused up into a new sense of existence at receiving word that he had been left a legacy of ten thousand dollars, he was asked by a covetous friend:

"What are you going to do with all that money?"

"Some good in the world," came the prompt reply. "I've had my dreams—now I am going to fulfill them."

Reuben gave up his position forthwith. He bought himself a plain suit of clothes, he treated his fellow employees to a very good dinner; he distributed a few mementoes among those to whom he had been most closely drawn—the office boy with a widowed mother, the crippled elevator man, a half-blind pensioner of the house. Then Reuben started out to see the world and do good.

He had been so obscure that it had been no advantage to prosperous relatives to keep track of him.

There was old Aunt Mary Pearce, living alone from hand to mouth. He spent a week with her, lifted a five hundred-dollar mortgage and helped a second cousin on the list so badly in debt that it dimpled his little fortune an even thousand dollars. Everywhere Reuben went "doing good" meant a drain on his cash. He saw much, learned more, was indulgent, soft-hearted, helped out relations who forgot him as soon as he had provided for their waste, and one day at about the end of a year made a dismaying discovery—his check book showed the last dollar of his deposit funds drawn and some hotel thief had also relieved him of his purse.

He was fifteen miles from the city he had left with such high ideals. He was returning to it a pauper. There was but one thing to do—go back to his old employers and ask for work.

Reuben had done many an act of kindness in his liberal bestowal of charity. Summing up all those deeds, however, he wondered if it counted for much. He was hungry and had no money. As he neared a small cottage he was not ashamed to follow an impulse to apply for food. Why not? How many had he helped out? Surely the world owed him a free meal, until he could get back into the old business harness.

As Reuben neared the open door of the little place he paused. From beyond it came the echo of voices none too reassuring. The high, excited tones of a woman sounded out: "I am tired of working and supporting you in idleness. For two years you have done nothing but squander the little we have on an impossible invention. Why don't you get back to the city and seek your old work? You were a high-class illustrator and engraver. Have you lost all ambition?"

"Yes, the woman way: abusing a man when he gets down to poverty. I'll free myself of you, since I'm so obnoxious," and the next moment a sullen-faced, shabbily-dressed young fellow bustled through the doorway. Reuben followed him.

"See here," said Reuben, "you seem to be in trouble. You're not going to leave home this way, are you? It's not my business, but maybe I can give you some advice."

The result was that within an hour Reuben had Arnold Wade in a new frame of mind. He induced him to accompany him to the city and seek employment from the same business house to which he hoped to return. Both were engaged. Reuben gradually settled down into the old rut. Arnold Wade made a brilliant success and within a year left his employers to fill a high position with another firm.

Reuben toiled on three years, lost work through failure of the firm and made a bare living doing odd jobs of proofreading. One evening he was crossing a busy street, a bundle of proofs under his arm, when an automobile grazed him, sent him prostrate, but unhurt, and scattered his proofs far and wide. The owner of the machine gathered them up, gave Reuben one look and exclaimed:

"Reuben Marsh! Here, into the auto! Don't you know me—Arnold Wade?"

He hustled the bewildered Reuben into the rear seat of the machine. He deluged him with half a hundred questions. "I've been looking for you for a year. Do you realize that the good deed you did in cheering me up and getting me work has led to my being in business now for myself in a solid way? Wife and children happy, fine home, plenty of money, and say! you did it."

"Why, I'm glad I helped you, yes," murmured Reuben, meekly, "but it was no great thing."

"Wasn't it? And you're way down in the world, eh? Well, I'm going to lift you up again, understand? My home shall be your home, and I'll set aside a fund for you to follow your own ideas when you get tired of the family."

"Oh, you know I couldn't do that!" declared Reuben, self deprecatingly.

"Of course you couldn't—don't I tell you I'm going to do it for you? You royal old humanitarian! there's one appreciative recipient of your childlike good-heartedness, and that's me, and I'm piloting you to harbor for life!"

Bilious? Take NR Tonight

Nature's Remedy is Better and Safer Than Calomel. Cleans Out System Without Griping. Stops Sick Headache. Guaranteed.

Billous attacks, constipation, sick headaches, etc., are in the great majority of cases due to digestive trouble and no reasonable person can expect to obtain real or lasting benefit until the cause is corrected.

Nature's Remedy (NR Tablets) is a vegetable compound that acts on the stomach, liver, bowels and kidneys, the purpose being to bring about healthy and harmonious action of all the organs of digestion and elimination. It acts promptly and thoroughly, yet so mildly and gently that there is never the slightest griping or discomfort.

But that is not all. Nature's Remedy (NR Tablets) have a beneficial effect upon the entire body. By improving the process of digestion and assimilation, the nourishment derived from food, the blood quality is improved, vitality is increased, and the whole system strengthened.

Once you get your body in this splendid condition, you need not take medicine every day—just take an NR Tablet occasionally when indigestion, biliousness and constipation threaten, and you can always feel your best. Remember keeping well is easier and cheaper than getting well.

Get a 25c box of Nature's Remedy (NR Tablets) and try it. It is sold, guaranteed and recommended by your druggist.

Mothers!

An Appeal For Your Children

Look back at your childhood days.
Remember the physic that mother insisted on—castor oil, salts or cathartics.
How you hated them. How you fought them. How you dreaded their after-effects.
That was all wrong, but then nobody knew better.

With our children it's different.
The day of harsh physics is over.
We don't force the bowels now we coax them.
We have no dreaded after-effects.
And the dose is a candy tablet.

Mothers who cling to the old form of physic simply don't know what they do.
The children's revolt is well-founded.
Their tender bowels are harmed by them.
The modern way is to give a gentle laxative more frequently. To keep the bowels always active.
The best method is Cascarets.

Cascarets are candy tablets.
Children love their pleasant taste.
They cost only 10 cents a box, with full directions for children's dosage at all ages. Babies too!
Give Cascarets, then don't worry—they never disappoint.

Merchant Marine Honored.

Public recognition was conferred upon members of the merchant marine when presentations were made in Halifax recently by the civic corporation and the Board of Trade to Messrs. Hayes and Ferguson, captain and engineer, respectively, of the White Star liner Olympic, which for the past three years has been engaged in overseas transport service between that port and Great Britain. The civic reception took place in the City Hall two days after the Olympic had landed 5,000 returning soldiers from all parts of Canada. Many prominent citizens were present, including the Hon. G. H. Murray, Premier of Nova Scotia. The city's gift was a solid silver salver, inscribed with the city arms. The presentation by the Board of Trade took the form of a loving cup, which was presented by the Lieutenant-Governor. Mr. A. Ferguson, the chief engineer, was also presented with a tea service and silver salver, whilst every other officer and the members of the crew were also presented by the people of Halifax with a parcel.

A Chemical Fact.

No substance that refuses to dissolve in water has an odor. It is the actual substance itself, floating in particles in the air, as in the case of light and sound. The damper a thing is the more powerful the odor it gives off. A pleasant proof of the fact can be had by walking in a garden after rain. It is the vapor of a liquid that smells and not the liquid in the mass itself.

Fireproof Railway Cars.

In testing out the steel car with a view to proving its indestructibility by fire a railroad company placed in one of this type 200 pounds of shavings and wood saturated with oil, set fire to it and allowed the mass to burn itself out. The paint and upholstery were destroyed, but no damage was done to the car as a structural whole. At present 2,872 steel passenger cars are in service on this one system, and this is about one-half of the total of steel passenger cars in service in the United States.

For Walking on Water.

A shoe factory of a novel kind has been working near Berlin for some time past. The "shoes" made will not run much risk of being worn out on pavements or country roads, for they are solely intended for the purpose of walking on water. That these "hydroshoes" are of a certain practical value is shown by the fact that the Prussian minister of war has placed an order with the enterprising firm. Tests are to be made by a number of soldiers of the engineer regiments.

A Curious Mammal.

A very rare and curious mammal, known to science as the Solenodon paradoxus, is a buck-number, zoologically speaking. It is a native of Haiti and looks as if it properly belonged to "Alice in Wonderland." One is reminded of the "slithy toves."

It is manifestly an ancient type of animal, destined before long to vanish finally from the earth. With the fur, ears and tail of an opossum, the teeth of a shrew, a long proboscis and curved claws with which to scratch up the insects on which it feeds, it bears no total resemblance to any other existing creature.

Another queer mammal (very ancient likewise, say the naturalists) is the tenrec of Madagascar, which is nearly extinct. It is likewise a feeder on insects and looks somewhat like a badger in miniature, but with a long snout.

Not more than 100,000 years ago there were on this continent giant sloths, as big as fair-sized elephants. The skeletons of specimens are preserved to-day in museums, one of the largest specie being called the megatherium. At the present time their race is represented in tropical America by a small and degenerate breed.

These modern sloths live in trees, hanging from branches for hours without moving. Thus it is not easy to discover their presence, and, as a special and peculiar disguise, a grayish-green lichen grows on their fur.

The pangolin, native to southern Asia, is another ancient type of mammal. It is an insect-eater, very sluggish, and, being provided with no effective weapons for defence, is armored, being completely clad in scales. When attacked, it rolls itself into a ball and presents an impervious exterior to the enemy.

Exercise for Chickens.

To make chickens take exercise necessary for growth, an inventor has patented a feed box, in front of which is a revolving platform over which they must scramble to get anything to eat.

Frail, Sickly Children Improve Rapidly on Vinol

The reason we so strongly recommend Vinol for frail, sickly children is because it is a non-secret remedy which contains Beef and Cod Liver Peptones, Iron and Manganese Peptonates and Glycerophosphates — but no oil — the very elements needed to build them up. It is delicious to the taste, and children love it.

These Two Mothers Have Proved This.

Bainbridge, N.Y.
"My little daughter, 13 years old, overworked and was run-down, tired all the time, nervous, had headaches, couldn't eat and had to stay out of school. Vinol has built her up. She has a good appetite, no more headaches and has returned to school again."—Mrs. Lester Andrews.

Williamson, W. Va.
"My little boy was weak, puny, and tired all the time, did not want to do anything. Vinol was recommended and it built up his strength and made him healthy. Now he romps and plays like other children. We certainly believe in Vinol for children."—Harley Cox.

Careless Shampooing Spoils The Hair

If you want to keep your hair looking its best, be careful what you wash it with. Don't use powdered shampoo or anything else, that contains too much alkali. This dries the scalp, makes the hair brittle, and ruins it.

The best thing for steady use is just ordinary mulsified cocoanut oil (which is pure vegetable), and it is better than anything else you can use.

One or two teaspoonfuls will cleanse the hair and scalp thoroughly. Simply moisten the hair with water and rub it in. It makes an abundance of rich, creamy lather, which rinses out easily, removing every particle of dust, dandruff and dirt. All the hair dries quickly and evenly, and it leaves the scalp soft, and the hair fine and silky, bright, lustrous, fluffy and easy to manage.

You can get mulsified cocoanut oil at any pharmacy, it's very cheap, and a few ounces will supply every member of the family for months.

HOW CANADIAN WOMEN discovered their own truly Canadian Sugar

A light, fluffy cake it depends partly upon the sugar you use in it. Brown sugar makes a moist cake, powdered sugar a dry cake, granulated sugar a cake of the finest texture. Dominion Crystal Granulated the "just right" cake.

Use this finest of sugars this "truly Canadian" sugar—not only for the cake itself, but for the icing too.

For the past 17 years Canada has been producing sugar refined from beets. Thousands of Canadian women have used this sugar, but many of them without realizing it. They asked their grocers for "sugar," designating no brand, and they took whatever was given to them.

Then came the war—and the submarines sank so much raw cane sugar on its way from Cuba and the West Indies that Canadian refineries who had depended on cane were without adequate supplies.

Still the Canadian housewife had sugar for her table and in her kitchen sugar of a superior quality. It seemed strange—and she inquired where the sugar was coming from. She learned that this fine sugar she was using was sugar refined from Canadian sugar beets—Dominion Crystal Sugar.

A PRODUCT UNTOUCHED BY HUMAN HANDS

The Canadian housewife who has used this sugar has found it to be all that sugar should be; and has accordingly adopted an attitude of extreme friendliness toward it, and pride in its use. It is a matter of pride that we have the ability to produce our own truly Canadian sugar from our own Canadian grown beets.

You should know more about this splendid Canadian product. You should read the whole interesting story as told in our beautifully illustrated book, "Sugar from Beet to Bowl." Those who can come, are welcome at any of our three refineries, welcome to see the whole process. For those who cannot come, we recommend a reading of our book, and the following of the sugar through its pages, from the time the juice is extracted from the beets, until the sugar is packed in bags as a refined white crystal. All through the process—the slicing of the beets the extraction, the repeated purifying and filtering, the boiling, the drying, the cooling and the packing—all through this intricate system, not a single human hand is permitted to touch

DOMINION CRYSTAL SUGAR

This is the only sugar that may be rightly termed "Canadian from the ground up." We do import the finest of raw cane sugar and refine it—but our pride is in the product we make from Canadian sugar beets.

Pure, sparkling and finely granulated. A sugar that will give unfailing satisfaction in preserving, in baking, and for table use.

THE 20-POUND BAG IS A HANDY PACKAGE FOR THE AVERAGE HOUSEHOLD

Most grocers have Dominion Crystal Sugar in the 20-pound bag as well as in the larger bags and barrels.

Most grocers take pride in selling this superior and truly Canadian product. Ask your grocer for it.

Write us for a copy of our interesting booklet: "Sugar from Beet to Bowl." It is free to any housewife who asks for it.

RIDERS OF THE PRAIRIES.

Mounted Police to Be Recruited to Strength.

The statements that are appearing in the press that the Government is increasing the Royal Northwest Mounted Police to 2,400 and that the Government has announced that the reason for so increasing the force is the Bolshevik menace in the West, are without any foundation in fact. The Government had not increased and has no intention of increasing the authorised strength of the force, which was and is 1,200.

Practically all the men in the force of military age and physically fit enlisted for service either in France or in Siberia, with the result that the force is practically only a skeleton of the original force left. What the Government has done is to authorize the recruiting of the force up to its already authorized strength, and it proposes doing this by taking back into the ranks, if they desire to return, the men who have previously served in the ranks and are now serving overseas.

Canada has had in the past two Dominion police forces — one, the Dominion Police, of which Sir Percy Sherwood was the head, acting throughout the whole of Canada, and the Royal Northwest Mounted Police, whose jurisdiction in Saskatchewan, Alberta and the Northwest Territories. To prevent overlapping and duplication of work the jurisdiction of the Royal Northwest Mounted Police has been extended so as to include the provinces of British Columbia, Manitoba and the portion of Ontario lying within Military District No. 10, and to cover the work hitherto performed within the territories by Dominion police. The R.N.W.M.P. will continue to perform the duties they have been performing during the past two years in connection with patrolling the international boundary, looking after alien enemies, etc. They will also take on the additional duties which hitherto have been performed in Western Canada by the Dominion police, including the arrest of defaulters under the Military Service Act. They are also available for service as a police force in any other part of Canada if the Government should so require.

The reduction in the strength of the force during the past year due to the large number of mounted police who recruited for service in France and Siberia, led to apprehension in Western Canada as to the future of the force, and strong representations were made to the Government that a force with such splendid traditions should be retained and made even more efficient as part of the permanent police force of Canada. The Government has decided that the force shall be maintained either as the basis of a permanent Federal police force or as one of the mounted units in the permanent military forces of Canada as may be determined hereafter. In either case it is considered in the public interests that the mounted police should be recruited up to strength.

A Ready Wit.

Sir Wilfrid Laurier had a ready wit. He was lean of figure and on more than one occasion turned his physical slimness to account in political combat. One day a portly Conservative opponent arose in Parliament and accused Sir Wilfrid of "fattening on the toil and sweat of the people." Laurier smiled and said sweetly: "I leave this house to judge which of us two is the more exposed to that charge."

Lady Rhondda.

Lady Rhondda, "Britain's leading business woman," is a director in more than forty great corporations engaged in mining, manufacturing, transportation, or other lines of industry.

Why Can't I Get to Sleep?

Thousands of people all over the country ask this question but still continue to toss night after night on a sleepless bed and it is impossible for them to get a full night's refreshing sleep.

Some constitutional disturbance, worry or disease has so debilitated and irritated the nervous system that it cannot be quietened except by the pernicious use of opiates or narcotics. Or again, you have heart palpitation, and sensation of sinking, a feeling you are going to die, or perhaps you wake up in your sleep feeling as though you were about to choke or smother, and the only way that you can get relief is to sit up in bed.

To all who suffer in this way Milburn's Heart and Nerve Pills offer an inestimable boon. They bring back the much needed night's rest by improving the tone of the nerves, strengthen the heart, purifying the blood and making the whole organization sing in harmony—then you sleep as peaceful as a child.

Mrs. James Latimer, 39 Leinster St., St. John, N. B., writes: "At night I could not sleep. I had to sit up in bed, my heart beat so fast and when I walked up stairs I would get all out of breath. A friend recommended Milburn's Heart and Nerve Pills, and after using two boxes I can sleep all night, and am not out of breath after walking."

Milburn's Heart and Nerve Pills are 50c a box at all dealers, or mailed direct on receipt of price by The T. Milburn Co., Limited, Toronto, Ont.

BY-PRODUCTS.

Farmers Are Learning Lesson in Saving Waste.

The packers claim to make all their profits out of the by-products, sources of income which were utterly ignored not many years ago. A good many farmers, says the Scientific American, may be skeptical of this claim in its entirety, but no one doubts that the packers turn by-products to good account. It is interesting to note the great progress farmers have made in a similar direction.

Not many years ago straw stacks were counted valueless, and everywhere burned. Now progressive farmers spread the straw and find it a valuable fertilizer, and while burning is still much too often practiced, it is a dying custom. In some sections of Western Canada the Government has forbidden the burning of straw stacks.

Corn stover has a fluctuating value from year to year, varying with the supply of our roughages and live stock conditions, but its feeding value is definitely known, and for some years past the tendency has been toward wider use of the stalks.

Cottonseed, valuable both as a feed and a fertilizer, was formerly thrown away. It is now a by-product of tremendous importance, not alone to the cotton industry, but to innumerable cattle feeders.

Far West cattle feeders would find it difficult to dispense with ensiled beet tops, nutritious by-product of beet growing for the sugar factories.

Hardly a year passes that some waste product is not utilized in a large way for the first time. One of the newest high-protein chicken feeds is the rinds and waste cuttings of cheese pressed into large bricks. It is now being marketed on a commercial scale. Cattle and sheep feeders in the pinto bean territory, which now takes in practically all of New Mexico and Colorado, and growing areas in Wyoming, Nebraska and Kansas, are fast making bean straw a standard article. Bean growing in this section is undergoing great development, and bean straw will become an important feed. It is used as the sole roughage with satisfactory results, but a better plan, so they who have used it say, is to feed it with ensilage, when its value is close to that of alfalfa.

And no one has forgotten yet that sweet clover, now a valuable legume, was formerly a weed—and still is one, to many farmers.

When one considers the many by-product feeds used by dairymen—low-grade molasses, beet pulp, brewers' grains and a dozen others—it is hard to see how the agricultural industry could get along without them.

Our Chaplains In the War.

Major G. G. Kilpatrick, son of Prof. Kilpatrick, of Knox College, was one of four Canadian chaplains being invested with the D.S.O. by the King at Buckingham Palace on Feb. 13th. Lt.-Col. F. G. Scott, C.M.T., Quebec; Major A. M. Gordon, Kingston, were also decorated with the D.S.O. Major E. E. Graham, Arcadia, N.S., received the D.S.O. and M.C.

Fifty-six decorated and thirty-two mentioned in despatches is the record of the Canadian Chaplain Service in the war. In addition, thirteen Canadian chaplains have been brought to the notice of the Secretary of State for valuable service at home. Two chaplains have been killed in action, one died of wounds, one was drowned, two died of sickness and twenty-one have been wounded.

The following decorations have been awarded to chaplains: Eight C.M.G.'s, 1 C.B.E., 3 O.B.'s, 3 D.S.O.'s, 1 Bar to M.C., 33 M.C.'s.

Before becoming chaplains, one won D.C.M. and three military medals while serving on the firing line.

The total number of Canadian chaplains now serving in the overseas forces is 426.

CLASHES IN THE STREETS

Travellers Forbidden to Leave Budapest—Casualties Said to Be High.

FEAR REACTION

(United Press.)
(By Frank J. Taylor.)

BERLIN, March 26. — Bloody street fighting between the Communists and anti-Bolshevik forces in Budapest was reported by travellers arriving from that city to-day.

The streets were being swept by machine gun fire and the number of casualties was said to be high. The Communist guards were being directed by Hungarian soldiers returning from Russia.

Travellers have been forbidden to leave Budapest but several slipped past the guards before the blockade was strictly enforced.

The nervous tension in the Hungarian capital has been increased by the clashes between the rival factions, it was said. The Communists' position apparently has not been seriously threatened by the Opposition.

A number of the wealthy aristocrats are said to have pledged their support to the Communists.

The British and the French missions were reported to be held prisoners but to be safe.

The new coalition government is extending its organization throughout the provinces and towns.

The success of the Hungarian Soviet revolution has made the Spartacans here restless. The independent Socialists still oppose another armed uprising in Germany, however, and the disintegration threaten to disrupt the central Soviet.

The press and the public are condemning General Ludendorff's militaristic utterances, fearing a reaction.

MR. JOHN KENNEDY ADDRESSED TWO MORE MEETINGS.

In the interests of forming one big company from amalgamated small Dairy companies, Mr. John Kennedy of Winnipeg, Vice President of the United Grain Growers Limited, of Winnipeg and Calgary, addressed a large and enthusiastic audience at Westwood and Warsaw yesterday afternoon and evening at which the farmers indicated their unanimous approval of the idea of uniting the small dairies in the Province into one. Mr. Kennedy outlined the success the amalgamation of the grain growers in the west had proved to be and showed how similar amalgamation of the Dairy farms could be worked out with equal success.

Mr. Kennedy told the Examiner this morning that he is confident that within the year the object of forming the central company will be an accomplished fact.

THE WEATHER

During the mild winter that prevailed so generally last winter, the expression was frequently heard, "Well, we'll pay up for this in the spring," and other forecasts of a more or less pessimistic nature. These Jeremiahs have proved false prophets. March has proved an ideal month. To-day the thermometer was up to its highest point for the present season, namely 57 degrees, and the air was balmy and reminiscent of "April" showers not far away. Black birds, song sparrows, and several other varieties are now here. The sap is running freely, willows are budding, and if this is not spring, it is a remarkably good imitation.

Annexation Was Discussed At a Meeting Held Last Evening in N. Monaghan

Ald. J. J. Turner and Crown Attorney G. W. Hatton Were the Speakers of the Evening—The New Boundaries.

THE CINDER PATH

"The Gathering of the Clans" failed to rally a leader, and those who ploughed through the cinders' on Braidwood avenue to St. George's Sunday school last night, were confronted with the alternative of either adjourning unanimously or asking one of those "who came to listen" to adderss the meeting. Mr. H. B. Rye was among the missing.

Ald. J. J. Turner was there with a box which Crown Attorney Hatton declared held his own bouquet of flowers. The anti-annexationists were there in full force but Ald. Turner, through clever manoeuvring, made a "coup d'etat," which would make a casual listener imagine that he was at a meeting of those in favor of annexation.

Briefly, Ald. Turner enumerated the advantages that would be derived by that part of North Monaghan which it is proposed to bring into the city limits.

Fire Protection.

His first point was fire protection, and he illustrated his point by taking as an example the fire which threatened the residence of Mr. B. Morrow some time ago. If the fire brigade had not responded, although the premises were outside the city limits, the place would have been undoubtedly destroyed.

Second, they would have the advantages of the city water system, and as soon as possible the sewer would be connected up with the outfall sewer which the city is "considering" building.

He stated that the rate of taxation would not be very much greater than at present and mentioned one resident of North Monaghan who stated that he paid $14 taxes on a $400 assessment. This in the city, at the rate of 31 mills, would be a little over $12, stated Mr. Turner. Extending the borders of the city would extend the borrowing powers of the municipality, but Ald. Turner did not wish his audience to imagine that Peterboro desired the annexation for selfish purposes or to extend its borrowing powers.

Strong, Financially.

"Peterboro has never asked for a debenture debt to be renewed," stated Mr. Turner.

"The city is strong financially and we have nothing selfish to offer in suggesting that North Monaghan come into the city.

Ald. Turner then took out of his "bouquet box" a map of the city, showing the present boundaries, and with his finger he pointed out the new districts which would be taken into the city if the residents approved of it. The new boundary to the north of the city would be Anson and High streets, and west between lots 10 and 11, and Crawford's Grove to the river. The boundary would be extended somewhat in the west to take in Hurleyville.

Street Car Service.

"If the city is to grow it must be to the west or south. At the north it is gravel hills, and the east is filled up to a great extent. The south is the most logical direction because it is the seat of employment, and transportation for a workman to and from his work costs something. Besides the land in the south is flat, fertile and cheap. The Hydro-electric Commission will not extend their street railway lines beyond the city limits and if you come in you may have street car service soon.

"We are not animated by anything selfish," reiterated Ald. Turner. "There is a great deal to be gained by those who reside in North Monaghan."

Mr. Frank Pratt asked Ald. Turner why three representatives were asked to attend the preliminary meeting of the City Council from Byerrville and only one from North Monaghan. Ald Turner said that

FRANK JENNE Says:

"After the try-on Semi-ready suits are fitted as carefully to exact measurements as though they were custom made.

"On our special order forms we have a physique type chart which gives the cutter a perfect figure photo of each customer. This is the measurement form which we use when ordering a custom-made suit for a customer who wishes something different from the thousand suits of our own selection which we have ready to try on.

"Semi-ready suits made to special order require six days to reach here by express—it takes only four days to tailor. The same price West as East is another advantage."

The League Of Nations

The Principles of the League Will Not Be Altered.

By Ed. L. Keen.
(United Press.)

PARIS, March 26.— The League of Nations covenant, which was being taken up by the Commission again to-day, will be entirely changed in verbitage when it is next presented to a plenary session, according to reliable information.

The principles of the League will not be altered, namely, maintenance of peace through a community of interests among nations without impairing the sovereignty of any nation. But recognition of sovereign rights will be more strongly benefitted, unless some other government objects, which is now believed to be unlikely. The revised constitution will carry an amendment that will specifically guarantee the Monroe Doctrine, without naming it.

So as to further insure its maintenance of national sovereignty, its final draft will carry a clause similar to that in American constitution, which declares that all powers not specifically delegated to the Federal government shall be reserved to the States. In this case the powers not delegated to the League naturally would be reserved to the nations.

Discussions also are in progress regarding the time limit in which a nation can present notification of its withdrawal from the League of Nations.

By extending the necessity for unanimity of decision by the House of Delegates, which is now planned, it is felt that Senator Borah's charge that the British would dominate the League through their colonies is met. Under such a voting arrangement America's three votes would be just as effective as those of Great Britain and her possessions.

HUNGARIAN SITUATION

Not Much Change in the Situation—Czech Forces Occupy Important City.

TO-DAY'S DESPATCHES

Special to the Examiner:

LONDON, March 26.—Commenting on the situation in Hungary, the "Daily Chronicle" says: "The position is that one of the defeated enemy states has broken the armistice and declared war on us. If we take up the challenge and reinforce our control, the world will know that, despite war weariness, demobilization, strikes and disagreements, we are still masters of Europe and are determined to remain so until we establish the foundations of a new and better system for which we fought. But if we do not take action our impotence will be naked before all, and many people beside the Magyars will hasten to take advantage of it."

WIRELESS MESSAGE FROM LENINE.

Special to the Examiner:

VIENNA, March 26.—Premier Lenine, in a wireless message to the Hungarian Soviet Government, failed to accept formally the latter's offer of a military alliance, a Budapest despatch reported to-day. "We will inform you of our decision at the Third International Communist Congress in Moscow as soon as possible," Lenine said. He declared the advent of the Hungarian Soviet Republic caused great rejoicing in Moscow.

SEVENTY SHOT FOR PLUNDERING.

Special to the Examiner:

PARIS, March 26.—Seventy persons in Budapest have been shot for plundering and other offences.

According to reports received from that city to-day, sympathetic demonstrations were said to have occurred in Vienna. Unconfirmed reports have been received that a Bolshevik uprising has been scheduled there for April 1st.

COMMUNICATION HAS BEEN INTERRUPTED.

Special to the Examiner:

BERLIN, March 26.—It is reported here from Vienna that communication between Vienna and Budapest has been interrupted through the capture by the Czecho-Slovaks of the town of Raab, on the Danube, about midway between the two cities. Large Hungarian cannon foundries are situated at Raab.

ARRESTED BY THE COMMUNISTS.

Special to the Examiner:

LONDON, March 26.—An Agency despatch from Prague to-day said reports had been received there that Count Karolyi, former head of the Hungarian Government, has been assassinated.

A despatch to the News from Vienna said Karolyi had been arrested by the Communists.

OCCUPIED AN IMPORTANT CITY.

Special to the Examiner:

BASLE, March 26.—Czech forces have occupied the important city of Raab, on the Danube, only 87 miles north-west of Budapest, according to a Vienna despatch to the "Frankfurter Zeitung." A Red army is being formed in Hungary to disarm the Bourgeoise, a Budapest despatch reported.

GERMANS ARE GETTING DEFIANT.

Special to the Examiner:

BERLIN, March 26.—"I take a most solemn oath that the Government will not surrender to the enemy one inch of German territory, either east or west," said Dr. Schiffer, Minister of Finance in the new Cabinet, in addressing a great crowd in front of the Chancellor's palace on Sunday.

SLIGHTLY WOUNDED.

Special to the Examiner:

BERNE, March 26.—The Hungarian Legation here announced to-day it has received information that Col. Vix, head of the French mission in Budapest, was slightly wounded while resisting arrest.

VOLUNTEER CORPS.

Special to the Examiner:

BERLIN, March 26.—General Hoffman and General Lettow Vorbeck are organizing a new volunteer corps to preserve order at home and protect the Empire's frontier, it was learned to-day.

BOLSHEVIKI RETREATING.

Special to the Examiner:

WARSAW, March 26.—Polish troops have taken Pinsk and Grodno, it was announced to-day. The Bolsheviki are retreating in disorder.

ALLIES NOT CONCERNED

The Powers Are Capable of Enforcing the Peace Terms to Be Imposed on Hun.

POSSIBLE SOLUTION

By William Philip Simms.
(United Press.)

PARIS, March 26. — Immediate peace along broad lines, with settlement of details afterwards through a League of Nations, was being urged to-day my many delegates, who have been galvanized into action by the westward spread of Bolshevism.

The next step, it was pointed out, would be to furnish concrete support of the new or enlarged nations of Central Europe, whose security the Allies are in honour bound to maintain. The belief was expressed that expeditionary forces will not be necessary or advisable. Large national armies for these nations, however, probably partly officered, trained, equipped and provisioned by the Allies, including the United States, were registered as a possible solution of the problem maintaining peace in that region.

The situation in Hungary, Russia, Poland, Ukrainia and Roumania was likened to a gigantic powder magazine already ablaze. America, it is felt, will be unable to withdraw her support until the danger of fire reaching the explosive has passed.

Germany's threat to refuse to sign the peace treaty is not troubling the conferees. Officials declare it matters little whether she signs or not, as the present government is wobbling. The Germans would not honour their own signature, anyway, it was declared, unless the Allies are capable of enforcing the terms.

PETERBORO SOLDIERS RETURNING

(Special to Examiner.)

HALIFAX, March 26.—The Olympic did not attempt to dock this morning owing to the continued high wind sweeping the troopship pier and the work of disembarking her soldier passengers by tender was begun in earnest. It is hoped to complete the work today. The giant liner will then dock at the new southend terminals where she will coal.

Allies Must Act Quickly

Bolshevism Like Time, and Tide Waits For No Man.

(By Rudolph S. Kommer—Copyright, 1919, by the United Press).

BERNE, March 26. — The Allies must act immediately if the westward flood of Bolshevism is to be dammed, Prince Windisch-Graetz, Hungarian statesman and chief adviser of Emperor Karl during the last year of the dual monarchy, told the United Press to-day.

The Prince declared that Roumania and Eastern Galicia are still forming a barrier against the deluge of Radicalism, but that this must be strengthened, or it cannot hold.

"What is happening in Hungary could be foretold by every Hungarian politician during the last six months," said he.

"Unfortunately, the Entente statesmen did not believe us. Most of them thought the talk of the danger of Bolshevism was just some new instrument of German propaganda, to undo or release the Allied victory. Others believed Bolshevism to be a sort of a political grippe, which would attack only defeated countries. It is tragical that the timely words of Lord Milner last September were not listened to.

USURPED POWER.

"The same elements which have now openly usurped power in Budapest overthrew me and my colleagues last autumn. At that they have not felt strong enough to appear at the forefront in European politics and have used Count Karolyi as their representative and standard bearer. From the first days of his rule, however, he was a helpless puppet in Bolshevist hands. Day by day he was forced more to the left (Radicalism)."

Asked if the present situation left any hopes of checking the spread of Bolshevism, the Prince replied: "The Communist organization in Hungary to-day is far from being complete. Roumania and Eastern Galicia are still forming a dam between the Bolshevist flood and Western Europe. How strong or weak this dam is only the Entente authorities can say. At any rate, if anything is done it should be done a once. Bolshevism, like time and tide, waits for no man.

SMALL GROUP.

"Neither the peasants nor the workers of Hungary are really Communistic. A small group within the Socialists has overwhelmed the party. The new dictatorship isn't a dictatorship of the people but a dictatorship of despair."

"Just as the middle classes joined Karolyi, thinking he could save Hungary from Czecho-Slovak, Roumanian and Serbian Imperialism, the same middle classes to-day are embracing Bolshevism—and turning from Paris to Moscow."

CONFERENCE GETS MOVE ON

Entente Will Try to Save Central Europe From the Devastating Hand of Bolshevism.

A NEW PLAN

By Fred S. Ferguson.
(United Press.)

PARIS, March 26.— A treaty embracing all the enemy countries instead of a preliminary pact with Germany, is now being planned in an effort to speed up the peace settlement, it was learned from an authoritative source to-day.

The best guess as to when such a treaty would be ready for submission to enemy powers by calling in their delegates, is May the first.

The plan completely upsets the programme along which the peace conference has been working for the past month. It is not yet certain that the new scheme will be carried out, but some of the delegates point out that various questions are so inter-related that time will be saved in the long run by tieing all treaties together.

Speeding Up.

A further advantage to be obtained through a joint treaty is that it would make Germany responsible for all her allies by binding her up in a pact in which they were parties. This was the only immediate explanation for the radical change in the trend of the conference's work. It has been stated on all sides for some time past that speed is of the utmost importance, and it is understood that the Hungarian situation has accentuated the demand. It has also been pointed out that trying to lump the treaties inevitably will mean some delay, but that such a plan ultimately will save time. One explanation possibly lies in the economic problems, in which the greatest difficulties are being encountered. It is now known that economic committees, including the one handling reparation, are far from completing their work, which involves virtually the entire economic future of the world, especially Europe.

The "Big Four."

President Wilson, Premier Lloyd George, Premier Clemenceau and Premier Orlando worked all day yesterday in their first session as the "Big Four." It is not known what specific questions they discussed aside from the apparent inclination to extend the peace work so as to include Austria-Hungary, Turkey and Bulgaria in the first treaty.

The meeting was secret, not even stenographers being admitted. In the interests of time, no minutes will be made of the sessions. No official communiques will be issued regarding their deliberations. This method of procedure will continue until German boundaries and other questions requiring intimate discussions are disposed of.

New Firm Will Be a Big Thing For Peterboro

The Renfrew Interests Decline to Reveal Name of New Industry.

Mr. F. D. Vickers, Renfrew, who is in the city today associated with Mr. Thomas A. Low in connection with the sale of the building formerly occupied by the Renfrew Manufacturing Company, told the Examiner today that as far as the name of the company which has bought building goes he had nothing to say. Asked why the name of the firm was being withheld, he said, "A deal may be complete but there is nothing sure in life but death and taxes so until the money is actually turned over we refuse to give the name of the firm."

Asked if he would at least contradict, if not make statements, Mr. Vickers agreed to do anything of the kind and stated that the new company is neither the Canadian Vickers Company of Montreal nor did the new firm contemplate the manufacture of automobiles.

He admitted that it was Canadian capital that would operate the factory "and it will be a big thing too," said Mr. Vickers. The factory is large enough at present to carry on manufacturing operations on a big scale. He stated that the new firm would mean a big thing for the city in the way of giving work to a large number of men.

"There will be a story for you worth while if you wait about twenty-five days," he concluded.

So reticent about making a statement was Mr. Thomas now that directly the representative of the Examiner put in an appearance, he left the premises.

THE IRON SECONDS.

The civic authorities should not relax in their pressure upon the Militia Department if they wish to have the 2nd Eastern Ontario Battalion brought here for demobilization when that famous unit returns from overseas. It is anticipated that the Iron Seconds will be home in a comparatively short time, as the 1st Canadian Infantry Brigade, of which it forms a part, has already reached England and its early sailing for Canada is anticipated. A special cable says that the four battalions of this brigade, all of which were organized in Ontario, are to sail simultaneously on two vessels, so that the people of Ontario will have an opportunity of welcoming the brigade as a unit. Brantford has been successful in inducing the military authorities to send one of the returning units there to demobilize, and if the pressure from this end is strong enough, Peterborough should be able to secure the 2nd Battalion.

It is a unit in which the people of this city have a peculiar interest, and the whole city would welcome an opportunity of giving a proper reception to the Iron Seconds. The time is short and if there is to be a chance of having the battalion come to Peterborough for demobilization the authorities will have to get busy.

WRAPPING THE BREAD.

While there is no question of the benefit to be gained from a sanitary standpoint in compelling the city bakers to wrap their bread before delivering it to customers, the city council were quite justified in rejecting the Board of Health's recommendation at the present time. It is indisputable that a regulation such as proposed would result in an increase in the price of bread, and with the cost of living at its present status, the aldermen cannot be blamed for refusing to pass a bylaw that would add to the burden. At the same time, however, under normal conditions, the compulsory wrapping of bread would be an improvement that would be well worth adopting. There are people, of course, who condemn such a regulation as a fad. "We have got along very well without the bread being wrapped," is the way they express it, and they forget that we used to get along without electric light and motor cars, and a lot of other things that we would not care to dispense with now. The only reason by which a rejection of the Board of Health's recommendation could be justified was on the question of economy, and that was the ground taken by the Aldermen. Later on, when the situation has adjusted itself the matter might profitably be considered again.

THE DEWART CHARGES

When Mr. Hartley Dewart, M.P.P., made his charges in the Legislature against Provincial License Inspector Ayearst, Hon. Mr. Lucas, the Attorney General, treated the matter very lightly, undertaking to himself dispose the charges and to defend the inspector and the general administration of the Ontario Temperance Act. However, Sir William Hearst has taken a much more serious view of Mr. Dewart's accusations and the attack on the liquor administration is to be investigated by a Royal Commission. Mr. Ayearst, the chief inspector has been suspended until the inquiry has been made, as is the usual course in such cases and another Provincial License Inspector, George E. Morrison has tendered his resignation which has ben accepted. Sir William Meredith, who has been appointed to make the investigation, will probe into the history of Morrison's financial operations, while the accounts of the License Department for the past six years are to be investigated by the Public Accounts Committee.

The course that has been taken by the Government will be much more satisfactory to the people of the province than was the attitude adopted by Hon. Mr. Lucas towards the Dewart charges. Had the Attorney General had his way it is apparent that the matter would not have gone any further and it is fortunate that wiser counsel than his has prevailed. Mr. Dewart's accusations were too serious and specific to be ignored and the people of Ontario would not have been satisfied with anything else than a thorough investigation of the whole administration of the Ontario Temperance Act. Sir William Hearst has promised this and the Royal Commissioner should be given authority to make the inquiry as deep and wide-spread as possible.

LOCAL DAYLIGHT SAVING.

If the Government, in the hope of gaining favour with the farmers, whose support is rapidly slipping away, persists in its refusal to re-enact the Daylight Saving Measure, as was intimated in an Ottawa despatch yesterday, the City Council would be well advised to consider as soon as possible, the advisability of adopting daylight savings as a local measure. The vast majority of the people of Peterborough are in favour of the scheme. To those who are cooped up all day in factory, office or store, the extra hour of sunshine during the summer months proved a blessing last year. There was more time for gardening and recreation, and a saving in light bills, and the scheme was endorsed enthusiastically as a splendid success.

It is unfortunate that the Federal Government has allowed the fear of the farmers' vote to becloud the merits of daylight saving. The measure goes into force in the United States on Sunday, and if the railways on this side of the line conform to the United States' time, as it seems certain they will do, the confusion can be imagined. Even the farmers, one of whose chief objections to daylight saving was that it necessitated arising before daylight in order that the milk might be taken to the station in time to catch the morning trains, will not gain anything by their opposition to the scheme, with the railways running on United States' time. Business firm and manufacturing plants will suffer if the time is not standardized, because with the railways operating an hour ahead of the general time, goods for shipment will have to be got ready that much earlier. There will be a general mix-up such as existed a few years ago, when a number of municipalities adopted daylight saving and the railways refused to change their running time. The situation that arose then will be repeated now, with the conditions exactly reversed.

If the railways finally decide on the new time, there is nothing to prevent the City of Peterborough from adopting it also. In fact it would be greatly to the advantage of the majority of the ratepayers if this course was taken, and the City Council would do well to consider the question as soon as possible.

A BONE OF CONTENTION

Indications are multiplying that the delay in framing a peace treaty with Germany independent of a League of Nations covenant has created a difficult and even dangerous situation and that members of the Peace Conference are drifting further apart instead of being drawn closer together. Lloyd George has already sounded a strong note of dissatisfaction with the delay and he is credited with the statement that the "Council of Ten" and the British delegation never indorsed President Wilson's contention that the League covenant should be included in what he calls "the preliminary peace treaty." Both the statement and the use of the word "preliminary" are noteworthy.

In addition to the British Premier's remark we are told that questions of repatriation are now holding up the Peace Conference, and that the French do not stand alone in insisting on an agreement on this matter before the submission of peace terms to the enemy, but that Britain also requires an understanding as to her share of the indemnities. The only wonder is that there should ever have been any disagreement on the principle involved. It is clear that in order to arrive at the total indemnities to be demanded of Germany and her accomplices each nation must present its bill, and that it would be impossible, or at any rate, vastly unfair, to limit the claims of any nation to the actual cost of the damage sustained, but that it is entitled to enter a claim partly covering national expenditures over and above those of ordinary peace times. It will occur to many that it would have been wiser and better for an agreement to have been arrived at in the first place with regard to this matter instead of debating the clauses and conditions of a League of Nations. This might have been left in the hands of the committee specially appointed, published, as it was, for the consideration of the governments and peoples concerned and taken in hand by the plenary conference when it had settled the terms of the peace treaty.

It cannot be too strongly insisted that if financial, military and kindred matters such as the delimitation of national frontiers, had been first considered by the conference, to the temporary exclusion of League of Nations, peace would be vastly nearer than it is and would probably be a

The Fight For Healthful Milk

Rather a strange statement is it not? But a hard struggle for HEALTHFUL MILK has been going on for years in Peterboro, as well as in other places.

One may well ask why must there be a struggle to secure for the people something everyone admits is desirable and even necessary for the public welfare. The struggle came about not because there was any difference of opinion as to the need or desirability of healthful milk, but because there was a difference of opinion as to how it could be secured.

Physicians long ago realized that milk was an agent by which the organisms causing typhoid fever were carried from the diseased cow to the man. They also felt certain that other and less specific troubles were due to the use of unhealthful milk especially by babies.

The solution of this problem of securing healthful milk—milk free from harmful effects—came through the demonstration of the scientific system of

or, heating the raw milk to a temperature of 145 degrees, after being cleansed of dirt, etc., passed through clarifying machines. For years the plant of the possesses both clarifying and pasteurizing machines, through which all raw milk must pass before being bottled.

PETERBORO MILK PRODUCTS

We have had to fight to establish this healthful milk for the citizens of Peterboro, and without any remuneration or extra cost to customers.

Czecho-Slovaks Are Mobilizing

Will March Against the Hungarians

(United Press.)

COPENHAGEN, March 26. — The Czecho-Slovaks are mobilizing an army at Ostrau, 150 miles north of Budapest, to march against the Hungarians, a Vienna dispatch reported to-day. The army is commanded by the Italian General Piccioni.

Alexander Weker, former Hungarian Premier, is said to have been arrested. All foreigners, including Austrians, are being interned. The revolutionary government is now firmly established. The Workers' Council is exercising a proletariat dictatorship, and has announced that elections to the National Assembly have been postponed.

Fritz Adler, Austrian Socialist leader, has sent a message to Budapest, announcing the readiness of the Austrian workers to join the Bolshevik movement if help can be obtained elsewhere than from the Entente.

WOMAN'S HAIR REACHES TO KNEES

A Year Ago Was Threatened With Baldness—Tells How She Made Her Hair Grow.

A Year Ago Was Threatened With Baldness, Tells How She Made Her Hair Grow.

Mrs. Esther Emery, now visiting friends in the city, is the fortunate possessor of marvelously beautiful hair, which, when loosened from its coils falls to her knees. Moreover, is of soft, silky and fluffy texture and in colour a glorious glossy gold. Yet, just one year ago she was threatened with baldness. Urged to tell how she had obtained this wonderful growth in so short a time she said: "Had anyone told me such marvelous results could be accomplished so quickly, I positively would not have believed it. Twelve months ago my hair, which then reached barely to my shoulders, was falling out at an alarming rate and growing very thin, actually exposing the bald scalp in several spots. It was dull and lifeless in colour, turning grey in patches and very dry and brittle. My head was covered with dandruff and itched like mad all the time. I tried fully a dozen different hair tonics but they were all the same and never did me a bit of good. One day I chanced to read in my home paper of a simple home prescription to make the hair grow that was recommended by a well known physician. It said that by taking ordinary Lavona de Composee and mixing with Bay Rum and Menthol Crystals and applying to the scalp each night with the finger tips that new hair would grow very rapidly. I decided to try it and I had my druggist mix two ounces of Lavona de Composee with 6 ounces of Bay Rum and one half drachm of Menthol Crystals and started to use it. My, how quickly my hair did grow. First, the hair stopped falling, the itching ceased and the dandruff disappeared. Then tiny little hairs appeared all over my scalp. These grew as though nothing would ever stop them. They are growing yet, and while, of course, I have used the treatment steadily and expect to continue it, at least until my hair reaches the floor, I might have stopped and been perfectly satisfied at the end of three months. I think that any woman can get long, thick, beautiful hair by using this prescription as I have recommended it to several friends, and all are delighted with the result. The prescription is very inexpensive and any druggist can fill it.

Those who use it should be careful not to get it on the face or where the hair is not desired.

ARMY AND NAVY ESTIMATES WILL STAND

Cannot Be Reduced Said Former Minister of War.

(Special to The Examiner.)

LONDON, March 25.—In the House of Lords last night Viscount Milner, the secretary for the Colonies, said that in his opinion the country was still far from a certain and well-established peace. Therefore, he declared, the army and navy estimates could not be reduced.

Voice of The People

To the Editor of The Examiner:

Sir,—Mr. Leader writes a somewhat intemperate letter upon my theology in your Monday issue. Let me tell Mr. Leader what he apparently does not know, viz.: That drinkable alcohol is broadcast in nature, put there directly by the hand of the Creator, and without any interference from the hand of man. To anathematise alcohol is to anathematise ALL those who make it, and that includes God. A little religion is a bad thing, especially if home-manufactured, and possibly the worst vice of all as it is at bottom atheistic in reality. We must worship God as He is.

J. H. BURNHAM.

To the Editor of the Examiner:

Sir,—Mr. J. W. Fitzgerald discusses the proposed Hunter Street Bridge and myself in a letter in your issue of March 19th. Will you allow me space for a brief reply?

First, as to his proposal to narrow the roadway by 20 feet, leaving a 22-foot roadway with sidewalks in addition. We must assume that he would place at least a single track electric railway on his bridge, as he would not wish the Ashburnham people to walk for the next century, which he figures his bridge would serve. If this track were placed as near to one side of the road as possible it would leave a roadway of about 12 feet on the other side, which would be the only space available for all vehicular traffic going in both directions. Vehicles could not pass in this space. This is less than the roadways on county sideroads, which are at least 16 feet wide, in most parts of the province.

It must be then that Mr. Fitzgerald will place the track in the centre of the road. In this case there would be a roadway on each side of a trolley car of about 7 feet. An automobile meeting a car would require a careful hand at the wheel you must admit. I should be tempted to think that Mr. Fitzgerald had written somewhat hastily, if it were not for his assurance that he had made a thorough study of the question. Even so, I am afraid there is a point that he has missed. The regulations of the Ontario Railway and Municipal Board, which apply to all bridges carrying cars on tracks, require a minimum roadway of 31 feet between curbs for a single track carrying the smallest cars, for the safety of the public. For the cars decided upon by Council after having taken the matter up with the Hydro-Electric Commission, the minimum width for single track allowed would be 33 feet. This would allow of narrowing our proposed roadway at most only 9 feet instead of 20 as Mr. Fitzgerald proposes. These considerations, as well as others equally conclusive, also dispose of the possibility of ever using the present Smith Street bridge for trolley cars as proposed by some one in a previous letter to your paper.

Again, Mr. Fitzgerald proposes to greatly cheapen the approaches by using a fill of earth or other material retained by two concrete walls. The greater part of both the approaches in my design consists of an earth fill retained by only one concrete wall, the wall being on the south on the Peterborough approach and on the north on the Ashburnham approach. I considered that the second wall was not necessary as the fill would be naturally retained by the high banks which will take its place. But it must be evident that adding a second concrete wall will not decrease the cost. However, Mr. Fitzgerald proposes to lengthen the earth approaches on each side and thus do away with some of the concrete arches. Let us try the effect of extending the fill on the west approach, for instance. Here the fill goes down to the railway sidings, and all the space from the fill to the river is taken up by sidings. Even if the first arch, that next the fill, were done away with and the fill between two concrete walls should take its place, the two present sidings and a third prospective siding would be blocked. Mr. Fitzgerald would find that the Quaker Oats Co. would take considerable interest in his plans if the Council appeared likely to adopt them.

As to the suggestion that two river spans should be used instead of a single span, I have to say what I frequently said in answer to questions as to this before our studies of the bridge were concluded, that no bridge engineer could say before designing the bridge both ways which would prove to be best in this instance. This was done, after making a boring in midstream to find out what the materials of excavation for a centre pier would be, and a single span was adopted on the ground of economy. A centre pier would leave the floor system and its supports practically unchanged, and would have only a slight effect on the abutments; but the arch ring itself could be made considerably lighter if it were supported by a pier in the centre. Against this saving would be the cost of the pier sunk to bed at the most difficult place in the river. It is true that the Smith Street Bridge has three river spans, but here there was no choice — the arches are flat enough as it is. Their floor was not high enough to allow of longer spans.

As to Mr. Fitzgerald's insinuations as to rule of thumb engineers, I consider that it needs no formal reply from me. I have designed and built bridge both as engineer and contractor, not one of which has failed even partially. At least it cannot be said of me that I have gone outside of my specialty and attempted to dabble in other lines of engineering. I may say, however, that the insinuation applies equally to the engineer of the Ontario Railway Board for one instance, one of the most experienced bridge engineers in the province. My plans have been under review by him since last fall, and he is only now completing a minute and comprehensive scrutiny of the whole bridge and every member of it. A bridge designed by rule of thumb methods would scarcely pass him unless he applied equally "criminally careless" methods in checking them. The plans must also pass the engineers of the Dominion Department of Public Works, the Department of Railways and Canals, and the Dominion Railway Board.

Yours truly,

Frank Barber.

A Well Known Trade Mark and What is Back of It.

MOST Canadians will instantly recognize our trade mark as standing for certain standards of quality in shoes. But what is back of it? Why should it be so generally accepted as a sufficient guarantee of good value? Let us see—

In the first place, there is back of it by far the largest shoe manufacturing organization in Canada, with resources far beyond those of any other and greater buying power in the material markets. But that is not all. Important as those things are, they are not the most important. For back of the trade mark there is something else which we could not escape if we would: an obligation to keep faith with the public.

The manufacturer of unbranded goods assumes no responsibility for them after they leave his factory. The manufacturer of trade marked goods assumes an obligation which lasts clear through to the last day of their use. The trade mark puts him under Bonds, as it were, to maintain the quality of his product, or lose his reputation. And the higher his reputation becomes, the heavier his responsibility grows. Noblesse oblige.

That is what is back of the A.H.M. trade mark. That is what we offer to Canadian wearers of shoes. That is why we ask you to look for the manufacturer's trade mark on the shoes you buy.

We have prepared a booklet entitled "How to Buy Shoes." May we send you a copy with our compliments?

C.P.R. Officials Visited Quebec

Over Two Hundred Officials Took Part in the Outing.

(Special to The Examiner.)

QUEBEC, March 26.—Over two hundred officers and chiefs in charge of the executive appointments of the Canadian Pacific Railway scattered along the system from coast to coast and from various centres of the United States C.P.R. agencies, visited the ancient city of Quebec over the week end, arriving on Sunday night by a special train made up of ten pullman passenger sleepers and two dining cars and some one hundred and fifty put up at the Chateau Frontenac, while the balance were obliged to occupy the sleepers. The officials are in charge of Mr. J. McMillan, manager of the C.P.R. Company's telegraph system, and include representatives of the civil engineering department, legal department, store and purchasing departments, operating department, secret service representatives of telegraph system, dining and sleeping car service passenger departments, land department, and heads of United States' agencies, etc. The officials had attended a convention at Montreal, which ended in that city with a banquet given by the chief executive of the C.P.R. at the Ritz Carlton hotel on Saturday night.

The party broke up here yesterday afternoon at 1 o'clock by a visit to the Quebec bridge, when many proceeded to their respective homes and quite a few remaining over in Quebec for a couple of days to see the city. His Worship Mayor Lavigueur, who had previously received an invitation to meet the officials on their arrival and dine with them at the Chateau, met the visitors and wished them welcome in their arrival. The dinner later served was absolutely informal. No toasts were proposed and no speeches made.

Yesterday morning a number of the visitors proceeded to Ste. Anne de Beaupre to visit the shrine, and get a glimpse of Mont Morency Falls, while others made a tour of the city in sleighs and also had a visit to the Louise docks and the military clearing depot.

The Best Cough Syrup Is Home-made

Here's an easy way to save $5, and yet have the best cough remedy you ever tried.

You've probably heard of this well-known plan of making cough syrup at home. But have you ever used it? When you do you will understand why thousands of families the world over, feel that they could hardly keep house without it. It's simple and cheap, but the way it takes hold of a cough will quickly earn it a permanent place in your home.

Into a 16-oz. bottle, pour 2½ ounces of Pinex (50 cents worth); then add plain granulated sugar syrup to fill the bottle. Or, if desired, use clarified molasses, honey, or corn syrup, instead of sugar syrup. Either way, it tastes good, never spoils, and gives you 16 ounces of better cough remedy than you could buy ready-made for five times its cost.

It is really wonderful how quickly this home-made remedy conquers a cough—usually in 24 hours or less. It seems to penetrate through every air passage, loosens a dry, hoarse or tight cough, lifts the phlegm, heals the membranes, and gives almost immediate relief. Splendid for throat tickle, hoarseness, croup, bronchitis and bronchial asthma.

Pinex is a highly concentrated compound of genuine Norway pine extract, and has been used for generations for throat and chest ailments.

To avoid disappointment ask your druggist for "2½ ounces of Pinex" with directions, and don't accept anything else. Guaranteed to give absolute satisfaction or money refunded. The Pinex Co., Toronto, Ont.

POLICEMEN RESCUE TWO LITTLE CHILDREN FROM FIRE.

NEW YORK, March 26. — Two small children were carried down a fire escape by two policemen from the Brownsville station, Brooklyn, after they had been penned in by flames in their apartment at No. 10 Liberty Avenue. An eleven-year-old sister had rushed into the street, carrying her two-year-old brother, and crying 'fire,' just as the two policemen appeared and entered the building. The smoke was so thick, however, the policemen came down the fire escape with the other two children in their arms.

The four children, Angelina Barresi, aged eleven; Dominick, seven; John, six, and Salvadore, two, were in the rooms when one of the children overturned a lighted kerosene oil lamp.

Exhibition Board Will Ask County Council for $2,000 Grant

Prize Lists for 1919 Were Revised at Meeting Yesterday—Special Class for Horseback Riding Open to Returned Soldiers—Cattle Prizes Are Increased.

A THREE HOUR SESSION

When Mr. R. H. Turner reported the City Council's grant of $2,000 to the Peterboro Industrial Exhibition at the meeting of the Board of Directors yesterday afternoon, Mr. Tom Brown was inspired with the idea that the County Council might be moved to equal generosity if the needs and the plans of the Board were carefully presented to them.

Mr. Dickson Hall remarked that the County had not taken second place in its patriotic contributions and its Council might be as ready as the City Council to assist the Board in the contemplated improvements to the grounds and additions to the prize list.

"The fair is as important to the farmers as it is to the city," Mr. Brown observed. "It should be more so, for how are the farmers going to know first class stock unless they see it, and that is one of the benefits the Exhibition is intended to provide for them."

"But it is hard to make some of them see it," commented Mr. Ormie Ball.

"It was felt that the farmer directors should make this appeal to the County Council at the June session, but this suggestion was extended to include all the members of the Board with the farmers taking the lead. On motion by Mr. John Gillespie, seconded by Mr. C. E. Moore, Mr. J. T. O'Connel was appointed chairman of the deputation which will ask Warden McIntosh's assembly for $2,000.

"And don't let them pass it on to a committee," advised Mr. Harold Baptie of Cavan township Council who by experience knows the mind and methods of the average County Council. "Ask them to decide the question while you are there," he added.

Mr. John Cox presided in the absence of Mr. R Denne who was absent on account of illness. Other directors present were John Williams, Albert Roberts, Dave Jordan, C. E. Moore, Tom Brown, Dickson Hall, C. G. Graham, Harold Baptie, Reg. H. Turner, J. J. Hartley, T. H. Hooper, John Gillespie, Erastus W. Wood, R. C. Grandy, Wilbert Roseborough, R. M. Glover, Smith Milburn, Bruce Johnston, Ormie Ball, Sam Oke, Webber Turner, J. T. O'Connell.

Prizes for Soldier Riders.

The various committees presented their reports upon the prize lists for their departments. Mr. C. G. Graham, chairman of the committee on carriage horses and roadsters, announced two new riding classes for military officers and non-commissioned officers and men. He stated that many of the returned soldiers are accomplished horseback riders, and it had been decided to establish competitions for them. They will be expected to wear uniforms. This idea was warmly approved.

A proposal to cancel the special roadster and carriage classes for the farmers, was submitted with the explanation that the farmers have the open class all to themselves. There was no competition from the city, and the special was simply a duplication of the open classes. It was also argued that farmers are becoming motorists.

Mr. John Gillespie objected to this change, arguing that every possible encouragement should be offered to farmers to show roadsters and carriage horses. This class always attracted many entries and was a feature of the Exhibition. The directors decided to retain the special classes for farmers.

$449 More for Cattle.

Mr. C. E. Moore reported that $449 have been added to the prize money for cattle. The Galloway class has been abolished.

The committee on vegetables have, with the sanction of the Board, withdrawn the prizes for collections. This money will be distributed over the rest of the vegetable list.

It was proposed that the vegetables and flowers be shown in separate tents this year, and also that the competition for the best decorated supper table be placed in charge of the ladies' committee, and that it be opened for amateurs. This idea will have to be worked out in detail.

Mr. Jordan reported for the Flower committee and intimated that there were a number of changes which would add about $15 to the list.

There are a number of changes in the heavy horse class as reported by Mr. Milburn.

Carnival Shows.

Mr. Webber Turner, chairman of the amusement committee, gave an account of his negotiations with summer carnival shows and booking agencies. Grandstand attractions have not been secured yet because the committee desired to obtain features different from usual performances. It is expected that a summer show will be here for the midway, and possibly another for the first week in July.

Mr. Turner also told the Board of a scheme upon which a number of the Fairs in this district are working for the advertising of all their dates with special emphasis on the horse races. He is working out the details of this idea which promises extensive advertising at a comparatively small cost.

For Dominion Day.

The directors have practically decided upon a big holiday event for July 1st, and a committee was appointed to proceed with the arrangements.

Mr. R. H. Turner reported that the contributions from both the city and the country are very encouraging. Horse and cattle barns are almost assured for this year, and it is hoped that the construction work may be commenced early in the building season. The directors were reminded of the working "bee" for the improvement of the grounds. Mr. Gillespie was authorized to issue the call to the Board as soon as the Exhibition park has dried up.

There were many other points brought up at the meeting which lasted from three to six o'clock. The main business of preparing the prize lists was completed, and other details for the 1919 show will be dealt with at the next regular meeting of the Board.

Resolution of Condolence.

A resolution passed by all the members standing, instructed the secretary to write a letter, conveying to Mrs. W. H. Denham the sympathy of the Board on the death of her husband, Mr. W. H. Denham, who had been a good friend of the society during his residence in Peterborough.

A COMING TREAT AT ST. PAUL'S

Thanks to the resourceful Fraser Auxiliary of St. Paul's, the Peterboro citizens are promised a treat by the appearance of the gifted elocutionist, Miss Jessie Alexander, at a recital to be held on Friday evening, April 11th. This visit of an old time favorite with Peterboro people, will afford a delightful opportunity of hearing Miss Alexander in one of her heart-stirring elocutionary renderings in her delightful repertoire. Along with Miss Alexander, a series of refined vocal selections by talented singers will intersperse the program.

GIRLS! DRAW A MOIST CLOTH THROUGH HAIR, DOUBLE ITS BEAUTY

Try this! Hair gets thick, glossy, wavy and beautiful at once.

Immediate?—Yes. Certain? that's the joy of it. Your hair becomes light, wavy, fluffy, abundant and appears as soft, lustrous and beautiful as a young girl's after a Danderine hair cleanse. Just try this—moisten a cloth with a little Danderine and carefully draw it through your hair, taking one small strand at a time. This will cleanse the hair of dust, dirt or excessive oil, and in just a few moments you have doubled the beauty of your hair. A delightful surprise awaits those whose hair has been neglected or is scraggy, faded, dry, brittle or thin. Besides beautifying the hair, Danderine dissolves every particle of dandruff; cleanses, purifies and invigorates the scalp, forever stopping itching and falling hair, but what will please you most will be after a few weeks' use, when you see new hair—fine and downy at first—yes—but really new hair growing all over the scalp. If you care for pretty, soft hair, and lots of it, surely get a small bottle of Knowlon's Danderine from any drug store or toilet counter for a few cents.

"THE BRIDE SHOP" TO-MORROW NIGHT

With its bright and witty dialogue, its many jingly tunes, its well connected story, a fin de siecle production which spells prodigality, and a most excellent cast and chorus, George Choos' magnificent production of the famous musical comedy success, "The Bride Shop", will make a bid for public approval at the Grand on Thursday night.

The book is by F. De Gressac who wrote those international successes "The Purple Road", "The Enchantress", "Sweethearts" and "Flo Flo", with lyrics by Darrell MacBoyle and music by Walter L. Rosemount. It is in two acts and tells in satire how often people who have too much money and ambition can over reach and make fools of themselves without half trying. There are many clever and tuneful musical numbers introduced during the action of the play among which, "There Seems to be Something About You," "Ring Tang Ping Tung Koo", "Oh, Those Tunes," and "Old Wine and Old Friends Are Best" are bound to be whistled and sung by music lovers before the show leaves town.

Mr. Choos has been most lavish in the mounting and presenting of his production. He has engaged a most excellent cast among whom may be found, Eddie Vogt, Lew Naden, John Sully, George Gould, Edith Benjar, Mae Hopstill, Muriel Rastrick, Sally Hunt, Frances Allison, Muriel Thomas and a chorus de Luxe said to be one of the handsomest and most versatile ever seen outside of the metropolis.

An outlay of over twenty thousand dollars is reperesented in the latest creations from abroad, the houses of Poirett, Redfren, Gordon, Mmes, Francis, Dugan, Orpha Costuming Company, and Williamaker being represented, the gowns being shown to advantage in twelve of New York's most famous models.

Two More Transports Leave For Canada

The Regina and Empress of Britain Bring Troops From Kinmel Camp.

LONDON, March 25.—The troopship Regina left Liverpool on Saturday for Halifax with 36 officers and 1,700 other ranks from Kinmel, two officers and 22 men from Bramshott, 34 from Buxton, and 80 air force cadets.

The Canadian camping season in England starts, weather permitting, on March 25. As many troops as possible will be taken from billets and placed under canvas.

Mr. J. A. Morris Gave An Address In Public Library

Last evening, in the Lecture Hall of the Public Library Building, Mr. F. J. A. Morris delivered a lecture on "Wordsworth and the Romantic Revival." The lecture was under the auspices of the local branch of the Women's Art Association, and those who attended enjoyed a delightful literary treat. Mrs. Vincent Eastwood, president of the W. A. A., occupied the chair. A vote of appreciation was moved by Mr. A. Mowat, seconded by Mr. Arthur Stevenson and tendered Mr. Morris.

Open Letter to Mr. J. H. Burnham, M.P.

J. H. Burnham, Esq., M.P.

Dear Sir,—In last night's Examiner you still try to justify the raid on the Dominion Treasury, by which each member will then receive $4,000.00 sessional indemnity, in addition to his free railroad transportation:

You state that a member of Parliament usually receives from twenty-five to forty letters. I suppose you mean each day. There are others who have quite a large correspondence, and who absorb it in an hour.

You say that no man in public or private life has such long hours of hard work as a member of Parliament, and you further say that they extend, on an average, from nine o'clock in the morning until two o'clock next morning.

Those hours only extend to those members who are on the still hunt for the liquor vote. The other fellows keep respectable hours and no not need to be pulling off these two-o'clock-in-the-morning stunts.

You say that the lawyers have increased the lawyers' tariff. You, as a solicitor, know that if a man does not desire to have a solicitor do his work he may have some one else do it, but the case of a member of Parliament is different. If they all combine they can agree to declare legal, the reaching into the Trasury for $4,000.00 a piece, even if a large proportion of the members are only qualified to run a one-horse peanut-stand.

The position to take, and the position that hundreds of thousands of people in this country will take, is that you and your fellow-members have no moral right to vote an increase of salary to yourselves, without the express approval of and a mandate from the people. You know yourself that you cannot earn, practising as a solicitor, a net income of $2,500.00 a year. The lawyer who is earning $4,000.00 a year works the whole year for it, and there are mighty few who earn that income unless they are tied up to some of the big corporations or have friends in the Borden Government.

The people in the last few years have made enormous sacrifices, and every man, woman and child for the next generation will require to make great financial sacrifices, and you should appreciate that and not add to their burdens by voting to yourself and others a $4,000.00 sessional indemnity. You have had warning enough that if this is done and the people of this country are burdened with much more taxation, the Borden Government will get a jolt from which it will never recover, and there will be mighty few faces now in the House, seen there after the next general election.

You talk about serving private and public interests. In voting this salary to yourself you are serving your own private interests, and you are neglecting your duty to the public interests which you are duty bound to protect, and which, I thought up to the present time you would make some effort to protect.—Yours truly,

C. N. Cordon.

DE VALERA REFUSES PUBLIC RECEPTION IN DUBLIN

Cannot Accept, Says Irish 'President.'

(Special to The Examiner.)

DUBLIN, March 26.—Prof. Edward De Valera, Head of the Irish Republic, has announced that he cannot accept the public reception planned for him here to-day.

Recent reports from Dublin said that De Valera, who has been in hiding since his escape from Lincoln prison, would appear in Dublin to-day to take over his duties as head of the new Irish Government.

PROCLAIM MARTIAL LAW IN SPAIN

Government Will Suppress All Disorders—Trouble in Barcelona.

(Special to The Examiner.)

MADRID, March 26.—Martial law was in effect throughout Spain to-day. The action followed the renewed demonstrations in Barcelona and other centres where the food situation is difficult. An announcement was made that the government will act firmly to suppress disorders.

Russian Situation Is Still Uncertain

Advance in Siberia — Reverse on Murman Coast—Mobilize Russian Navy

Special to the Examiner:

LONDON, March 26. — Admiral Kolchak, advancing forty miles along the right of the Kama River and Omsk region, pierced the Bolshevik lines on a front of thirty miles near Ossa and Okhansk, according to advices received here to-day.

Archangel Front.

On the Archangel front the Allies began an offensive on Sunday between Onega and Obozerskaya, but failed to make progress. On the Dvina front the Bolsheviki advanced southward, although their losses were heavy.

Mobilize Navy.

War Minister Trotsky has ordered the mobilization of the Kieva torpedo division of the Soviet Navy, a despatch from Helsingfors reported. Two dreadnoughts also were ordered to Kronstadt, but were unable to proceed owing to the bad condition of their engines.

OAK HALL
M. J. MAHER, Manager

ANNEXATION WAS DISCUSSED

it was unintentional. Men were asked to attend but he did not know where they lived.

At this juncture of the meeting, Mr. G. W. Hatton moved that Mr. T. E. Bradburn be appointed the chairman ,and so Mr. Bradburn, who also "came only to listen," found himself chairman.

The new territory that the city proposes to take in its embrace will be over 800 acres, and Crown Attorney Hatton made it quite plain that "he only came to listen," and then waded into a speech which suited to a "T" the sentiments of the meeting. There was no doubt about the sentiment of the meeting which was against annexation, and their chief objection seemed to be the raise in taxes.

Not in Favour.

"I am not in favor of taking North Monaghan into the city," declared Mr. Hatton "We as citizens of North Monaghan are not going to gain anything by going into the city. The sewer now has more to do than it can take care of," (and here Ald. Turner started to jot down the points of the opposite camp, and somebody said in a loud voice, that "this was an indignation meeting.")

"If the city of Peterboro needs the lands of North Monaghan for better ing the city, North Monaghan will respond as soon as the city can show that North Monaghan will receive any benefit."

Vacant Land.

"The land from Park street to the western boundary of the city," said he, spanning the area on the map with his hand, "has been in the city for the past 45 years, but still one third of it is vacant and waiting for houses. There are hundreds of acres in the city now which could take care of a huge population. The property just west of Gilmour street was taken into the city seven years ago at the request of a Hamilton syndicate, and now there are two houses on 78 lots. This proposition is not fair to Ashburnham. We will build a lovely bridge for them, they have beautiful lots, but still the city says, 'We will move down to the south end.' I have no personal objection to coming into the city but as a matter of principle it isn't fair to have North Monaghan enter the city to pay city taxes for privileges which we can't possibly get for 40 or 50 years. The Ontario Railway and Municipal Board must be satisfied will benefit both the city and the township. It is no benefit to the city to take in farms three or four miles out."

Ald. Turner—"We are suggesting that the taxes be fixed for ten years."

"We don't want to pay city taxes at all," said somebody in the audience.

"You want to be near your place of labor," said Ald. Turner rising, "I'm a working man myself——" "In a motor car," interrupted the Crown Attorney.

"I get to work every morning at 7 o'clock," continued Mr. Turner. "The lots in the north end and in the east are all very well for men who go down to their office at 9 o'clock in the morning. Then you want a good garden."

"You can't keep a pig if you do have a garden," came from another quarter of the hall.

Ald. Morrison was there and listened attentively to both speakers.

Ald. Turner packed his maps in his "bouquet" box; Mr. Hatton picked up his gold headed cane, and muttered something indistinguishable when he reached the cinder road, and the rest of the company whistled and hummed "Home, Sweet Home," as they departed in different directions for their homes—still outside the city.

Lindsay Wants Another Industry

Not Satisfied With Sam Hughes Gift of the Arsenal.

The Lindsay Warder pays Peterboro a right handed compliment when it says that Peterboro is always hustling after new industries, referring to the bid made by this city to have a Ford Motor Car Company plant established here. The Ford interests are looking over several towns in Ontario with a view to locating a new factory which will manufacture the proposed new low-priced Ford Car.

The Lindsay Warder asks:

"What chance has Lindsay?"

Barrie has feelers out in the same direction and then the wail comes in that Peterboro is always hustling after new industries and that Peterboro has made a tempting offer to the Ford concern.

A member of the Lindsay Board of Trade," says Lindsay, "hasn't a ghost of a chance", but anyway "we might let Mr. Henry Ford know that we are at least progressive enough to make a bid for the industry."

It is stated that Orillia also wants the new factory located in their town.

Mr. F. I. Fox of the Ford Motor Co., flatly denies the rumour that the Ford Company is looking for a location for a new factory. A Lindsay firm is in receipt of a letter from Mr. Fox, who asks, "who is the perpetrator of the article. It is nothing but newspaper talk," he says.

"BRINGING UP FATHER AT HOME"

Commensurate with his promise to contribute something novel each season in the way of stage concoctions, Manager Gus Hill announces the latest edition of George McManus' cartoons, "Bringing Up Father." The new play which is in three acts and which is welded to jingling and infectious music is entitled, "Bringing Up Father at Home." It will be seen at the Grand Opera House on Saturday, March 29, matinee and evening.

A cast of fully fifty people includes, besides a chorus of twenty-five pert, bewitching and beautiful young women, three capital exponents of musical comedy, namely, John E. Cain, Lida Kane and Blanche Newcomb. Mr. Cain will have the part of "Father," a role which he created about five years ago when the McManus comics were first referred from the newspapers to the lights. It is needless to say that will give a good account of him as Kane, who was the original "Mother" returns to resume the duties of the wife to the most beloved Irishman known to fiction. This season "Father" is surrounded by many new friends in addition to the members of his illustrious household.

Of course, as in the past, his ambitions run to exalted and prodigious heights. How they are thwarted, subjugated and finally achieved forms the basis of the most delightful entertainment ever arranged by the most successful and withal canable of up-to-date producers of modern theatres. In this particular enterprise Mr. Hill has struck a new note in providing fun of a sort calculated to meet with the approval of the most exacting seeker after wholesome amusement. At least a dozen song hits and specially composed musical numbers will be introduced along with headline specialties, features, innovations, novelties and other surprises and worth while entertainment. Seats on sale now.

THOUGHT IT WAS A BOIL

Doctor Said Abscess.

Mr. Gleason R. Young, Kingscroft N.B., under date of Feb. 9th, 1918 writes us as follows: "About five months ago, a lump came on my jaw bone. I thought it was a boil, and after it had been there quite a while it began to get larger. I went to a doctor and he said it was an abscess, and lanced it. He gave me a wash for it, so I went by his directions until it healed up, but it commenced coming again, and in about three weeks it broke itself. I thought it would get better, but it didn't. A neighbour advised me to get a bottle of Burdock Blood Bitters, so I sent and got a bottle, and by the time it was all gone, the abscess had disappeared, and now it is all better."

Burdock Blood Bitters will heal and dry up sores, ulcers, and abscesses, no matter how large or of how long standing. If you have never applied it to a cut, wound, sore or ulcer, just try it and see what soothing, healing, cleansing power it possesses. It takes out itching, stinging and burning, and promotes the growth of healthy flesh. So, too, when taken internally, by its power of eliminating all impurities from the blood and making that vital fluid rich, red and pure, it cuts off the origin and source of the foul matter that goes to make boils, pimples, sores, ulcers, abscesses and the like, and at the same time the purified and enriched blood creates healthy tissue where there was formerly, perhaps, a sore full of pus.

Burdock Blood Bitters has been on the market for 40 years. Manufactured only by The T. Milburn Co., Limited, Toronto, Ont.

HAVE DARK HAIR AND LOOK YOUNG

NOBODY CAN TELL WHEN YOU DARKEN GRAY, FADED HAIR WITH SAGE TEA.

Grandmother kept her hair beautifully darkened, glossy and attractive with a brew of Sage Tea and Sulphur. When ever her hair took on that dull, faded or streaked appearance, this simple mixture was applied with wonderful effect. By asking at any drug store for "Wyeth's Sage and Sulphur Compound," you will get a large bottle of this old time recipe, improved by the addition of other ingredients, all ready to use, for about 50 cents. This simple mixture can be depended upon to restore natural color and beauty to the hair.

A well known downtown druggist says everybody uses Wyeth's Sage and Sulphur Compound now because it darkens so naturally and evenly that nobody can tell it has been applied. It's so easy to use, too. You simply dampen a comb or soft brush and draw it through your hair, taking one strand at a time. By morning the gray hair disappears; after another application or two it is restored to its natural color and looks glossy, soft and beautiful. This preparation is a delightful toilet requisite. It is not intended for the cure, mitigation or prevention of disease.

ART ASSOCIATION OF PETERBORO

(An Appreciation By W. H. Pretty.)

The ladies of the Art Association of Peterboro, having for some four and a half years or more given their services to the noble work of aiding the appeals of humanity in the cause of those following the arts of war, in the righteous cause of defence against brutal influences; are now returning to their old routine work and ambitions in the cause of the arts of peace.

Only a few weeks has passed by since this association gave an exhibition of arts and handicraft work which well repaid a visit and, when some fine examples of combined art and handicraft skill were on view, indicating throughout that interdependence of art and handicraft skill which is ever a necessary factor in producing those individual beautiful results which no machine, however complex, can produce, either from the viewpoint of excellence, appeal, durability, or intrinsic value.

We have during the past week, had another opportunity of seeing the work of those possessing artistic and handicraft skill, but of another kind. On the former occasion the exhibits covered a wide field and represented or rather let us say illustrated, the fact that there is no restriction on media for expressing artistic skill for work covered by this exhibition represented book binding, leatherwork, woodwork, embroidery, painting, metal work, etc. The exhibition for the past few days, however, was almost entirely devoted to etching and mezzotint and associated arts. There has been a great revival in this latter work, and the Society of Painter Etchers in England are revivifying what almost promised to be a lost art. Many fine and rare examples of mezzotint are to be found in Canada belonging to the period of about one century ago, when this essentially English art was at its best; on the other hand the distant art of etching has many friends and adherants, chiefly on account of the fact that artists possess in it a medium which enables them to express their individuality in an almost inimitable manner, and enables the connoisseur immediately to recognize their work and its merits.

The work of the Association is not restricted to class or creed and all exhibitions and lectures held under the auspices of its members are open to the public. Those of the young people who possess ambitions and abilities in the field of art and handicrafts will find a hearty and cheery welcome at any exhibition or lecture given, and which are always advertised in the local press. Art is one of the greatest of democrats and distributes her treasures and gifts often of priceless value, in the most unlikely places, which like the gems delved from the rocks and sands, can be cut and polished in kindly hands to shed their radiance abroad for the benefit of all.

Arrests Follow Strange Deaths in Automobiles

Police Aroused by Two Murders and Fatal Accident.

NEW YORK, March 26.—Police investigation into three automobile deaths—two of them obviously murders—led to the arrest of two men, and a widespread search for at least four other persons involved in the three entirely separate occurences. In one instance a woman died as a result of a brutal attack in an automobile; in another a man was shot and killed by passengers he was "giving a lift," and in the third case a young woman was instantly killed when thrown from an automobile which the police declare was recklessly driven.

The woman who died as a result of an attack was Mrs. Florence Coyne, twenty-five years old, of Tuckahoe, N.Y. She was found in company with Ernest Fritz, a public hackman, also of Tuckahoe, who was arrested on a charge of homicide after a police investigation and an autopsy, which established the cause of death.

Policeman George Lies, of the Bronx Park Station, was riding through Bronx Park, near Rosedale and Newhall avenues, early yesterday morning when he saw Fritz bending over the Coyne woman, who was lying half in and half out of an automobile. Fritz said that she had suddenly collapsed, and that he knew nothing about her.

Later at he Bronx Park Station, Fritz admitted that he had been riding with the young woman all day after having met her at her place of employment, the Industrial Acceptances Corporation, of No. 4- Park Row.

He said that he had known Mrs. Coyne for two years, but denied emphatically that he was in any way responsible for her death. He was locked up after an autopsy at the Fordham Mohgue had shown the woman to have died as a result of mistreatment and the shock of a terrible beating. Her jaw and nose were broken and she was frightfully bruised about the shoulders.

The second murder committed in an automobile occurred early yesterday morning also. Dominick Rizzo, of No. 1,027 East 225th Street, was instantly killed by two men, who according to the dead man's brother, Michael, had asked for a ride downtown.

Michael Rizzo told the police that the men got into the car at White Plains avenue and 219th Street after hauling his brother and begging for a ride downtown. They asked him to drive to the Bronx Park station, where one of them went inside and returned to say that "Smithy is still in there."

Then the men asked to be driven down to 238th Street and when Dominick Rizzo stopped at that point, they suddenly fired two shots, killing him instantly. Michael Rizzo ran for help, and when Dr. Steppia arrived he found the surviving brother in such a condition that he required medical atention.

The police were unable to shake his story regarding the slaying of Dominick and learned from two sisters, Julia and Lucile Acker, of No. 3,036 Third Avenue that the two brothers had left them but an hour ago before the shooting and that they were on the best of terms and in the best of humor.

Whole of Europe Soon Bolsheviki

Says Bolshevik Representative in United States—Germany Next.

Special to the Examiner:

NEW YORK, March 26.—The German Government, as now constituted, will be the next to fall under the sway of Bolshevism, said L. C. A. K. Martens, representative of the Russian Soviet Government to the United States, to-day.

This does not mean, he said, that the Bolshevik armies will invade, but that the Bolshevik in that nation will overthrow the Government. "Russia and Gungary are now under Bolshevik dominance. Roumania will follow soon," he asserted. "Any day now we may hear that the Bolsheviks are in control in Germany."

SCHOOL GIRL TELLS OTHERS

How They Can Find Relief From Periodic Sufferings.

Nashua, N.H.—"I am ninety years old and every month for two years I had such pains that I would faint and have to have medical. I had such pains I did not know what to do with myself and tried so many remedies that were of no use. I read about Lydia E. Pinkham's Vegetable Compound in the newspapers and decided to try it, and that is how I found relief from pain and am so much better than I was. When I hear of any girl suffering as I did I tell them how Lydia E. Pinkham's Vegetable Compound helped me."—DELINA MARTIN, 20 Spruce St., Nashua, N.H.

Lydia E. Pinkham's Vegetable Compound made from native roots and herbs contains no narcotic or harmful drugs, therefore is a perfectly safe remedy to give your daughter, who suffers from such painful periods as did Miss Martin.

The record of many girls who write Lydia E. Pinkham Medicine Co., Lynn, Mass., for advice, is because from their 40 years experience they have a store of knowledge which is invariably helpful.

HUNS WANT BRITISH FINANCIAL COMMISSION

Will Stay in Berlin.

(Special to The Examiner.)

LONDON, March 26.—A News Agency despatch from Berlin, relayed by way of Copenhagen, says the British Economic Commission at Spa invited the German government on Monday to send a financial commission to that city so as to insure a speedy and unimpeded communication with the German Government.

EYESTRAIN

Eyestrain is the most widely spread of all eye disorders. Its effects are farther reaching and more disastrous than all other forms of eye trouble combined. To neglect to wear proper glasses is to court sure, certain and probably terrible disaster in the future. By procuring glasses here which will at once relieve your eyestrain this danger will be removed.

We grind the glasses to fit your individual needs. You select the mountings to fit your individual tastes.

CANADIAN GENERAL ELECTRIC COMPANY HAD GOOD YEAR

Surplus Now Half of Capital Stock —Increased Net—Huge War Business.

A year of great progress and prosperity is shown by the annual report of the Canadian General Electric Company, whose annual meeting took place in Toronto on Monday. War business provided the company with great orders, various plant extensions were made, and there is a residue of contracts which will keep the company going for some months. Beyond that no prophecy is made by President Frederic Nicholls other that the company expects to share in the business which should follow the return of the anticipated normal conditions in industry. The great increase in profits last year has aided in making the company's financial position still more strong. Net profits for the year amounted to $1,136,483, an increase of $782,886 over 1917, and, after paying dividends of eight per cent. on common and seven per cent. on preferred, there remained a surplus of $656,483. This added to the balance from 1917, made a total of $1,122,776, from which $600,000 has been transferred to reserve, which the balance of $522,776 of last year, the balance of $5562,776 for last year, makes a total surplus of $1,122,776, which is equal to over fifty per cent. of the par value of the company's shares, both common and preferred. There is now a reserve for depreciation of $4,336,182, or over 33 per cent. of the book value of the entire capital assets of the company. Another point of strength is that the company has no outstanding bonds, debentures, mortgages or prior liens, with the one exception of an existing mortgage on property purchased of $22,500, not yet due.

	1918	1917	1916
Gross profits	$2,013,996	$2,051,609	$2,225,912
Depreciation	577,512	524,317	408,887
Amortization	.....	393,694	631,603
Net profits for year	$1,436,483	$1,133,596	$1,185,420
Dividend	780,000	780,000	779,843
Surplus for year	$656,483	$353,596	$405,577
Previous balance	466,293	612,696	707,119
Total profit and loss	$1,122,776	$966,293	$1,112,696
Transfer reserve	600,000	500,000	500,000
Balance	$522,776	$466,293	$612,696
Reserve	4,600,000	4,000,000	3,500,000
Surplus	$5,122,776	$4,466,293	$4,112,696

Large Current Assets.

A significant feature of the consolidated balance sheets is the fact that there is a very large surplus of current assets over all liabilities outside of capital stock. The total current assets standing at $9,393,278, as compared with $8,557,946 in 1917. The total assets now stand at $21,692,471, a gain of about $1,500,000 during the year.

The old board of directors were re-elected with the exception of the late Sir Rodolphe Forget, whose place has not yet been filled.

Huge War Business.

President Nicholls' report to the shareholders on Monday reviewing operations during the war period, pointed out that during the last four years the company manufactured and shipped orders for munitions valued at $15,287,284, of which $13,682,539 was through the Imperial Munitions Board, $130,318 to the British Admiralty, and $1,474,426 to the United States army. Early last year, anticipating the termination of the war, operations were directed along the line of marine engineering, and at the end orders were on hand amounting to 5,490,707, of which approximately $4,000,000 was carried forward into 1919.

The company's financial position may perhaps be better studied by the following table setting forth the principal items from the annual statements for the last three years:

The Members of the Girls' Aux.

There were about twenty guests present and the remainder of the evening was spent with music. A light lunch was served at eleven-thirty, after which the party dispersed, after general thanks to Mrs. Lucas for her hospitality.

"The Store for Good Values"

IN JEOPARDY

The whole "Smashing Through" company, with Herbert Rawlinson as its star, was placed in jeopardy and dexterously extracted in the short space of sixty seconds by little Sally Starr, the leading lady.

The entire cast of this Herbert Rawlinson Special Attraction, which will be seen for the first time at the Grand Theatre on Friday, was in the bottom of a mine two hundred feet from the surface, preparing to shoot several atmospheric scenes, for which a member of the cast was equipped with a little candle which miners use. Miss Starr got tired of holding her candle while the camera was being set up, and put it down on an innocent-looking box.

The candle flickered cheerily there for several moments unnoticed, when an assistant property boy kicked his foot against it. "Dynamite! Run!" he shouted, and scrambled up the ladder leading to home and mother as though a boche were after him.

Excitement broke out like the measles in that shaft, and Clifton, Rawlinson, Harry DeGrasse, and all of the other members of the cast tumbled over the legs of the camera, the artificial lights, and all of the paraphernalia, in order to get at the little light smiling so cheerfully in a box of dynamite sufficient to blow the whole top of the mine off. A little drop of burning wax fell down and lighted a torn part of the paper-lining of the box. The heroes who were so anxious to get at the light now turned their utmost attention to getting away from it. Only little Sally Starr had the presence of mind enough to do anything. Leaning over the candle that she herself had placed on the dynamite, she blew with all her might, and with one blow extinguished both the candle and the excitement which had thrown a panic into the "Smashing Through" troupe.

Presentation to Miss L. Melton

A very pleasant evening was spent last night at the home of Mrs. H. Lucas, 71 Patterson street, when the members of the Girls' Auxiliary (late Red Cross Ass'n.) of All Saints' church met and presented Miss Lillian Melton with a miscellaneous shower. Miss Melton is shortly sailing for England, and was the recipient of many handsome gifts of linen, silver and china. These were carried into the dining room where the girls were assembled, on a large silver tray, borne by little Gwendolyn Lucas and Genevieve Price. Both little girls were very prettily dressed, one in pale blue and the other in pale pink, which added greatly to the effect. The following address was then read:

Dear Miss Melton,—We the members of the Girls' Auxiliary, recently the Red Cross Society of All Saints' [illegible]

"Power" and Sun Life Relations

Significance of Appointment of T. B. Macaulay to Holt Institution.

MONTREAL.—The appointment this week of T. B. Macaulay, president of the Sun Life Assurance Company, to the directorate of the Montreal Light, Heat and Power Consolidated (Civic investment) suggests an interesting rapprochement between two or more big financial powers. At once the name of Sir Herbert Holt comes up, president of the Montreal Light, Heat and Power Co., also of the Royal Bank, and a director in turn of the Sun Life Assurance Company. It is understood that Sir Herbert Holt is one of the chief advisers of the Sun Life in regard to investments. Some months ago the Sun Life was credited with buying a large block of Montreal Power, which, in turn, suggests that "M. P." will not always be on a 4, or even a 5 per cent. dividend basis.

There has been another coincidence the last few weeks along similar lines: Robert Adair was chosen a director of the Montreal Trust Co. (controlled by the Royal Bank); a director of the Sun Life, and a director of the Royal Bank.

Market Clerk Was Re-appointed

PLUMBERS WILL BRING AN INSPECTOR FROM TORONTO.

At a meeting of the Property Committee held last evening at which Ald. Hamilton, (chairman), Mayor Duncan, Ald. McIntyre, Ald. Edgar and Ald. Phelan were present, Mr. W. Hisher, who has been market clerk for a number of years, was reappointed. His tender was $700.

A letter was read from Mr. Wesley Rose, secretary of the local Plumbers' Association, that the association would at their own expense bring a plumbing inspector from Toronto to inspect local plumbing, if the committee would take action on his report.

On motion of Ald. Edgar, seconded by the Mayor, the Plumbers' Association, may bring an inspector to the city, and that the committee is willing to receive a report giving particulars of the place and conditions found.

The Inspector will be brought before the committee before any action is taken.

J. J. Turner & Sons wrote a letter saying that $5 should be the limit for the rent of land on which their sign on the Otonabee River stands.—Referred to the Manufacturers' Committee.

A man who neglects his own business can't be trusted to look after other people's affairs.

Bathing Question Was Exhumed Last Evening

Mr. A. G. Roberts, Mr. J. W. Wood, Mr. B. F. Ackerman, Mr. W. G. Henderson and Mrs. W. R. Morris, a delegation from the Playgrounds Association met a special committee last evening, when the subject of bathing places was thoroughly discussed. The whole committee held the view that it was about time to make a move and Ald. J. Hamilton moved, seconded by Ald. Gainey that the City Clerk write to the Liquidation Committee of the Imperial Munitions Board asking them if they could procure material from the aerodromes for bathing houses and at what cost. The Quaker Oats Co., will also be asked if the bunk house on the east side of the river owned by the company could be procured for the same purpose.

Pierced the Enemy's Front

Canadian Press:

LONDON, March 26. — Reuter's learns in messages from Omsk, Russia, that General Kolchak's army pierced the enemy's front on a thirty-mile breadth and advanced nearly 40 miles along the right bank of the Kama River, and has already captured the towns of Okhansk and Osea. The Red army is being pursued in three directions, abandoning large quantities of war stores and many prisoners. The enemy's position is precarious.

MEAT INJURIOUS TO THE KIDNEYS

Take a tablespoonful of Salts if Back hurts or Bladder bothers —Meat forms uric acid.

We are a nation of meat eaters and our blood is filled with uric acid, says a well-known authority, who warns us to be constantly on guard against kidney trouble.

The kidneys do their utmost to free the blood of this irritating acid, but become weak from the overwork; they get sluggish; the eliminative tissues clog and thus the waste is retained in the blood to poison the entire system.

When your kidneys ache and feel like lumps of lead, and you have stinging pains in the back or the urine is cloudy, full of sediment, or the bladder is irritable, obliging you to seek relief during the night; when you have severe headaches, nervous and dizzy spells, sleeplessness, acid stomach or rheumatism in bad weather, get from your pharmacist about four ounces of Jad Salts; take a tablespoonful in a glass of water before breakfast each morning and in a few days your kidneys will act fine. This famous salts is made from the acid of grapes and lemon juice, combined with lithia, and has been used for generations to flush and stimulate clogged kidneys, to neutralize the acids in urine so it is no longer a source of irritation, thus ending urinary and bladder disorders.

Jad Salts is inexpensive and cannot injure; makes a delightful effervescent lithia-water drink, and nobody can make a mistake by taking a little occasionally to keep the kidneys clean and active.

Despised Foods Again Favoured

Correcting Stomach Faults With Stuart's Dyspepsia Tablets Has Revived the Doughnut, Pie And Other Good Home-Made American Dishes.

The shortage of help has taken thousands of women back to their own kitchens to do their own cooking. And how naturally they should revive the cookie, doughnut, pie and other distinctly American dishes. But the recipes have been revised; flour is coarser and different; less wheat and more of other kinds, and a lot of indigestion was complained of.

It is gratifying to know you can safely eat any kind of flour food without consequent distress. Simply take a Stuart's Dyspepsia Tablet after meals. No other does it aid digestion, but it arouses the stomach to secrete the juices necessary to relieve sourness, gas, bloat, etc., the sense of stuffing and the drowsiness that so often follows the good things you eat.

Try these tablets and you will then realize why millions they have not only to assist digestion, but as contributing in a remarkable degree to the sense of comfort and well being. Stuart's Dyspepsia Tablets are sold in all drug stores at 50 cents a box, and throughout the United States and Canada.

Gottfried Krueger, Wealthy Brewer, is Back From Germany

Newark Man, Property Seized by Government, Held By Ill Health Since Outbreak of War.

Gottfried Kruger, wealthy brewer of Newark, arrived on board the Noordam, which docked at Hoboken. Mr. Kruger, who is nearly eighty-two years old, has been in Germany since before the beginning of the war in 1914. In his absence his vast property holdings in this country have been taken over by the Enemy Alien Property Custodian. Accompanying him was his wife, his son, William, and his son-in-law, James Smith, 3d, of Newark.

The son and son-in-law recently went to Holland to bring the aged couple home. Mr. Kruger has been in ill health almost from the time he left this country, in May, 1914, and it was because of ill health that he was prevented from coming back to this country, according to his family.

When the Noordam docked Mr. Kruger was unable to see any one. He had been confined to his stateroom during the entire trip. He sent out word, however, that he was glad to be back. He remained on board the ship overnight.

Mr. Kruger and his wife left for Germany in May, 1914, on their annual trip to his birthplace, in Baden, Germany, and while he and his wife were there the war began. He wrote to his family here that he would remain in Germany until the war was over, expecting that the end would be in a few months.

When this country entered the war Mr. Kruger found himself stranded in Germany. He made several unsuccessful attempts to leave the country. He was ill most of the time, and this aided in holding him back. In February, 1918, A. Mitchell Palmer took over all the property in this country belonging to Mr. Kruger, which included the brewery holdings in Newark.

Mr. Kruger came to this country in 1883, and arriving with less than a dollar in his pocket, went to work for an uncle, who owned a brewery in Newark. He prospered, and is to-day a millionaire.

In 1870 he was elected to the New Jersey Legislature, and a few years later was made Judge of the New Jersey Court of Errors and Appeals. He was chairman of the Essex County Democratic Committee in 1892 and 1893.

Mr. Kruger, after his first success in the brewing business, became interested in traction companies and banks. He owns much realty in Newark.

MINERS' DELEGATES WILL DECIDE TO-DAY

May Be Nation-wide Strike—Nationalization is Deferred.

(Special to The Examiner.)

LONDON, March 26.—The miners' delegates were to decide to-day whether a nation-wide strike shall be called immediately. Negotiations are still under way with the government, but many of the miners are becoming restless at the seeming inaction of their representatives. The government is ready to concede partially to the strikers' demands regarding higher wages and shorter hours, but has asked that the nationalization of the mines be deferred until the Parliamentary Commission can conduct a further investigation. The railway workers to-day began negotiations on points of their national programme which the government's compromise offer did not touch.

Daylight Saving In St. Thomas

Three Railways Will Be Governed By U.S. Action—Much Confusion Likely.

ST. THOMAS, March 24. — Commencing next Sunday, the Pere Marquette, Michigan Central and Wabash Railways in this city will carry on operations under the 1919 Daylight Saving Act recently adopted in the United States. The change will take place at 2 a.m. It will no doubt result in a number of perplexing difficulties, however, especially in connection with the G. T. R.-Wabash line, as no instructions have yet been received respecting any such change of time on the G.T.R., and unless such notice is received, employees working in the same offices and shops will be governed by different time regulations, which will necessarily be most confusing. The passenger service, running one hour ahead of the city time, will also create much trouble. It is quite probable that the matter will be dealt with by the City Council, and that a largely-signed petition will be sent to the Federal Government asking for the adoption of daylight saving in Canada again this year.

"TRUE ARTISTS"

In an article entitled "Is Peterborough a Musical City," which appeared in the Examiner last evening, in speaking of the symphony orchestra under the leadership of Professor Gliddon, through a typographical error, the article read that the orchestra was composed of "true artists, while the original text read "composed of true artists, who either do not have to or will not force themselves upon the public for material reasons."

Lakefield Concert Was Big Success

Interesting Programme Was Provided—The Cast.

Lakefield, March 26. — The entertainment given last evening under the auspices of the Epworth League of the Methodist church, was a great success. The programme consisted mainly of a two act farce, "Marjorie Makes Good," given by 16 young people of the League. The natural way that the parts were taken added not a little to the enjoyment. The lack of the stereotyped performance so common in amateur productions, showed not only talent among the performers but careful training.

Well Taken.

The parts were all so well taken that special mention seems out of place, but "Marjorie" (Miss Alice Hill), who took the part of the dowdy village girl, who was transformed into the belle of the party, and who won a lover and a fortune within a week was one of the best.

Miss Irene Madill, who took the heaviest part of the play, was especially good and without any effort made every word audible even to those in the back of the hall.

Miss Effie Webster as "Nora," the incompetent, happy go lucky Irish maid, made a decided hit and her rendering of the song, "When I dream of old Erin I'm dreaming of you," was very pleasing.

Miss Eva Jory took a rather difficult part splendidly. She was "Aunt Jane," who tried to force her company on a group of jolly young people.

Mr. Kenneth Madill was a typical unconventional college boy and played the part of "Philip," very cleverly. He was ably supported by Messrs Welbourne, Erskine, Frankish, Payne and Little.

The singing of college songs and choruses, made a little variety. Miss Hill sang a solo sweetly and received great applause. Mr. Warren Payne sang a solo and Misses Madill, Botterill and Webster and Mrs. Madill officiated at the piano to turn.

The cast of characters was as follows:

The Cast

Marjorie—Miss Alice Hill.
Josephine—Miss Irene Madill.
Nora—Miss Effie Webster.
Iva—Miss Elmeta Hull.
Doris—Miss Vera Botterill.
Edith—Miss Olive Jory.
Helen—Miss Blanch Dashfo[illegible]
Alice—Miss Millie Lemay.
Aunt Jane—Miss Eva Jory.
Mother—Mrs. Burke.
Philip—Kenneth Madill.
Raymond—Ray Welbourne.
Capithone—Frank Erskine.
Lampkin—Warren Payne.
Kimball—W. Franklin.
Vanderhoof—Russell Little.

Among the other numbers on the program was a vocal duet by Misses Mary Hill and Addie Batty and a piano duet by Misses Eva Kilmoyl and Jean Erskine.

Major H. A. Frost filled the office of chairman in the usual pleasing manner and announced before the close of the entertainment that the proceeds amounted to $[illegible] on the eve-

Reminiscenes of Fife Picnics

The following article, which appeared in the Examiner some years ago, was recalled by Mr. James Heal, [illegible] is staying with his son, Mr. [illegible] Heal, 217 Princess street:

Several years ago, the late Dr. Fife, Mr. J. A. Fife, of the Collegiate Institute, and the late Mrs. Alex. Fife, of Otonabee, were the moving spirits in the organization of the Fife Picnics, for many years the occasion of the annual gathering of the clan Fife. The picnics which were usually held in Otonabee where the Fifes do most abound, were discontinued after 12 or 15 years continuance, on the death of two of the promoters and the removal of another to Edmonton, where he is now Superintendent of Schools.

The following poem written for the picnic of 1897, was composed by the late Mrs. Wadby, a daughter of Mr. J. Heal, Dublin street, city, whose wife was a Fife. The poem is of genealogical value and will doubtless revive pleasant memories in many a mind of those who had taken part in the Fife reunions

COMPOSED FOR THE FIFE PICNIC, 1897.

One hundred years ago to-day,
On fair Old Scotia's soil,
Was born a wee bit laddie,
To be a son of toil.

His mother, then a proud woman,
With all a mother's pride,
Called him Johnnie, after the man
Who had ta'en her for his bride.

Now as the ever rolling years,
Were creeping on apace,
Six other little brothers
Were added to their race.

But when this family grew up,
And John was twenty-three
They thought they'd leave old Scotland fair
For Canada so free.

They talked this plan with neighbor near,
And Eason was their name,
They asked them for to join their plan,
And help them share their fame.

So in eighteen hundred and twenty,
When the days were bright and warm,
They boarded a good ship called the Hope,
And braved the ocean's storm.

For six long tedious weeks they sailed,
Ere they reached the land they sought,
Then by the Indian River,
Their new-found homes they bought.

Now, 'twas here their family flourished,
And ever proved to be,
An honest, honored company,
And unbroken family.

Till John, with his six young brothers,
Got married, all but one—
Then to the Fifes that now were left
He was known as "Uncle John."

And when his duty here on earth
He'd done as he knew best,
His loving Master made him come
And enter into rest.

His loving friends around him wept
As they gazed upon his face;
Then bore him to the grave-yard hill,
To be his resting place.

Now all the Fifes that are alive
Have formed one Scottish clan.
And meet to-day in honour of
That loved though long lost man.

Oh! Were not for the friends who're got
To yonder hill to rest—
They'd row with spirits freed from strife
Are gleaming with the blest.

But let each true pleasure seek,
Enjoy the meeting here;
For, lo, the promise is not given
That all may meet next year.

But still we hope that God will spare
Our little Scottish band,
And may it ever prove to be
An honour to the land.

Oh! Could old Scotia only know
The loyal hearts so true,
That gather here from year to year,
She'd be rejoicing too.

Harriet E. Heal, Roseneath.

THE WIFE

BY JANE PHELPS

Brian Realizes the Joy of Helping Others

CHAPTER CLIV

Ruth had not neglected her "war babies," nor their mothers, since Brian's return. Now that he was nearly recovered from his wounds, he visited some of them with her. He told of the bravery of the boys "over there" and gave them all the comfort he could if their soldier husbands were among those who never would return. He became as interested as was Ruth in trying to do all he could for the wives and babies of the men who were lying in Flander's Field. And in ministering to them his own heart was softened, his life made more unselfish.

Mrs. Clayborne still remained in the south, but she sent Ruth all the money she needed for her pet charity. One little woman whose baby was delicate, and the mother-heart almost broken because of the loss of her husband added to the fear she would not keep her child, she told Ruth to send south, and on the old plantation, where Ruth had spent her own childhood days, the baby grew stronger and the young mother more resigned. "Isn't it wonderful what a help it is to oneself to try to make others happy?" questioned Ruth one night as she and Brian sat planning what they could do for one of her war babies' father who had come home terribly maimed.

"Yes, and Ruth had it not been for you I never should have known much about that kind of helplessness. I have been very self-centered all my life, I am afraid. I have looked at things only in the light of affecting Brian Hackett. But between the war and my brave little wife I have learned many things."

"We all have learned to feel differently this last year or two, Brian. Things that loomed so large before seem scarcely worth thinking of now. And things which passed by us because we were engrossed by self, are taking their place. But we'll all get adjusted after a bit."

Ruth was so happy in her home life that she had not one single regret in her heart. She worked faithfully during the morning upon plans from the shop sent her. Mandel paid her generously, and she insisted upon paying Rachel's wages as, without her, she would have been unable to apply herself to her tasks. Finally she and Brian came to the point where there was no more talk, no more feeling, even, about WHO earned the money. It was a common purse, and spent for common needs.

Brian's business did not materialize to any great extent all at once. But gradually clients came to him, some of them rich men whom he charged fair prices. Others soldiers who wanted advice and whom he charged nothing, or just enough so they would not feel objects of charity.

"The rich must pay enough so those who cannot afford to pay can be cared for in the very way hme be cared for in every way," he remarked to Ruth one night in discussing the happenings of the day.

"That's just what Doctor Moore said this morning. Baby has been a bit fretful with his teeth, and I dropped in to see him. A poor woman was there with a sick baby, her husband still overseas. The doctor wouldn't take a penny for what he did for her; and made the same remark you just made; that those who could afford it, must pay for these others as well as for themselves."

Kenyon Roberts was much interested in Brian's change of location. They had grown very intimate since Brian's return. Kenyon never tired of listening to Brian's talks of what had been done; of how the boche had been licked, and of the part the splendid Americans, Canadians and others had played in the result. His inability to go himself because of his lameness, had been a very real and bitter trial. And he often told Brian that it was like being in the fight himself to listen to his, Brian's graphic description.

In all his talk Brian eliminated himself, his own part in the struggle. He was not alone in this; it was a trait common to the men who had returned. Privates as well as officers belittled their own part in the great drama, while they gave all praise to their "buddies"—to the other fellow—no matter what his nationality, so long as he was one of the Allies, and fighting for the same cause.

Finally Kenyon yielded to Brian's urging and took two rooms adjoining those Ruth had fitted up for Brian. While not exactly a partnership, they would be able to work together, in a measure, to the advantage of both.

Kenyon's office was very simply furnished, but he had asked Ruth's advice in selecting his rugs and chairs, so that they would, in a way, not be too different from Brian's when the doors were opened between. She gladly assisted him, and the result fully proved her taste, even when she was very limited as to money.

"A law firm with an interior decorator as a side partner," Brian said laughingly as he kissed her.

To-morrow—Mrs. Clayborne Plans to Help Ruth's "War Babies."

A Tunnel Street.

The strangest city street in the United States is New York's Tunnel street, which was cut through the hill at 191st street and Broadway in Washington Heights more than four years ago. The tunnel, which is now a street, cost $75,000. Persons living at the western end use it to reach the subway station at 191st street and St. Nicholas avenue and elevators at 191st street are at the disposal of those who wish to reach St. Nicholas avenue, many feet above the level of Tunnel street.

THIN PEOPLE SHOULD TAKE PHOSPHATE

Nothing Like Plain Bitro-Phosphate to Put on Firm, Healthy Flesh and to Increase Strength, Vigour and Nerve Force.

Judging from the countless preparations and treatments which are continually being advertised for the purpose of making thin people fleshy, developing arms, neck and bust, and replacing ugly hollows and angles by the soft curves and lines of health and beauty, there are evidently thousands of men and women who keenly feel their excessive thinness.

Thinness and weakness are usually due to starved nerves. Our bodies need more phosphate than is contained in modern foods. Physicians claim there is nothing that will supply this deficiency so well as the organic phosphate known among druggists as bitro phosphate, which is inexpensive and sold by McDermid & Jaw in Peterboro and most all druggists under a guarantee of entire satisfaction or your money back. By feeding the nerves directly and by supplying the body cells with the necessary phosphoric food elements, bitro-phosphate quickly produces a welcome transformation in the appearance; the increase in weight frequently being astonishing.

This increase in weight also carries with it a general improvement in the health. Nervousness, sleeplessness and lack of energy, which nearly always accompany excessive thinness, soon disappear, dull eyes become bright, and pale cheeks glow with the bloom of perfect health.

CAUTION:—Although bitro-phosphate is unsurpassed for relieving nervousness, sleeplessness and general weakness, it should not, owing to its remarkable flesh-growing properties, be used by anyone who does not desire to put on flesh.

Our Power.

Canada is well known to have gone energetically about the utilization of water power, but it will surprise many people to learn that a census of hydro-electric developments in the Dominion shows a total of 2,305,310 turbine horsepower developed. Unless methods of computation have differed radically from those usually employed, Canada has developed nearly half as much water power as the United States. The estimate for the United States was placed in a recent scientific bulletin for the Government at roughly one-tenth the amount which could be utilized without special storage provision, or 5,000,000 horse-power. The Canadian census shows about 1,750,000 horsepower developed in central electric stations, and most of the rest in pulp and paper manufacturies. Ontario and Quebec are furnishing more than two-thirds the total. Only Norway uses more water power per capita.

Evangeline's Home.

The Canadian Pacific Railway has purchased the site of Evangeline's home at Grand Pre, N.S., and will maintain it as a public park. A statue of Evangeline being sculptured by Philippe Hebert at the time of his death will be completed by his son and will be erected on the land. The story of Evangeline has been immortalized by Longfellow in the poem of that name. Upon the site purchased by the C.P.R. remain the well and willows referred to in the poem. The park is within a stone's throw of the birthplace of Sir Robert Borden, Premier of Canada.

ALL CHILDREN LOVE "SYRUP OF FIGS" FOR LIVER AND BOWELS

Give "California Syrup of Figs" at once if bilious or constipated.

Look at the tongue, mother. If coated, it is a sure sign that your little one's stomach, liver and bowels need a gentle, thorough cleansing at once.

When peevish, cross, listless, pale, doesn't sleep, doesn't eat or act naturally, or has feverish, stomach sour, breath bad; has stomach-ache, sore throat, diarrhoea, full of cold, give a teaspoonful of "California Syrup of Figs," and in a few hours all the foul, constipated waste, undigested food and sour bile gently moves out of the little bowels, without griping, and you have a well, playful child again.

You needn't coax sick children to take this harmless fruit laxative; they love its delicious taste, and it always makes them feel splendid.

Ask your druggist for a bottle of "California Syrup of Figs," which has directions for babies, children of all ages and for grown-ups plainly on the bottle. Beware of counterfeits sold here. To be sure you get the genuine, ask to see that it is made by the "California Fig Syrup Company." Refuse any other kind with contempt.

A Gift For the Princess.

In a letter which she has addressed to the wife of the Lieutenant-Governor in each province, Lady Borden suggests a national wedding gift to Princess Patricia of Connaught. "It should, I think," Lady Borden remarks, "be distinctly Canadian, and furs have been suggested as appropriate."

The letter reads:

"The announcement of the engagement of her Royal Highness the Princess Patricia of Connaught has been received with much pleasure and satisfaction throughout the Dominion. During the period of her residence in Canada her Royal Highness by her charm of manner and her kindly and unaffected interest in their welfare, became greatly endeared to our people, and it would seem most fitting that they should, upon the occasion of her marriage, be afforded the opportunity of offering a national wedding gift as a testimonial of their appreciation and regard. It would seem to me that this might take the form of a 'silver shower,' made up of contributions from all who may wish to take part, in sums from the smallest up, so that the participation may be as widespread as possible and from all classes of the community. Donations would, of course, be entirely voluntary and spontaneous.

"The arrangements for the shower would, I think, be most appropriately made through the wives of the Lieutenant-Governors of the several provinces, who would exercise their own judgment and discretion as to the best mode of drawing the matter to the attention of the public within their respective provinces. I suggest that the list might be left open for a period not longer than one month from a date to be fixed later, after definite information is at hand as to the date of the wedding.

"I shall be most grateful if you will kindly write me, expressing your views as to the proposal which I have outlined, also my suggestions which you may be good enough to make as to the form which the gift should take. It should, I think, be distinctively Canadian, and furs have been suggested as appropriate."

PUT CREAM IN NOSE AND STOP CATARRH

Tells How To Open Clogged Nostrils and End Head-Colds.

You feel fine in a few moments. Your cold, head or catarrh will be gone. Your clogged nostrils will open. The air passages of your head will clear and you can breathe freely. No more dullness, headache; no hawking, snuffling, mucous discharges or dryness; no struggling for breath at night.

Tell your druggist you want a small bottle of Ely's Cream Balm. Apply a little of this fragrant, antiseptic cream in your nostrils, let it penetrate through every air passage of the head; soothe and heal the swollen, inflamed mucous membrane, and relief comes instantly.

It is just what every cold and catarrh sufferer needs. Don't stay stuffed-up and miserable.

AN AMERICAN QUEEN.

That Empty Honor May Go to Chicago Girl.

A Chicago girl, who ten years ago was thought to have paid millions for an empty title, is enjoying to-day the possibility of becoming Queen of Portugal.

Princess Anita, wife of Don Miguel of Braganza, and the stepdaughter of the late James Henry ("Silent") Smith, Chicago and New York millionaire, will be the first American woman to become a European queen, if the monarchial movement in Portugal turns to a once scapegrace royalist as a successor to former King Manuel.

Portugal is now a republic, but the monarchial revolution appears to be gaining headway.

Mrs. James Henry Smith became the wife of the Chicago millionaire after she divorced Rhinelander Stewart, of New York. "Silent" Smith died in Japan. In his will he bequeathed half a million dollars to his stepdaughter, who was at that time still untitled Anita Stewart. The major part of his vast fortune was left to his widow.

Reports circulated from Paris recently state that if former King Manuel, who is now on a steamship off Lisbon, is not prepared to return to the throne, a counter-attack by the Royalists against the revolutionists will put on the throne the prince who sought his wife and wealth in America.

Anita Stewart, daughter of Mrs. James Henry Smith by her first marriage, became the wife of Don Miguel, son of Don Miguel, the pretender to the Portugal throne, on Sept. 15, 1909, after a million dollars made on the Chicago Board of Trade and other money markets of the United States has been turned over to the bankrupt coffers of the Portuguese prince. Shortly before the marriage the late Emperor Francis Joseph of Austria gave to the heiress the highest title ever conferred upon an American girl when he proclaimed her a princess.

Miss Stewart was the first American girl to be made a princess before marriage, as she is now the first American-born woman to be mentioned as a possible future queen.

The gown for her wedding was the marvelous pearl robe of the former Shah of Persia, which the girl's mother purchased with several hundred thousand dollars of her millionaire husband's winnings.

Much of the married life of the Portuguese prince and his American wife has been spent in Austria with the prince's father, Miguel, the pretender.

The Duke of Vizen, as the American wife was called [illegible] in London and at the Austrian court, gave birth to a daughter in 1910. The child's titles are Princess of Braganza and Princess (Infanta) of Portugal.

Under the title of the Duke de Vizen, Miguel went into brokers' offices in London in order, he said, to master the intricacies of finance in case his royal aspirations would some day go astray and he would have to become a business man.

As early as 1911 the followers of the elder Portuguese pretender were suggesting that the pretender's elder son was ready to take his American wife to Portugal's throne. The Smith millions have since then been said to be helping the Royalist cause.

The rivalry over the throne of Portugal dates from the year 1828, when Don Miguel the elder declared himself king after kidnapping his infant niece and imprisoning her. Miguel, branded an usurper by the House of Bourbon, was driven from the throne by revolutionists and the crown given to the Bourbon claimant.

The party of the pretender was banished, and Don Miguel directed from the court of Austria his intrigues for the restoration of the monarchy, first in his own name and later in the name of his elder son, Miguel, the stepson-in-law of "Silent" Smith.

But when the young King Manuel became King of Portugal after the assassination of Don Carlos in 1908 the quarrels between the houses of Bourbon and Braganza were reported to have been peaceably ended.

She'd Heard of Them.

The sweet young thing was asking questions. "What are those ships?" she inquired. "Them's men-o'-war," replied the old salt. "Oh! and what are the little ones just in front?" "Them's just tugs." "Oh, yes, of course; tugs-of-war. I've heard of them."

OUR DAILY SHORT STORY

A Forecast

Views, In the Time of Napoleon, of the Future of War

By F. A. MITCHEL

Napoleon, the great Napoleon, was fond of going about incognito among the people he governed and getting from them their views concerning himself and his acts. One day, dressed in ordinary civilian costume, he left the palace by a side door and, walking along the Rue de Rivoli, entered the garden of the Tuileries. That was more than a hundred years ago. The space between the palace and the Place de la Concorde was not then the barren looking area it is now, but a veritable garden filled with flowers.

Napoleon had but recently humbled Prussia, and the French people were celebrating the anniversary of one of his victories. Seeing a young army officer sitting on a bench alone, the emperor took a seat beside him and began a conversation with him.

"Do you think this man Bonaparte," asked Napoleon, "is a great general?"

"I think the Emperor Napoleon to be the greatest general who ever lived," was the reply.

"What! Greater than Julius Caesar?"

"I am not familiar with the campaigns of Caesar."

"Well, young man, if you were you would know that Napoleon is but an imitation of the great Roman."

"That may be; but, if it is, Napoleon is the only imitation we have had in eighteen centuries."

This pleased the emperor very much He inquired the regiment to which the young man belonged and his name. Then he arose from his seat and strolled away. Presently seeing an aged man, the emperor took a seat beside him with a view to drawing his views of experience as he had drawn those of youth.

"Our people," said Napoleon, "seem to be going mad over this Corsican monsieur. What do you think of him?"

"He is the center of one of those storms that periodically sweep over large tracts. They grow fiercer till they reach a climax, then instead of dying slowly, as they started, end suddenly."

Napoleon started, but impurdly; his control of himself, except when he wished to impress some one with the awfulness of his wrath, was perfect. The speaker did not see how deeply his companion had been touched by his words.

"After Napoleon what?" asked the emperor.

"There should be the republic, but France is among a number of nations which this Bonaparte is antagonizing. There is in the Place du Carrousel, in rear of the Tuileries, a bronze group of horses drawing a chariot. This Napoleon took from the Prussians. They will not rest till they get it back. Besides, they will make your children or grandchildren pay a pretty price for its loan to France."

"Why do you think that?" asked the emperor.

"Bonaparte will not stop till he has arrayed every nation in Europe against him. Even his alliance with Austria by his marriage with a daughter of the house of Hapsburg will not keep that people from turning against him when the final united effort to kill him comes."

Napoleon made no reply to this. He sat with folded arms, his chin buried in the ruffles of his shirt front, his beaver hat drawn down over his eyes.

Presently he straightened up and asked:

"What has been your occupation, your sphere in life, monsieur?"

"I have been everything—notary, journalist, historian. Now that my body is not fit for exertion I simply think."

"Will the antagonism excited by Bonaparte live beyond the present century?"

"I think it will."

"And these people he has conquered will revenge themselves on France?"

"They will. These wars of Napoleon will leave France exhausted. The people our descendants have to fear are"—

"The Russians?"

"No; at least not for many years. The Russians have a large territory and enough to do to take care of their own internal affairs."

"The Prussians?"

"Not the Prussians alone. But some future Prussian king will realize that if he can unite the German people he may hurl them against our descendants and crush them. Prussia will never be content till she has recovered all the prestige that has been wrested from her by Bonaparte. I question if she will be strong enough for that without the help of all the German people."

"Well, suppose some king of Prussia unites the Germans and recovers the high position that has been taken from her. What then?"

"What then? Why, France will never be content till she has got it back again."

"How will she do that?"

"Now you are getting beyond the vision of the keenest thinker. Of what shall happen within another century I cannot think. I can only feel."

The old man's face assumed a dreamy expression. There was a far-away look in his eyes. Napoleon turned and fixed his own eyes—eyes that did not dream, but commanded—upon him. Presently the speaker continued:

"A hundred years or more from now our descendants will be much changed. We are passing out of an age of speculative philosophy into one of actualities. This American, Franklin, who was here before the Revolution, has pointed out a new field. I believe there is a valuable power in steam, which another American has already applied to driving a boat. During the present century the people of the civilized world will contrive. This period of warfare that Bonaparte seems bent upon continuing will end—at least for a time—with him. Relieved of the casualties of war, our European population will increase. It may be that it will spread to new continents.

"Mechanical devices will be extended into every department, including war. Having swifter means of slaughter, the nations will be more loath to fight one another. That, I believe, will stop war."

"You are wrong, monsieur. War will never cease."

"Well, then, it will grow less frequent."

"Suppose that a century from now, a united Germany shall attempt to crush France. What then?"

The old man thought for some time without replying. Then he said:

"A group of nations is forming to crush Bonaparte. This will be the beginning of groups of allies yet to come. Some statesmen will see the advantage of uniting several nations with a view to controlling Europe. This will lead to a counter group"—

"And when war comes it will be between these groups and all Europe will be involved. I see. Never mind the political consequences of these alliances. Give me the military issues."

"In a hundred years the people of Europe will have more than doubled, perhaps quadrupled. Armies that are now composed of a few hundreds of thousands will then be millions. The killed and wounded and prisoners of war instead of being counted by thousands will be hundreds of thousands."

"And the battle line," Napoleon put in, "will be 50, 100, perhaps 200 miles long."

"I thought, monsieur, you asked me to give you the military future. You seem quicker in this than I. I defer to you."

"To move such armies," Napoleon continued, ignoring the speaker, "will be a herculean task. There will not be roads enough for their advance."

"You forget the new power of steam. It may develop."

"You mean armies will be moved instead of moving. Well, grant that there are inventions that will carry thousands of them and at a speed of a hundred miles in a single day. I grant in this case they can be moved within a reasonable time. But do you not know, monsieur, that an army moves on its belly? A million of men to be fed"—

"Perhaps 2,000,000."

"Two million men to have two meals a day. The food must be transported or the men will starve. And the ammunition! It weighs—it will weigh—tons upon tons. How will a general be able to follow up an enemy and carry with him such weight? And, granting he could do it in a time of peace, how would he do it with his enemy destroying the roads and bridges before him?

"The point d'appui will be then, as now, the enemy's capital. Suppose a French army attempts to seize, as Bonaparte has done, Vienna. He will reach it with a starving army and short of ammunition. Suppose a united Germany marches on Paris. It will be the same. Let Russia attempt to capture Berlin. The more men she has with whom to do it the worse off she will be, so far as feeding and providing them with ammunition are concerned.

"And how are those starving armies to batter down such fortifications as will be constructed a hundred years from now? Enormous cannon weighing many tons will be required. How can an invading force expect to move these enormous weights over roads and bridges destroyed by a retiring enemy? Believe me, my friend, when that day comes war will be a deadlock. No power can attack another with any hope of success. Not one person alone, to say nothing of others—the invading force will starve."

"Then," rejoined the old man, his eye lighting with prophetic fervor, "perhaps the good God will suggest to his stupid peoples to establish an international court."

"Ah, monsieur! But will it avail unless based on that which upholds all our courts—force?"

Napoleon paused and appeared to be lost in deep thought. When he spoke again the light of prophecy shone in his eyes.

"You have spoken of what these two Americans have done, the one in electricity, the other in steam. I see in a hundred years from now armies moved by either one or both of these powers. Infantry will not cease to make war; it will rather enlarge the scope of war. Who knows but that they will fight in the air and under the sea? Who knows but that some emperor of the future will succeed where Bonaparte has failed in striking perfidious Albion through the atmosphere or by first destroying her navy from beneath?"

"Monsieur," said the other when the emperor had finished, "surely much thinking on these things has made you mad."

Napoleon rose and asked the name of the man with whom he had been talking, then walked away.

The next day a young officer received a valuable official appointment and an old man a pension. But neither enjoyed his good fortune long, for the disturber of Europe's peace was soon transferred to the island of St. Helena.

Rhodes Scholars.

The annual report in connection with the Rhodes scholarships states that only nine were in residence during 1918, of whom four had previously been on active service and two were medically rejected. There were also in residence overseas scholarships granted by the Rhodes Trust and certain other bodies. Twenty Rhodes scholars and ex-scholars were killed during 1918, including six South African, two Australian and one Canadian. Military honors were awarded to 28, including seven South Africans, nine Australians and nine Canadians. Of 50 scholars elected for 1917, 46 took up military service, two were medically rejected and accepted Government work instead, and two were otherwise employed.

The election of scholars will be resumed next October, when it is hoped that demobilization will enable intending candidates in the army to compete.

COUGHED, COUGHED ALL NIGHT LONG

Terribly wearing on the system is the cough that comes at night and prevents sleep. Sometimes it is a constant cough, cough that will not be quieted.

Sometimes it is a choked-up, stuffed-up feeling that makes breathing difficult, and sleep impossible.

Whatever kind of a cold or cough you have Dr. Wood's Norway Pine Syrup is the remedy you need to cure it, for the simple reason that this valuable preparation combines all the lung healing virtues of the Norway pine tree with which is combined wild cherry bark, and the soothing, healing expectorant properties of other excellent herbs and barks.

Miss Margaret Landry, Bridgetown, P.E.I., writes: "I am writing to tell you the benefit I have received from Dr. Wood's Norway Pine Syrup.

"At fall I took a severe cough and cold on my head. I was unable to do anything. At night I could not sleep but coughed all night long. A friend advised me to use Dr. Wood's Norway Pine Syrup, and by the time the second bottle was used, I was entirely cured, and I have found this the best cough medicine I can buy."

Do not accept any other "pine" preparations when you ask for "Dr. Wood's." This remedy has been on the market for a quarter of a century. It is put up in a yellow wrapper; three pine trees the trade mark; price 25c. and 50c. Manufactured only by The T. Milburn Co., Limited, Toronto, Ont.

ACID IN STOMACH SOURS THE FOOD

Says Excess of Hydrochloric Acid is Cause of Indigestion.

A well-known authority states that stomach trouble and indigestion are nearly always due to acidity—sour stomach—and not, as most folks believe, from a lack of digestive juices. He states that an excess of hydrochloric acid in the stomach retards digestion and starts food fermentation, thus our meals sour like garbage in a can, forming acrid fluids and gases which inflate the stomach like a toy balloon. We then get that heavy, lumpy feeling in the chest, we belch sour food, belch gas, or have heartburn, dizziness, waterbrash, or nausea.

He tells us to buy some all diseases ask your druggist for a few pennyworth of Bisurated Magnesia tablets and take a teaspoonful in a glass of water before breakfast, which is perfectly harmless, and in this way neutralize the acidity, to continue this for one week. While relief follows the first dose, it is important to overcome the acidity, remove the cause, and start the liver, stimulate the kidneys and thus promote a free flow of pure digestive juices.

Just Bisurated Magnesia is inexpensive and is made from the acid of grapes and lemon juice, combined with pure bisurated magnesia, and is a most valuable form of magnesia for general use. It is used by thousands of people for stomach trouble with excellent results.

Aliens Want to Go Back Home.

Although many hundreds of foreign residents in Montreal are eagerly awaiting the first opportunity to return to countries abroad, few have thus far obtained accommodation. Italian, Greek and Scandinavian colonists are especially desirous of returning to their own countries, but the difficulty of securing transportation from British ports, to which Montreal lines are running directly, to Mediterranean and Scandinavian ports, has proved a stumbling block to many a prospective emigrant. Scandinavians have applied for passage in substantial numbers, and Serbians are also eager to cross. English-speaking and French-Canadian business men, thus far, have formed the majority of travelers to European ports. Tourist traffic cannot exist at present, for the difficulty of securing return transportation is great enough to discourage the most optimistic pilgrims. Many travelers from this section have taken passage by way of New York and other ports, where direct connection with Mediterranean or Scandinavian ports is afforded. The traveler who lands at a British port must take his chances of pursuing his journey farther to his destination. The direct route for the foreign emigrant, therefore, is most satisfactory, and the majority of Montreal Greeks and Italians who were impatient to be off took advantage of that opportunity.

Man may be made of dust—but he always wants a little bit more.

A REAL PIONEER.

Archbishop Matheson Remembers the Old West.

That picturesque figure of the Canadian West, that old-timer of old-times in Winnipeg the Most Rev. Samuel Pritchard Matheson, D.D., Archbishop of Rupert's Land and Anglican Primate of all Canada, may yet become a resident of Toronto; that is if a suggestion to move him here and to create a small archepiscopal diocese in the capital of Ontario, with St. Paul's Church as the arch-episcopal cathedral, should ever be realized.

Born in Fort Garry (Winnipeg) in 1853, Archbishop Matheson was the son of one of the original Selkirk settlers who left their Scottish homes to journey via Hudson Bay to the wilderness of the then Red River country.

The venerable prelate's reminiscences of the old frontier buffalo-hunting days would fill an interesting volume. He recalls how, in his school days at old Fort Garry, the children took pemmican, the pounded-up meat and fat of the buffalo mixed with Saskatoon berries to eat at their lunches. He was a ten-year-old boy when Red Cloud and his Sioux Indians fled to Hudson Bay territories for protection after they had committed the terrible Minnesota Massacre of 1862, when hundreds of men and women settlers at New Ulm and other frontier towns were murdered by the redmen. The savage Sioux camped just outside the gates of Fort Garry.

Their faces were hideous with war paint, and the braves flaunted pieces of the silk dresses, the jewelry and the scalps of long, silky hair taken from the women they had killed. The Sioux danced and feasted and looked very fierce, but made no attempt to molest the residents of Fort Garry. The children of the fort, including a little girl who was afterwards the wife of the late Col. James Farquharson Macleod, Chief Commissioner of the Northwest Mounted Police, and who now resides in Calgary, and the little lad who is now archbishop, looked on with horror at the revels of the Indians, but observed their parents' caution to show no sign of fear, as that might provoke the savages to attack them.

And yet, fifty years afterwards, in supposedly civilized Europe, the Ger-[illegible] in Versailles.

Even the homely girl realizes how easy it would be for her to become a duchess if she only had the price.

De Blowitz Super-Reporter

WILL any correspondent now at Paris try to duplicate the De Blowitz stunt of 1878, or did the race of super-reporters die with the famous man from the London Times? It is extremely unlikely, although it would appear that opportunities for some leaks are better than they were at the Congress of Berlin because of the great number of delegates and officials who are in Paris. It is doubtful, however, if a great newspaper nowadays would take the risk of publishing matter that the representatives of the Allied nations believe ought not to be given to the public. Everybody wants the congress to succeed; mankind would not soon forgive a newspaper or a public man that by the injudicious or premature publication of facts, or by magnifying difficulties or accentuating quarrels helped frustrate the great object of the gathering. Super-reporters will have to be super in some other way. At present in Paris they appear to be rather superfluous.

It was not until De Blowitz's memoirs were published that it was learned how he succeeded, day after day, in getting practically verbatim accounts of the proceedings of the conference which he telegraphed to London, where they appeared next morning in the London Times. It is said that Bismarck, who was furious at the publicity, and smarting under the attacks of the "scooped" German press, applied every means in his power to find out how the reporter was getting the news, and long after the congress was over asked De Blowitz to enlighten him. The reporter who used to be called the "Ambassador of the London Times," refused, and even to-day the identity of the friend who kept him posted is a mystery. The correspondent was so cosmopolitan, so wide was his acquaintance among European diplomats and statesmen, that one could only guess even as to the nationality of his informant. Nowadays if an American correspondent got a "scoop" at the conference it would be a pretty safe bet that some American was confiding in him. It was very different with De Blowitz.

In his memoirs De Blowitz tells of the simple trick by means of which he and his secret representative communicated. They never spoke to each other; they never corresponded. They merely happened to dine each day at the same restaurant, wearing exactly the same sort of hat. When they left the diplomat would pick up De Blowitz's hat, and would leave his own with the notes concealed in the band. Very often the memoranda were extremely brief, but they always gave De Blowitz the necessary hint. Thus equipped he would visit his diplomatic acquaintances, the most talkative first, and would provoke him into discussion. Then having gathered all he had to say, he would go to others so that at the end of his rounds he would have a fairly accurate idea of what had been discussed and decided.

Perhaps the most important news that the Times was able to publish apart from the text of the treaty itself was the announcement that Britain and Russia had come to an agreement on the Bulgarian question. This was a ticklish business, and at one time, either through adroitness or because he believed agreement was impossible, Disraeli had engaged a special train from Berlin for Monday, the 24th. De Blowitz says that if he had taken this step the rupture would have been disastrous. The stock exchanges would have collapsed and hundreds of people would have been ruined if they had been left to surmise as to the reason for the departure of the British representative. However, on Saturday morning the Times published the fact that an agreement had been arrived at between Britain and Russia, the arrangement having been made at midnight on Friday.

In the last week of the congress he told one of the delegates that he intended to publish the terms of the treaty in advance. He pretended that Bismarck, much pleased with his work at the congress, would be likely to reward De Blowitz by giving him advance information. The delegates thought that if Bismarck would give out the information he himself might as well do so, especially as he would thereby put so powerful a journalist as De Blowitz under obligation to him, and told the correspondent that if he saw him a day before the congress rose he would supply him with all the terms of the treaty. Thoroughly satisfied with the arrangement De Blowitz nevertheless asked Bismarck for an advance copy. The Chancellor refused on the ground that to comply would be to enrage the German press. Having thus made sure that nobody else would get the document in advance De Blowitz pretended that he was disgusted at the refusal, and ostentatiously left the city before the congress rose, taking with him, however, a copy of the famous treaty.

ERZBERGER'S REVELATIONS.

He Explodes Claim That Huns Were Not Defeated In Field.

Mathias Erzberger, chief of the German delegation which signed the original armistice, records in his defence before the Weimar Congress the reasons why he promptly gulped whole the bolus compounded by Marshal Foch.

Erzberger makes the unqualified statement that Prince Maximilian, then German Chancellor, sent in his message to President Wilson under the "Iron compulsion" of the high military command. On Nov. 10, when Erzberger reported back the terms offered, he received by wireless a reply from Hindenburg suggesting counter proposals, but concluding, "even if you do not succeed in obtaining concessions on these points, you must sign the armistice."

This fully confirms the statement of Prince Max—namely, that on his arrival in Berlin to assume office, long before the revolution was begun and when the deluded German people generally believed no great military disaster had occurred, and that, at worst, defence could be indefinitely prolonged, a paper asking for immediate negotiations was placed on his desk for signature. The high military command told him the circumstances brooked no delay—that the situation at the front was so desperate that action within twenty-four hours was absolutely necessary.

The truth is of importance not only historically but politically. Unjustly derogating from our armies and those of our allies, the idea has been sedulously inculcated that note-writing was materially instrumental in ending the war—that the German Government and people were induced to quit because of their love of the fourteen points. So far as there were practical effects the generous terms offered to Germany probably prolonged hostilities. The Germans assumed that when was asked represented maximum demands, showed war weariness on the part of the Allies, and that if they would hold out but a little longer easier conditions could be secured.

The German armies, outgeneral-led and outfought[illegible] surrounded by the victories of late October and early November. The arrival of the French at Sedan, cutting off the vital line of communication, made extrication impossible. The Germans gave up because they knew they could not get away. It has never been said that when Napoleon III capitulated at Sedan and Bazaine at Metz they did so because Frenchmen liked what the Prussians offered. No more can it be said that the German surrender was due to anything but military pressure.

Equator Colder Than Poles.

It is colder at the equator than at the North Pole, according to a professor who asserts he has proved this strange statement by means of balloon ascensions. Balloons with recording instruments attached were sent up to altitudes of 10 to 12 miles. In the tropics the temperature at this height was 100 degrees below zero, while in Middle Europe and farther north, at the same height, the instruments only recorded 56 to 85 degrees below zero.

Another curious fact noted was that the temperature diminishes as the height increases. The balloon ascensions are said to have shown that the coldest temperature is reached at heights of six to seven miles. Above that the atmosphere becomes warmer.

A SLUGGISH LIVER

CAUSED

SEVERE HEADACHES

The duty of the liver is to prepare and secrete bile and serve as a filter to the blood, cleansing it of all impurities and poisons.

Healthy bile in sufficient quantity is Nature's provision to secure regular action of the bowels, and when the liver is sluggish it is not working properly, and does not manufacture enough bile to thoroughly act on the bowels and carry off the waste products from the system, hence the bowels become clogged up, the bile gets into the blood, constipation sets in, followed by sick and bilious headaches, coated tongue, foul breath, heartburn, water brash, bad taste in the mouth in the morning, jaundice, floating specks before the eyes, etc.

Miss Dian Clark, Myer's Cove, Ont., writes:—"I take pleasure in writing you concerning the good I have received by using Milburn's Laxa-Liver Pills for a sluggish liver. When my liver got bad I would have severe headaches, but I got better after I had used a couple of vials of your pills."

Milburn's Laxa-Liver Pills gently unlock the secretion, clear away all waste and effete matter by acting directly on the liver, and make the bile pass through the bowels instead of allowing it to get into the blood.

Milburn's Laxa-Liver Pills are 25c. a vial at all dealers, or mailed direct on receipt of price by The T. Milburn Co., Limited, Toronto, Ont.

Soviet Republic Was Established Without Disorder or Bloodshed

Despatches Direct From Hungary Indicate That Order is Being Maintained—Titles and Ranks Abolished.

PLAN OF ACTION

Following is the first direct despatch from Hungary to be received in this country since the Bolshevik government was set up at Budapest. It effectually disposes of the reports that Allied representatives have been mistreated, that Hungary has declared war against the Entente, and that there has been bloodshed.

(By Edward Bing, U.P. Staff Correspondent. Copyright 1919 by the United Press.)

BUDAPEST, March 26.— The Hungarian Soviet Republic was firmly established yesterday, without disorder or bloodshed and with amicable, relations continuing with Allied representatives. All aliens and Allied soldiers are at complete liberty. The popularity of the British and American officials has not diminished.

Everything in the country has been socialised from the army down to baths. This re-organization has been accomplished with the apparent approval of the wealthy and aristocratic as well as the poor and humble.

A Red Army.

A Red Army is being organized on a purely volunteer basis, conscription being abolished as soon as the Communist government took office. Soldiers are paid $90 a month. They are clothed, fed and equipped without charge, and in addition they receive extra pay for the support of their families. Army commanders are named by the Commissionary of War, all ranks being eligible. Officers are picked purely on their merit, after a careful examination of their records. Indications point to the formation of the largest and most contended army in the history of the country.

Law Courts Abolished.

Law courts have been abolished and supplanted by a revolutionary tribunal composed of a chairman and two assessors. They sit virtually in continuous session and justice is meted out rapidly and effectively, with more consideration for real justice than law. Punishment is carried out immediately after sentence is pronounced. The death penalty can be pronounced only by the unanimous vote of the tribunal.

Titles Abolished.

All industries have been ordered to continue at work. Special committees are being formed to insure fair distribution of the scanty supply of raw materials.

Requisitions from private families are forbidden.

Spreading of false news is severely punished.

All titles and ranks are abolished.

Shop keepers have been ordered to prepare a list of their stocks and bank accounts. This is merely for the information of the government and no attempt will be made to seize either. Steps have been taken to substitute cash for cheques whenever possible.

The stock exchange has been ordered to cease operations.

Public baths must be opened to the labour class and school children, and no charge will be made to them. All private bathrooms likewise are at their disposal on Saturdays.

Hungarian workmen, meeting in various parts of the country, have declared their unanimous approval of the reforms instituted by the Communist government.

LONDON, March 27. — Italian troops have occupied the town of Pressburg, thirty-five miles southeast of Vienna, on the Hungarian side of the border, according to a despatch from Budapest, forwarded by the Central News correspondent.

Proclaimed Independence

Bessarabian Army is on the Move —Soviet Republic Formed.

(United Press.)

WARSAW, March 27. — Bessarabia has proclaimed its independence, established a Soviet republic and begun an offensive against the Roumania army of occupation, a despatch from Chotin announced today.

Bessarabia is a former province of Russia, bordering Roumania on the north east. It has been claimed and occupied by Roumania.

The Bessarbian army has captured the important town of Sadagora and is pushing the Roumanians across the Pruth River toward Largu.

The belief was expressed here that the Russian Bolsheviki are engineering the Bessarabian campaign for the purpose of establishment of direct communication between Moscow and Budapest.

M. Likin heads the new Bessarabian government.

Chostin, is in Bessarabia, 175 miles east of Lemberg. Largo is in Roumania, 100 miles southwest of Chotin.

Another "Organola" Arrived

The Royal Music Co. have much pleasure in announcing to the public the arrival of another "Organola," which is now on display at the warerooms of the company, cor. of Brock and George street.

This wonderful phonograph is the only machine in all the wide world which is equipped with tone control pipes like a church organ.

These pipes embrace every note in the scale and vibrate in sympathy as their notes are given forth by the record playing. Equipped with the questionably takes front rank among talking machines, as furnishing the truest, purest and sweetest tone possible to reproduce.

Experts who have heard it, and critically examined its performance, are astonished at its infallible purity of tone, clearness of tone and freedom from harsh foreign noises.

You are cordially invited to see and hear this wonderful machine to be thoroughly impressed with its tone, construction and beauty.

"THE BRIDE SHOP"

The assets of "The Bride Shop", the George Choos musical show that comes to The Grand, To-night, are announced as a good clean book with a coherent and intelligent story, popular and catchy lyrics, brilliant music, gorgeous costumes ornate scenery, principals that have achieved splendid reputations as entertainers and beauty chorus that would make Blase Broadway talk. George Choos, producer of the show, naturally feels unduly proud of the fact that critics and public have placed their unanimous stamp of approval upon his production. But it will be cheerfully admitted that a show with the above assets must have enduring and endearing qualities.

Irish "President" Arrives in Dublin —No Demonstrations.

Special to the Examiner:

DUBLIN, March 27.—Despite the fact that Prof. Edward De Valera is alleged to have arrived here late yesterday, there were no demonstrations, as the Sinn Fein leaders urged that no enthusiasm be shown on account of the Irish [illegible] and Sinn Feiners who had gathered to give De Valera a reception dispersed quickly.

Allies Are Ready to Increase Food Supply to Auditors

Austrian Population is Greatly Excited Over Events—Socialist Party Threaten a Strike.

CROSSED THE DANUBE

By Rudolph Kommer.
(United Press.)

BERNE, March 27.—Bolshevist uprisings in Austria and Czecho-Slovakia are imminent, according to advices received here to-day. Any move in those two countries against the Hungarian Soviet government is expected to precipitate the trouble. The British military mission in Vienna, it was reported, has notified the government that the Allies are ready to increase Austria's food supply if order is maintained. The Austrian population is greatly excited over events in Hungary especially in view of their own economic situation. All restaurants in Vienna are closed. There is no gas or coal and the meat ration has been reduced to an infinitely small quantity. Bolshevism apparently is growing an increasing attraction to substantial portions of the population. Fritz Adler, according to reliable information, is preparing to lead a Bolshevist uprising against the present Austrian government.

General Strike.

In Prague, radical Socialists are demanding immediate general nationalization. The entire Socialist party is threatening a general strike if an effort is made to mobilize against Hungary. Unconfirmed reports have been received that a formidable Czecho-Slovak army has already begun the invasion of Hungary, occupying the important city of Raab, about mid-way between Vienna and Budapest.

The latest advices received here indicate that Hungarian Communism is making the Russian Soviet Republic appear more conservative. Everything is being nationalized and the most severe penalties are provided for any form of resistance.

Bela Kun, the new Foreign Minister, is said to have been in prison when Count Karolyi decided to turn the government over to him.

Friends of former Emperor Karl, who is now in Switzerland, declare he will recognize the National Assembly and legalization of his dethronement without giving up the hope that the Austrian people will eventually change their minds. In the meantime he will settle down to a secluded life at Parma Castle. His brother, Archduke Max, is remaining in Vienna, but is prepared to renounce all claims to the throne.

Crossed Danube.

(Special to The Examiner.)

LONDON, March 27.—Czecho-Slovak forces have crossed the Danube, cutting the Budapest-Vienna railway, a News Agency despatch from Basle reported to-day.

This apparently refers to the occupation of Raab, which is south of the Danube, midway between Vienna and Budapest.

SIX PETERBORO MEN RETURN ON THE MINNIEKAKDA

HALIFAX, March 27.—The following Peterborough men arrived at Halifax on the troopship Minnekakda this morning:

721359 Pte. John Cussing, 108th Battalion.

344924 Gunner S. A. Choate, 74th Battalion.

195419 Sapper Louis Fewings, 93rd Battalion.

126173 Pte. James Jackasoff, 71st Battalion.

300408 Gunner Fred Lebar, 33rd Battery.

195465 Pte. Verne Selkirk, 993rd Battalion.

Pte. W. Tillotson, 219929, was among the Peterborough list on the Olympic.

The transport, with twenty-five hundred returning Canadian soldiers, docked at 8 o'clock this morning. Disembarkation was begun an hour later.

Taft Is Writing Amendments to the League of Nations

President Wilson is Anxious to Win Support of the Opposition Republicans.

FOUR CHANGES

By Robt. J. Bender.
(United Press.)

WASHINGTON, March 27.—Ex-President Taft is working by cable with President Wilson in an effort to so amend the League of Nations covenant so as to make it acceptable to Opposition Republicans. This was officially disclosed to-day when the White House let it be known that the Peace Conference at Paris is now working on four amendments to the covenant written by Taft at President Wilson's request.

Daylight Saving For the Railways

Order Will Go Into Effect on Sunday Morning.

Canadian Press:

MONTREAL, March 27.—Despite the reported decision of the Government not to reintroduce daylight saving this year, all Canadian railways will operate under the scheme. They were ordered to do so by the Canadian Railway War Board this morning. The order from the War Board states that the change will be made at 2 a.m. on Sunday.

Canadian Press:

TORONTO, March 27.—The Executive of the Associated Boards of Trade meeting here to-day passed a strong resolution urging upon the Government the necessity for the Daylight Saving Bill this year the same as last summer. The Executive of the Canadian Manufacturers' Association meeting in Montreal will also pass a similar resolution.

Vote in House.

(Canadian Press.)

OTTAWA, March 27.—Daylight saving and its continuance during the proceeding summer will probably be left to Parliament for a decision. It is likely that the question will come up in session to-day on Major Cooper's motion that 'it is expedient to re-enact at once the daylight saving bill of last year.' When daylight saving came before the government caucus, strong objection was raised to its continuance and in view of the opposition raised, it was decided that summer time be dropped. The fact that the Canadian railways will be compelled to conform with American summer time has, however, complicated the situation. It is therefore considered likely that an early opportunity will be given for a vote in the House on Major Cooper's motion and final decision reached in accordance with the result.

Mayor's Suit For Damages

Mayor of Chicago is Accused of Sedition.

CHICAGO, March 27.—Mayor William Hale Thompson is charged with disloyalty and sedition in pleas filed in the Circuit Court here by The Tribune Company, Chicago, in answer to the Mayor's suit for $500,000 damages based on the publication of articles in September, 1917.

The Mayor's suit charged that those articles, consisting of resolutions adopted by the National Security League and the statements of various persons condemning the Mayor were libelous. As justification for the publication of the articles to which Mayor Thompson has taken exception, the pleas present a lengthy recital of his acts and statements prior to and during American participation in the war.

Letters Waiting For An Owner

Several letters addressed to Pte. C. R. Clark, No. 195049, have been handed to the Patriotic Fund Office, in the hopes that the soldier may be found, or his whereabouts determined. The letters have all been to France and returned. On the letters, which had been [illegible], is signed "Ella", and the [illegible]ent appended that she is a relative of the soldier. If any one knows of the whereabouts of the man, will the information be sent to the Patriotic Fund, city building.

Military Bill in British Commons

Report Stage Passed Without an Amendment—British Military Policy.

Special to the Examiner.

LONDON, March 27.—The Military Service Bill passed through the report stage without an amendment in the House of Commons yesterday. The proposal to limit the operation of the bill to December 31, 1919, instead of April 30, 1920, was rejected by a vote of 282 to 70, and another amendment excluding liability to service in Russia from the scope of the bill was voted down by 281 to [illegible]. In declining to accept this amendment, Winston Spencer Churchill, Secretary for War, said the Government had no intention of raising a large conscript army to be sent to Russia. The general question of the Russian policy, he said, "is not a question for the British Government. It is a matter to which the League of Nations or league of victorious nations must address itself."

IT WAS SOME DRINK? BAH.

A keg, exuding a very powerful odor of alcohol, arrived at the office of a local express company recently, and two thirsty expressers promptly bored holes in the top and inserted soda water straws, with intention of enjoying a refreshing draught. The arrival of the police, however, cut short their drinking bout, and the keg, on being opened, was found to contain a human head preserved in alcohol. It was being sent to medicals of the University of Toronto for anatomical purposes. — Orangeville Sun.

REGULAR MEETING THURSDAY [illegible] SPECIAL BUSINESS. ALL BRETHREN URGED PRESENT. W. E. PARR, SEC.

Refers to Delegation of "Job Printers" That Went on a Cooke's Tour to England.

SUGGESTS INQUIRIES

TORONTO, March 26.— Lieut.-Col. A. C. Pratt, M.P.P. for South Norfolk, in an interview replied to editorial attacks which have been made on him by the Daily News, the London Free Press, and the Ottawa Journal, and declared his intention of bringing up many matters of wartime administration, particularly the causes of the [illegible] at Rhyl Camp, in the Legislature.

"It is a very remarkable fact that the three newspapers who find room for criticism of my remarks are three of those journals which participated in the wonderfully stage-managed joy-ride which the powers that be tendered to Canadian newspapermen during last summer at the expense of the British taxpayer," said Col. Pratt.

Trip an Imposition.

When these gentlemen went on their Empire-saving tour overseas at the generous expense of the British taxpayer, he continued, "I must recall the conditions as they were at that time. Petrol was worth its weight in gold, even generals were giving up the use of their cars in view of a very real danger that there might not be sufficient of the vital fluid to permit the maximum offensive by our airmen. Food was scarce, and the rationing system was being worked to the limit in order to provide the bare necessities of life for all. And yet these gentlemen burned up hundreds of gallons of petrol, even to the extent of going on joy-rides in airplanes, and were using up the most expensive automobiles and tires. They lived on the fat of the land, and all through their trip travelled de luxe, as none of them in their private capacity was likely to have ever done before or are likely to do again. Their tour extended even to the north to see the grand fleet under the same royal visit conditions.

Lived on the Best.

"While the attitude of mind of these gentlemen in accepting the hospitality of the British people to the extent of imposing on a brave people who were fighting with their backs to the wall and requiring all their resources, these were in Canada other newspapermen who declined to accept such favours at such an inopportune time and to reside regardless of expenses at the best hotels, while the life-blood of the nation was being poured out in the red stream which was driving back the Hun.

"So far as Editor Smith of the Ottawa Journal is concerned, I believe that he may have doubts honestly enough, but these might disappear if he took counsel with such men as Major Parkinson, who has recently returned from London; Colonel Andrew Thompson, Senator George Bradbury, Senator William Sharpe, Captain Peter Bryce McGibbon, M. P., to name just a few.

Suggests Inquiries.

"Editor Miller of the London Free Press also might make a few inquiries in quarters he himself must know of before making an attack on the men of Norfolk. Argyle House was responsible for both the unit and Colonel Graham's being broken up to reinforce a Quebec regiment, which incidentally prevented London's Own taking the field as a unit and earning honours for their own colours. Will Mr. Miller interview Colonel Frank Reid, who was A. G. at Argyle House and later in command of the Canadian reinforcing depot at Etaples and who can give first hand opinions when he comes home to London next week?

"Incidentally I might ask about the riot of the British troops at Etaples in which the Canadians not only did not participate but through the intelligence of the Canadian officers were absolutely uninterested, and watched for some hours," he said. "The British assistant provost marshal drew a whole year's improvement and practically every officer in the damp was 'fined.'

Hits "Hangovers."

"Personally I know that there are many excellent officers at Argyle House I have no personal and everlasting grouch, and I know that there is no finer man or officer anywhere than General Turner, but there are men at Argyle House, who were there before he took it over, and who have somehow managed to remain who are hangovers from [illegible] George Farley's administration. [illegible] Major Billy Nickle, A.D.C. to General Turner, is one of the finest and best soldiers that Canada sent to France. He has a record out of all proportion to his station. He rose from the ranks to his present well-deserved position, and his sympathy with the general soldier is beyond question.

"There were complaints made at the front. Our generals were just furious, and [illegible] the endorsed their [illegible] into it.

TARIFF TROUBLES.

The Union Government has weathered the first storm on the tariff question. Will it be able to ride safely through the next tariff cyclone which will be raging as soon as the Budget is brought down? The administration escaped on the present occasion because the Western members had a loop-hole to wiggle through. The McMaster resolution, calling for a sweeping reduction in the tariff, was exactly along the lines that the West desires, and if it were not that the Budget has not yet been introduced, and there is a chance that the Government may make concessions that will meet the demand from the West, the Unionist members of the Government who hail from the prairie provinces would have been in a very disagreeable position and the Government would have found itself face to face with a situation that would have been almost impossible to handle. The Western Unionists will have to face the issue later on, and if the Government has not made the revision in the tariff that their constituents are calling for, the members from Manitoba, Alberta and Saskatchewan will not be able to find the opportunity to escape that was available on Tuesday. The big storm has been postponed for a while—it will be a bad one when it finally breaks.

THE SUMMER HALF HOLIDAY

There is a movement on foot to have the weekly half holiday during the summer months, changed from Thursday afternoon to Wednesday afternoon. In the majority of the towns in the district the half holiday is observed on Wednesday, but Thursday was adopted in Peterboro because it was not thought advisable to [illegible] Wednesday, the mid-week market day. That reason carries no weight at the present time, for the Wednesday market has practically become extinct. The promoters of the Midland Baseball League are behind the movement that is seeking to have the change made to a Wednesday half holiday. In the majority of the other towns in the League, the holiday is observed on Wednesday, and if Peterboro fell into line and made it uniform it would facilitate the playing off of the League schedule, and would be more convenient both for players and fans. The commercial travellers would probably appreciate the change as well. It is a matter of course for the merchants to decide, as they are the most directly affected.

BUY COAL NOW.

A striking indication of the change that has taken place in the fuel situation is the advice given by Fuel Controller Magrath that Canadians who are in a position to do so should purchase their supply of coal for next winter as soon as possible. Last year the citizen who tried to secure in advance the coal he required was prevented by the regulations from purchasing the full amount needed, and, in addition, ran the risk of being branded as unpatriotic and a fuel hoarder. Mr. Magrath, whose administration comes to an end this month, gives out the good news that there are ample supplies of coal now available, both for domestic and industrial purposes. The production of both hard and soft coal has overtaken the demand, and there is no longer any danger of a shortage. The Fuel Controller's advice is that it is the positive duty of all who can afford to buy next winter's supply of fuel now to do so, as this will enable the dealers to meet the needs of the large number of people who are able to buy only in small quantities during the winter. In giving this advice Mr. Magrath said there is no indication that the price of coal will come down, but on the other hand there will probably be an advance of ten cents a month per ton for five months during the summer, so that the individual who buys his winter's fuel now will gain financially as well as in other ways.

THE VETERANS' REQUEST.

In an effort to have the 2nd Canadian Battalion brought to Peterborough to be demobilized, the local Great War Veterans' Association are exerting their influence in conjunction with the pressure that is being brought to bear by the civic authorities. The matter was discussed at the last executive meeting of the Veterans, and it was unanimously decided that the Association should place Peterborough's claims before the Minister of Militia and the officials in charge of demobilization. The Veterans in their letter to the authorities point out that the 2nd Battalion contains now, and has since its organization, contained a large number of Peterborough men, that its commanding officer approves of the idea of coming to this city for the demobilization of the battalion, and that Peterborough, by reason of the splendid recruiting record it has set up during the war, is entitled to have an opportunity of welcoming one of the battalions from this district. These are all reasons that should carry weight with the authorities. Peterborough has contributed to the Canadian Expeditionary Force as generously as any other city in Canada in proportion to population, and is surely entitled to some consideration. The 21st Eastern Ontario Battalion will return to Kingston for demobilization as will a number of artillery units, while Ottawa has already had the Princess Pats, and will in all probability have a chance of entertaining the 38th Battalion. It would be only just to Peterborough that the 2nd Battalion should come to this city, and thus allow our citizens an opportunity of extending a welcome to one of the units that has helped to make history for Canada. As was pointed out last evening, there is no time to spare, as the matter will undoubtedly be settled in a short time.

DISHONEST ADVERTISING.

The Dominion Government has been asked to legislate against dishonest advertising. The application of this restriction to newspapers—and that is the only aspect of it which the Whig will at present discuss—may or may not be necessary. Every worth-while, reputable newspaper is, and must be, a sponsor for honest advertising. It exercises a censorship as rigid and as watchful as any government legislation could exact. Through years of experience, stimulated by a laudable desire to create and maintain a high standard of journalism in this country, the press of Canada has learned that it pays in dollars and cents—to put it on the lowest basis—to keep its advertising columns free from dishonest announcements. [illegible] publishing [illegible]. In the rush and speed necessary in issuing a daily newspaper some unsatisfactory advertisements are bound to escape the most vigilant eye. Every line in the news and advertising columns cannot possibly be read, but on the whole the utmost care is taken to prevent the publication of fraudulent statements.

The Whig believes it is safe in saying that in no other country in the world are cleaner, freer or more independent newspapers published than in Canada. Here and there a few black sheep are to be found, and that is only human and to be expected. On the whole, however, the newspapers of Canada have been true to the public trust, and have honestly endeavoured to serve faithfully and well the community in which they circulated. They have encouraged all that was good and wholesome in public life and morals, and have resolutely opposed all that was vicious and harmful. Like watch-dogs at the gate, they have stood on guard and protected the public against those who, for selfish purposes, would have exploited the people. The publicity given by the press has stopped the hand of many a wrong-doer and corrected many an abuse due to inefficiency. An exposure in regard to street paving made by the Whig on Thursday last is a case in point. That the public appreciates this service is amply shown by the many expressions of praise this paper has received from all classes of citizenss.

The admission of dishonest advertising to its columns will sooner or later — and the sooner the better — bring ruin to any publication. A newspaper, more than any other medium, stands or falls according to the respect and confidence reposed in it by the public. Its goodwill is its greatest asset. That respect, confidence and goodwill can only be gained and maintained as the paper measures up to the requirements of its readers. Most publishers are imbued with a worthy desire to produce a newspaper that will be a credit to the community and a force for good in the land. They must, therefore, exert a careful and constant supervision over every advertisement inserted. Every paper that has become influential has done this. As for the Whig, it edits its advertising columns as carefully as it does its reading columns. But, as we said before, mistakes are bound to be made now and then in the hurry of preparing, editing and distributing a daily newspaper. The worthwhile newspaper does not need government legislation to protect it against dishonest advertising; it does its own censoring. The few black sheep may need it—while they last. The press of Canada, of its own accord, has made its advertising columns honest and trustworthy. There would seem to be little, if any, need of Government regulation.—Kingston Whig.

"BRINGING UP FATHER AT HOME"

Merry? meritorious and mirthful may well be applied to the latest of the "Bringing Up Father" series of cartoon plays. It is called "Bringing Up Father At Home," and will be the next attraction at the Grand Opera House on Saturday, matinee and evening.

Those who have seen and enjoyed the other editions of these popular and side-splitting comics will no doubt endorse this one as the best of the entire crop. Gus Hill, who took "Father" out of the pages of the newspaper and made him the most talked about celebrity in the world, has invested the production with that intelligent and lavish attention to detail which has characterized all of his enterprises and earned for him the reputation as one of the shrewdest and most original purveyors of modern amusement now before the public. While clinging to the set style of entertainment which has marked all of the "Father" pieces in the past, announcement is made that the fun that occurs from this particular concoction is on entirely new lines. An elaborate scenic investiture, new ideas, innovations, jingling songs, tuneful melodies and a competent cast are assured. The company besides a chorus of twenty-five of the most beautiful young women vocalists and dancers also includes John E. Cain, the creator of "Father" on the stage, Lida Kane, the original "Mother" and Blanche Newcomb, who is the daughter of Bobby Newcombe, in his day regarded as the king of jesters, a talent his daughter is said to have inherited.

The offering is in three acts and from all accounts is easily the laughing hit of the current season. Matinees as usual on Saturday.

VON ECKHARDT, ARCH PLOTTER IS ON WAY TO NEW YORK

LADEDO, Texas, March 27.—United States Secret Service men carefully guarded Heinrich von Eckhardt, formerly German Minister to Mexico and his party when they arrived here from Mexico City en route for New York, where they will take steamer for Spain on their way to Germany. No one was permitted to approach the party.

With the one-time German Minister was his wife, two daughters, his son and Johannes Brunow, German Consul General to Mexico. The party left here on the first train.

WASHINGTON, D.C., Friday.—Heinrich von Eckhardt, formerly the German Minister to Mexico, has been granted safe conduct by the State Department, and given permission to remain two days at New York before sailing.

Von Eckhardt has been recognized as the head of German propaganda activities in Mexico, and it was to him that was addressed the famous Zimmermann note in which Germany proposed an alliance with Mexico and Japan in case the United States entered the war on side of the Allies. He was recalled by the present German government several months ago.

Officials here said Von Eckhardt would be carefully guarded as long as he was on American soil.

AMERICAN SOCIALIST SOCIETY FINED $3,000 IN NEARING CASE

NEW YORK, March 27.—Judge Mayer in the Federal Court imposed a fine of $3,000 on the American Socialist Society, which operates the Rand School of Social Science, on its conviction on an indictment charging violation of the espionage law through the distribution of a pamphlet written by Scott Nearing.

The fine was based on the society's conviction on the fourth and last count of the indictment. The jury which tried the case acquitted Nearing, jointly indicted with the society and found the society not guilty on the first two counts. On the motion of counsel for the society the day the verdicted was returned Judge Mayer set aside the verdict of guilty on the third count and later sustained the jury on the last count.

After announcing the sentence, Judge Mayer granted a stay of judgment until April 14.

AN IDOL FABLE

By B. P. GADSBY.

The great god Tar Iff filled the sanctuary with his presence. He was, as I remember, solid gold—a naked golden god of overwhelming stature. Let me describe him as well as I can.

His face was a strange blending of jest and earnest—a smile that somehow or other had merged in a threat. They told me that this strange expression had grown on him within the last forty years—the smile being a relic of the happy days of long ago when he was the protector of helpless infants, while the threat was the curse of his later years when he devoured men alive.

This mingled aspect of benevolence and ferocity was to be seen in his mouth, which turned up at one corner and down at the other—a caress and a leer. On the whole, it was a cruel mouth—the lips thick and loose, the eye teeth sharp to bite and the under shot jaw firm to hang on. It was a large mouth, moreover, which bespoke a prodigious appetite, and it was subtended by a double chin frilling the short thick neck which goes with overfeeding and apoplexy.

The eyes, blazing under their penthouse brows, were two diamonds, thirty five carat: and these, with another smaller diamond of seven carats, which did duty as a wart on the extreme end of a fat nose ,brought the face value of the idol up to forty two per cent. The seven carat diamond, I was told, was a late addition and was not really an essential part of the idol, having been put there only five years ago to strike terror into the Huns. It has miscarried, however, and had only succeeded in striking terror into the god's own worshippers, who would now remove it and divide the proceeds among the sufferers from the god's contortions. Indeed the small diamond already showed marks of chipping, and it was only a matter of days when it would fall off. The votaries of Tar Iff told me that this would be a good thing, because the small diamond, situated as it was, interfered with the god's breathing and gave him a bloated feeling.

They further informed me that Tar Iff would be able to see better when the small diamond was removed. Just now, it had a tendency to make him cross-eyed, which was too bad because, so they said, his eyes originally had a benignant expression. Time and the credulity of human nature had altered their gaze, opening one eye and partially shutting the other, which gave the deity a most evil and distressing wink, not at all in tune with his native goodness of heart.

Another amazing feature of Tar Iff was his hands—long, strong, grasping hands on long, strong, over-reaching arms. One of these hands was labelled Specific and the other Ad Valoren. The nails were sharp and curving, the palms cupped to clutch greedy helpings.

"Tar Iff", said one of the attendant priests whom I had buttonholed; "can grab four times as much as any other god in the business. That is why his hands are big and hollowed. We would be great fools to exchange Tar Iff for Incomet Ax or Warp Rofits or half a dozen other little deities I could name. Great is Tar Iff. The rest are as nothing beside him. Tar Iff shall rule and the other minister to him."

"And where," I asked, "is Freel ist," mentioning a small water sometimes used in the worship of Tar Iff.

"Oh, that," said my guide, with a shrug, "that is a blasphemy against Tar Iff. He spits it out. What we feed him now is Importem Bargo. It does not make him sick at the stomach and is more in keeping without esoteric doctrine. We do our best to keep the faith pure, but," he added with a smile, "we have our troubles."

"You will observe," he went on, "a little bunch of spinach on Tar Iff's chin. Obviously it is glued on. It is not an integral part of the celesial countenance. As you yourself would say, it does not belong. It can be pulled of, put back, increased or diminished, as we choose. That little bunch of spinach is Britishpre Ference, a flimsy sort of ornament, mostly gauze and paper, which we have added to make Tar Iff look prettier to the low-browns. We priests of Tar Iff do not believe in it ourselves. We think the god looks more imposing with a clean shave."

"More bare-faced certainty, I should think whiskers would be a merciful disguise. But he chose to overlook my ribaldry.

"The growing scepticism of the age," said my guide sadly, "has dealt some hard blows to Tar Iff. For instance eight years ago he got this." He pointed to a big dint in the tumid, golden belly of the god. "Yes," he continued sadly, "here ran Recprs City's dagger—not through—it did not, as you will see, puncture the skin—but quite enough to hurt."

"Some time after the sacrilegeous stroke," he continued mournfully, "Tar Iff broke out all over in red spots which are known in The Schedules—our holy book—as Freck Attle and Freew Heat, dread signs that our venerated deity had been contaminated by Freet Rade, another god of evil potency whom we priests of Tar Iff are sworn to destroy. I tell you," he went on, his eye in fine frenzy rolling, "if Recprs City renews its outrageous assault, Tar Iff will suffer intestinal complications which will prevent him digesting the National Debt."

"Tar Iff, then," I quizzed,—"is the god of love, the god who teaches little children to walk, the god who upbuilds; while Freet Rade is the hard-hearted god who lets people fend for themselves, the god who tears down—in a word, the Devil. Do I get you right?"

"You do," he said, and turning on his heel, made his way to the high altar where he presently disappeared lugging a huge pot of gold which he had extracted from Tar Iff's capacious interior by the simple process of opening the back door of the shrine and letting the precious stuff tumble out.

Somehow or other the words of this bonze of Tar Iff were too sweet, so I passed among the congregation to hear what they might say. Just as I could not help noticing that the priests of Tar Iff were pink and sleek cold-eyed and soft-handed, high-fed and richly clothed, so I could not help noticing that the congegation was lean and hard bitten, callous handed toil-driven and full of care. Moreover the congregation was not praying—it was muttering. The temple of Tar Iff, I also observed, faced East where the priests took their station, and the priests were comparatively few while the congregation was a multitude.

With very little asking I found that the congregation consisted mostly of the Graingro Wirs, a Western tribe of pastoral pursuits, who complained that Tar Iff took less even of their ploughs; the Yeffs, another rural tribe, who were similarly put upon; the Labo Rites, an artisan class, who grumbled that their drink was weakened for the gratification of an ascetic sect called Ust Ift; and the Consumers, or city dwellers, who said that Tar Iff took the very bread out of their mouths and the very coats off their backs.

"Tar Iff is a fog," said one pale-faced Consu Mer. "He not only devours our offerings, but he charges us a temple fee so that we pay twice."

"But we've got him guessing," chortled a brawny Labo Rite. "Tar Iff is afraid. He uses full pages in the newspapers to bolster his gospel. The Cee-Em-Eh or Sacred College—seeks to divide us by class hatreds so that Tar Iff may prevail."

"Perhaps," said Hend Ers, a mild little man, "Tar Iff may have pity. The tools of our toil—the thrashers, binders, tractors—surely Tar Iff will not batten on them forever!"

"A happy thought!" rumbled Richar Dson the scribe. "We shall hope for pity."

"Yes—that's it—pity," spoke up Redmi Chael. "For me, I worship Freet Rade, but I do not abandon Tar Iff until the other god is set up in his place. Besides I have been getting eighteen cents a pound for my hogs."

"Pity!" exclaimed Fiel Ding, the philosopher. "You may as well expect blood from a stone as pity from Tar Iff. I speak with authority, because I know the bowels of the machine."

"Pity," snarled Mah Arg the headman of the Graingro Wirs. "We don't want Tar Iff's pity! We want Justice. Less wheedling and more action. I'm sick of this talk of partial miracles. We won't pray to Tar Iff much longer. We'll shake it out of him."

When Mah Arg had calmed down enough for reasonable speech I asked him why Tar Iff wanted so much to the East. The eyes squinted that way and now, as it seemed to me, the whole body of the god, lurched to starboard like a drunken sailor.

"It's very simple," said Mah Arg Tar Iff, as you will observe, stands on two legs named East and West. The Eastern leg is short because the god throws his weight in that direction, while the Western leg is longer because it has been pulled so often. If we can't get it on an even footing, we'll pull it down—that's all."

DOWNEYVILLE CORRESPONDENCE

DOWNEYVILLE, March 26.—Mr. and Mrs. Patrick Herlihy are visiting in Peterborough.

Mr. and Mrs. Percy Lucas have returned from Peterborough after a short visit.

Messrs. Jas. Guiry and William O'Brien were in Peterborough on business.

Mr. Albert O'Neil was in Lindsay on Monday.

The War a Great Factor in Establishing Time Values

The period of the war was the greatest time in the history of the world for the testing and sifting of men and things. True values were found while many prejudices and preconceived ideas were lost.

For years it has been the almost universal impression that candy and chocolate were luxuries, that their consumption was injurious to the teeth and far from beneficial to the young.

It was not long after our Canadian boys of the First Contingent had reached France that we received an imperative call for candy and chocolate. Medical authorities at the front were unanimous in the opinion that candy was not only a delicious confection but a sustaining food which helped our boys out when under continuous strain. In fact, in the military hospitals chocolates and chocolate were allowed convalescents in comparatively unrestricted quantities. In recent months many medical scientists have written articles on the food value of candy, as in view of its recognized food value it was desirable that the public should no longer labour under the misconceptions of the past.

Many of the leading publications in Canada have as well published articles on the subject, and the Toronto 'Saturday Night,' in an editorial in the issue of that paper of February 22nd, says, "It is evident, therefore, that the widely prevailing human taste for candy, especially in growing children, is soundly based on Nature's need. The man who takes home a box of candy to his wife or the youth who finds it a way to the goodwill of his sweetheart is thereby doing a good deed."

The "National World," March issue, in a lengthy article, says: "Candies are among the attractive and useful forms in which sugar is used as a food. They contain a large quantity of cane sugar, with frequently some fats, such as butter, nuts and fruits, corn syrup, starch, chocolate and flavouring. All of these elements are useful foods."

Chocolate and Its Uses.

The "Canada Lancet," the oldest medical journal in the Dominion of Canada, says editorially in its issue of February 1st, respecting chocolate: "The experience of the British Navy is that chocolate is one of the most valuable ingredients in the sailor's dietary; and, in the recent war, its inestimable worth to the exhausted soldiers on the one hand, or to such as had to undertake a prolonged and strenuous task, was amply proven. It was extensively used in the military hospitals, being a favourite alike with the doctor, the nurse, and the sick and wounded."

Dr. H. T. Barnardt, State Food and Drug Commissioner of Indianna, recently wrote an article which appeared in the "National Food Magazine," and was reprinted in the "Literary Digest." Dr. Barnardt emphasizes the fact that in the growing boy one should not be afraid of sugar, candy and sweet foods. They are true and concentrated foods. He suggests that candy should be given to children for dessert.

It is interesting to learn that the consumption of chocolates, and chocolate particularly, has more than doubled during the war.

A New Blood-Food Has Been Discovered That Works Wonders

Said to put New Life into People that are Run Down.

For years doctors have been searching for a combination that would enable them to inject into thin blood the elements it lacked. This can now be done and any weak-blooded person can quickly be made strong and well.

Already a small army of ailing people has proved the merit of taking after each meal with a sip or two of water, two chocolate-coated Ferrozone Tablets. This is easily done, and even one week's use of this wonderful blood-food will prove how nourishing and strengthening and flesh-building the treatment is.

Just think of it! Ferrozone uplifts the entire nervous system, removes the blood, makes it rich and red—gives the sort of aid that's needed in throwing off weakness and languor.

Tens of thousands enjoy the advantages of renewed health through Ferrozone;—if you'll only use it you will surely grow strong, too; its beneficial action is noticed even in a week. You see it goes right to work, removes the cause of the trouble and then quickly makes a cure.

For those who sleep poorly and have nervous apprehensions, Ferrozone is a boon; it is a specialist in such cases.

Where there is paleness, poor appetite and languor, Ferrozone makes the patient feel like new in a few days.

In tiredness, nerve exhaustion, [illegible] and debility the power of Ferrozone is known from coast to coast and universally used with grand results.

Let Ferrozone build you up, let it win you back to robust health,—it will do so quickly if you give it the chance. Sold by all dealers. 50c per box, or six boxes for $2.50. Remember the name Ferrozone.

HUNTER STREET BRIDGE

Mr. R. R. Hall Says Over $100,000 Can Be Saved—He Protests and Asks:—"Are the Ratepayers Wise or Otherwise, Or Mostly Otherwise?

It is quite satisfactory to note that the Ratepayers of the City of Peterborough are being aroused to the fact that over $100,000 can be saved in the cost of the construction of the Hunter Street Bridge.

No person desires to find fault either with the Engineer or with last year's City Council but if a mistake or error of judgment has been made then the sooner it is admitted the better.

A person does not require to be an expert Engineer, to know that a long single arch bridge is only necessary where some abnormal difficulty has to be overcome.

For instance a long arch Bridge might be necessary over a Gorge like the Falls of Niagara or it might be necessary where there is a quick sand bottom in the river or a natural obstacle to the building of a pier.

But no matter how expert an Engineer may be in his business, he must not expect that the ordinary tax payer is so credulous that he will accept his opinion that a long arch is necessary where there are no natural obstacles to be overcome.

If the Engineer that the City Council has engaged is not competent enough to design a bridge that will cost not more than $200,000, then the sooner the City Council gets rid of the Engineer the better it will be for the Ratepayers of this City.

The City Council last year acted in perfectly good faith in accepting the advice of the Engineer but the City Council for this year will not be acting in the interests of the Ratepayers of this City if they do not burn up the plans that are already prepared and have new plans prepared.

If the present Engineer employed by the City Council is wedded to the idea of constructing a bridge and a monument at the same time then the best thing he can do is to get a more gullible City to accept his new fangled ideas. Railway Companies in Canada and the United States have erected thousands of bridges and surely it is not necessary for this City to adopt some experimental idea that may prove to our Ratepayers a very costly venture.

I am advised that the Smith Street Bridge did not cost $50,000. Why should this Hunter Street Bridge cost $350,000?

I am sure that the ratepayers of the City of Peterborough will stand behind the City Council if they do not accept the present advice of the Engineer that is engaged. It may cost this City $4000 to dispense with him and his plans, but the City will be better off if they dispense with both him and his plans unless he is competent enough to design a Bridge that will not cost more than $175,000. This City has on opportunity of saving over $150,000 in the construction of this Bridge and it cannot afford to accept the advice of an Engineer who wants to impose upon the Ratepayers a new fangled Bridge and make them pay "through the nose" for it at the same time.

By all means let a public meeting be called by the Mayor and let us have a good frank discussion over this matter.

Are the Ratepayers aware of the fact that it is estimated that the false work alone that is necessary to construct this Bridge will cost $75,000 and that such false work will be torn away and thrown away? Ask any person with any common sense whether or not it would have cost $75,000 or even half of it, had Smith Street Bridge been erected 12 feet higher than it is at the present time.

Josh Billings divided mankind into two classes, "wise and otherwise," but the Engineer who is designing Hunter Street Bridge must not expect that the Ratepayers of Peterborough are "mostly otherwise."

R. R. HALL.

Peterborough, March 26th, 1919.

THE HUNTER STREET BRIDGE

THE PROPOSED NEW HUNTER STREET BRIDGE, PETERBOROUGH, ONT.

(By W. H. Pretty.)

The following briefs, prepared, after invitation of the Peterborough Examiner, are built up from a series of collected notes made by the writer, who has resided in Ashburnham, or East City, for the last nine years, and represent accumulated views, attendant on daily journeys to and from Ashburnham and the centre of the city via the existing bridge. Most, if not all of the items, have, at various times, been discussed with fellow citizens and various members of the City Council during that period, but they are not generally known, outside a small circle of friends and acquaintances, and it is with pleasure that I now take up my pen, in response to the invitation to place on record these views for the general information of the public. The writer wishes to say that the object is rather that of helpful suggestion than interference, and in the interests of the city generally, and its citizens in particular. The order of the notes is not necessarily one of sequence as originally made, but an arrangement intended to increase the public interest in local affairs, affecting or seeming to affect, our future prosperity as a community, with a community of interests.

1. A concrete "single arch span" over the river bed will block the river to navigating craft, except at the centre of the span, where alone the maximum clearance or head room is available for navigation.

2. The proposed single arch span bridge will also block the river industrially and eliminate, from an industrial standpoint, the centre of the city and Ashburnham generally, will reduce the value of property thus involved and "compel" the movement of the business centre of the city from its present site towards the Little Lake, and, probably and eventually still further south.

3. The canal should, and must, sooner or later follow the river bed through the city, thereby opening up the whole of those magnificent river banks on both sides of the river for industrial purposes, etc., from the Little Lake to Nassau, and thus make the centre of the city, including East City or Ashburnham and adjacent districts, a more efficient and valuable asset to the city for development and revenue purposes. We should then have a truly industrial water transportation system in our midst, with a useful by-pass for through traffic in the hydraulic lift-lock.

4. By opening up the river to navigation, as suggested above, we shall convert undeveloped sites into valuable industrial locations, with a "pool of Peterborough" and, presumably, docks, etc., on such sites as "Riverside Park" or the "Little Lake," the latter location, would be a valuable site for the construction of wharves and docking facilities generally, for distributing purposes for outside points, by means of radial lines emanating from the city of Peterborough, and which would make a "port of Peterborough" with its accompanying business and revenues.

5. If a concrete bridge is insisted upon then a "three arch" concrete bridge of the type erected by the city at Smith street with modifications in the design, is better, more economical in design and cheaper to build, while it is also of more architectural merit.

6. The "three arch" type of concrete bridge indicated above would have the required head room or clearance for navigation purposes under "each" arch, and there would thus be three channels with a maximum head room for navigation, instead of one channel only.

7. The canal locks have a width of thirty-three (33) feet between walls, the single arch span, as proposed, has a length of two hundred and thirty-five (235) feet clear span. Taking this length of two hundred and thirty-five feet, and allowing thirty-seven (37) feet for two river piers (this should require less than thirty-seven feet), we have one hundred and ninety-eight (198) feet or sufficient space for three (3) spans of sixty-six (66) feet for each clearance between side walls for navigating purposes, that is to say, twice the normal lock width, and thus, in "any one span" of the three arches, two boats of maximum beam plying on the canal, could pass each other, or lie alongside each other.

8. The construction of a "through truss" structural steel type of bridge should be considered, of "single span," or "two span" design, in the latter case with a concrete centre pier in the river bed. The "single span" design is preferable, if the comparative cost will permit, and it "should" permit this. This would give clear and maximum head room or clearance for navigation from river bank to river bank.

9. The structural steel type of "through truss" could readily be built with a roadway width of say twenty-seven (27) feet between truss centre lines, with two cantilever side walls, each of say six (6) feet from truss centre line to handrail stantion centre lines. This roadway will permit of a single car line track along one side. It will be seen that the sidewalks would thus be outside the main steel trusses, and thus both pedestrians and sidewalks would be automatically protected from road traffic loads. It may not be out of place here to add that a structural steel bridge with twenty-seven feet between main truss centre lines, and carrying a single car track as indicated above, has recently been built at Kingston, Ontario, but we are favoured with conditions enabling us to use a fixed span, whereas in the comparative case just cited a movable leaf span was necessary. It should be quite sufficient for Peterboorugh's needs for years to come to adopt such a roadway width as suggested here, and, should future developments demand it, another span can be added alongside at a later time, to meet the increased traffic demands. Neither would the latter course impoverish the appearance of the bridge, but would rather enhance it, if provision is made in the layout in the first instance.

10. In any type of bridge whatsoever, for the river span, the approaches and abutments will be probably most economically built of reinforced concrete with clear spans as necessary, either for under traffic or from constructional necessity. There is no doubt, however, that these approaches would be better built in the design known as "girder" and "slab" construction, avoiding elaborate and costly arch constructions, which add nothing to the appearance of the bridge, and at the same time add greatly to the cost of the necessary "forming" for the cement pouring. The proposed arches with earth fill are a relic of a very doubtful practice, and burden the bridge unnecessarily. The ideal bridge is the lightest structure that can be erected to do the work required of it, with due allowances made for durability and contingencies due to local conditions.

Socialists Attack Russian Policy

French Foreign Minister Object of Attack by Socialists—Pandemonium in Chamber.

Special to the Examiner:

PARIS, March 27. — Tumultuous scenes occurred in the Chamber of Deputies last evening when the Right and Left engaged in a controversy, each charging the other with being Bolsheviki, while cries of 'Liar" were heard in the midst of the storm of protests. The Socialists were bitter in their criticisms of the address made by Stephen Pichon, the Foreign Minister, in answer to interpellations made by Marcel Cachin and Ernest La Font on the Government's policy in Russia. Paul Deschanel, President of the Chamber, was unable to restore order for a long period and the pandemonium later resolved itself into bedlam, in which many Deputies added to the noise by pounding on their desks.

Mr. Elliott Replies to Reeve Anderson

"Will not let the County Clerk interfere."

There seems to be some misunderstanding somewhere, for I have never written a letter from a standpoint of County Clerk re county roads. Ever since the introduction of a system of county roads as a ratepayer (in a small way) in the township of Smith, I have expressed my views with regard to the same from the platform and through the press as such ratepayer.

We all know with the writer of said letter that the government will not contribute to a county road system unless at least four townships unite for such purpose, and when the writer suggests a plan to finance the scheme for one township, then the only inference to be drawn is that his object is the initiative for four townships to participate, and Smith would undoubtedly be one of the four, consequently, as a ratepayer, there can be no objection to a ratepayer's opinion honestly expressed. To carry out the system on the basis he suggests you would raise at a mill rate on the four adjoining townships on the equalized assessment $16,934 to receive $7,455 on the construction basis, namely, 40 per cent. Of that less than $7,000 would be from the Government, or about one-third of the auto fees collected from the city and county. After almost 20 years of careful observation and due consideration, recognizing the necessity of road improvement I suggested before, the following, which I submit is reasonable, namely:

60 per cent. from the county on main county roads	$30,000
40 per cent. from the government on main county roads	20,000
40 per cent. from the government on suburban area	8,000
3 per cent. from the county on suburban area	6,000
30 per cent. from the city on suburban area	6,000
Auto fees locally collected	20,000
Total	$80,000

The above looks like road improvement, at the same time getting $28,000 from the government of the millions about to be expended on highway improvement to come to our locality that would materially assist in providing employment for the returned soldier.

In order to secure the desired improvement to the roads from a standpoint of the county at large, an amount similar to the figures shown above seems to be necessary, and are consistent with expenditures in the few counties that are now carrying on the work to any extent so as to meet the object in view.

Under the terms of the Act as it now stands, such an amount would be an abnormal load to the farmer and small property holder in the county. [illegible] and I have every reason to believe that the Act will be amended to provide terms similar to the above under which a system throughout the county will be constructed, then with the auto fees and a smaller percentage from the government, the county and city could maintain the main county roads and suburban area with out any abnormal burden to any class in the community.

Criticisms of what I have written with regard to the terms set out in the Act re county road system are accepted by me in a friendly spirit and when the writer in his last letter refers to "another attempt to prejudice the farmers," he must have no other motive than enthusiasm for the scheme, for it involves the majority of the ratepayers with whom I have conversed from the county, together with the writer himself, who have stated on various occasions that their reason for non-support of the scheme was due to the "terms" set out in the Act.

When he refers to interference in local township affairs the only accusation that can be made is misinterpretation, and I respectfully draw attention to what appears in his letter. He explains the financing of the scheme as follows:

"The Reeves of the township in the county system each year decide on the amount required to do the work needed that year and the superintendent carries out the directions of the Reeves."

In that, the enveloping idea is quite clear for Reeves and townships mean more than one.

A writer may have one idea, but the same must be closely adhered to or the reader on the outside is liable to misinterpret.

I have for at least 17 years expressed disapproval of the terms and can see no reason why I should change my mind, yet I have every respect for the opinion of another county ratepayer, whether it be of long duration or short.

Respectfully yours,
E. M. ELLIOTT.

"Triple" Alliance" Against a Strike

Will Accept Government Compromise.

Special to the Examiner:

LONDON, March 27.—The "Triple Alliance," jointly representing miners, railwaymen and transport workers, was scheduled to decide definitely today on the question of a general strike. In view of the miners' decision yesterday to recommend the acceptance of the Government's compromise, together with the transport workers' previous adjustment and the apparently conciliatory attitude of the railway union, well informed persons were confident that the "Triple Alliance" would decide against a strike.

Neighboring County Will Support Farmer Candidate

Important Meeting Was Held in Port Hope—Many Delegates Present.

An important meeting or representatives from the farmers' clubs in Durham County was held in Port Hope on Saturday, March 22nd, to consider the formation of the county organization and what stand the organized farmers of the County should take on the farmers' platform. Mr. Donaldson of Millbrook acted as chairman and Mr. S. J. Staples of Ida as Secretary.

There was a good representation from the various clubs of the county, clubs being represented from Pontypool and other points, as well as clubs situated nearer to Port Hope. The delegates were invited to express their views in reference to the formation of a county organization. A considerable number did so and it was soon found that the meeting was strongly in favor of such action. It was finally decided unanimously to form such an organization.

The following officers were elected the delegates first organizing themselves according to townships to select their township representatives on the directorate: President— S. S. Staples, Ida; Vice-President, H. Thompson, Westleton, Secretary-Treasurer, Wm. Morton, Bethany, Directors, Darlington Township, A. Campbell, Bowmanville, R. R. No. 2, Cartwright, R. Suggett, Nestleton, Hope, John W. Walker, Port Hope, R.R. 1, Manvers, F. Barnstaple, Janetville Station, Cavan, W. Belch, Millbrook, R. R. 1, Clark Township to be appointed later.

A Resolution.

A full discussion was held in reference to what attitude the organized farmers of the county should take towards the selection of candidates to represent the county in the Dominion and Provincial Houses. This discussion resulted in the following resolution being carried unanimously:

"That this County Association, representing the various U.F.O. clubs in the County of Durham, believe that the time has come when it should place itself clearly on record that it is its determination to support only such political candidates as are farmers and who will agree to support the Farmers' Platform."

Mr. H. B. Cowan of Farm and Dairy, was in attendance at the meeting and spoke briefly at the beginning of the meeting outlining the value of county organization and what could be accomplished by it. It is understood that the officers will proceed with the organization of additional clubs in those townships which are not now organized.

Hydro Employees Were Entertained

The Losing Hockey Players Put Up the Feed.

At Hooper's Palm Parlours, on Tuesday evening last, the employees of the Hydro-Electric Power Commission's Gas Department, were entertained to a banquet provided by the City Utilities Electric Department, as an aftermath of three strenuous hockey games played recently by teams representing these two departments, the result of which hinged on a supper to be provided by the losing team.

About 16 employees of these two departments sat down, and after the good things provided by Hooper had been done ample justice to, speeches were indulged in by Messrs. W. G. Henderson, H. O. Fisk, H. E. Beal, E. S. Kent, S. B. Cummings, manager of the winners, Mr. Harold Frost, the official who rang the bell too often, and Mr. Melville Dobson, captain and high scorer of the gas men, who tried to explain how it all happened.

After voting the Utilities employees a bunch of good losers, the gathering broke up by a toast to the King.

Toronto Street Railway Ceases Paying Dividends

Special to the Examiner:

TORONTO, Ont., March 27.—The shareholders of the Toronto Railway Company to-day received the following notice from Secretary-Treasurer J. O. Grace that the company's dividends have ceased.

"In view of the heavy obligations facing the company, your directors have decided to pay the regular quarterly dividend on the company, capital stock. It is with regret, and only after mature consideration, that this decision has been arrived at. Increased operating expenses are the cause.

Havelock Man Took a Stroke

Failed to Appear in Court in Answer to Charge.

At Havelock yesterday before Magistrate Langley, Henry Hughes, of Norwood, was charged with intimidation by threatening to shoot, but failed to put in an appearance at the hearing. After a heated argument between defendant's counsel, Mr. Joseph Wearing, and Mr. J. A. O'Brien, acting for the private prosecutor, the hearing was adjourned till Tuesday next. Later it was learned that Hughes was stricken with paralysis while preparing to go to Havelock.

Military Members Appointed by Huns

Military Men Are Appointed to Sign Peace Terms—One Delegate From Each German State.

Special to the Examiner:

BERLIN, March 27. — Under the chairmanship of General Von Wrisberg, of the Prussian War Ministry, the names of the military members of the German peace delegation, it was announced to-day.

General Von Hammerstein, Military President of the Spa Armistice Commission; Major Von Bock, former member of the Crown Prince's Staff; Lieut.-Col. Von Axlander, of the Bavarian General Staff; Major Boettichet, of the Saxon General Staff, and Captain Geyer, of the Wurtemberg Army.

German Ships Are Surrendered to Allies

Will Be Used to Take Home American and Australian Troops.

Special to the Examiner:

PARIS, March 27.—The Supreme Economic Council reports that 38 German ships that have left German ports to be turned over to the Allied and associated powers, are generally in a seaworthy condition.

None of the ships are of less than 2,600 tons capacity. The larger ships will be used to repatriate American and Australian troops.

AIRGRAMS TO AVIATORS CROSSING THE ATLANTIC.

MONTREAL, March 24.—The Marconi Wireless Company has completed arrangements for supplying airgrams to aviators who may attempt to cross the Atlantic. A complete series of bulletins about weather conditions over the area to be traversed will be compiled from advices to ships at sea, and will be sent out from the company's Glace Bay station and picked up by the aviators.

"The Cavell Case" Five Months in the Making

From the day the cast was first assembled to the day the first public showing was given, it took exactly five months to complete "The Cavell Case," the story of Edith Cavell, the British Red Cross nurse, the woman the Germans shot, which Messrs. Plunkett and Carroll present Julia Arthur through Select Pictures at the Grand Theatre on Monday, Tuesday, and Wednesday.

It took 90,000 feet of negative film to make the picture as a number of the most important scenes had to be made over several times before Director John G. Adolfi was satisfied with them. Altogether the picture is as near perfect as it is possible to make such a production, and in the hands of Mr. Adolfi and Anthony Paul Kelly, the author, this means that "The Case" is ninety-nine per cent. perfect, in detail and truth.

With the aid of historical societies and newspaper dispatches, describing the actual shooting of Edith Cavell, Mr. Kelly was enabled to make an accurate and truthful screen story from one of the most horrible of all German atrocities—the death of an innocent and loving woman. The star of the picture Julia Arthur, is a well known stage celebrity, while Creighton Hale, who has one of the other important roles, is a former Pathe star, and has also appeared in support of Pearl White. Other equally well known players are William H. Tooker, once a Fox and Metro star, and Paul Panzer, who has been seen in many Pathe serials.

In addition to this masterpiece of the Famous Canadian Actress, Julia Arthur, there will be several star vaudeville acts; also a Charlie Chaplin Comedy, and the Grand Screen Magazine, "The World before Your Eyes." Special Grand Concert Orchestra. Seats reserved in advance for all evenings. Prices 10, 15, and 25c. Matinees 10c and 15c.

Germans Opened Up a Terrific Barrage — Buildings Were Leveled.

Mrs. W. J. Tranter, Brownton, received the following letter from her son, Pte. W. B. Tranter of the 21st Battalion, Pte. Tranter, who went overseas with the 93rd Battalion is at present in Belgium.

Wans-sur-sambri,
4/3/19

Dear Mother,—Received four letters from Canada yesterday, one from you, one from Lil, one from Nellie and the other from George Toone.

To-day is the 4th of March. A year ago to-day I had my first experience of a rough time in the front line. I never told you much about that but I shall never forget that morning. We were in the front line on the outskirts of Lens. Company Headquarters was in the [illegible] wasn't completely destroyed and on that morning I was doing gas guard from 4 a.m. to 6. It was getting light towards six o'clock I remember looking at my watch at fifteen minutes to six and thinking that in 15 minutes I would get Fitz, who was due to relieve me. At 10 minutes to six a terrible barrage opened up. Our artillery wasn't long in responding. The shells were dropping everywhere and I couldn't understand why one didn't drop where I was standing. One would hit the building and a great shower of bricks would fall down. The shrapnel flew all over and I crouched in the corner as well as I could. Every little while Maidman would call up from the cellar and ask if I was all right. It was a funny sensation. No use arguing, I was afraid yet I was cool in a way. My knees were shaking terribly and I remember trying to check them, but they would shake. A shell [illegible] about 6 feet from me[illegible] I was standing but it was a "dud", thank goodness. I remember that the German barrage was very good. It was like a curtain of fire about 200 yards behind our front line. It was seven o'clock or later before I got relieved. I cannot explain or begin to explain just how I felt but I shouldn't care for a reoccurrence. That was a rough trip all right and [illegible] the morning of the 6th we made a raid on the German trenches, only got one prisoner. I was in Company Headquarters when he was brought in. He was a dusky fellow. Wounded in the head and the knee. There was quite a barrage that morning too and I was exposed to it also, although not for so long a period. Was in a dugout most of the time. When we were relieved I was sent ont ahead and had a fine job carrying out to Headquarters a dead man. The trenches were practically levelled in many places after the previous barrage and I didn't like the idea of lugging that stretcher over open country in broad daylight, still we did the job O.K. There were four of us went out with the dead man and two of the fellows had their wind up. When we got out to Lievin they wouldn't wait for the Light Railway but walked to our destination. They kept on saying "come on, Heinie shells this road" and seemed as nervous as could be. I was hungry and was thinking of going to a "Y" for something to eat and drink. When I came out of the line that time, I hadn't washed for four days and believe me I was some sight. "C'est la guerre."

Well, Mother, I am still O.K. and having a good time.

I have several letters to answer tonight so I'll close for this time.

J. H. Hart, 87, Not Too Old to Marry, Court Hears

Professional Men Appointed to Examination Report on Plaintiff in Annulment Action—Young Wife Testifies.

NEW YORK, March 27.—Only a faint heart murmer, not caused by the absence of love, bothers James Harvey Hart, eighty-seven year old plaintiff, who is suing Mrs. Kate Wolf Hart, his pretty eighteen year old bride, for annulment of their marriage. Otherwise the disappointed Lothario is a remarkably preserved man for his years, according to the testimony of medical experts, before Justice Benedict in the Supreme Court here.

Dr. Frank West of No. 172 Clinton street, Brooklyn, a consulting physician to the Long Island Medical College, said Mr. Hart was not too old to marry, according to the scripture. Dr. Farron J. Pierson, who was appointed to examine the plaintiff said Mr. Hart's cardiac trouble would not have prevented him from living happily with his bride.

In answer to a hypothetical question, based upon Mrs. Hart's testimony, the physician replied:—

"In my opinion it may be that this old man might have used poetical passages to arouse his affection for his wife and feel more and more in love with her."

While Mrs. Hart related details of the plaintiff's ardent courtship, Mr. Hart sat beside his two daughters, looking on unconcernedly. The young wife was dressed in a smart tailored suit of black and wore the expensive fur cape which her husband purchased just before the honeymoon.

"He asked me if I would like to marry him, I told him I would," testified Mrs. Hart. They held a tete-a-tete when she was manicuring his nails. "He asked me to meet him on the following Saturday and I kept the appointment," she said.

She said he invited her to his office, where he expresed his great respect for her and made his marriage proposal. "I told him I would have to get my mother's consent and he mentioned the fact that his daughters might not approve of the marriage."

Mrs. Hart said her suitor promised to "give her a paradise on earth." He also gave assurances that her mother would be provided for, she said. When she accepted his marriage offer, Mrs. Hart said he instructed her to purchase clothes and promised to make a wedding present of $30,000 together with an automobile.

Their wedding trip took them to Atlantic City and then Lakewood, and each night, Mrs. Hart said, her husband recited poetic quotations. She said his favorite passage was:—"Now, my fair bride, come, come, Fly with me to the land of Elyseum."

"He used to get up at four o'clock in the morning and awaken me at the same time," said the bride. "I told him 'please let me sleep—you keep me awake until two o'clock and then compel me to get up at four."

She then told of her husband's abrupt announcement while they were living at No. 837 Monroe street, that he was through and "going back to his daughters."

Before an adjournment was taken until next Monday, Mrs. Hart testified she had grown very fond of her husband, while admitting his financial status appealed to her.

Previous to the trial, Mr. Hart was examined in connection with his young wife's action for separation and explained his source of income. He said he owned twenty-four parcels of Brooklyn real estate, with an assessed value of $332,400 from which he derived a gross income of $45,693 and a net income of between $20,000 and $25,000. The income was used in supporting his four daughters and grandchild, he explained.

Warsaw Soldier Stuck to His Machine Gun at Vimy Ridge

Pte. C. Morrison Was Gassed—Warsaw News of Interest.

WARSAW, March 26.—Pte. Chas. Morrison has returned from overseas. He is another Warsaw boy who has seen it hard and made good. At Vimy he stuck to his machine gun for twelve hours, though his knee was very badly bruised. Later he lay off a day with it; at another time he was gassed, but though he might have made Blighty, he decided he was not unfit for duty. Though with the 5th C.M.R.'s since Sept., 1916, he was not off duty over a week, though several times he thought his last moment had come. He, too, has the Mons medal.

Soldier Returns

Pte. Vivian Jaskson has returned from overseas. He was in France and Belgium with the 5th C.M.R.'s from Sept. 1916 till after signing of the armistice. Was at the taking of Mons, and has the medal given by the civilians to the soldiers who were there. He has seen very hard service, has a good record, and had to go to hospital only once.

Box Social

The Box Social at Bethel, Friday evening was quite a success. Boxes averaged $2.00, on each. Major Frost's address was very interesting and the little play put on by Lakefield friends was very good.

Annual Meeting

Bible Society held its annual meeting on Friday evening, president in chair. Meeting opened by singing "He Leadeth Me." Prayer by Rev. Hugh Brown, and reading of 19th Psalm by Rev. Percy Robert. Minutes of last meeting read and approved. Treasurer's report given. One collector had gotten over $16.00. Old officers re-elected.

Rev. Hassard gave such an interesting address on the translation of the Bible. In hot countries where snow is unknown "white as snow" would mean nothing, "white as cotton" is the translation. With at times quite a twist of humor, he showed the many difficulties in the way of the Translator. The Bible was used in 75 different languages on the Western front in the war. It was very unfortunate that so few people attended.

King's Daughters

The King's Daughters met in the hall over Mr. Calder's store on Friday afternoon. After opening exercises Miss Eva Payne sang "God Send You Back to Me" very sweetly. The lesson on nursing was on the structure of bones, muscles, etc., and as there is much illness, a few timely hints on pneumonia were given. Physical drill lasted one half hour and then a reading on "Our Ideals," and a little talk on Deportment. As Mr. Calder has given the hall free and Mr. Treneer is lending a piano and Rev. Hugh Brown an oil stove, the secretary was instructed to write each of these gentlemen a letter of thanks.

Mrs. A. F. Choate arrived home Tuesday.

Miss Lennox, Lakefield, spent Tuesday and Wednesday with Mrs. David Drain.

Mrs. Jacob Payne visited with Mrs. John Crowe and Mrs. Thos. Crowe last week.

Mr. and Mrs. Frank Darling, Peterboro, spent Tuesday and Wednesday with their niece, Mrs. David Drain.

Mr. and Mrs. John Selkirk, Peterboro, spent Sunday with Mr. Selkirk's father.

Mr. Stephen Miller, Peterboro, is spending a few days with Mr. David Miller.

Mr. Percy Lloyd has returned home, having spent a few days in Burleigh and Harvey.

The Methodist people used their new organ yesterday for the first time.

The Boy's Club met and organized on Wednesday evening last.

The Baptist Young People are holding their meetings on Sunday evening at 7 o'clock.

There have been good runs of sap and those who have tapped are busy.

Cars Derailed.

On Sunday a large crowd of spectators witnessed the wreck of the G.T.R. about a quarter of a mile east of town. Four cars laden with wheat and a caboose left the track, all of which were turned completely over. The auxiliary came down from Lindsay and the track was clear for the nine o'clock mail on Monday morning. The crew were busy all day Monday gathering up the grain.

FOR THE HERALD

Herbert Rawlinson, Star of "Come Through," Now "Smashing Through."

Some poor fish who paid ten cents to see Herbert Rawlinson in "Come Through," at a small house, overlooking the gripping story and the whirlwind fight, complained to the manager that Rawlinson did not look used up and had not a mark on his face in the final close-up. Now that wouldn't faze some people, but the manager wrote to Rawlinson and he star got peeved.

"I want a story," he told Henry McRae, "that shows that I'm being placed in danger of my life. I've taken all kinds of chances in films and been hurt many times. But this guy makes me sore. He wants to see me suffer. All right, it doesn't hurt me any more if he sees it. I have to feel it either way. So give me a story that has all the stunts you ever saw."

The scenario department was then searched and a story which was under consideration for enlarging into a serial was shown to him. It was called "Smashing Through." All the hero had to do by way of exercise was to fight a posse of cowboys who were after [illegible] climb down a mine shaft with the girl in his arms, purloin the girl in an auto, permit it to be wrecked by a collision with another car, steal a motorcycle and ride like ....., jump from the motorcycle going at full speed to a freight train, and land on the trucks just over the track, while the train is making thirty miles an hour.

Of course, there were such minor things as personal combats to do, but these did not particularly interest the star.

The stunts did, however, and that's why the Universal is releasing "Smashing Through" as a Herbert Rawlinson Special Attraction instead of as a serial. It bears the same relation to "Come Through" as the word smashing does to the word come. It will be seen in this city first at the Grand Theatre, where all the Specials have been playing lately, on Friday. Elmer Clifton is responsible for the remarkable speed and dash of "Smashing Through."

THE WORLD OF SPORT

Peterboro Midland League Baseball Club Is Organized

At a meeting held in the Empress Hotel last night with His Worship Mayor Duncan in the chair, the Peterboro Midland League Baseball Club was formed. There was a representative attendance and considerable interest was shown in the coming baseball season. Before the election of officers was proceeded with the situation was discussed at some length. Mr. J. J. Solomon, who is responsible for the re-organization of the Midland League explained that it was the intention to select the Peterboro Midland League team from the teams of the local City League and the experience then gained would be invaluable to the young players. The Midland League would be conducted on a thoroughly amateur basis.

Mr. Ward Patterson, president of the local City League who will represent this city at the meeting of the Ontario Amateur Baseball Association was doubtful as to whether the rule of the O.B.A.A. would consider players who participated in a league such as the Midland as eligible for the Ontario series which is played between the winners of the various city leagues throughout the province.

The Peterboro City League will be represented in the O.B.A.A. series this year and the point brought up by Mr. Patterson is an important one. It will be considered at the O.B.A.A. meeting and in the meantime it was decided to go ahead last night and elect officers.

The following were chosen:

Hon. President—His Worship Mayor Duncan.

Hon. Vice-Presidents—Capt. J. H. Burnham, M.P., and Mr. G. A. Gillespie, M.P.P.

President—Gordon Matthews.

Vice President—C. G. Graham.

Secretary—A. Miller.

Treasurer—Horace Walkey.

Managing Committee — Dan McCabe, J. J. Solomon, A. T. Johnston, F. D. Craig, J. P. Bond.

Delegates to Midland League annual meeting—J. J. Solomon, F. D. Craig.

The meeting then adjournel after passing a vote of thanks to Mr. Graham for kindly allowing the use of the Empress parlours.

COLORED SILK STOCKINGS TABOOED FOR YEOWOMEN

WASHINGTON, D.C., March 27—Naval yeowomen hereafter must wear either their regulation uniform or complete civilian outfits. An order made public forbids mixing. Some of the hundreds of young women at the Naval Department officially known as "yeomen (f)" have been brightening up their plain garb with colored silk stockings, a bit of hat trimming and the like.

Dentist Attentive to Secretary; Wife Wins Separation

Court Awards Mrs. Fritz Swanson $5,000 a Year and Custody of Her Children

NEW YORK, March 27.—Roses as a peace offering were spurned recently by Mrs. Ida E. Swanson, as she drove the donor, her husband away. Yesterday she accepted instead of the flowers a decree of separation, alimony of $5,000 a year and the custody of her children.

Her victory was made more complete when Justice Hendricks, before whom her separation action against Dr. Fritz Swanson, a Fifth avenue dentist, was heard, declared the testimony showed she had been abandoned when ill, after years of forbearance when the defendant was less affluent.

Present in court during trial was Miss Ernestine Edwards, secretary to the dentist, whom Mrs. Swanson alleges received the attention of her husband. The young woman left court in company with Dr. Swanson after the judgment.

Besides granting Mrs. Swanson custody of the children, Justice Hendrick directed that $3,000 a year be provided for their maintenance. The plaintiff had to be assisted from the court room because of lameness in her sister, Miss Emy Agelson, who won a beauty prize several years ago.

In testifying Mrs. Swanson said she found a letter addressed by her husband to "My Dearest Ernie," which he succeeded in destroying after a struggle. She quoted excerpts from memory and said it ended with: "I love you—I love you—I love you."

Dr. Swanson denied ever writing the letter and said that a week after leaving his home, he returned bearing a bouquet of roses which he offered to his wife, hoping for a reconciliation. Instead Mrs. Swanson drove him away, he said, and threw the roses after him.

Mrs. Angus C. Beebe of No. 65 Central Park West, testified that Dr. Swanson and Miss Edwards had separate rooms in her apartment. She had seen the dentist and his young secretary together in the reception room and heard Dr. Swanson address Miss Edwards as "dear," but thought nothing unusual about it.

KEENE NEWS

DIED IN DOCTOR'S OFFICE UNDER AN ANAESTHETIC

NEWMARKET, March 27.—The death occurred here suddenly of George J. Davis, of Bradford. He had come in to be operated on for adenoids by Dr. Wesley, and had been given an anaesthetic, when it was noticed that he showed undue weakness under the treatment. Dr. Wesley immediately called in Doctor Stewart Scott, but all that could be done failed to revive the man. The death certificate will be signed by Dr. Scott as Coroner for the district in case of Dr. Wesley not acting. The deceased will be buried at Aurora, where he formerly lived.

WOULD REPLANT FORESTS.

Peak Outlines Project Meeting Europe's Battle Areas.

NEW YORK.—A project for reforesting the battle areas of Europe has been advanced by Charles Lathrop Pack, of Lakewood, ex-President of the World's Court League.

"About one and one-half millions acres of forest land in France were destroyed by shellfire or cut down for wartime need," said Mr. Pack. "Practically all of Belgium's forests with any timber value have been felled by the Germans and sent to Germany or used for fuel. Great Britain made a great sacrifice to war work, for fully 400,000 acres of forests were felled to meet war time needs. In Italy also great sacrifices were made to supply the army with trench timber and firewood.

"Many claims are made as to who won the war, but I am safe in saying one of the greatest agencies was the forests of France, for those forests held back the enemy time and again. The offer of the American Forestry Association to aid in reforesting work has been accepted by the forest authorities of France, Belgium and Great Britain, and the association will shortly call upon the American people to aid in this great undertaking."

Poland Needs War Supplies

Are Grateful to America for Food Supplies.

(United Press.)

WARSAW, March 27.—General Pilsudski, commander of the Polish armies, declared in an interview to-day that Poland needs materials to equip an army of half a million men, for effective opposition against the Germans, Ukrainians and Bolsheviki. He intimated that America might furnish these supplies from the equipment it will not attempt to remove from France.

"We have men and officers, but no uniforms, rifles, munitions or guns," said Pilsudski. "Poland is attacked on three sides. We cannot protect herself without technical war material, which she is not yet equipped for manufacturing. We are grateful to the Allies, especially America, from whom we have received something definite—food."

BRIDGE COMMITTEE IN TORONTO TO-DAY MAY MEET STEEL MEN

The Council's Bridge Committee is in Toronto today for an appointment and interview with Mr. W. H. Maldemist, the supervising engineer of the Ontario Railway and Municipal Board. It is understood that the company proposes to ask him for his opinions on certain phases of the Hunter Street Bridge, and it is more than likely that some of the steel bridge companies will be visited.

The committee held a special meeting yesterday afternoon at which they met the representative of a Montreal construction company, and also decided upon certain extensions to the preliminaris of receiving tenders.

The Examiner was informed yesterday that Mr. Barber's plans will be officially passed by the Railway Board this week. This means that the Board's engineer after months of work on the plans and specifications is now prepared to approve them in his report to the Board.

Command in the Balkans

Sword of Marshal Foch Is Not Yet Sheathed.

(Canadian Press.)

PARIS, March 27.— Gen. Mangin, one of the leading officers of the French army, was recalled from his command at Mayence, newspapers announce, to undertake a mission, the character and scope of which "is indicated plainly by the event in Hungary."

According to Gaulois, he would receive a very important command in Eastern Europe, undoubtedly the Balkans, with a view to possible operations on the Hungarian frontier and South-western Russia. General J. M. G. Malleterre, military critic, in an article in the "Matin," apparently reflecting military opinion, suggests that as a means of checking the Bolshevik and rendering a definite victory through Germany and effect a junction of Allies, Allied armies should march with Poland. Gen. Malleterre adds that the Allies must finish the job by a thunder stroke and declares that the sword of Marshal Foch is not yet sheathed.

ITALY MUST PROTECT HER OWN INTERESTS.

Says Paris Paper—Face the Future.

Special to the Examiner:

ROME, March 27.—The Paris correspondent of the "Epoca," commenting on the Peace Conference, to-day said:

"Italy must protect her own interests without awaiting the solution of her problems by others. In consequence of the war not being ended, surprises are still possible. We must liquidate the past rapidly in order to face the future."

TWO BROTHERS WERE WOUNDED

Corporal George A. Gray, son of Mr. and Mrs. J. Gray, George street, who went overseas with the 33rd battery in 1915 has arrived home after being through some of the most severe fighting of the Western front. Corporal Gray reverted to the ranks to get to France, in 1917 and after going across was severely wounded and still bears a souvenir of the fact, in the form of a piece of shrapnel in his leg, otherwise he is in splendid condition. Gunner H. Fraser Gray, who went over with the same battery as his brother, Corporal George Gray also arrived home a few weeks ago, after service in France since 1916. He too was wounded, a piece of his sweater coat being driven into his lungs and his back badly cut up.

Fell Off a Street Car

Mr. Alex. Fitzgerald, Hunter street Ashburnham, was the victim of a serious accident last evening. While getting off a street car at the corner of Antrim and George streets he fell in some manner and was rendered unconscious. Mr. J. T. Thornton noticed him and called for the ambulance and Dr. Harvey and took him to the Nicholls Hospital.

It was found that Mr. Fitzgerald had severely cut the back of his head but is progressing favourably today.

STRIKE FOR TRIVIAL REASONS

LONDON.—As an example of the trivial excuses given by New Zealanders for striking, R. M. B. Fisher, recently Minister of Customs and Imports in New Zealand, says on one occasion the crew of a boat went on strike because in the articles it was provided that Worcestershire sauce should be served. The supply ran short, and another brand was supplied with the result that the crew declined to take the vessel out of dock.

On another occasion the convicts at a prison went on hunger strike because a Salvation Army band stationed itself outside the jail and played continuously "Home Sweet Home."

Refusing to Give Up Husband, She Loses $250,000 Estate

Appellate Divison Decides Against Mrs. Ennis, Foster Daughter of W. H. Brown

NEW YORK, March 27.—In becoming the wife of John M. Ennis without obtaining the consent of her foster parent, Mrs. Florence B. Ennis has sacrificed a fortune of $25,000. Her disinheritance by William H. Brown, capitalist, late of No. 934 West Eighty-sixth street, after she refused to leave her husband was upheld by the Appellate Division of the Supreme Court.

While in her teens the girl was adopted by Mr. Brown and his wife, Mrs. Charlotte Brown. She was the daughter of Mr. and Mrs. Robert M. Cuzle, of No. 401 Lenox avenue, long time friends of the Browns, who in adopting her agreed to make her their heir.

When Mrs. Brown died several years ago she left to Florence an estate of $200,000 in trust, from which she now receives an income of $8,375 a year. In October, 1916, the young woman secretly married Ennis and when Mr. Brown learned of this he ordered the interest in the decedent's business.

Mrs. Ennis sued Mr. Chichester, as executor of the will, in the Supreme Court and won a verdict, but the Appellate Division yesterday reversed the judgment by a divided vote. Justice Darling and Merril in a dissenting opinion held that the oral contract made by Brown to make the young woman his heir was valid.

MILLBROOK BOY RETURNS HOME

Signaller, Pte. C. Alvin Richards returned from overseas, Tuesday, and received a hearty welcome at the depot. Pte. Richards enlisted in the 247th Bn., in January, 1917, and was in the pay office at Peterboro until March, when the 247th and 235th amalgamated and he went overseas in April of the same year. Went to France in March 1918, and was transferred to the Signal Section 2nd C. M. R.'s, 3rd Division, and has been over-the-top in all the engagements by the 3rd Division since then, including the last battles of Cambrai and Mons.

THE SPEAKERS

"There are a great many things that city people do not understand about farm life and a great many that farm people do not understand about city conditions."

"We don't want anything that the city people are denied but still we want what is coming to us," were the salient points of the opening address of Mr. R. B. Rogers at the banquet of the United Farmers of Ontario held in the Empress Hotel last evening. A fine musical programme prepared by Prof. Frederick Weldon and Mr. Frank Whitehouse was thoroughly enjoyed by all present including the ladies who were present in large numbers.

Mr. Rogers, President of the Peterboro Club of the U. F. O. was the chairman of the evening and the toasts proposed by different members of the Club were heartily endorsed by the banqueters.

Farmers Wives

Mrs. G. A. Brodie of Collingwood, Ontario, Vice-President of the Women's Institute in responding to the toast to the ladies gave a humorous sketch of the part played by many farmers' wives in Ontario especially as regards their household duties. "It is the woman, that makes the home but it is after all co-operation between man and woman which makes the ideal home." She spoke at length on the attention that is due to the child. Environment is one of the greatest forces of moulding of a child's character. Strict justice must be enforced and the spiritual element the power of sacrifice must be inculcated in the young mind. The boy or girl must be a good doer.

Divided Enough

Mrs. Brodie discouraged the idea of forming a new society to be known as the United Farm Women of Ontario. The Farmer's Institute was non-sectarian and included both city and farm women. The country was divided into enough sects now and she thought that such an organization could attain its object by affiliating with the Farmer's Institute.

Returned Soldiers.

Lieut. Col. T. J. Johnston, who led the 93rd battalion overseas, spoke on behalf of returning soldiers and said there was unrest among all classes, G. W.V. labour classes and also farmers. There are two things that he especially emphasized: "First, I consider that our immigration officials in England did not play the game fairly, because it was not a superior class that were sent to this country to live." In closing he pleaded for a better understanding of the soldier.

Mr. H. B. Cowan referred to the advertisements printed in the newspapers by a certain Dominion-wide organization who attempted to show what a fearful tragedy it would be if the farmer had his way. The farmers are now considering running a counter campaign of newspaper advertisments showing the viewpoint of the man on the farm.

Party Politics.

Touching lightly on politics the editor of the Farm and Dairy referred to the part taken by the farmers through their various organizations 40 or 50 years ago. He stated that when party politics were tightly drawn by the two parties, the farmer was advised to stay out; the papers followed the party and forgot the farmer until up as late as nine or ten years ago the farmers' organizations of Ontario were made by less than 1000 members. To-day there are 40,000 less people on the farms of the Dominion than there were in 1871 in spite of huge sums spent by the government on immigration. It became so bad that the farmer decided that he would attempt to solve the problem himself. Thus the United Farmers of Ontario came into being. The Association is composed of all classes of men full of vim and energy and others not so imbued.

Able Leaders.

The ablest leaders in the West are those that rose through the farmer's organizations. He took Hon. T. A. Crerar, Minister of Agriculture, as an example, now only 41 years of age, who 12 or 14 years ago was practically unknown. He is a man who is now regarded as one of the greatest financiers in the West. T. Rice Jones was also mentioned. Speaking of the future of the organization he said everything was optimistic and the members were optimistic to an advanced degree.

"Good old Ontario, is not what it used to be 30 years ago," said (Rev) Dr. Bland of Toronto, referring to daylight saving, which he held up to ridicule. Dr. Bland proved an orator of the first order and his comparisons of city and farm people were thoroughly enjoyed. He spoke admiringly of Mr. J. A. Maharg, M.P., of Saskatchewan, who was unable to be present and he assured his listeners that the farmers of the west were with them.

"We are not going back to pre-war conditions," stated Dr. Beland.

"We are not going back to the old harbour of injustice because our fathers bore it. In that great reconstruction the farmers of Canada seem called upon to play a premier part.

The Grain Growers of the West have abandoned party politics for all times. This clinging to the politics of their fathers was a devotion, a superstitious devotion.

The meeting was closed by singing of the National Anthem.

MICHIGAN HOUSEWIFE

Tells How Vinol Made her Strong.

Bronson, Michigan. — "I took Vinol for a weak, run down condition, and backache, and had to keep up and do my housework for my family of three. Vinol has improved my condition so that now I feel like a different person. — Mrs. Albert Rose.

The reason we recommend Vinol to our customers for such conditions is because we believe it to be the best and most successful strength creator that we know, containing as it does beef and cod liver peptones, iron and manganese peptonates and glycerophosphates. The greatest of all tonics.

SUMS HUN MUST PAY

Ten Billion Francs Stolen, is Belgian Demand.

BRUSSELS, March 27.—Germany's debt to Belgium for requisitions of cash made by the Germans and other money transactions alone aggregates 10,000,000,000 francs, of which 5,000,000,000 francs represent German marks circulating in Belgium after the armistice and taken up by the Belgian Banque Nationale, and 2,000,000,000 francs confiscated by the Germans from the Banque National and the Societe Generale during the occupation. The balance is made up of fines and money payments levied upon towns, cities, provinces and public institutions.

These figures were made public here by the Belgian financial committee on reparation.

GAS IN THE STOMACH IS DANGEROUS

Recommends Daily Use of Magnesia To Overcome Trouble Caused by Fermenting Food and Acid Indigestion.

Gas and wind in the stomach accompanied by that full, bloated feeling after eating are almost certain evidence of the presence of excessive hydrochloric acid in the stomach, creating so-called "acid indigestion." Acid stomachs are dangerous because too much acid irritates the delicate lining of the stomach, often leading to gastritis accompanied by stomach ulcers. Food ferments and sours, creating the distressing gas which distends the stomach and hampers the normal function of the vital internal organs, often affecting the heart.

It is the worst of folly to neglect such a serious condition or to treat it with ordinary digestive aids which have no neutralising effect on the stomach acids. Instead get from any druggist a few ounces of Bisurated Magnesia and take a teaspoonful in a quarter glass of water right after eating. This will drive the gas, wind and bloat right out of the body, sweeten

HAVE ROSY CHEEKS AND FEEL FRESH AS A DAISY—TRY THIS!

Says glass of hot water with phosphate before breakfast washes out poisons

To see the tinge of healthy bloom in your face, to see your skin get clearer, to wake up without a headache, backache, coated tongue, or a nasty breath, in fact to feel your best, day in and day out, just try inside-bathing every morning for one week.

Before breakfast each day, drink a glass of real hot water with a teaspoonful of limestone phosphate in it as a harmless means of washing from the stomach, liver, kidneys and bowels the previous day's indigestible waste, sour bile and toxins; thus cleansing, sweetening and purifying the entire alimentary canal before putting more food into the stomach. The action of hot water and limestone phosphate on an empty stomach is wonderfully invigorating. It clears out all the sour fermentations, gases and acidity and gives one a splendid appetite for breakfast.

A quarter pound of limestone phosphate will cost very little at any drug store, but is sufficient to demonstrate that just as soap and hot water cleanses, sweetens and freshens the skin, so hot water and limestone phosphate act on the blood and internal organs. Those who are subject to constipation, bilious attacks, acid stomach, rheumatic twinges, also those whose skin is sallow and complexion pallid are assured that one week of inside-bathing will have them both looking and feeling better in every way.

BE PRETTY! TURN GRAY HAIR DARK

Try Grandmother's old Favourite Recipe of Sage Tea and Sulphur.

Almost everyone knows that Sage Tea and Sulphur, properly compounded, brings back the natural colour and lustre to the hair when faded, streaked or gray. Years ago the only way to get this mixture was to make it at home, which is mussy and troublesome. Nowadays, by asking at any drug store for "Wyeth's Sage and Sulphur Compound," you will get a large bottle of this famous old recipe, improved by the addition of other ingredients, for about 50 cents.

Don't stay gray! Try it? No one can possibly tell that you darkened your hair, as it does it so naturally and evenly. You dampen a sponge or soft brush with it and draw this through your hair, taking one small strand at a time; by morning the gray hair disappears, and after another application or two, your hair becomes beautifully dark, glossy and attractive.

Wyeth's Sage and Sulphur Compound is a delightful toilet requisite for those who desire dark hair and a youthful appearance. It is not intended for the cure, mitigation or prevention of disease.

THE WIFE

Mrs. Clayborne Plans to Help Ruth's "War Babies"

CHAPTER CLV.

That everything has compensations, Brian and Ruth were fast learning. Even their own misunderstandings made them more lenient of the misunderstandings of others, and their sorrow more pitiful.

They spent happy, busy days together, waiting until the doctor gave Brian permission to take up his work again. Then when it was necessary to wait a little longer, "Only a week," the physician had urged; they took a flying trip south to see Mrs. Clayborne, who sent them a check to cover their expenses.

Ruth was delighted to go. Not alone because it was home to her, and that it would be a pleasure to see once more her girlhood friends, but because the invitation meant that Mrs. Clayborn, had at last forgiven her for marrying Brian, and that she had come to believe in him.

Then, too, Ruth was anxious to show her baby boy to all her firends, and to the old servants who would be so delighted with "lil Marse," as they were sure to call him.

Brian grew rapidly strong and when they returned at the end of ten days he no longer carried his arm in a sling, and his face had the ruddy hue of health.

The servants had been wonderfully pleased with the baby. "Missy Ruth's boy," and they were so proud of the soldier she had brought with her, that Ruth threatened to be jealous, declaring they thought more of him than of her.

"It's the uniform, Ruth." Brian told her when she laughingly complained, yet was so pleased she could not avoid showing it. "They like the frills."

"And I love what's inside the frills—it that is what you call uniform."

"That is a thing I never shall understand. How you ever came to love me in the first place, and why in spite of my stubbornness you have kept right on caring for me."

"There isn't any understanding love, I think, Brian; we either love or we don't. That's all there is to it. And if we realy love we love in spite of faults, unhappiness, sorrow, everything and anything."

"I guess you are right, Ruth. You seem nearly always to be. You should have been the lawyer, not I. Really you could argue a man into doing almost anything. I think you better take a law course and become one of the firm."

"And so go to business regularly again?" Ruth teased, although she knew Brian was joking.

"God forbid!" he returned so solemnly that she burst out laughing.

"Silly, silly boy. I am just as pleased to stay at home as you are to have me, now that you haven't taken my work entirely away." Ruth laughingly kissed him. Then, "How nice it is to be together, Brian. I am sure I never shall feel like complaining again, no matter what happens."

"Neither shall I." When I think of how much we have to be grateful for, Ruth, I feel like saying: "Thank God." We have our health. I was not permanently injured, we have our boy, and if trying will make it so, we shall be able to live comfortably. When I think of some of the poor devils who have returned minus legs and arms, some of them blind, I cannot fail to be grateful. I was willing to give — even to the supreme sacrifice, but"——

"I am so happy it was not required," Ruth broke in, her eyes misting at the thought. Brian's tone had been full of thankfulness. It seemed that all pettiness had vanished from him because of what he had gone through—because of his experiences overseas. He had seen death in many forms, and had been often so close to it himself that it had bred in him a seriousness never before observable—a sort of solemnity, when he talked of the war, that made him seem infinitely older and wiser.

At times Ruth felt that she had a new husband, that the old Brian had left her forever. Then there would flash out the old, careless, care-free spirit and she would recognize the boyish fellow she had married; and be glad that it was so. For while she loved the more quiet, more responsible man who had returned to her, she also loved the irrepressible boy who, if he couldn't do as he wanted to — couldn't have others agree with him, would do nothing.

A letter came from Mrs. Clayborne:

"As I promised, I shall be with you the last of the month. I shall remain only a little while, for I have planned to take more war widows whose babes never have seen their fathers, down home with me. In fact as many as the old plantation can accommodate. It will give me an interest in life aside from doing only what I selfishly love to do—being with you. So have yourself in readiness to help me find the most deserving of your proteges to take back with me."

"When a Child Droops"

Hurry, mother! Relieve the little stomach, liver and bowels of souring food, bile and poisons. Look at the tongue! Children love to take harmless "Cascarets" because Cascarets taste like candy—only 10 cents too!

Children droop and wither like tender flowers if you permit bile, sour fermentations and constipation poison to be absorbed into the system.

When a child's tongue is white, breath feverish, stomach sour, you can always depend upon good, safe "Cascarets" to gently but thoroughly clean the clogged-up places. Children love to take Cascarets, the candy cathartic which never gripes, never injures, never disappoints. Each 10 cent box contains directions and dose for children aged one year old and upwards.

STATESMEN CARICATURED.

Gargoyles on Parliament Buildings Cause Controversy.

Art circles in Ottawa are in a perfect furore over the sculpture on the new Parliament Buildings. A controversy is waging which is involving art critics, artists, architects, sculptors and laymen.

The trouble is over the gargoyles on the buildings. The buildings are built in Gothic architecture and gargoyles, both in and out, form naturally a prominent feature of the decorations. Many of the gargoyles instead of being grotesque animals and floral ornaments are caricatures of prominent Canadian statesmen and public men.

The controversy started through a paper read at the recent meeting of the Ottawa Teachers' Institute by A. F. Newlands, artist for the Ottawa schools, in which he condemned in scathing language the idea of grotesque caricatures of public men as decorations for all time on the Parliament Buildings. Mr. Newlands described the gargoyles depicting Sir Robert Borden, Sir Wilfrid Laurier, the Duke of Devonshire, the Duke of Connaught, Hon. William Pugsley and other celebrities as "disgusting jokes." He has been supported by E. G. Fosbery, A.R.C.A., an Ottawa artist, who describes them as "muddle faces."

John Pearson, the chief architect for the building, has kept out of the controversy, except to point out that the designs were approved by a committee of leading Canadian artists. He has been supported in his contention that they are in keeping with Gothic architecture by a number of leading Ottawa artists and sculptors. It is pointed out that many old world churches in their gargoyles have even caricatured leading ecclesiastics.

The sculptor responsible for the work is a widely-known English artist, Walter J. Allen. He worked on Durham, Salisbury and Winchester Cathedrals. Several years he spent abroad studying the French, German and Spanish Gothic architecture. He has for years been looked upon as an authority in England on Gothic architecture.

Some of the gargoyles are so grotesque that the caricatures are scarcely recognizable. This is not true of the heads representing the Dukes of Connaught and Devonshire. They adorn the corner of windows outside the Senate block. The Duke of Connaught's nose is, perhaps, a little exaggerated and the same is true of the moustache of the Duke of Devonshire. Both express humor and there is nothing offensive about the gargoyles. The gargoyles representing Sir Robert Borden, Sir Wilfrid Laurier, Sir John A. Macdonald and Hon. Alex. Mackenzie are all easily recognizable.

One of the most amusing of the figures is one, the inspiration for which is drawn from Hon. E. N. Rhodes, Speaker of the House. He has a great beak of a nose and has an open eye turned to the Government benches and a blind eye to the Opposition. Another amusing gargoyle is that of Hon. William Pugsley, who is depicted smoking a pipe, probably from his frequent summing up of a controversy with an opponent by the remark, "take that and smoke it."

In addition to leading statesmen who have been caricatured on the new buildings there are many prominent men who have furnished inspiration for the artist. On the window on the extreme northeast of the building is a figure which represents the late Alonzo Wright, M.P., who was the pioneer of the Gatineau country and was known as "the King of the Gatineau." His gargoyle is gazing up towards the Gatineau river, where for years in his splendid home he entertained like a prince.

Col. Ernest Chambers, Gentleman Usher of the Black Rod and since the war chief censor, is to be found by the diligent, as well as the late Col. Henry Smith, for nearly fifty years sergeant-at-arms of the Commons.

That Was It.

One of the favorite stories told in army camps in the earlier days of the war was that of the recruit who attracted attention shortly after he had been assigned to a depot regiment. Time and again in barracks and out he was seen picking up pieces of paper from the floor or ground, looking at them, muttering "that's not it," and passing on. He refused to explain his actions. The matter finally came to the attention of his officers and they had him reported to the attention of a medical board for examination. When he came before the board the recruit grabbed up the papers on the table and looked them all over before he could be prevented. "That's not it," he repeated as he examined each one feverishly. Finally, after lengthy observation, the medical officers recommended his discharge, via the "s. c. o." route. When the soldier detailed to accompany the apparent lunatic to his home was handed the discharge certificate the cause of it all seized it and perused it hastily. "That is it!" he yelled. And it was, for the release from the service was permitted to stand.

"Mother's Making

MARMALADE!"

Only the best materials will do for mother on Marmalade day. Fair sweet oranges with some grapefruit or bitter oranges to make a piquant flavor and pure "fine" LANTIC granulated from the original package.

The great jewels in Aladdin's cave were no clearer or sparkling than mother's Marmalades and other preserves made with LANTIC Sugar. The purity and the "fine" granulation is what makes them so beautiful—and so good.

There are many new recipes for Marmalades and preserves in our little Lantic Library, 3 booklets on Preserves, Desserts, Cakes and Candies. We send it to you without charge on receipt of 2-cent stamp for postage.

POPPIES ARE DANGEROUS.

Question of War Memorials Discussed by Hon. G. S. Henry.

Hon. George S. Henry, Minister of Agriculture, in his address before the Horticultural Convention in Toronto recently, dealt with the question of war memorials.

"There have been many suggestions as to suitable memorials which might be adopted to commemorate the noble lives and heroic sacrifices of Canadian boys who have fallen at the front," said the Minister, "and I would like to refer to one or two of these suggestions.

"Some time ago someone conceived the idea of bringing over seeds of the Flanders poppies, which have been made so well known through the imperishable poem of Col. John McCrae. Efforts have been made to bring these seeds to Ontario and grow these poppies here. On sentimental grounds this is something which naturally appeals to us all, but there is another side to the matter.

"When the subject first came to my attention I desired to have the best information available, and I asked the professor of botany at the Ontario Agricultural College for a report on the matter. It may be of interest to you to have his view, which was stated as follows:

"Varieties of the European poppy have been many times introduced into Canada and grown in gardens. So far as I am aware there are no records of poppies having escaped from cultivation and become troublesome as weeds in cultivated fields in Ontario. This fact, however, does not make it safe for us to assume that the poppy might not become a weed in Ontario if it were introduced wholesale by various patriotic committees throughout the province.

"In England and Europe the poppy is one of the common weeds of grain fields. Prof. Percival, professor of botany of the Southeastern Agricultural College, Wye, England, writes as follows concerning the poppy: 'The seeds of the poppy are small and many of them lie dormant in the soil for several years, springing up whenever the season is favorable. On this account poppies are difficult to abolish completely when once allowed to seed.'

"'In view of the fact that the poppy is such a common weed in grain fields in Europe, and that the seeds have considerable vitality and will remain dormant in the ground for several years, it seems to me there would be considerable risk that the poppy might become a troublesome weed in Ontario if it were introduced wholesale for patriotic purposes.'

"Under these circumstances I think the very greatest care should be exercised in the use of these seeds in this province. We do not desire to do anything which might later prove a menace rather than an advantage, and we all know that there are now in Ontario plants which are known as weeds which are very attractive in themselves if they could be kept under control.

"There is another suggestion which has been made, however, which I think is worthy of consideration, and that is the planting of trees in memory of the men who have fallen. This practice has been followed in many parts of the country, and in the line, and municipalities, schools and other organizations have adopted it. One state, I believe, is planning to plant trees along each side of 400 miles of highway. I think there are many sections of Ontario where this could be adopted with advantage. It would be a perpetual form of memory to those in whose honor the trees might be planted, and it serves to further beautify the province. In all our plans for memorials I think we should ever keep in mind the idea of making this country a more attractive place in which to live, and thus perpetuate the ideal for which they laid down their lives."

Feared a Competitor.

"The equator is an imaginary line running around the earth," said the boy who likes to tell what he has learned at school.

"An imaginary line," repeated the great railway financier absentmindedly. "Who is it promoting it?"—Washington Star.

COFFINS RENTED ONLY.

PARIS, March 25.—During February more than 113,000 persons, or more than eleven per cent. of the entire population, died in Petrograd, according to Russian police statistics just received in Paris. American relief workers who left Moscow on February 12, say that deaths in that city early in February averaged 4,500 daily. Coffins are no longer sold in Moscow, but are only rented for use at funerals.

In The Spring-Time.

Any fool knows enough to carry an umbrella when it rains, but the wise man is he who carries one when it is only cloudy. Any man will send for a doctor when he gets bedfast, but the wiser one is he who adopts proper measures before his ills become serious. During a hard winter or the following spring one feels rundown, tired out, weak and nervous. Probably you have suffered from "la grippe" or influenza which has left you thin, weak and pale. This is the time to put your system in order. It is time for house-cleaning.

A good, old-fashioned alterative and temperant tonic is one made of wild roots and herbs without the use of alcohol, and called Dr. Pierce's Golden Medical Discovery, in tablet or liquid form. It is nature's tonic, which restores the tone of the stomach, activity of the liver and steadiness to the nerves, strengthening the whole system.

CENTRAL BUTTE, Sask.—"I have used the 'Golden Medical Discovery' for a number of years and am pleased to recommend it as a blood purifier. I know it has no equal. I think my boy would not be alive to-day had it not been for the 'Discovery.' I also keep it on hand for coughs as it differs so from other medicines. Instead of upsetting the stomach as cough syrups do, it is good for the stomach."—Mrs. Percy Woods.

GRAIN MARKET

Cash oats and barley are still on the toboggan and going fast. Fort William quotations are 6 1-4c. lower than Wednesday's, a drop of 12c. in three days. Oats are declining, but not so fast, the decline for three days being 4 3-4c. Corn market is weak, March coming down a couple of cents yesterday. There are several bearish factors in the market. Short interest oats are apparently covered, and there is a lack of export demand.

Manitoba wheat—In store, Fort William; No. 1 northern, $2.24 1-2; No. 2 northern, $2.20 1-2; No. 3 northern, $2.17; No. 4 wheat, $2.11 1-2.

Manitoba oats—No. 2 C.W., 69 3-8c.; No. 3 C.W., 65 3-4c.; extra No. 1 feed, 65 3-8c.; No. 1 feed, 63 3-8c.; No. 2 feed, 60 3-8c.; in store, Fort William.

Manitoba barley, in store, Fort William, No. 3 C.W., 83 1-4c.; No. 4 C.W., 87 3-4c.; rejected, 88 3-4c.; feed, 82 3-4c.

Ontario wheat—No. 1 winter, $2.14 to $2.22; No. 2 winter, $2.11 to $2.19; No. 3 winter, $2.07 to $2.15; No. 1 spring, $2.09 to $2.17; No. 2 spring, $2.08 to $2.14; No. 3 spring, $2.02 to $2.10 f.o.b. shipping points, according to freights.

Ontario oats—No. 2 white, 66c. to 68c., No. 3 C.W. 64c. to 66c., according to freights outside.

Barley—Malting, 92c. to 97c.

Peas—No. 2, $1.80, nominal, according to freight outside.

Buckwheat—No. 2, 90c. nominal.

Rye—No. 2, $1.59 to $1.62, nominal.

Ontario Flour—Government standard, $9.35 to $9.75, Toronto-Montreal, $9.55 to $9.75, new bags.

Manitoba flour, Government standard, $10.75 to $11, Toronto.

Mill feed—Car lots, delivered, Montreal, shorts, $42.25; bran, $40.25; feed flour, not quoted; middlings, not quoted; good feed flour, per bag, $3.25 to $3.50.

Hay—Baled, track, Toronto, car lots, No. 1, $20 to $21; No. 2, mixed, $18 to $19 per ton; straw, car lots, $10.

WEALTHY WOMAN LEADS TEXTILE STRIKERS' PICKETS

LAWRENCE, Mass., March 27.—The striking textile workers were led in their picketing of the mill district at the opening hour by Mrs. Glendower Evans, a wealthy resident of Brookline. She was on the picket lines at half past five o'clock in the morning and headed a large crowd of strikers in a patrol of the mill gates for two hours. There were no disorders.

Mrs. Evans, who is a stockholder in the Arlington Mills, which are involved in the strike, said she would continue her active interest in the striking employees because she thought they should obtain their demands for a forty-eight hour working week without losing any of the pay they received under the former fifty-five hour schedule.

CURED OF DYSPEPSIA

BY USING

BURDOCK BLOOD BITTERS

The symptoms of dyspepsia are so numerous and diversified in different individuals that probably no description could exactly represent them as they occur in any given case, but a few of the most prominent are a rising and souring of food, pain, flatulence and distention of the abdomen, a sensation of discomfort after every meal, which is sometimes followed by sickness and vomiting.

To get rid of dyspepsia a careful arrangement of the diet is necessary and due time must be given for the digestion of a meal.

You will find that Burdock Blood Bitters will help with this digestion. It does this by toning up the stomach in such a way that the dyspepsia soon disappears.

Mr. Robt. Baldwin, Winnifred, Alta., writes:—"I cannot speak too highly of Burdock Blood Bitters for dyspepsia, from which I have been a sufferer for years. I have tried a good many doctors and proprietary medicines, but one day I thought I would try something different, so got a bottle of B.B.B. from our local store, as I was about the only remedy I hadn't tried, and I can certainly say that I was more than pleased with the results, as I got better right away. I will always recommend it to other sufferers."

REGENT TAILORS

GRAND SPRING OPENING

REGENT TAILORS

If all the Men in Canada Fully Realized

What Wonderful Tailoring Value We Give We'd Need a Dozen Traffic Officers to Handle The Crowd

If all men of Canada ONLY KNEW the sort of Suits and Overcoats we are turning out at Nineteen Dollars to measure, the street in front would look like the Strand or Piccadilly on a Saturday afternoon.

We will sell you our window display models at the same price, if you want suit or overcoat at once.

WE ARE HERE TO STAY

Fortunately for YOU, only one man in a hundred recognizes a real opportunity when he sees it. That's human nature. That is why, when a certain philanthropist once stood on London Bridge offering gold guineas for a penny to needy passersby he found no takers. People simply refused to believe it—it seemed too good to be true.

Not that we are not perfectly satisfied with the business that is coming our way the growth of this busines has been simply phenomenal. But we feel that we could do more, and should do more, and WILL do more, when every man in Canada understands for himself what a money-saving clothing offer ours really is.

THE REASON WE GIVE THE VALUES WE DO—THE BEST IN THE COUNTRY—IS BECAUSE OF OUR COMPACT, ECONOMICAL ORGANIZATION. NO OTHER TAILORING CONCERN IN CANADA CAN AFFORD TO PRODUCE SUCH HIGH-GRADE CLOTHES AT SO LOW A PRICE, BECAUSE THE HEAD OF EACH IMPORTANT DEPARTMENT IS AN ACTUAL STOCKHOLDER IN THE COMPANY, A WORKINGMAN, NOT A FIGUREHEAD DRAWING A FAT SALARY FOR DOING NOTHING. THAT IS WHY PRODUCTION IS KEPT DOWN TO THE LOWEST POSSIBLE COST, AND WHY WE CAN SELL OUR CLOTHES AT THE LOW PRICE WE DO.

COME IN AND SEE THE MAGNIFICENT RANGE OF MATERIALS WE HAVE SECURED FOR THE SPRING AND SUMMER TRADE. THEY HAVE JUST BEEN OPENED OUT. THEY WILL AMAZE YOU. IF, AFTER CAREFUL INSPECTION AND COMPARISON, YOU DO NOT FEEL THAT YOU ARE SAVING FROM $10.00 TO $20.00 ON EVERY SUIT OR OVERCOAT YOU ORDER, WE WILL BE GREATLY DISAPPOINTED.
